Another step in our solicitation of trade among the North Shore summer residents is made in the inauguration of our improved delivery and order system.

We are using our own autos instead of relying upon local North Shore expresses, over whom we necessarily have only limited control, as they, of course, serve a multitude of houses besides ourselves.

One of these autos is situated at the North Shore the entire summer. Goods ordered are shipped there twice daily by American Express on fast trains. The auto meets the train at the station. At one end of our delivery route or the other the goods are loaded and delivered to all parts of Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, West Manchester, Manchester and Magnolia.

The Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by our autos direct from the store.

DELIVERY BY OUR OWN AUTOS

Orders for merchandise may also be entrusted to the drivers of our autos, who see that the same has prompt attention, or may be telephoned into the store—calling Oxford 3200 and asking for "Order Department."

Swimming—In No Other Sport Does Woman Make So Wonderful a Showing

PERHAPS in no other sport does woman come so near to surpassing man in proficiency as in swimming. In this branch of sport in late years she has developed so rapidly that she has had man looking after his laurels. Since the coming of Annette Kellermann to this country from Australia some years ago interest in swimming by women has developed rapidly although it is yet in its infancy. In England women have been excellent swimmers for years and surpass American women in that form of sport if no other. This is due, no doubt, to the longer time the sport has been popular. In spite of the high degree of development reached by the English and American women swimmers they are still unable to excel the men. A study of the records will bear this out.

Of course this is natural, and as it should be, for woman does not possess the strength and stamina of a man. No one would expect a woman to out-rank a man as a football or basketball player, or outclass him at running, jumping, wrestling, rowing and tennis. So why should man be surpassed in this one sport? The world has produced some wonderful women golfers, tennis players, fencers, etc., but in no other branch of athletics does she shine as in swimming. It seems to be her chosen sport and the one she is designed to develop to the highest degree.

To be a really first-class swimmer, especially one that can remain in the water for a long time, one qualification is absolutely essential, and that qualification is to be endowed with a liberal supply of flesh. Fleshy tissue is the substance that keeps one high in the water, and also protects the swimmer during long immersions. Therefore a plentiful supply of flesh means that both buoyance and warmth are assured. Women, for instance, who do not, as a rule, possess a superabundance of muscle and whose bones are much lighter than those of the male, are generally endowed with a more liberal allowance of flesh, and are indebted to this cause for a much greater buoyance than falls to the lot of the average man.

Just wander along any of our popular North Shore beaches any day and watch the bathers in the surf. You will notice that while the average woman will thoroughly enjoy splashing around in the breakers for a long period, her male escort is soon seen running blue-lipped and shivering for his bath house. It will be noticed, however, that all the leading long-distance endurance men swimmers are supplied with an ample amount of flesh, and there is probably no such swimmer under 190 pounds. In fact, it is claimed in England that no man weighing less than 200 pounds can hope to accomplish the feat of swimming the Channel. Therefore, a male endurance swimmer, endowed with the same qualities of buoyance and warmth as a woman can outswim her, due to brute strength alone.

Woman has been laboring under a great handicap for until recently she has been kept out of athletics the same as she has been denied a voice in public affairs, but now that she is beginning to assert herself and demand that she be given a place in the business and political world she is also insisting that she be given a chance in athletics as well. In no other sport does woman make so wonderful a showing, and considering the short time she has had to become proficient, it would not be surprising to see her add many new laurels to her records and make the men work hard to maintain their supremacy.

Early Jitneys of Somewhat Different Type From Those Now in Use

WHETHER you bless it as a convenience or revile it as a nuisance—however you regard it—do not think of the “jitney” as of modern origin. When a noisy lumbering, converted auto-truck goes thundering by with its load of human freight do not look askance at it as an evolution in method of travel. It is not the result of evolution, but of revolution. The jitney represents a backward instead of a forward step in methods of transportation. It is a reversion to first principles.

Over the North Shore roads which now boast their “jitney” or “bus” routes there passed every day “jitneys” of a somewhat different type, almost a century ago. So the jitney is not a Twentieth Century innovation. Jitneys of the early part of the last century evidently did not thrive as do the jitneys of today. Population was not so dense and the citizenry of that day looked upon the conveyances in the light of luxuries rather than necessities.

In some localities the prototype of the modern jitney did a flourishing business up to the date of the intrusion of the steam railroad, when the latter put it out of business. So, perhaps, we need not sympathize so strongly with the poor railroad which the jitneys threatened to nearly put out of business. One of the early North Shore ‘bus lines was established in the ‘30s by Thomas Dodge. By a coincidence the name this pioneer jitney magnate gave his “stage” was the “Mayflower.” His line was operated between Salem and Beverly so there is ample record to support the contention of many Beverly citizens that their ancestors “came over in the Mayflower.” The Mayflower jitney made hourly trips between the two points and, as it was the only means of transportation, it was well patronized. Then along in 1839 came the extension of the Eastern railroad to Ipswich and the “Mayflower,” like its historic namesake, passed into memory.

About the time the Salem-Beverly line was established another line was inaugurated between Boston and Beverly. The driver, Woodbury Page, was evidently an individual given to indulgence in repartee with those along his route, if there is any truth in the anecdotes related about him. Once as he was passing through Charlestown, it is said, he paused to take on a passenger. The wrath of a local cabdriver, whose path was obstructed, was excited and he shouted,

The unruffled Mr. Page retorted, “Yes, when I get the pork in.” (Pork was the nickname applied to Charlestowners of that day).

The Page ‘bus was a commodious affair with a name more or less descriptive, “The Rambler.” When the stage reached the end of its route at night it was housed in a barn on the site of the First Baptist Meeting House, Beverly. Later the quarters of the stage were changed to a barn at the junction of Ocean st. and Hale st. The career of the “Rambler” came to a sudden and unexpected close—fortunately about the time of the coming of the railroad. One evening the barn was destroyed by fire and the “Rambler” rambled no more.

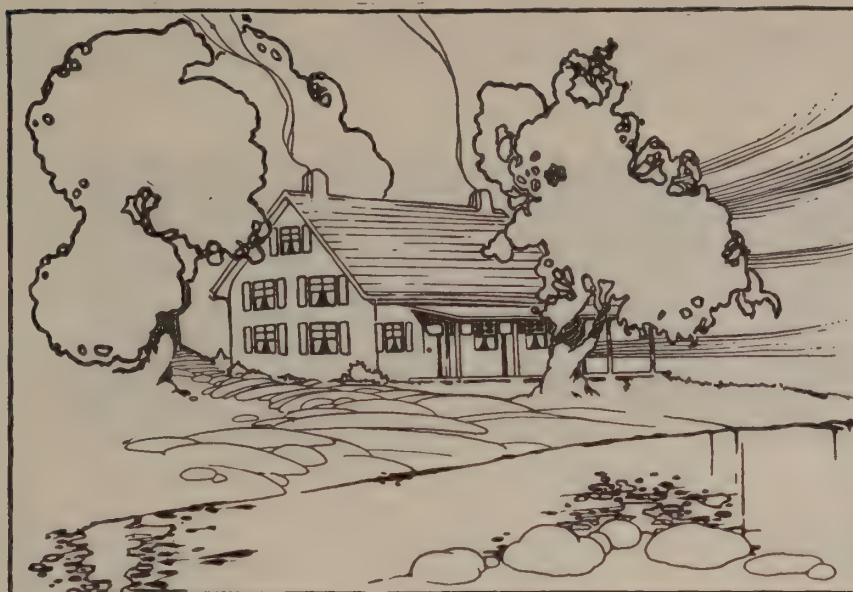

The owner of the deceased “Rambler” became the first agent of the railroad, the station of which was located near the bridge to Salem. About this time Andrew Standley saw possibilities in the jitney industry, although he never dreamed of calling it by that name. He secured a two-wheeled cab, capable of carrying four persons, and began carrying passengers to the railroad station. But, if the jitney was a novelty a few years ago, it was not nearly the innovation that the cab proved to be in Beverly. Instead of welcoming the convenience the people shunned it. None of those “new-fangled” things for them. Eventually the cab business was given up by Mr. Standley.

It is no wonder the originals of the jitney failed to succeed when we read that the merchants of Beverly were accustomed to walk to Boston to make their purchases. Even so, these pioneer “free lance” vehicles paved the way for the modern “jitney.”

One of Magnolia’s Interesting and Useful Shops

AT the foot of Lobster Lane is a quaint, white cottage, containing the loveliest of hand-made and home-made things,—frocks and smocks that are beautiful to wear, delicious cakes and tempting candies, toys and dolls that make you wish you were just half past six again. It is the summer home, perhaps one should say “The Summer Shop,” of the Women’s Educational and Industrial Union of Boston, which is to open July 1, for its second season at Magnolia.

It’s a place in which to spend an hour of pure delight,—and a thoughtful hour too, for like the Union’s activities, the little shop “has a purpose,” and that purpose is social and educational as well as industrial and artistic. For more than a quarter of a century the Handwork Department, of which the Shop is a part, has been reaching out to women who, possessing the skill and the ability to do some one thing exceptionally well, have felt the need of earning money without leaving their own homes; it has helped them to become self-supporting by organizing and developing a market for their specialized product; and by handling its affairs with an efficiency which is removing the enterprise from a philanthropic to a self-supporting basis, it is giving a really practical business experience to its consignors.

From near and far things come to the Shop,—flower bowls and jars from the potteries of Marblehead, baskets from the Philippines. The dolls are dressed in the Union's workroom at 264 Boylston street, just opposite the Public Gardens. And such dolls! Gretchen and Peter in bewitching hand smocked dresses, baby dolls that you will "just love," and for the little girl whose grown-up brother is hurrying southwards to the Mexican border, a Red Cross nurse which is specially made to order.

Besides the dolls there are toys and games and puzzles; gaily painted shovels and pails with which to dig trenches in the sand; rainy day boxes filled with all sorts of interesting and surprising things; miniature cities to be reared as if by magic upon the beach. Every little person on the North Shore must surely come and visit the Children's Room,—it's almost like a fairy tale come true.

There are books a-plenty, especially the outdoor kind for vacation days, books about the birds, which tell you how to recognize them and to know their ways, books of the ferns and flowers, and of course books about the seashore and the ocean. The list has been prepared in co-operation with several authorities, among them Professor Dallas Lore Sharp of Boston University, who has himself written a series of nature books about our own New England.

And when you have seen the other delights of the little place, if you will pass through the Food Shop with the famous Union cakes and candies, you will find yourself in a restful, old-fashioned room where an attendant in radiant rose colored costume will serve you tea that is nectar and toast that is ambrosia.

A BABBLING BROOK, a long elm-shaded driveway, ferns everywhere and rhododendrons planted here and there in the most natural way possible mark the entrance to Burnside, the home of Miss Katharine P. Loring and Miss Louisa P. Loring at Pride's Crossing.

The little brook winds along its shady course, crosses under the driveway, finds itself in a little pond down in a hollow between the homes of the Misses Loring and Judge and Mrs. W. C. Long, whose garden slopes down to the bank of the pond. The pond eventually finds itself in the sea just beyond, where there is a fine little beach. The little beach and cove are known as Plum Cove, taking the name from the wild plum trees that grew there long ago. Burnside takes its name from the Scotch for brookside.

Spicy odors prevail about the place and their source is found to be in the old-fashioned garden enclosed with cedar hedges and vines. A sundial stands in the center, and the gravel walks run through spicy rows of box bordering beds of old-time flowers. As the garden is left, a particularly pretty and thickly bordered bed is noticed, and upon looking within, is seen a big bed of blue forget-me-nots, which seem to speak the message of the garden.

Near the house are two large beds surrounded by box. They are oblong and very exact in their design. This box came from an old Salem garden as did much of the box in the large garden. From these beds a little path runs down the hill to the bath house. At the opposite side of the house is the wider path down to Plum Cove and over to Judge Loring's house. The view from the veranda is interesting out across the water.

A pretty sight on the place are the family pets. Two gentle looking cows are browsing around and a large flock of pure white pigeons have possession of the barn. When their mistress calls them they rise like a white cloud and fly towards her.

"Burnside" is one of the most hospitable homes on the Shore and is opened many times during the summer to organizations representing all walks in life.

MRS. W. HARRY BROWN of "Sunset Hill," Beverly Cove, has made what promises to be a striking and showy garden on their new place purchased last year. It was the Mandell cottage, and this year the Browns have added much to the attractiveness of the place by painting the house white and the roof green. Mrs. Brown is enthusiastic over her garden and has planted it on a natural terrace near the house. Also two rock gardens are near it. In the main garden pink flowers have been planted on one side and blue on the other. The particular feature of the garden is the roses. The rocky center has a fountain and down below the terrace is a pool. This is reached by grass covered stone and earthen steps which are a delight to walk upon. Greenery has been planted and rustic archways made around the garden. In time this will be one of the prettiest in the Cove.

The Phillips Bird Farm at Wenham

A FLURRY OF WINGS and a darting lakeward or heavenward are some of the tokens of a North Shore industry hidden snugly away by Wenham lake.

It is here that Dr. John C. Phillips of "Windy Knob," Wenham, carries on his bird farm along theoretical lines rather than for a utilitarian purpose. He has conducted the place for seven years and has made many interesting experiments in the crossing of species, and has given the scientific world much of what he has observed through his studies in heredity.

Wood-ducks, pintail ducks, Canada geese, teal, mallards, common and fancy pheasants, quails, cranes and fancy chickens are among the birds that find their home in this unique confine.

The most interesting part of the farm is the acre of pond and land space inclosed by a high wire fence, sunk deep in the ground and with a special capping on the top, designed to keep out the enemies of duckdom. With these enemies Dr. Phillips has had many tragic experiences, and a continual watching is in order for rats, cats, weasels, great horned owls and foxes. Within this island inclosure are seen several unique bird boxes for the songsters of Wenham lake.

Just now among the special scientific experiments of the place is one aiming to increase the winter egg laying of poultry. The breeding of hybrids is in process all of the time and common pheasants are raised for shooting in the fall under state permit. Also the new method of quail introduction is uppermost in their line, for it is hoped to introduce them extensively in Essex county. Dr. Phillips considers them one of the most valuable of economic birds for the farmer as well as the sportsman.

The wood-duck he considers the peer among water-fowl and says that it is more amenable to confinement in every way than any other species of wild duck, except the mallard. In his experiments in banding wood-ducks and releasing them he has had a few returns, although the tendency of the present strain of hand-reared wood-ducks is to become local. He has had one return from Georgia and Cuba. Wild mallards have also been heard from.

A RARE GARDEN GEM with just the right setting is found at "Bee Rock," the North Shore home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman of Newport. The place is occupied this year by Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago and Washington, a new-comer to the Shore, who comes to be near her niece, Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge (Catherine Eddy) of Beverly Farms.

In writing of many of the summer places the gardens and grounds blend into each other in such a manner that all need to be mentioned to do the place justice. This is not the case at "Bee Rock," for the little Sicilian garden is a gem of rare beauty and seemingly perched upon the rocks facing the sea and the sunlight and is not necessarily a part of the rest of the place.

The garden site was formerly a rocky cliff. About eight years ago the place was made into the four beautiful terraces, and walls of rock and cement were made to hold

Pair of Demoiselle Cranes With Young

Night herons have been banded, and one which had its nest on the farm belonging to Mrs. John Phillips, Sr., made its return.

Some years the birds do remarkably well in laying eggs and raising their young. About 1500 are raised each year. Last winter, however, was hard upon them.

In one of Dr. Phillips' articles in Outing he says: "There are numerous tricks of the trade, of course, and many of them never find their way into print."

Wenham lake is the nucleus around which the Phillips families have gathered in the summer time for many seasons. It is here that Mrs. John C. Phillips (Anna Tucker) of Boston spends a long season on her beautiful estate known as "Moraine Farm." Her son's family, the George W. Phillips of Sudbury, and her sons-in-law and daughters, Congressman and Mrs. Andrew J. Peters of Washington and Mr. and Mrs. Raynal Bolling of "Greylodge," Greenwich, Conn., always spend part of the season at "Moraine Farm." Another son, William Phillips, who is now third assistant secretary of state, and Mrs. Phillips (Caroline Drayton) have a handsome new home, "Highover" adjoining "Moraine Farm." Dr. John Phillips makes "Windy Knob" his year-around home.

"Windy Knob," aside from the bird farm, is an interesting place to see. The big red brick house stands on a hill overlooking a pine forest sloping down to the lake. There are no lawns to care for about the place, for pine trees are everywhere, many having been planted where there were none naturally. The garden is on an exposed spot near the house and is inclosed by arbor vitae hedges on three sides and a vine-covered brick wall on the other. It is filled with mostly fall flowers. A lower garden terrace has been added recently in which is an inviting bird basin. The view from the garden is very beautiful, showing much of the lake scenery and the fine homes of other members of the Phillips family across the lake.

The library at "Windy Knob" is undoubtedly the most interesting room in the house. The high, richly finished walls are lined with the antlered heads of many victims of the hunt; and other trophies are scattered about the room, all showing the life and habits of a naturalist.

the earth in place as the land was made for the plants. An octagon piazza of unusual artistic beauty is at the corner of the house and leads with unique stairways down into the garden. The most striking feature of the little place is the array of jars—six big Italian jars or vases which can be seen far out in the harbor. Stone steps lead down from the different terraces and when one is at the bottom terrace, or still better, in a boat on the water, the view upward is one of unsurpassed beauty. Hardy perennials, an assortment of annuals, roses and shrubs are planted on the terraces. Shrubs are also seen in pots.

Some fine oak trees and a handsome copper-leafed maple are also features of natural beauty at "Bee Rock."

The house formerly belonged to the Cushing family and was built during the Civil war. It is a large dark green structure with green chimneys and is best seen from the water. The Normans named the place "Bee Rock" from the fact that a swarm of bees settled upon one of the rocks near the garden one day, after they had purchased the place. It is said that these are the only Sicilian gardens on the North Shore, and are, indeed, rare anywhere, for it takes just the right sort of coast line for such affairs to be a success.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT S. BRADLEY of Pride's Crossing opened their home last Sunday afternoon for an address by E. C. Carter, secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., who spoke on "Army Huts," dealing with the work of the organization in Europe and Asia.

The Shore was well represented; about 150 of the most prominent residents were in attendance, and listened closely to the earnest, pathetic recital of the Y. M. C. A. work as it is being managed in the principal European countries and in Asia. The large rooms of the Bradley home are admirably suited for such a gathering and are ever open for public meetings for the many benevolent causes in which Mrs. Bradley is interested. The white and green room in which the speaker stood was made more attractive with its large vases of lilies and foxglove, and the rose room, in which the overflow of guests sat, was charming in its flowers to match the general color scheme of the room.

Mrs. Bradley introduced the speaker, and, at the close of the address, spoke a word of appreciative thanks in behalf of the mothers present.

Mr. Carter had been stationed in India and went with the troops in Europe when the war began and has been actively engaged in establishing "recreation huts" among the soldiers. The "huts" are a miniature Y. M. C. A. building, furnishing educational, physical and moral life to the men. Free stationery at these places is a great comfort and temptation to the boys to write home, and many mothers can thank the "huts" for the letters they receive. The secretaries also work in hospitals and have moving pictures flashed upon the walls, have good music given, read and write for the patients and do many little things to make the time of their convalescence less tedious. Bright boys and girls are often gathered from the hospital vicinity by the secretaries and give an hour or so in reading to the patients. Khaki Bibles are also a novelty and are used in the "huts" as convenient little gifts for the soldiers.

Jordan Marsh Co., Boston's leading department store, have made a big stride in the solicitation of North Shore trade this year by inaugurating an improved delivery and order system. Instead of relying on local North Shore expresses they have installed a truck of their own for deliveries in the lower section of the Shore—at Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia, while the Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by their own autos direct from the store.

EVERY North Shore home has some distinctive feature. Perhaps the home of the George F. Willetts on Coolidge's Point, Manchester, would lay its claim of distinctiveness to its soft grassy walks. They have been cut through the forest surrounding the place and have been sown in English mixed grass seed. In stepping upon some common sod from the soft velvety lawns the difference is appreciated at once. One of the striking features of the place is the big tennis court enclosed with masses of roses in their time. A new archway is being made at one side of the court over which vines will be trained and a cosy place made for players. The pathway also runs under it and around the tennis court and through the woods. Beds of tea roses seem to predominate, and vines are used with artistic effect in many places. The formal garden is on a slope at one side of the house. The water view from the big veranda is one of the best on the Point, and the many pretty features of the place mark it as one of the distinctive homes of the Shore.

E. L. Beck has come up from Mexico to pass July and August with his family, who have been established in "Arbor Vitae," one of the cottages on the Harris property, Smith's Point, Manchester, the past month. Mr. Beck is a banker in Mexico City.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ward of Longwood, who spent June at their place in Manchester, have gone to Gordon's Landing, Lake Champlain, for the summer instead of to a camp in Maine or New Hampshire, as has been their custom for the past few years. Their son Charles Lakeman Ward, Harvard 1917, started for the Plattsburg military training camp Wednesday.

Miss Frances H. Stone of Boston has been visiting on the North Shore at the home of Mrs. Henry S. Grew, "The Sumacks," and at "Clipstone," the home of the Boylston A. Beals in Manchester, and this week concluded her visit in Hamilton at "Ashleigh" the home of Mrs. John G. Walker and Miss S. C. Walker.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT L. LIVINGSTON of New York, and their beautiful children, Denise and baby Marie Jacqueline, who are occupying the Brinley cottage off Hesperus avenue, Magnolia, are a very interesting family. Mrs. Livingston was a former Denver girl and is a devoted mother. Her particular sport, however, one that she has lately resumed, is that of horseback riding. Mrs. Livingston is very attractive and rides with much poise and grace. The Livingstons will probably remain at Magnolia until the last of October and will entertain quite a bit. At present they are entertaining Mrs. McRa Livingston of New York as their house guest, and are anticipating the coming of Mr. and Mrs. Phoenix Ingraham and baby, of New York. The Ingrahams will arrive here about the latter part of July. Mrs. Ingraham was Mrs. Corinne (Violet) Hatch, the marriage taking place in May of 1915 at New York City.

Of the coterie of young ladies who make Magnolia quite gay during the summer Miss Marion Maher of Roanoke, Virginia, is ever popular. The N. D. Mahers, who spent a number of seasons at the Oceanside, have leased the Chick cottage on Norman avenue, for the season, and their coming has been anxiously awaited. Mr. Maher is a prominent railroad magnate of the south and is Vice-President of the Norfolk & Western Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman (Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor) are in their new home, "Cedar Hill," on Grover street, North Beverly, which they purchased last summer. Mr. Whitman's mother, Mrs. Wm. W. Whitman of Boston, has been a guest at the place recently. No special improvements have been made upon the grounds yet. The house is an immense white structure standing on a high, rocky hill with magnificent vistas, and was formerly known as "Loma Vista."

Mrs. William R. Nelson of Kansas City is at her summer home in Magnolia for the season.

A number of especially fine artists have been engaged by Mrs. Hall McAllister of Marlboro street, Boston, for a series of three musicales to be given on the North Shore, the first to be held at the residence of Miss Margaret L. Corlies at Magnolia on Friday afternoon, July 14th. The others will be held on July 28th at the home of Mrs. Bayard Warren at Pride's Crossing, and on August 11th at the summer residence of Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent at Pride's. The artists are Miss Greta Torpadie, soprano; Mme. Marie Sundelius, soprano, and Miss Marcia Van Dresser, soprano of the Chicago Grand Opera Company; Miss Hildegard Nash, violinist; Mr. John Van Bommel, baritone, of the Royal Opera at the Hague; Mr. Lester Donahue, pianist; and Mr. Albert Stoessel, violinist.

Rev. Charles Wadsworth, D.D., president of the Presbyterian Board of Education, Philadelphia, will preach at the Union Chapel, Magnolia, Sunday morning at 10.45. Dr. Wadsworth spends the summer with his family at Magnolia.

A charming young matron of Magnolia is Mrs. di Rosa, wife of Signor Gustavo di Rosa, Italian Consul at Boston. Mrs. di Rosa was formerly Miss Maude Cupples Scudder of St. Louis, who has been spending her summers at Magnolia with her mother Mrs. William H. Scudder since a girl in her early teens and has a host of friends in Magnolia's smart set. Mrs. di Rosa was one of the most attractive patronesses at the Italian Festa on the estate of the Honorable and Mrs. George von L. Meyer in Hamilton, during the past week. Mrs. di Rosa has always loved the out-of-doors and enjoys all kinds of sports, but particularly does she like the saddle and she is seen quite often upon her horse in the roads about Magnolia.

Mrs. Atherton T. Brown of 480 Beacon street, Boston, and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth, are at Magnolia for the season and are domiciled in the Overlook Cottage, one of the Oceanside connections.

Dr. William F. Boos and family of 374 Marlboro st., Boston, are settled at the Young cottage, Fuller street, Magnolia, for their first summer on the North Shore. Dr. Boos is a practising physician.

Master Harry Fessenden the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sewell H. Fessenden of Coolidge's Point and Boston, is a skillful young horseman, and although he is a very young chap, still he rides as well as any grown-up. He has a great deal of confidence in his favorite horse, and spends much time in the saddle. He is a very pleasant little boy and is known in and about Magnolia by nearly everyone, with always a cheery word and sunny smile for all.

◆ ❖ ◆

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harrington Walker of Detroit, who are at their beautiful summer home "Rockledge" on Shore road, Magnolia, for the season are entertaining Miss Betty Caulkins of Detroit, a school friend of their young daughter, Miss Elizabeth. Miss Betty will probably remain until about the middle of July before returning to Detroit.

Of the many little girls who enjoy a daily gallop on their favorite pony none ride better than little Miss Helen Farnum. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Farnum of Chicago and the "Sun Dial," Magnolia. Then there is pretty Rose Fessenden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fessenden, whose summer home is at Coolidge's Point. Little Miss Rose is the proud possessor of a new black saddle pony and rides him with a will.

NORTH SHORE residents will be interested in the talk on "Aims of the Special Aid Society" by Mrs. Barrett Wendell, president of the Mass. branch of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness. It will be given Tuesday afternoon, July 11, at 3.30, at the Unitarian Parish House, Beverly. It is under the auspices of the Beverly Improvement society and a large audience is expected to be present. The public is cordially invited. The committee in charge is Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft of Beverly; Mrs. Robert S. Bradley of Pride's Crossing, and Mrs. Edward J. Holmes of Manchester.

Col. Charles Lawrence Peirson's place at Pride's Crossing has an unique memento of the terrible storm which swept over the Shore Monday afternoon. One of the largest hemlock trees on his place, measuring about three feet in diameter, was struck by a terrific crash at three o'clock. Large pieces were hurled 127 feet from the tree. The great mass of tree fell over the rock garden and left the tall trunk standing denuded of every vestige of bark.

Mrs. George Nowell, a daughter of Mrs. Oliver Ames of North Easton, and a sister of Mrs. Thomas Taylor of Manchester, is a new-comer to the Brownland Cottages in Manchester. She came last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Hubbard of Boston have taken one of the cottages for the season. Wm. W. Caswell, Jr., of New York, who arrived with his parents last Saturday, has gone camping with a party of friends until Aug. 1.

Dr. and Mrs. Z. Boylston Adams of Manchester entertained Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bullard of Milton this week, and other house-guests leaving are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace of London, Ontario, the latter is a sister of Dr. Adams. The Adamses occupy the Fields cottage in the Old Neck region.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Newbold of Philadelphia are spending their third summer upon the Shore, on Masconomo st., Manchester.

Mrs. George Washburn of Manchester, has, as her house-guest, Miss Coralie Dimitroff of Sofia, Bulgaria.

Jordan Marsh Co., Boston's leading department store, have made a big stride in the solicitation of North Shore trade this year by inaugurating an improved delivery and order system. Instead of relying on local North Shore expresses they have installed a truck of their own for deliveries in the lower section of the Shore—at Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia, while the Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by their own autos direct from the store.

LUSTY crowing by a fancy chanticleer greeted the visitors yesterday afternoon as they entered the library at "Pride's Hill," where Mrs. Malcolm Graeme Haughton had generously opened her Pride's Crossing home for a food bazaar, benefiting the North Shore district of the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The interesting array of food was displayed in the halls, library and on the long veranda.

Mrs. H. P. McKean and Mrs. Q. A. Shaw, 2d, had charge of the dairy and farm products. Noticeable were the chickens donated by Mr. Taylor of Beverly.

The salad booth was one of the most attractive and tempting. Mrs. T. Adamowski, Mrs. B. C. Weld and Mrs. Howard Pancoast of Philadelphia were in charge. Salads of all colors and materials imaginable were shown surrounding two handsome dishes given by Mrs. Bryce J. Allan of Beverly Cove. One was a planked salmon and the other a fillet of beef. They were surrounded with onions and peas all done in aspic, and among the garnishings were a bird and flowers designed from vegetables.

The cake table was in charge of Mrs. Walter D. Denègre, assisted by Miss Helen Burnham, Mrs. John Caswell and Mrs. P. S. Sears. Noticeable here was the large cake representing a book, donated by Mrs. Marshall Field of Beverly Cove. The handsome cover was of chocolate with white trimmings and the layers of leaves were glazed with red jelly in a truly bookish manner.

The fruits and vegetables were in charge of Mrs. John L. Saltonstall assisted by Mrs. Bayard Warren and from Beverly, Mrs. C. O. Hood, Mrs. C. W. Trask and Miss Bessie Baker. Massive strawberries heaped high in baskets, fresh figs, nectarines, yard-long cucumbers, combination baskets, and a sweet, spicy odor marked this collection.

Mrs. Randolph F. Tucker and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Jr., sold ice-cream and cold drinks.

Candy was sold by Mrs. H. S. Grew, Mrs. Lester Leland, Mrs. George Warren and Mrs. Wallace Goodrich.

A large frosted cake done in pink flowers was donated by Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno of Rowley. Girls selling chances on this and on the pair of parroquets donated by a friend were the Misses Elizabeth, Marian and Florence Fenno, Elizabeth Caswell and Ella Snelling, who also sold flowers. Miss Elizabeth Fenno was an energetic seller of pink roses and looked very attractive in her simple blue linen suit. Another little girl who did a thriving business was Miss Frances Hutchinson, who carried a large basket of cloth dolls, yarn dolls, bright woolen balls and a little sweater. The little girl had made most of the articles herself and it was her offering for the Children's Society. She wore a white coat, white hat and shoes with pink socks. Her little sister, Nathalie, who has been very ill, was able to come to the bazaar with her.

Miss Margaret L. Corlies of Philadelphia and Magnolia was in charge of the bundle table.

Luncheon was served to over 70 at the noon hour, Mrs. Robert W. Means in charge.

Interested buyers came and went all day. A group of small boys, who were rather heavy purchasers among the sweets and on the chances, were Alexander Shaw.

Gould Shaw and Louis Shaw. Among other children present who were much interested in the sales was little Joan Higginson, who came with her mother, Mrs. F. ... Higginson, Jr.

Prizes were distributed as follows: Mrs. Allan's salads, Mrs. George Lyman; light brahmas, Shaw McKean, Robert Gould Shaw and Mrs. Walter Hunnewell; parroquets, Mrs. Bayard Warren; Mrs. Fenno's cake, Mrs. Eugene Foster; Mrs. Field's cake, Master Gould Shaw.

THE ESSEX COUNTY BRANCH of the American Red Cross has opened a receiving station in the rooms of the Grand Army of the Republic Post in the Public Library building in Manchester for the receipt and forwarding of articles intended for our soldiers of the National Guard now in the service of the United States Government.

It is to be feared that the fact that these soldiers are not at present engaged in active hostilities and that war may happily be averted, may deter some persons who do not understand the need, from contributing. It is a great mistake to reason thus.

These young men have made great sacrifices to serve their country and are ready to make greater. They have been sent far from home to a trying climate, in many cases poorly equipped and prepared. It may be long before they return and they are certain to face great hardships and real dangers. They will face them gallantly and cheerfully and it is the duty and privilege of those at home to give every aid and comfort that can make their work a little lighter, and their lot a little happier.

"They also serve who only stand and wait," and the soldier faithfully guarding the border serves no less than his brother in the trenches under fire where he himself will go unquestioningly if ordered.

Let us look to it that what we can do to show our appreciation of their self-sacrifice and courage is done unstintedly. We cannot do too much!

Mrs. L. W. Carter is in charge of the work, assisted by Mrs. S. D. Warren, Jr., Mrs. Russell Codman, Mrs. J. W. Merrill, Mrs. Richard Lovering, Mrs. John Baker, Mrs. John Newbold, Miss Mabel Lodge, Mrs. F. R. Spalding, Mrs. E. J. Holmes and others.

It is hoped that people will help the Red Cross work now going on in the G. A. R. hall by coming to sew for the soldiers or by sending articles, like chocolate in tins, reading matter, tobacco, cigarettes, pipes, socks, etc., to be sent to them. Contributions of money for carrying on the work are also important and donations, however small, will be gratefully received. Contributions may be made through the treasurer, Mrs. J. Warren Merrill, Manchester.

MR. AND MRS. ISAAC RAND THOMAS (Gertrude S. Fadyan) of Boston and Hamilton, announced the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Elizabeth Whitwell Thomas, to Van Duzer Burton, of New York, at the dinner dance given at the Myopia Hunt club, Tuesday night. Mr. Burton is the son of Frank V. Burton of New York and Newburgh on the Hudson. The Thomas family is occupying "Lone Tree Farm," the Hamilton home of the Reginald Robbinses. They have a son, Arthur Malcolm Thomas, who is living in St. Louis.

Mrs. Howard Pancoast of Philadelphia is visiting her sister, Mrs. Timothee Adamowski, of West Manchester.

Mrs. Nathan Hayward of Philadelphia has opened her cottage on Sea st., in Manchester. She is now spending a few days in Petersburg, and will be joined later by Mr. Hayward.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Auchincloss of New York have been among the week's visitors on the Shore at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Neal Rantoul at Beverly Farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman of Boston arrived at their Beverly Cove home last Saturday. Their handsome yacht, "Poloma," is anchored off the Pickman home in the pretty little cove near Hospital Point.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Russell of Cambridge have taken one of the Masconomo cottages at Manchester for the season. Another of the Masconomo cottages has been taken by Mrs. Gordan J. Henderson of Hamilton, Can. Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Hill of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob M. Loeb of Chicago are guests at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer of Beverly Cove spent the Fourth at Squam Lake, N. H., at the Hale House settlement camp, which was founded by Mr. Sawyer sixteen years ago, and with which he has always kept in close touch.

Mrs. Willis B. Rice of Washington, who has spent the early season with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. John H. Mason of Montserrat Highlands, has returned to her home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Edward Sullivan of 238 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, were held Wednesday forenoon at "Lilliothea," at Manchester-by-the-Sea, the summer residence of her brother, George R. White, and her sister, Mrs. Frederick T. Bradbury. Rev. Samuel McComb, D.D., of the Pro-Cathedral in Baltimore, Md., who was formerly of Emmanuel Church, Boston, conducted the services. Burial was in the family lot at Forest Hills Cemetery. Mrs. Sullivan died at "Lilliothea" on Sunday afternoon, from complications following an operation for acute appendicitis. She was the widow of Edward Sullivan of Boston, a great-grandson of General John Sullivan of Revolutionary fame.

THE NAVY FESTIVAL at the estate of Amos A. Lawrence, Beaver Pond, Beverly, Monday evening was the stellar event in North Shore society this week. More than 600 attended the fete, given in aid of the Charlestown Y. M. C. A. building fund. Officers from the navy yard and the battleship Virginia, anchored in Salem harbor, were guests, and their uniforms gave a picturesque touch to the scene.

The grounds and pond formed a perfect setting for the brilliant affair which included a dinner of more than 300 covers and dancing in which over 600 took part. A brilliant display of fireworks was given late in the evening out across the pond. Music was furnished by the battleship band and the Curtis orchestra.

The entrance to the grounds was lighted by red and yellow lanterns swinging from bamboo poles. The same colored lights were everywhere and formed a passage way from the main drive to the hillside spot where the fete was given, near the Lawrence bungalow. Here the many tables were spread in the open. Close by was the large canvas covered dancing floor and a smaller tent for cards. Great burning red lights were placed on the shores of Beaver pond and also other lights were used to illuminate the pond as well as the grounds in general, a fairy-land effect being given. The arrival of the guests was an interesting part of the evening. They came early, the dinner being served at seven, and the rich evening coats of the ladies added brilliancy to the scene as they passed from their autos through the lighted walk to the tables. The grounds are almost completely filled with pine trees, the appearance of which added much to the effect.

J. S. Amory, C. K. Cummings, G. W. Goddard, H. S. Grew, D. Sears and J. B. Ryan were the zealous program sellers who besieged each auto as it arrived, usually with good results.

The committee of the Navy Y. M. C. A. is anxiously looking forward to the completion of the building fund. Francis H. Appleton, Jr., of Beverly Farms, is the treasurer of this committee. Last year's fete was held on the Haven estate at Beverly Farms, and was likewise a brilliant event.

Patronesses were: Mesdames Rodolphe L. Agassiz, Larz Anderson, Bryce J. Allen, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., William C. Endicott, John Hays Hammond, M. G. Haughton, William Hooper, Augustus P. Gardner, George von L. Meyer, Henry L. Higginson, William H. Moore, Dudley L. Pickman and Washington B. Thomas.

Those who entertained at dinner parties were Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moore, Amos A. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. McKean, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Haughton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Russell,

The Heath Co. of New York and Boston announce the opening of their summer shop at 27 Central street, Manchester-by-the-Sea. adv.

Miss S. C. Walker of "Ashleigh," Hamilton, has returned from a visit in Wilton, N. H.

Miss Mary E. Shaffelberg will give an exhibition of gowns, silk suits and hand-made blouses at the Oceanside Hotel at Magnolia on Thursday, July 13th. There will be a beautiful showing of all the latest creations of Dame Fashion. All the materials used are imported and very rich and exquisite. Miss Shaffelberg designs her own gowns, which are very distinctive and chic. No two are alike and each have the elegance and exclusiveness of such designing. The color tones used are also very unique and striking as well as being complimentary and of a blending nature. Her display, will no doubt, be one of the best of the season, and will draw a large number of North Shore people to the Oceanside.

Mrs. J. Livingston Grandin (Isabel McCurdy) of Commonwealth ave., Boston, was of the week's arrivals on the Shore after an absence of several years. She came directly to the Greeley summer home in Beverly Cove from a visit in Dublin. Her daughter and son-in-law, the Norman Frost Greeleys, will spend the season at Salter's Point, on the South Shore.

Summer Address: 8 High St., Ipswich, Mass. Address until June 10: Holderness School, Plymouth, N. H.

At present an Instructor in Holderness

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Magee of Boston and Wenham are spending the summer with Mr. Magee's sister, Miss M. H. Magee, of Beverly Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Whitehouse are in the Adirondacks. Their plans for the summer are naturally unsettled, owing to their great bereavement, but they will arrive at their Manchester estate very soon.

Miss S. Margaret Stackpole, daughter of Mrs. Stackpole and the late Henry Stackpole, was married to George Chalmers Cutter, Jr., Wednesday in Cambridge. The Stackpoles are of the Nahant summer colony. Miss Grace Stackpole was her sister's maid of honor, and two small nephews, J. Harleston Parker, Jr., and James Parker, also of the Nahant colony, acted as pages for the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Stackpole, of New York. Robert Cutler attended his brother as best man and three other brothers, Dr. Elliot C. Cutler, John W. Cutler and Roger W. Cutler were ushers. The bride has another sister, Mrs. Robert Grant, Jr., of London, Eng., who also spent part of last summer at Nahant, besides her sister in Nahant, Mrs. J. Harleston.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL

MAGNOLIA

THE OCEANSIDE is deep in the gaiety and festivities of the season which conclusion is easily reached when one takes a look-in upon its verandas and foyer. The spirit of pleasure is felt in the doings of the guests. And too, was there ever a greater abundance of young people to make things stir as is at the hotel this season. 'Tis a rare thing, especially in the East to find masculinity in greater numbers than femininity, but this was the case at the opening hop on Saturday, last. There were more beaux than belles, and the boys didn't seem to enjoy the situation very keenly either. It was with anxious faces that they tried to claim dances with the pretty girls, a great many times not being successful, some other fellow having the lead. But they compromised tho' and divided the dances sometimes, much to the pleasure of the too late men.

There were some very beautiful gowns worn at the hop, but not all were in evening dress, due perhaps to the great amount of arrivals on Saturday, some of the guests getting in rather late in the day, and difficulty over getting of trunks.

Two sweet young girls are the Misses Middleton of New York, who were at the Oceanside part of last summer. Miss Helen appeared very lithe and winsome in a dainty shell pink faille taffeta, very bouffant and girlish. Miss Jean wore a pretty frock of white silk veiled by navy chiffon. Miss Jean is a very graceful dancer and was strikingly so as she swayed through a particular one-step with young John Lancaster.

Miss Elvine Richard arrived at the hotel just in time for the hop and is her same charming self. Miss Elvine was always a wonderful dancer, which accomplishment was strikingly brought out in the fox trot which she danced with Bob Steinert.

Miss Helen Coates was very stunning Saturday evening in a beautiful white lace gown over silk. She danced quite a bit.

Mrs. E. M. Binney was very attractive in a lovely gown of royal blue velvet bodice and skirt of indescribable layers of blue chiffon through which gleamed tints of cerise.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Fletcher of Belmont accompanied by their son Arthur W. Fletcher of Westford and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bacon of Winchester composed a charming motor party that spent the holiday at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. David Loring of Boston are again domiciled at the Oceanside for the summer. The Loring's have been season guests at the Oceanside for several years and have a host of friends among the summer colony.

Mrs. Albert W. Hobart of Boston, who has been coming to the Oceanside for a number of summers has arrived for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Hyde of New York are at the Oceanside for the month of July. The Hydes have been coming to the hotel for several seasons.

Mrs. Robert Cable of New York and daughter, Miss Grace Cable have taken rooms in the Gables Cottage for the season. This is their first visit here.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugo Schweitzer of New York, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lynch of New York motored to the Oceanside Sunday and remained until after the Fourth.

Miss Evangeline Beane will act as the mistress of the dance at the Oceanside this season, and will take classes and give private lessons in the modern standardized dancing. Miss Beane is a graduate of the Castle School at New York and it is her aim to interpret all that is refined, and to avoid extremes, which have erroneously been called modern dancing.

Mrs. Charles A. Potter and maid of Philadelphia have arrived at the Oceanside for the season. Mrs. Potter will later be joined by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Potter. The Potters are very delightful people and have been guests at the Oceanside for several seasons. They are a charming addition to the summer colony.

Miss Jeanette Johnson of New York has arrived at the Oceanside for a stay and is occupying an apartment in the Highland cottage. Miss Johnson will stay during July.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Estabrook of Boston motored down to the Oceanside for the holiday. Mr. Estabrook is the well-known cigar manufacturer.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chapman and maid of New York with Mrs. Chapman's mother, Mrs. E. T. Scott, also of New York, are guests at the Oceanside for a lengthy stay. They have taken rooms in the Tennis Cottage.

Leland C. Barry of Troy, N. Y., has arrived at the Oceanside for a two weeks' stay the guest of Clarence Flack.

Private and Class Instruction

THE FIRST HOP of the season which was given in the large parlor of the Oceanside Saturday evening, July 1st, was a social success. The room had been divested of its fittings and proved amply large for the dancers. The hotel orchestra seated in one corner of the room furnished delightful dance music. The addition of a banjo to the already large number of instruments has made this fine orchestra a leader. The fox-trots are especially good with the syncopating strains of the banjo. A number of the summer colony outside of the hotel came in for the hop and many graceful dancers were seen upon the floor. dances will be held every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night during the season and will be the rendezvous of the social set.

Chester W. Lockwood and H. Winthrop Lockwood of Washington have arrived at the Oceanside to join their parents Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lockwood for a visit. The Lockwoods have been coming to Magnolia for several seasons and have a host of friends who welcome their return to the summer colony.

Mrs. Stillman B. Allen with maid, of Boston, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. William A. Allen and son, Willis B. Allen, have returned to the Oceanside for the month of July. They plan to spend August in Maine.

Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Perry and maid of Boston are registered at the Oceanside for the month of July.

Mr. Clarence N. Flack of Troy, N. Y., accompanied by his son, Robert C., Mrs. Muriel Arthur of Detroit and Miss Tessie O'Sullivan of Washington are at the Oceanside for the month of July. This is their first visit.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Heppe with son, Marcellus, and daughter, Miss Frances Virginia, and maid, of Germantown, Pa., are at the Oceanside for a stay. The Heppes were guests at the Oceanside last season. They will go to Poland Springs, after leaving Magnolia, for the remainder of the summer, but plan to make motor trips between Maine and the North Shore during their stay there.

Harold H. Swift, Paul S. Russell and Frank E. Pershing with valet, all of Chicago, are located in Sea Crest Cottage for a week's stay.

Mrs. James McLean and sister Mrs. William McMurtie and maid of New York are domiciled at the Oceanside for the month of July.

Mrs. D. B. Hussey of St. Louis with her daughter, Miss Helen, and son, Edward, have taken apartments in the Perkins Cottage. Miss Helen will soon leave Magnolia to spend the summer in a girls camp in Maine.

Mrs. William J. Ehrich of New York City accompanied by her two sons, Robert and Edward, and maid, are located in the Oceanside Annex for the season.

Miss F. S. Rogers and Miss E. B. Rogers of Boston have returned to the Oceanside for the season.

THE OCEANSIDE HOTEL entertained a large number of motor parties for the holiday among which were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Yager of Chicago, who remained until Thursday, leaving in their car for a tour of Maine.

Miss C. W. Fuller and companion Miss E. R. Carroll and maid of Boston are registered at the Oceanside for the summer. Miss Fuller has been a guest at this hotel for a number of years.

Mrs. L. P. Haxton and maid of Philadelphia, accompanied by Miss H. Bell of Philadelphia are registered at

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Jackson, Jr., of New York, and maid are registered at the Oceanside for the month of July.

Mrs. George E. Kidd of New York and daughter, Mrs. Charles Dickinson, and young son, with governess and maid, have returned to the Oceanside for the season. the Oceanside and are occupying apartments in Centre Cottage. This is their first season.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kitching of New York are making their first visit to the Oceanside. They will remain two weeks.

Mrs. Albert W. Hobart of Boston has returned to the Oceanside for the season. Mrs. Hobart has been coming to Magnolia for a number of years.

Mrs. Fred Rhodes was notable dancing with her young son, Whitney Rhodes. Mrs. Rhodes was charming in a white lace and silk gown. They danced very gracefully together and received a deal of favorable comment.

Notable among the arrivals at the Oceanside are Mrs. J. W. Tillinghast with daughter, Mrs. G. B. Longstreet, and friend, Mrs. Sarah R. McKenzie, all of Albany, N. Y. They will remain at the Oceanside for the month of July.

Among the arrivals at the Oceanside are Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rousseau of New York City, who have returned for the season and are domiciled in apartments in West Flume Cottage. Mr. Rousseau is a civil engineer in the U. S. A. Engineering Corps.

Dr. and Mrs. Angus McLean of Detroit, and daughters, Misses Ruth and Marion, accompanied by a family friend, Donald Mabley also from Detroit, have taken up their abode in the Oceanside for the month of July. Miss Ruth is a most attractive young lady and a pleasing addition to the younger social set.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Patten of Evanston, Ill., have taken rooms in the Highland Cottage for the season.

Jordan Marsh Co., Boston's leading department store, have made a big stride in the solicitation of North Shore trade this year by inaugurating an improved delivery and order system. Instead of relying on local North Shore expresses they have installed a truck of their own for deliveries in the lower section of the Shore—at Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia, while the Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by their own autos direct from the store.

THE HOLIDAY BALL at the Oceanside, Magnolia, on Tuesday evening was a very charming affair. A large number danced throughout the evening and the music was entrancing, under the leadership of Prof. Kanrich. The addition of the banjo this season has vastly improved the music for the modern dancing. The gowns of the ladies were lovely. All black seemed to be the feature, enhancing the brighter tones of the other ladies' dresses.

Little Miss Marion McLean, the lovely daughter of Dr. Angus McLean of Detroit, was very notable during the dancing of the earlier part of the evening. This little lady has mastered the terpsichorean art, for never did she mis-step during her several dances with Mr. Mabley, also of Detroit, a guest of the McLean family. She looked perfectly dear in a dainty frock of white and baby blue sash.

No doubt General and Mrs. George L. Andrews enjoyed the evening as well as anyone. This dear old couple, sat throughout the first part of the evening where a good view could be had of the dancing. The General appeared very much interested all of the time, while Mrs. Andrews once in a while would take up her knitting. Mrs. Andrews was very charming in a black silk gown with white lace.

Miss Elvine Richard was very lovely Tuesday evening in a pale blue net dancing frock very becoming to her fair coloring and golden hair.

Miss Frances E. Hidden was very stunning in a yellow silk veiled with the same coloring.

Miss Sichirich was attractive in a fetching dancing frock of salmon pink taffeta, very bouffant, and very simple. Miss Sichirich dances beautifully, and was especially noticeable in the waltz which she danced with Mr. Strafford Riggs as her partner.

NOTABLE among the recent arrivals at the Oceanside were Mrs. A. Moore Richard and lovely daughters, Misses Alice and Elvine of New York City. The Richards spent last summer at the hotel and the Richard girls were among the bevy of pretty debutantes who made up the younger set. They will remain for the season.

Mrs. C. A. Keating of Dallas, Texas, and son, William L. Shaw are among the recent arrivals. The Keatings and Mr. Shaw were here last season. Mr. Keating expects to join his family later.

G. H. Cahoon of Providence, who is a frequent visitor at the Oceanside Hotel during the season motored up for the holiday, returning to business on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Gay and maid of Hartford, and son, George A. Gay, Jr., motored up to the hotel for the holiday. They decided to remain for two weeks, they enjoyed the place so much.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Stearns of Boston spent a few days at the Oceanside the first of the week. Mr. Stearns is connected with the R. H. Stearns Company of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Watson of Boston motored down for the Fourth at the Oceanside.

JOS. H. BURNHAM, Prop.

IPSWICH will have a red letter day in its history on Saturday, July 29, when the cornerstone of the new Benjamin Stickney Cable Memorial hospital is laid. The new building is being erected on the Barnard property at the corner of Essex street and the County road. It will be a handsome affair, of brick, and will have the latest and best in surgical devices that can be found. It is built and given to Ipswich by Richard T. Crane of Chicago and the Argilla road colony, in memory of his friend Benj. S. Cable, who was killed in an auto accident last fall in Ipswich while riding with Mr. Crane. The officers of the association include Herbert W. Mason, president, T. Franklin Waters, secretary, and Howard N. Doughty, treasurer. On the executive committee are R. T. Crane, Jr., Bayard Tuckerman, Herbert W. Mason and H. N. Doughty. John S. Lawrence, George E. Barnard and John Tuckerman constitute the finance committee.

The arrival of Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins of Washington at Y^e Rogers Manse was delayed by the departure of her three boys for military service. She came last Friday with her young son, Master Tudor Simpkins, and Mr. Simpkins will come later to the Manse, where they will spend part of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Bourne of the Emerson house in Ipswich have spent the week on an auto trip to Maine resorts.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods and son, Joseph W. Woods, of Boston arrived last week at Y^e Rogers Manse for part of the summer. Miss Annie F. Rogers and mother, of Gloucester, are spending two weeks at the Manse. The pleasant rooms in the Annex are open and many week-end parties are taking advantage of them. A shady veranda surrounds them. The new screened porch is an addition to the Manse this year where afternoon tea parties will find a pleasant place in which to linger. Frances Howe of the Sea View at Rye Beach and the Alfred Chapins of New York were tourists of the week.

Miss Marion Safford of Ipswich was among the entertainers of the week when she brought 20 young people from a river ride to a supper and dance in the Casino.

At Y^e Burnham House in Ipswich, "the quaintest place in all New England," among the many motor parties of the week from distant points was one from Rye Beach, N. H., when Mrs. Ned Arden Flood and her daughter, Miss Josephine Flood, of New York entertained Miss Betty Lewis, Percy Parker, Jr., and H. Philip Mingh of Rye. Mrs. Geo. E. Tener of East Gloucester had a party of six; Mrs. Philip M. Tucker and Mrs. Geo. C. Reid of Eastern Point had parties; Mrs. Fred E. Smith of Newburyport had five and Mrs. Biddle of Amesbury is entertaining fifteen tonight in the grill room. Magnolia guests have been Mrs. Lee McMillan, Mrs. E. M. Binney, Miss Cramp and Mrs. C. F. Berwind. This is a favorite luncheon resort for auto passengers touring the Shore and for the young folk of Ipswich.

A Chicago colony has settled in the three houses around Norwood Mills in Ipswich. In the large house, occupied formerly by Hon. C. Augustus Norwood, the Silas Strong family has settled; in "Riverbank," where Stupidity has no friends, and wants none.—Horace Greeley.

TOPSFIELD is noted for its beautiful hills, from which extended and diversified views in all directions can be had. There is said to be nothing finer in the eastern part of the state.

The home of Capt. and Mrs. Ernest Pentacost is one of the remarkably situated ones in Topsfield. It is a large brick house standing on one of the highest points in the place, and the surrounding country is viewed as a splendid panorama. From the terrace can be seen many of the summer homes. Among them is "Witch Hill," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce, and which was formerly the early home of Mrs. Pentacost (Marion W. Peirce). Another home seen is where Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Jr. (Hilda Rice), have made their home since they were married two years ago. It is known as "Bradstreet Farm," and is a remodeled house on the Emerson Proctor place. From the Pentacost hill the white house of the Ayers surrounded by the red barns makes a pretty picture nestling among the trees and seemingly so far away. Other places seen belong to the Charles W. Taintors, the Arthur H. Wellmans, Mrs. James Morrill Marsh, the James Smiths, and over Wenham way the house of the William Phillips stands out clearly. The white spire of the Wenham church can be seen, and up Hamilton way Squam river lies like a white thread in the greenery. Also the Ipswich light and a few others can be seen at night. At the Pentacost home is an interesting little family. The five-year-old Richard has a sister, Mary Josselyn, aged three years, and twin sisters eighteen months old. The twin babies, Catharine and Cornelia, have never been seen by their father, who was called to England before they were born, to take his place in the British Royal Naval Reserve. He is now in command of a coast patrol squadron "somewhere" in the North Sea. Mrs. Pentacost is now making Topsfield her year-round home.

"White Commons," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Emery (Anna Lyman Paine) has an unusual garden. The entrance to the garden, through a thatched gateway like an English lych gate, is very noticeable in Topsfield, at one side of the beautiful commons in the little town. The Emerys have spent the winters in Topsfield since the war in Europe, and Mr. Emery has designed the garden and planted it within the past two years. A "green garden" is the idea carried out. The bloom is to be only incidental to the place. A broad green runs from the two terraces at one side of the house, and on either side of this are the "pockets" of flowers. These are surrounded by green hedges, quite tall now, and which are to grow about five feet high and completely shut in the flowers from view. Intersecting these "pockets" are many grass walks to carry out the idea of greenness. A rose garden has been made and a planted wall is being made between the garden and a lower lawn. All of the architectural ornaments in the garden have been brought from Italy.

Why not motor to town and visit our Specialty Store.

You will find lovely new summer gowns and suits for day and evening wear.

BACK BAY

An Italian wall fountain between the terraces and a bird bath being very noticeable. An old garden was formerly on the place, but it was entirely destroyed when the new garden was begun. Many things are yet to be added to this "green garden" which will have the advantage over other gardens, in that it does not have to depend upon flowers for its attractiveness. A planting of mixed evergreens will also surround most of the place. The house at "White Commons" was originally the Squire Emerson Holmes homestead, and has been added to and beautified in many ways by the Emerys.

The American Fund for French wounded has a strong branch in Topsfield. In the winter the women met at the home of Mrs. Willard Emery, later at the old Parson Capen house, and now, since the summer colony has come, the meetings are held in the Town hall on Tuesdays. Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce is president of the organization. Another summer resident, Miss Margaret Cummings, is secretary and treasurer.

A class in First Aid had its first meeting last week at the Capen house in Topsfield. Dr. Peer Johnson of Beverly is in charge. Mrs. Willard Emery organized the class and among the members are Mrs. Ernest Pentacost, Mrs. Franklin Balch, Mrs. Wm. E. Baxter, Mrs. Geo. L. Gould, Miss Miriam Gould, Mrs. T. L. Jenkins, Mrs. James Duncan Phillips, Mrs. Arthur H. Wellman, Mrs. Wm. Herrich, Mrs. Andy Jackman, the Misses Edith and Josephine Price, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. I. H. Sawyer, Mrs. C. R. Waite, and from Boxford, Mrs. Wm. Atkinson, Mrs. Fred Bond and Mrs. T. L. Walker. The ladies recently enjoyed a lecture by Henry Sheehan of Boston, who has returned from work in the war zone and is spending the summer in the Capen house apartments. The house is owned by the Mass. Historical society and is one of the sights in Topsfield.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Gould of "Pinelands" have with them their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Childs (Rosamond Gould) of Utica, N. Y., whose marriage took place last September in the beautiful rose garden at "Pinelands." They had a party of young folk over the Fourth and all enjoyed a trip to Kennebunkport. The garden is very attractive and shows an abundance of old-fashioned flowers and roses.

The T. Emerson Proctor home, one of the finest in Topsfield, is closed this summer. Mr. Proctor stays at some of his smaller places when he is out from Boston.

C. H. Shoemaker has sold "Cedarhurst" in Topsfield where he has long been a summer resident. Mrs. Shoemaker died recently. He will make his summer home at Osterville, N. Y., and spend the winters in California.

The Stephen W. Phillips family of Salem are now in "Alderbrook," the Topsfield home formerly occupied by the Richard Wheatlands of Salem.

The world has no sympathy with any but positive griefs. It will pity you for what you lose; never for what you lack.—Mme. Swetchine.

WENHAM'S Special Aid society for American Preparedness is doing a wonderful amount of work at its meetings. The work room for surgical dressings is in the S. Dacre Bush house near the Town hall. Fifty members are now enrolled. Mrs. John C. Phillips is president, Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles T. Parker, secretary. Miss Helen Burnham is vice-chairman.

At the Wenham tea house, among some of the special parties have been Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce and guests from Topsfield; Mrs. Ernest Pentacost and party also of Topsfield; Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson of Hamilton, who had with her Mrs. Philip Johnson, Mrs. Arthur Johnson and Mrs. W. T. Hodges of Nahant; Miss Margery Thomas of Hamilton whose guests were Miss Newell and members of the James Howe Proctor family of Ipswich. Mrs. E. B. Cole entertained the teachers of Wenham at a luncheon. The Misses Greenough were out from Jamaica Plain with a party. Miss Mary Greenough was accompanied by her fiance, Donald des Grange.

Miss Helen Burnham attended the graduating exercises in Cambridge at Miss Fowlhaber's school for dancing. Miss Frances Downes, who taught dancing in Wenham last summer, was one of the graduates this year.

HAMILTON is still filled with memories of the Italian Festa of last week. A walk past "Rock Maple Farm," the home of Hon. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, and a glance within the beautiful gardens and courts, recalls the day when they were so gay with the Stars and Stripes and Italian colors. Memory also recalls the efforts of the energetic and enthusiastic Miss Julia Meyer, who was so successful in selling chances on the many fine articles which were donated. Miss Meyer's enthusiasm permeated all of the young people and made the affair one great success for the North Shore. The winning suggestions of Mrs. Bayard Warren, Miss Elise Ames, Mrs. Reynolds Hitt, Mrs. Preston Gibson and Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini, whose booths catered especially to the little folk, are also among the happy recollections of the day. The bevy of pretty waitresses and venders in their Italian colors seemed a part of the color scheme and linger in the picture of the Festa—Hamilton's great day.

"Sagamore Farm," the Hamilton home of the Hon. and Mrs. Augustus P. Gardner, will not be opened this summer. Mrs. Gardner is planning to spend most of the summer in Berlin with her daughter, Mrs. Grafton Winthrop Minot (Constance Gardner), where Mr. Minot is an attaché of the U. S. embassy. The Minots were married last July. Mr. Gardner will spend the greater part of the summer in Washington with occasional trips.

Rodolphe L. Agassiz and his daughters, the Misses Marie and Anna Agassiz left last week for the west where Mr. Agassiz is attending a meeting connected with the Calumet and Hecla Mining Co. of which he is vice-president. Mrs. Agassiz will join them next week. Miss Martha McNaughton, daughter of the superintendent of the mines, has been a recent guest at the Agassiz home in "Homewood," Hamilton. Mr. Agassiz will address the 5000 employes of the company and present Shaw and Agassiz medals to over 1000 men who have been with the company 20 or more years. A large party also accompanied the Agassizs.

At "The Hamlet," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Merrill of Hamilton, their daughter, Miss Alberta Merrill, has returned from Smith College with a house-party of school friends. They are Miss Eleanor Wild of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Gwendolin Davidson of Chicago; Miss Ruth Crosby of St. Paul, and Miss Elizabeth Fellows of Manchester, N. H. Mrs. Allan W. Holmes (Clara Merrill) of Danville, N. Y., whose marriage occurred in the winter time, is home on a short visit. "The Hamlet" is an interesting old-time house and was formerly the parsonage where Manasseh Cutler lived when he was pastor of the village church. Gen. Lafayette stayed over night in it on his way to Portsmouth. It dates back to about 1714 and was the home of two of the early pastors who each spent 50 years in the Hamilton church.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Whitman of Hamilton are spending the week in New Hampshire.

Mrs. George E. Niles of Boston is spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. John B. Moulton in Hamilton.

At the Jonathan Brown, Jr., of "Red Top Farm," Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hale of Boston have been guests. They will be of the many people going to Magnolia next week.

MRS. CHARLES T. PARKER of Wenham opened her fine estate last Sunday for 180 girls from Boston stores who were on their annual outing under the auspices of the Vacation Stamp Savings committee of the National Civics Federation. Mrs. Parker is chairman of the Committee. Mrs. Homer B. Richardson of Nahant, vice-chairman of the Civics Federation, and Miss Elizabeth Porter of Boston, a member of the vacation committee, were also present.

The girls left Boston by special cars and upon arriving in Wenham were taken by auto to "Cotshabbie." Lunch boxes were then enjoyed out in the orchard where Mrs. Parker sold cool drinks and ice-cream at a nominal price. The Witch City orchestra with Wm. Gwinn, director, played delightfully the whole afternoon. Old-fashioned games and dances were then the program on the fine lawn. Miss Porter led the dancing with as much vim as she has put into so many of the Vincent club affairs in Boston. At three o'clock came the treat of the day when Mr. and Mrs. George S. Mandell of Hamilton came with eleven of their best jumpers. Out in the field where a hillside made a natural amphitheater for the interested audience, the horses performed with Mr. Mandell and Alvin F. Sortwell of Hamilton as riders. The horses came in for much admiration and were fondled and petted by the girls, many having their pictures taken with arms around one of the noted jumpers.

The pretty white house of Mrs. Monroe Douglas Robinson (Miss Dorothy Jordan) seen from the Parker place, came in for much admiration. Many of the girls were eager to know where it was. Evidently these were from the Jordan Marsh Co.

The girls had never held their picnic in this locality before and were very enthusiastic over the beauties of the country and the hospitality of Mrs. Parker and everything on her place, her two fine Irish terriers coming in for much attention. The picnic was really in two installments this year, the Sunday before 90 girls had come in a drenching rain and enjoyed sports in the big barn, and also saw Mr. Mandell and his daughter, Miss Emma, and son, Samuel, jump their horses.

The girls are much interested in the work of the Stamp Savings committee and never miss the nickles and dimes they exchange for stamps. When summer comes they have a neat little sum saved up for vacation days. In the Jordan Marsh store several thousand dollars are saved annually by the girls. The same work is carried on in New York with Miss Anne Morgan in charge. The work is branching out from the stores and taking in girls in factories in the endeavor to encourage thrift.

Mrs. Parker is the founder of the Thorndike club in Beverly, and 25 of its members were also present last Sunday.

The girls from Miss Helen Frick's Vacation House at Wenham Neck were invited to the picnic at Mrs. Parker's and several of them came late in the afternoon for the special events.

THE FINE RESIDENCE of Herbert E. Gale of Haverhill and Swampscott, which is in the course of construction on the Swampscott shore, just above Little's Point on what was formerly called the Lodge estate, is fast nearing completion, an army of workmen hastening the end, and the Gales hope to be established in the new home about the middle of July.

It is a beautiful structure of rough gray stone, with granite trimmings, which, no doubt, suggested the appropriate name which has been given the residence, "Graystone Hall." It is of very modern architecture with red tiled roof and gracefully curved and overhanging eaves. It has a strong suggestion of the Italian, with all the attractiveness of the modern. The broad sweep of unobstructed lawns from the house to the water's edge is ideal, while the land side overlooks the sloping rise of land thickly wooded and a pretty natural avenue through these woods to Puritan road. To the right, adjoining the southwest wing, is a spacious sun-parlor which makes up for the striking absence of porch or veranda. To the left of the house, between the house and the water is a beautiful Italian garden which is planted with a great variety of garden flowers. A beautiful pergola extends from the southwestern wing. J. W. Beals of Boston is the architect. The site of the house is upon a natural clearing in the woodland, which displays to the best advantage this fine, large house, which would otherwise be hidden.

The Gales, who have been summer residents of Swampscott for years, are now occupying their house on Atlantic avenue, until the completion of "Graystone Hall."

Sympathetic people are often uncommunicative about themselves; they give back reflected images which hide their own depths.—Eliot.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, SWAMPSCOTT.—Season guests have been arriving in large numbers at the New Ocean House during the past week and the hotel is expected soon to reach capacity. With the continually increasing demand for accommodations, work on the new $150,000 addition is being rushed in hopes that the beautiful fire-proof structure may be opened before the first of August. It is now practically certain that some of the rooms will be ready for occupancy by the twentieth of this month.

The new annex will be one of the most superbly furnished hotels in New England. In service and appointment the same high standards so long associated with the management of the New Ocean House will be maintained.

The New Ocean House entertained a large number of guests over the week-end and holiday, special hops being held on Saturday and Tuesday evenings for the entertainment of the guests and their friends. The music on both occasions under the direction of Frederick L. Mahn, of the Boston Symphony orchestra, who has been engaged for another season as leader of the New Ocean House orchestra.

The first formal ball of the season will be held Saturday evening, July 8, and the series of children's parties will commence next Wednesday afternoon. At the parties for the younger set and their friends from the cottage colony, Mrs. Edward R. Grabow will be the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Carter of Brookline have registered for another season at the New Ocean House.

One of the many week-end parties at the New Ocean House included Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Edwards, and the Misses Jeannet and Helen Edwards, all of Youngstown, O., who are motoring through the east.

Miss Helen C. Dole of Brookline is also among the former guests of the New Ocean House who has returned for another season at Swampscott.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Mitton of Boston will be guests at the New Ocean House for the remainder of the season.

Scott Clifton Cardee of the Boston Art club, the American portrait painter, well-known along the North Shore has arrived at the New Ocean House and will remain for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Nickerson of Winchester are included among the season guests at the New Ocean House. Other season arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. U. K. Pettingill of Brookline and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Jealous of Boston. Included in the party of Mr. and Mrs. Jealous is the latter's mother, Mrs. H. Mason Hill, also of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan K. Taylor of Baltimore, who have been coming to Swampscott for a number of years, have returned for another season. With them is Mr. Taylor's secretary, Reginald H. Giese, also of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Livermore and the Misses Bessie and Muriel Livermore, of Brookline, are season guests at the New Ocean House.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Ong of Phillips Beach entertained a party of 20 at dinner at the New Ocean House last Saturday evening. Dinner was served in the Tea Room and was followed by dancing. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Prout, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bunting, Mr. and Mr. Richard Ward, Mrs. Howard Hall of Richmond, Va., the Hon. W. C. Ong, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Fitzpatrick, Miss Doris Thompson of New Haven, Conn., Mr. Granville Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Creighton.

The Torpedo Boat Destroyer Jenkins put in to Whale's Beach after the storm of Monday afternoon and the New Ocean House entertained as guests the same evening Lieut. W. H. Lee and Lieut. L. H. Lewis.

The Misses Jennie L. Bryan and Josephine M. Zeller, both of Peoria, Ill., were luncheon guests at the New Ocean House Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Phillips of New York City were also included in a luncheon party at the New Ocean House Sunday.

Mrs. George F. Winch of Richmond, Va., entertained at luncheon Saturday the following: Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gibbs, and Mrs. Gardiner Green, all of Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Luce of Needham, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hapgood of Boston.

Charles Varga and Dr. F. A. Mack of Brookline were luncheon guests at the New Ocean House last Saturday. Dinner guests on Saturday included Mrs. C. H. Adlen and John H. Alden of Brookline.

Motor parties that were luncheon guests at the New Ocean House Sunday included Mrs. Grace Hink of Chicago, Mrs. Grace R. Mitchell and Roger Mitchell of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bowes, also of Boston.

SWAMPSCOTT'S days are full of sunshine, beautiful trees with the most verdant of foliage, lovely flowers, and roses, now that the summer is here. Everything is at its fullest, too. The New Ocean House has the largest number of guests that it has ever entertained at this time in July, and reservations are very heavy for the remainder of the summer. morning to meet a large number of people out for their before-breakfast canter.

During the encampment of the Massachusetts Militia at Framingham before leaving for Mexico, a number of prominent ladies of Boston's Back Bay and Brookline's exclusive circles entered right into the spirit of the National duty and provided the soldiers with all the material help possible to make the hurried up preparations for leaving for Mexico more comfortable and cheerful for the boys. This philanthropic movement was headed by Mrs. Samuel Mixter, who was very ably assisted by Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp and daughter, Miss Mary, and Mrs. W. A. Paine, all of Boston, who have summer homes at Gallopou's Point, and a number of other ladies. These splendid women were instrumental in having food brought to the training quarters and with their sleeves rolled back, they made sandwiches and served coffee. Mrs. Clapp it was who washed every cup as it was returned to be refilled and took every precaution for cleanliness. These ladies said with a great deal of pride that every one of the soldiers was very courteous and that it was a pleasure to aid them in their preparation for the trip south. The ladies also said that the response given by the firms who were asked to send the food was marvelous, and that they not only supplied the food in the least possible time, but there was ample sufficiency.

which has played every July 4th on the grounds adjoining the Phillips Beach station gave the holiday concert from the veranda of the lovely Neighborhood club, which has been erected near the spot, since last summer. The concert was enjoyed by a great many of the people who came to hear the music.

Mrs. E. E. Shrigley of 224 Marlborough street, Boston and Humphrey street, Swampscott, is entertaining her son Alfred and Mrs. Shrigley and baby for a few weeks. Mr. Shrigley will leave about the middle of July for a trip to Chili, South America, and expects to return home about the middle of September.

THE ATTRACTIVE HOME of Ludwig Eiseman on Puritan road is one of the show places of Swampscott. Its delightful situation upon a slight rise from the road brings the visitor through a pretty gravel walk to the mansion. It has been named "Sea Bend," which is a very suitable and appropriate title. The house is of modern architecture of stucco and wood in the two-color tones of brown and buff. The spacious lawns and gardens upon the estate are very beautiful and wonderfully kept by a retinue of garden employees. The verandas from the ocean side of the house have a fine and unobstructed view of Swampscott's crescent beach, while beyond the outline of the shore towards Lynn, which contour becomes dimmer and dimmer until upon a bright day the buildings of Boston town may be discerned.

The children haven't been forgotten in the building and planning of this fine residence, for one corner of the estate has been set aside for them, and fitted up with playground furnishings. The Eisemans are very unostentatious people and care not a great deal for society, spending a great amount of time in their home. Mrs. Eiseman enjoys golf, however, and finds much pleasure in this sport.

CLIFTON was undaunted by the unpleasant weather of the national holiday and the people of the town came out in large numbers to view the street parade and enjoy the other features of amusement which had been planned by the town committee. The parade started at 10.15 and was quite a novelty with take-offs on many of the prominent citizens in the limelight of today. After the parade a number of contests took place in the town square and were thoroughly enjoyed by all who witnessed them. Prizes were awarded the winners in each event.

The fine tennis courts at Clifton Heights were ready for play on Saturday, July 1st, and have been a popular sport since the opening.

How marvelous to us is that which is shrouded in mystery.

SWAMPSCOTT is a spot of beautiful homes set in lovely woodlands and gardens of natural beauty. Rarely does one find a home which hasn't at least a peep of the deep blue sea from its windows. When one enters Puritan road after having passed the New Ocean House, the atmosphere of beautiful residences and fine estates is felt. Very exclusive are the Points which lead from Puritan road, namely Galloupe's, Tedesco and Little's Point as well as Tupelo road. Every one of these fine places is occupied this summer, and nearly all are the homes of families who have been coming to the North Shore for a great many years.

Miss Mary Clapp is again at the home of her mother, Mrs. E. H. Clapp at Galloupe's Point, after a visit to New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ericson of Monument avenue, Swampscott, and Mr. Ericson's mother, Mrs. Wentworth H. Stuart, who makes her home with the Ericsons have gone to their summer house at Port Clyde, Maine, for the season. They will return probably late in September.

Bathing is quite the popular thing at Swampscott and at eleven o'clock each day, the bathing hour finds the beach the mecca of the lovers of the surf. "Never has the water been more delightful so continuously," said a devotee, which has evidently been the conclusion of a great many people, both young and old, and between, judging from the number of bathers each day.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ward, who with their two children and Mrs. Ward's mother, Mrs. William Oswald of Lawrence, are occupying their summer home on Tupelo road, Swampscott, have been entertaining Mrs. Paul Clay of Methuen for a short visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter, who have been spending a few days in Boston have returned to their summer home at Galloupe's Point.

The large arched entrance, which is being erected at the entrance on Puritan road to the new home of the Herbert E. Gales is of gray stone which conforms very appropriately with the construction of the house.

Mrs. Bernice Nason of Melrose, who with her two children Betty and Archie have been spending a few weeks with Mrs. Nason's sister, Mrs. George F. Schrafft, at her home on Puritan road, left last Thursday for her home, where she will spend a few days before going to her summer home in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Farrar of Brookline and Swampscott announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Stanton, to James Percival Hale of Salem and Topsfield. Miss Farrar is a graduate of Vassar 1913 and ranked as one of the highest in her class. Mr. Hale is associated with the Bond department of the Old Colony Trust company at Boston. Mr. Hale is a non-commissioned officer in the 2nd battalion of field artillery, now at Framingham. The date of the wedding has not been set, but will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp of "Tedesco Lodge," Galloupe's Point, are entertaining as their house guest, Miss Elizabeth Schlosser of Westport, Ct. Miss Schlosser is a classmate of their daughter, Miss Mary Clapp, at Smith College.

Jordan Marsh Co., Boston's leading department store, have made a big stride in the solicitation of North Shore trade this year by inaugurating an improved delivery and order system. Instead of relying on local North Shore express they have installed a truck of their own for deliveries in the lower section of the Shore—at Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia, while the Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by their own autos direct from the store.

Hotel Preston, Beach Bluff

THE HOTEL PRESTON was a very busy place during the holiday and many automobile parties came down to spend the first days of the week at the hotel so beautifully situated on Beach Bluffs. The hop of the "night-before" was the scene of much pleasure for both young and old. Many of the cottagers came in for the dance. Proprietor J. A. Sherrard says the season looks now as if it would be the banner one for many a year, the weather not making much difference in the number of arrivals.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Barker of New York were among the season arrivals last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Chadwick of Fall River and daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Katherine, are at the Preston for the third consecutive season. They will remain for the summer. Mr. Chadwick is a prominent manufacturer of Fall River.

Mrs. E. L. Barry, Mrs. M. V. Packard, Mrs. E. B. Vanbrunt, all of New York City, are again at the Preston for the season. These ladies have a host of friends who are glad to welcome their return.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson Smith, maid and chauffeur are at the Preston for the season.

Paul Ingraham has again taken up his summer abode at the Preston, commuting each day to business at Boston.

Countess Asinaride San Marzano and daughter, Miss Lena Marzano of New York City and maid are registered at the Preston for the season.

Ray L. H. Fales, a prominent business man of Fitchburg is at the Preston for the fourth consecutive year.

P. L. Cummings of Boston has taken up his summer residence at the Preston. Mr. Cummings has been a season guest at the hotel for several years.

Mrs. Samuel C. Howell and Miss Congar of Newark, N. J., are at the Preston for a lengthy stay.

Edward Mason and Miss Mason of Boston are at the Preston for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Milliken of Newton are domiciled at the Preston for the summer. Mr. Milliken is one of the high officials in the firm of Jones, McDuffie & Stratton, Boston.

Freedom Hutchins of Newton, a prominent attorney, and Mrs. Hutchins are at the Preston for the season.

L. R. Bolton and Charles Baldwin, both of Boston, have taken up their summer residence at the Preston.

Mrs. J. R. Riggs with daughter, Miss Charlotte S. Riggs of Baltimore were among the season arrivals the first of the week at the Preston.

Other arrivals at the Preston are: Mrs. L. S. Brown and family of Brookline; Mrs. B. H. Fabens of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Millett of Salem; Former Greek Consul A. L. Benacha at Boston, and Mrs. Benacha and son and governess; George Ironside of Hartford, who is purchaser of supplies for the English government.

At the Tedesco Country club things assumed a very busy air during the holiday and have continued ever since with no sign of a lull. For the "Glorious Fourth" Manager F. A. Taylor directed the decoration of the clubhouse with flags. The night before the fourth a dinner was served in the dining-rooms which were very elaborately decorated. The tables all had centerpieces of roses and flags. Caps, horns and balloons of the national colors were given to the guests as favors. The clubhouse was thrown open, en suite, and the band passed among the tables as it played, causing much merriment. After the dinner the band was stationed on the veranda, from which location it gave a delightful concert. Sharpe's orchestra inside of the clubhouse played for the dancing. Among those who engaged tables for the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred McQuesten, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ong, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dill, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Claffin, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Schrafft, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Stayton, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. before which a large number of diners partook of dinner in the club dining room. Dancing was also enjoyed. The traps which have been installed at the club were very popular during the holiday, a large number competing in the first handicap for the season. About sixteen entries were made, A. W. Huguley taking first prize for the best score of the handicap men, with A. W. Hayford winning the prize for the best breakage. In the golf tournament for the President's Cup on Tuesday, twenty-four golfers participated. Of the number E. L. Brown had the best net score at 70, receiving the prize.

A tennis tournament is now going on at the Tedesco club tennis courts—ladies' handicap singles and gentlemen's handicap singles. The finals will be played at 3 o'clock on Saturday.

Jordan Marsh Co., Boston's leading department store, have made a big stride in the solicitation of North Shore trade this year by inaugurating an improved delivery and order system. Instead of relying on local North Shore expresses they have installed a truck of their own for deliveries in the lower section of the Shore—at Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia, while the Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by their own autos direct from the store.

MARBLEHEAD NECK was the centre of all eyes during the past week when she gave forth her many yachts for races in the harbor. The scene was very gay and well attended by yachts and yachtsmen from various parts of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Leeson of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, are occupying what was formerly known as the Atlantic House. It has undergone a great amount of renovating and is one of the most attractive homes in the vicinity.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Williams of Milton are at their home at Marblehead Neck for the summer. Their daughter, Esther, who was married to Mr. Robert E. Apthorp just before his departure for Mexico with the national guard militia, a member of Battery A, was a "war bride" and is with her parents on the Neck until the return of Mr. Apthorp. The wedding was very informal because of the suddenness of the arrangements and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Roderick Stebbins of Milton at the home of Mr. Henry S. Thompson in Concord. Only the immediate families were present.

The beautiful houseboat, "Santanta," owned by Osborne Howes of Boston, has been anchored in the harbor for the past week, coming in the latter part of last week and remaining over the holiday.

The carnival ship "Halcyon," belonging to Commodore Henry A. Morss, is again in the harbor at Marblehead. Of all the pleasure craft in the waters about the Neck during the races, not any had the distinction of this unusual ship. It is a duplicate of the "Santa Maria" in which Columbus sailed across the Atlantic. The "Halcyon" was the observed of all during the festivities at the Neck over the holidays.

cup, C. Walter Clarke's schooner, "Irolita," was the winner. The race was sailed in a smart breeze making it all the more interesting. "Vera III," owned by Hjalmer Lundberg, a 31-foot yacht, the winner of the race held by the Corinthian Yacht club on the afternoon of July 4th, which is the fifth consecutive winning. The weather was not all that could have been desired, but it did not interfere with the race.

Mrs. Frederick McQuesten will throw open her beautiful home "Questennere" for a musicale on July 10th for the benefit of the French wounded. Miss Lilla Snelling, who will sing at the home of Mrs. Marshall Fabyan in Beverly Farms on July 10th, will be one of the artists at the home of Mrs. McQuesten. Miss Aline Van Barentzen, a young American girl, who has commanded the interest of musical critics, will be the pianist.

The Oceanside at the Neck is quite a busy place these days, and Mr. Lane, the proprietor, said the holiday business was the best in years. Motor parties came thick and fast and everyone was rushed in the hotel to supply their needs. The dance on the eve of the holiday was well attended by the hotel guests as well as the cottagers and friends who came in for the evening.

Mr. Rounder (at police station)—Can I see the burglar who was arrested for breaking into my house last night?

Chief (hesitatingly)—Well, I don't know. What do you want to see him about?

Rounder—Oh, there's nothing secret about it. I just want to find out how he managed to get into the house without waking my wife.

Pal (meeting cheery wounded Tommy)—Hullo, old man, back again? A bit wounded, I see.

Tommy (late of the building trade)—Yes, I got a bit of shrapnel in my roof, a scratch on one of my attic windows and frost-bite in my basement.—Passing Show.

PHILLIPS BEACH residents spent the holiday in a very safe and sane manner. Nearly all of the residents either enjoyed the day at the Tedesco club golf links, which proved to be the mecca of the golf enthusiast, or else took a dip in the surf which was very fine and the temperature comfortable, despite the inclement tendencies of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Carpenter of Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Paul of Philadelphia, as their house guests for a stay. Mr. and Mrs. Paul came on Friday last and will go to their camp in the Adirondacks upon leaving here. Mrs. Paul is a sister of Mr. Carpenter and is a delightful and charming woman.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kimball of Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gage of Atlantic avenue, spent the holiday at the Mansion House, South Poland, Maine, returning to Phillips Beach on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimball have taken up their residence in the attractive Atlantic avenue house, Phillips Beach, which was formerly the home of Mrs. Kimball's father and of late has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tapley, who have taken up their abode at Phillips' Corner. Mrs. Kimball was before her marriage, about a year ago, Miss Sarah Palmer Evans and made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Palmer Ingalls of Phillips Beach.

On Saturday, July 1st, Mrs. Joseph A. Ingalls entertained a few of her friends at luncheon in the Neighborhood clubhouse.

The Neighborhood club presented a very fine and patriotic appearance on July 4th it being elaborately decorated with flags and lanterns for the occasion. In the clubhouse nothing special took place other than open house was in vogue throughout the day.

The Friday morning Surgical Dressings meetings which are being held in the Neighborhood clubhouse are very well attended and much useful work is being done under the supervision of Mrs. Stanley D. Forbes, Mrs. J. W. Tapley and Mrs. W. A. Hayford, as well as the other ladies of the club. The club extends a cordial welcome to any ladies who would like to assist in this splendid work. The meetings are held from 10 to 1 o'clock on Friday mornings and is the branch of the Surgical Dressings Work which was carried on in Lynn during the winter. It is supervised by the Surgical Dressings Department of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at Brookline. The Neighborhood club branch is under the direction of Miss Carroll Tapley of Lynn. The dressings, which include wicks, bandages, surgical pads and compresses are all sent to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital to be sterilized and will be kept for our own soldiers if necessary, or sent to the Allies.

Heaven should be kind to stupid people, for no one else can be consistently.—Balzac.

MARBLEHEAD'S summer season is now at its height, which will continue until about the middle of September. The quaint old streets are filled with gaily dressed summer people and many are they who come off their yachts in the harbor, in smart yachting attire to enjoy the sights of this famous old town of which they have read so much. Its history is recorded in many books, likewise its romances, pretty stories of the fisherman husband, who went to sea on a fishing trip years ago and who came back after a successful catch, and then the sad tales of the young husband who never returned, but lost his life in the deep blue sea.

THE CORINTHIAN YACHT CLUB at Marblehead Neck was the scene of many pretty parties during the holidays. A large number of members and their guests visited the club to enjoy the festivities. The clubhouse and all the way down to the float was decorated with American flags, as well as the flags of the Club. A great many viewed the races from the spacious verandas. Much favorable comment was made of the ladies' room and cafe, lately added. They are quite charming, very dainty and artistic and afford true comfort and convenience for lady guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon S. West and Mr. and Mrs. George S. West, of Portland, Me., were guests at the Oceanside at the Neck for the holiday. Mr. West's Yacht, "Sayonara," was entered in the races.

Another pretty dinner party at the C. Y. C., was the one given by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dana of the Neck July 3d. Pink was the color scheme for the table, roses, sweetpeas and snapdragons aiding with their beauty. The covers numbered eight.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Whitten of Commonwealth ave., Boston, entertained a large party of friends at a dinner at the C. Y. C. on Monday evening. The table was artistically decorated for the occasion with summer blossoms, the color scheme delightfully carried out in pink and white roses and snapdragons.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—The greatest influx of summer visitors at one time for years came to this section of Cape Ann, the largest colony on the North Shore, last Saturday. All twelve hotels received a great many guests. The Hawthorne Inn received the largest number and the hostelry was filled over the Fourth of July, but the majority are permanent guests. The Inn will have one of the most prosperous seasons in its history. The first lively social event of the 1916 season was the ball held in the Hawthorne Inn casino on Fourth of July night. Sewall's orchestra, the house orchestra, furnished the music and the casino was the scene of a gay throng of the Inn guests and a large number of their friends from the cottage colonies of Eastern Point and Bass Rocks.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Oakes of Clinton road, Brookline, are late comers to East Gloucester. They are again occupying the beautiful Sherman estate on Eastern Point road, near Ledge Lane and really the entrance to the Eastern Point colony. Mr. and Mrs. Oakes have a high regard of the artistic and many well-know artists are among their guests entertained so frequently. The Oakeses have a splendid view of the harbor, besides a broad stretch of lawn and trees and gardens from their house on the height.

Guy C. Wiggin, the New York artist, who had a fine showing of his paintings in the metropolis and in other exhibitions in various cities last winter, has taken the small cottage in the Patch Willows, across from the Hotel Delphine.

Louis Kronberg, the Boston artist whose ballet dancers on canvas have attracted wide attention and honors in the exhibitions, has taken the Delphine studio in the Patch Willows. Mr. Kronberg is registered at the Delphine.

Miss Alice Worthington Ball is a Baltimore artist, who is no stranger to East Gloucester, the Artists paradise, and she has taken an apartment in the old farmhouse on Eastern Point road, so charmingly renovated for the Misses Morrill of Boston. With Miss Ball is a southern friend, Miss Alice Upton.

Mrs. L. M. Hobbs has taken occupancy of her pleasant studio cottage on Grape Vine road.

The "Sign of the Rudder" tea house on Eastern Point road is the scene of many pleasant tea parties these days. The Misses Morrill of Boston have had some attractive changes made in the interior of the old house, the walls of the living and dining rooms having been removed, throwing the house open into one, where it was formerly arranged for two tenants. Teas or dinners are now served indoors when desired.

Jenny Wren's Doll House, which last season was located at the Green studio, Harbor View hotel, is now situated in the attractive little studio near the Delphine, on Hawthorne lane.

ANNISQUAM.—The holiday found the majority of the Annisquam cottagers housed safely for the season. The warm weather of last week-end made people in the city think of dear old Annisquam and its refreshing river breezes. The doors of the Annisquam Yacht club are now thrown open to its members and families. The first dancing party of the season was held on Saturday evening last in the spacious hall of the clubhouse. There was a good attendance and the Imperial orchestra furnished the music. A boat race was held in the afternoon. An afternoon tea was held in the clubhouse, with a dance following in the hall in the evening, giving a fitting wind-up to the day's pleasures.

Mrs. William M. Jelly of the Annisquam cottage colony gave a great deal of pleasure to the maids of the various cottages in Norwood's Heights, on Thursday evening of last week, when a marshmallow toast and a bon-fire on the rocks near the Wiggin cottage proved delightful.

Mrs. John Schaefer and family of Newton arrived on Friday and are occupying the Cunningham cottage, pleasantly situated on River road.

Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Hardwick of Boston have opened their studio cottage "The Poplars" on River road for the season.

The Wymans of St. Louis are stopping at Miss C. O. Lane's resort, Annisquam.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bott have been entertaining at their cottage, Annisquam, Theodore Harding and family of Arlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Wishart and daughter, Ruth, of Watertown, arrived recently at their summer home on Nashua avenue.

Mrs. Thomas R. Nutter and son, George R. Nutter, of Boston are the occupants of the Blair cottage on Norwood's Heights again this season.

Mrs. Ellerton Dorr and the Misses Dorr, of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, are again occupying the Achorn cottage, Norwood's Heights, Annisquam.

Joseph C. Jackson and family of South Orange, N. J., are in Annisquam, having taken the Adams Homestead.

Commodore Harry H. Wiggin and family of Brookline have settled in their cottage, Norwood's Heights, for the season.

Philip R. Reynolds and family of Brookline are occupying the Houghton cottage, Chester square, Annisquam, for the season.

A tea room has been opened over the Annisquam waiting room by Mrs. J. B. Ellery.

The James Newtons of Denver, Col., have arrived at Annisquam for the season and are occupying the Harvey cottage on 'Squam Rock road.

The beautiful old-fashioned garden flowers on the estate of the late Maria Lane at Annisquam, situated near the old Annisquam Universalist church, are being greatly admired. The display of peonies is unusually fine. The late Maria Lane always took particular pains with the raising of flowers about the old homestead and, as the property is on the trolley line around the Cape, hundreds of passengers admire the garden.

ROCKPORT.—The cottagers of Land's End have not arrived here as early as in former seasons, particularly due to the cool weather and the spell of rain. The Rockport golf links are in fine condition and there is much playing. The clubhouse is open and things of a social order will mark a brilliant season in the Land's End colony.

Mrs. Peter McMillan and daughter of Dover, N. J., are occupying their Land's End cottage after an absence from the colony for several years. Rev. Mr. McMillan, who is pastor of the big Presbyterian church in Dover, will join his family here when his vacation begins, on July 10.

The Turk's Head Inn, Land's End, opened last Friday under the usual management of C. B. Martin of Boston. Several guests registered at the opening and a great many arrived during the week for the season.

James E. Cotter and family of Hyde Park are occupying their cottage at Land's End for the season.

Mrs. Fannie Law of Cincinnati, O., has arrived at her summer cottage on Emerson's Point, Rockport.

Rev. Alfred Skinner and family of Lowell are spending the summer at their Land's End cottage.

Congressman and Mrs. Ernest W. Roberts and three children, Ernest W., Sara Dean and John P. Roberts, of Washington, D. C., have arrived at "Rocky Rest," the McMillan summer residence at Land's End, Rockport.

The Granite Shore house, Rockport, is open for the season, under the new management of A. O. Pierce of Brookline.

Prof. Frederick C. Adams and family of Natick are spending July at the Colby cottage, Land's End, Rockport. Mr. Adams is instructor in the Boston High School of Mechanics Arts.

W. M. Copper of Montreal, Canada, has taken the cottage of Dr. Ruston on Marmion Way, Rockport, for the season.

Dr. Charles D. Knowlton and family of Roxbury are located at the "Old Homestead" on King street, Rockport, for the season.

The Walter H. Condit of New Jersey have taken the Sheahan cottage on Flat Point, Rockport, for the season.

EDITORIAL

IT IS NOT ALWAYS to one's credit that he is popular. It is easy enough for one to go with the crowd. But it is hard for one to oppose the will of the majority,—to champion an unpopular cause, and to fight in a losing battle. When about everybody is advocating war it is not altogether easy for one to champion the cause of peace. Even today the advocates of peace are not popular in some quarters at least, especially among those who have nothing to lose, but everything to gain. How ready people are to call a man unpatriotic if he refuses to serve in the army for six long years, or if he cries mightily against war, which he firmly believes will never settle wrongs, never subdue the passions and hatred of men, and never make friends out of foes. Through all the centuries the thinking has been done by the few; the masses have done what they have been told to do.

*"Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die."*

But it will not always be so. Men will assert their rights, they will have their say, they will refuse to obey the unjust and selfish demands of kings and rulers, they will refuse to give the very best years of their life learning to be experts in killing their fellowmen.

AT THE PRESENT TIME the Mexican situation does not appear to be quite as acute. This does not mean, however, that the dangers of the situation have passed. Most anything may happen in that country at any moment. Logically speaking one would imagine that Carranza would be careful to gain the favor and the good will of America inasmuch as America primarily made it possible for him to gain the recognition accorded him as a political leader in Mexico. Naturally one would imagine that he would be most friendly to President Wilson, but upon such a supposition one may not rest. The policy of Carranza must ever be that of the opportunist. He moves from day to day and that which suits his policy today may be against it tomorrow. A quick shift is always to be expected. The spirit of the Mexican is always to put off until tomorrow. They will avoid the making of a compact or a negotiation. The Mexican dislikes the responsibilities that obligations place upon him. Carranza himself is dependent upon his associates and he may not be strong enough to control all his men and in the formation of a policy and in the negotiation of an agreement their influences may hinder his personal judgment and wishes. President Wilson has a difficult task upon his hands and may it be that he will be shrewd enough to avoid war and strong enough to maintain the dignity and honor of the nation.

THE SPECIAL AID SOCIETY for American Preparedness is meeting a need hitherto unnoticed. Organized but a few months ago to prepare for emergencies it was called to duty when the militia was called out. The men from Massachusetts will long remember the service they rendered the evening they embarked for the Mexican border.

SOME WEEKS AGO THE BREEZE commented upon the evident intention of the 400,000 men in the train service of the railroads of the United States to strike unless their demand for an eight-hour day was granted. It was pointed out that the men had no desire for a shorter work day, but wanted their present pay for ten hours work on an eight-hour day basis—in other words an increase of 25 percent in wages. It seems doubtful at the present time whether the railroads of the country can stand the additional drain of $100,000,000 annually. The railroads have urged a public inquiry and arbitration by the Federal government. The men have declined to arbitrate and are taking a vote on the question of authorizing their leaders to declare a nation-wide strike. A few points are worth remembering as the relations between the roads and the men become more strained. The men in the train service are the highest paid class of workers in any branch of railroading; they are unsympathetic of the efforts of their fellow workmen in other departments to better themselves; they have the power to cripple the nation as it has never been before in its history—and they are not bluffing. There is one course open, arbitration. Either that or the roads must grant the demands of the men and in turn raise their rates (if the Interstate Commerce Commission will allow it) and let the public pay the bill.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE have demonstrated during the last two weeks beyond the peradventure of a doubt that they are opposed to hostilities with Mexico and that the national government that precipitates a war will be in popular disfavor. America has taken a sober second thought and the people have spoken with a voice of thunder that they do not want war with Mexico. There is something consoling and inspiring in that. Americans long for and love peace. It is not apathy, the lack of national feeling and loyalty, it is the best spirit of American patriotism asserting itself. War without honor is deprecated. America has found herself. The terrible lessons of the war across the sea have been learned by the American people. The folly, the horror and the fruitlessness of it all has been taught. America can read the hand-writing upon the wall. America wishes Mexico to gain its liberties, develop its resources and obtain an equitable self-government and prefers to leave that nation on the south to fight out its own battles, adjust its differences among themselves and to establish a stable government. If war does menace us in the near or remote future it must be said that America took up its task reluctantly and without the spirit of conquest and enmity. May the storm clouds pass and Mexico settle its own difficulties!

DESPITE THE MANY SOCIAL and philanthropic interests that are being cared for by the North Shore the interests of the old world and its struggles have not been neglected. The musical services, the hospital supply sewing classes and the programs arranged for war relief funds show how interested everyone is in the problems that life presents.

EX-JUSTICE CHARLES E. HUGHES has announced his intention of retiring a month to study the situation and to prepare for the campaign in the fall, for the Presidency. Already his campaign has begun and his month of retirement can but do him good. Already the eyes of the nation turn to him in the hour of trial as the safe leader to guide them out. Mr. Hughes has received the highest tribute ever paid to an American citizen and it is not too early to say that he will be elected.

THE SAFE AND SANE FOURTH has arrived. Only twelve cases due to Fourth of July celebrations were treated in the Boston hospitals. It is but a decade ago that the morning after the Fourth was a sad one. The newspaper columns were crowded with records of Fourth of July disasters.

THE SOCIAL CALENDAR of the North Shore is already scheduling several important events:

July 10, 4 p. m.—Recital, benefit French wounded, at residence of Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Preston Place, Beverly Farms.

July 17.—Belgian musicale, in charge of Miss Virginia Wainwright, Oceanside Annex, Magnolia.

July 19, 11 to 6 p. m.—Fair on the lawns of "The Rectory," Beverly Farms, benefit Parish House fund of St. John's Episcopal church.

July 19, 4 p. m.—Recital, benefit French wounded, at the residence of Mrs. Frederick McQuesten, Marblehead Neck.

July 31.—Italian musicale, in charge of Miss Virginia Wainwright, at Mrs. George Lee's, Beverly Farms.

Aug. 14.—Musical and talk on Franz Liszt, in charge of Miss Virginia Wainwright, at Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot's, Beverly Farms.

Misses Margaret Curtis and Evelyn Sturgis have just returned from France, where they have been working among the French hospitals, and have joined their respective families in Manchester.

Rev. William B. Geoghegan of New Bedford will preach Sunday at the Unitarian church, Masconomo st., Manchester-by-the-Sea. Service at 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. P. Weeks of Beverly Cove returned Wednesday night from the South Shore where they spent the Fourth with their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Miles W. Weeks (Lois Frost). Their son was unable to be at the South Shore home on account of being with the cadets at the Frammingham camp.

The Blue Bird Tea Room at Pride's Crossing is making a specialty of box lunches for auto parties. Ice-cream as well as the other productions are all home-made. The cooking is done along the lines of domestic science as it is taught in schools of domestic science.

Mrs. Marshall Fabyan's musicale for the benefit of the French wounded will be the most important event of next week, on Monday afternoon at Beverly Farms.

THE UNITED STATES HAS DEMONSTRATED quite clearly to everyone that it is not and was not prepared for a rapid and effective mobilization. It may transpire that the call of the troops to the colors may result only in their doing guard duty for some months, but it has demonstrated how illy prepared America really was. America has dreamed peace so long that military preparedness has meant absolutely nothing.

THE PLATTSBURG PREPAREDNESS CAMP ought to be transferred to the Mexican border. The real thing is but a poor substitute for actual service.

AMERICA NOW HAS a military censor all its own, somewhere in El Paso.

MISS CLARA STANDISH LORING is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Tucker at "The Moorings," Norton's Point, Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker are opening their beautiful home Saturday afternoon of this week, at 3.30, for a musicale, at which Miss Loring will make her North Shore debut before a representative gathering of people from Boston, New York and other sections of the country. Mlle. Cossini of New York, who is spending the summer at Manchester with Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Campbell, will also sing. Mlle. Cossini is a pupil of Mr. Arthur Alexander of New York, who summers at Gloucester. Those who have met Miss Loring during her short stay on the North Shore are charmed with her personality and are looking forward with anticipation of a delightful afternoon tomorrow. She is a Southern girl, being a native of Kentucky, and although but nineteen years old has been studying for grand opera in New York for several years past. She is booked to make her debut on the operatic stage in Vienna immediately following the war, and also to sing in Covent Garden, London. She is considering an offer to sing with the Havana Opera Company the coming season.

Added to the interesting exhibit at the Public Library building in Beverly Farms in charge of the Improvement society is the Peter Pan bird dish and fly traps. Many have visited the display which is under the auspices of the Women's Municipal League of Boston. It will close one week from Saturday.

Jordan Marsh Co., Boston's leading department store, have made a big stride in the solicitation of North Shore trade this year by inaugurating an improved delivery and order system. Instead of relying on local North Shore expresses they have installed a truck of their own for deliveries in the lower section of the Shore—at Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia, while the Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by their own autos direct from the store.

BASS ROCKS.—The season is now on in earnest in the Bass Rocks colony. The golf links are covered with players daily and the tennis court is constantly in use. The bathing beach is visited by hundreds of people daily. There were crowds of bathers during the heated spell last week, but on Sunday there was a record-breaking crowd and the spacious bath house was continually taxed to its limit for several hours. At the Thorwald and Moorland hotels special attention was given to the Fourth of July dinners and besides the many permanent guests at the houses, there were a large number of transient people who visited Bass Rocks for over the holiday. An attractive as well as a very enjoyable occasion "the night before" was the bridge party held by the Bass Rocks Golf club in the handsome clubhouse reception room, members and friends attending. Pink and white peonies were used for decorations. Dancing followed.

Handsome cups are being shown at the Bass Rocks Golf clubhouse for the winners in the various tournaments to be held this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Hubbel and family of Rochester, N. Y., are occupying the spacious house of Seth Mendell, of Boston, located on Atlantic road, toward the Moorland hotel. Mr. Hubbel is vice-president of the Eastman Kodak Company and he is also on the directing board of Rochester University. Last season the Hubbels occupied the Moorland cottage.

Col. and Mrs. C. C. Long of Washington, D. C., who last season were on Page street, Bass Rocks, in the Harding cottage, now occupied by the Siamese Legation, have taken the Selden cottage, located on Brier road, near Dr. Howe's estate.

The Jerome H. Remicks of Detroit, Mich., are occupying the artistic summer residence of Mrs. Arthur M. Parker on Souther road, Bass Rocks. Last season the Remicks were in Magnolia. Mrs. Remick is a cousin of Mrs. Arthur M. Parker. Mr. Remick is the well known music publisher of Detroit and New York.

The Isaac Manns of Washington, D. C., have taken the Way house, one of the largest places at Bass Rocks, located on the height near the former Judge Sherman cottage.

The family of Winthrop Sargent, Jr., of Overbrook, Pa., has arrived at the Roland Sherman cottage on Nautilus road, near Good Harbor Beach.

The Condits of Boston are located at the Way cottage on Page street for the season.

The R. R. Laidlaws of Englewood, N. J., who last season occupied cottage "B" of the Souther estate near the Thorwald, are spending this season on Beach road, near Good Harbor Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Campbell of Philadelphia are occupying their cottage on Beach road, Bass Rocks.

Charles Desmond Wadsworth, wife and infant son of Brookline, are spending the season at the small W. T. Harding cottage on Page street.

The Allen Farmers of Boston are occupying their cottage on Brightside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. Farmer and family of Brookline are located at their pleasant summer home on Page street, new last season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott, Jr., of Overbrook, Pa., have arrived at their big estate "Tragibigzanda" on the height to the eastward of the Bass Rocks golf links. The Scotts came a little later than usual this season.

The Wilders of Boston are occupying the Hoyt cottage on Beach road, Bass Rocks, for the season.

The family of Benjamin A. Bogy of Memphis, Tenn., has taken the Frost cottage on Haskell street, for the season.

The George C. Thomases of Philadelphia contemplated occupying their large house at Bass Rocks, near Atlantic and Nautilus road junction, about the middle of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Walker and family of Boston are comfortably located in their Beach road cottage, Bass Rocks.

The Howard C. Turners of Boston have recently taken occupancy of the Terry cottage on Beach road, Bass Rocks.

A party of Wellesley college girls has been spending the week at a cottage at Diamond Cove, Annisquam.

Mrs. Julian Burdick and children of Pittsburg, Pa., are at Annisquam for the season and are occupying the Whittemore cottage, Cambridge avenue.

THE MYOPIA HUNT CLUB never had a more glorious celebration on the Fourth than this Tuesday night when the new out-door ball room was used for the first time. Dinner was served in the ladies' dining room and in the Parker room. After the dancing and other special features in keeping with the Fourth, supper was also served. The Salem Cadet band played.

The new canvas covered ballroom floor, 30x50, is connected with the west veranda by a tent passage. The floor is in sections and will be put down for special dances. The whole presents an unique appearance and makes an attractive portable ball room.

A few changes have been made in the interior. The fireplace in the Parker room has been done over with rare old tiles brought from Holland. This room is finished in white and green and has hangings of heavy portieres. In the ladies' tennis room the fireplace has also been made over. The ladies' dining room is handsomely finished in green and white and has some rare chintz hangings at the windows, which face the beautiful stretch of green leading out to the golf course at the 18th tee, which is the nearest to the clubhouse.

On Tuesday night red, white and green lights and Japanese lanterns were used about the grounds and to decorate the club and adjoining ballroom. The tables and rooms were abundantly supplied with the season's flowers.

At the dinner tables were Mrs. Rodolphe L. Agassiz with twelve guests; I. R. Thomas, party of ten; Mrs. J. B. Moulton, six; Mrs. Walter D. Denègre, six; H. C. Clark, six; Mrs. J. S. Lawrence, twelve; Mrs. Wm. H. Moore, six; Mrs. Leonard D. Ahl, six; W. G. Sharp, three; A. N. Rantoul, six; Mrs. F. P. Mitchell, ten; R. G. Shaw, 2d, five; and A. Lawrence, six.

CELEBRATED THE FOURTH

MANCHESTER FOLK TURNED OUT IN TO OBSERVE INDEPENDENCE DAY.

A thunderstorm, one of the worst in recent years, swept the New England coast on Monday night. While the damage was slight the amount of rainfall was tremendous and everything except the spirits of the people of Manchester was pretty well dampened by the dawn of Independence Day. An intermittent rain all day long detracted somewhat from the enjoyment of Manchester's celebration, but the entire program was carried through without a hitch.

Beginning with the flag raising and salute at 5 a. m. an early start was obtained for the day's exercises.

At 6.40 o'clock the order for the parade to start was given by the Marshal, Edwin P. Stanley. The front rank was a squad of young men dressed to caricature the Manchester police. Alex. Sjolund was chief with the following policemen: Gordon Crafts, William Walsh, John Lee, Charles Sullivan, Elmer Smith and Oscar Olsen. Marshal E. P. Stanley and his aides, Wallace Stanley and Duncan T. Beaton, followed. A squad of Boy Scouts acted as escort to the officers of the day. The North Shore cadets (formerly known as the Beverly Farms band) in every imaginable costume were next in line. The float of Allen Relief Corps, carrying members of the G. A. R. and members of the Corps, dressed as nurses, was the first in line. Members of Allen Post followed in carriages.

The next float was symbolical of the order of Daughters of Rebekah and was in charge of ladies from Liberty Lodge of Rebekahs.

Thirty little girls, "The Future Woman's club," were next in line.

Following were 54 members of the Arbella club, a float carrying members of the club and an automobile beautifully decorated in white, pink and blue. The Preparedness float of the Red Cross nurses class, carrying a tent and young ladies in nurses' costumes followed. Friendship Circle had a float trimmed in blue and white. Branch 1362 of the National Letter Carriers Ass'n, was represented by a float which caused a good deal of laughter. It was piled high with all manner of boxes and packages labelled, "Parcel Post" and tagged for various employees of the Manchester Postoffice. Another float that attracted attention was that of Harmany Guild representing an old-fashioned church choir.

A float representing the four historical periods of Manchester was next in line. The following float revealed a number of "Pilgrims" seated upon the edge of a beached boat in front of an Indian camp fire. A tent was pitched under the shelter of Pine trees. Indians gathered about the camp fire were extending a greeting to the white men. The float was entered by Conomo Tribe, 113, I. O. R. M. The crowning comedy feature of the parade was the float of the Manchester club. It was complete to the last detail. The outside was sketched to represent the exterior of the building in which the club is quartered. The open sides revealed in operating table and a multitude of exaggerated operating instruments ranging from butcher's cleavers to hack saws. The float was labelled, "Manchester emergency hospital and rest room." At various points along the line of march, patients were snatched from the crowd and removed by stretched to the table where parts of their anatomy were removed—chiefly by slight of hand.

The Manchester playground was represented with a teeter-board, on which two little girls were seated, the sand-boxes, tennis racquets and other paraphernalia of the playground. A number of Boy Scouts and Playground Director McCarthy occupied places on the float. North Shore Lodge, A. O. U. W., had its motto on three sides of its float of blue and white, "Charity, Hope, Protection."

L. W. Floyd had the first of the trade floats which was a little pavilion drawn by two boys and carried a little girl. The float was decorated with magazine covers, advertising matter, baseball goods, etc. Little Mary Knight and Ruth Bell dressed as daisies were among the features, one representing a white daisy and the other the "Brown-eyed Susan." Axel Magnuson's float of flowers was among the best of the trade exhibits. The American Express Co.'s big new truck was in line carrying American flags. John Silva with a load of household goods followed. L. W. Carter's float in the trade division was an array of empty bottles bearing the legend, "Some People's Idea of Preparedness." The Manchester Printing Co., the Manchester Water Dept., the Manchester Motor Dept., Green & Swett, Smith's Express and Samuel Knight's Sons coal teams followed in order.

Judges were Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton of the Village church, Magnolia and Oliver T. Roberts. Dr. J. H. Lancashire, who was to have been one of the judges, was not present through a misunderstanding as to the hour. Awards were made as follows:

Trades—L. W. Floyd, $15; Axel Magnuson, $10; Manchester Printing Co., $5.

Floral and Civic—Woman's Relief Corps, $25; "Future Woman's Club," $15; Mary Knight, $10; Conomo Tribe, I. O. R. M., $5.

Antique and Horrible—Manchester club, $15; Letter Carriers, $10; L. W. Carter, $5; Police Dept., $2.50.

EXERCISES BY CHILDREN.

At 9 o'clock on the Common the exercises by the children were held under the direction of Lawrence F. McCarthy, director of the Manchester playground, assisted by Rev. A. G. Warner. The girls volley ball game and the stick drill and exercises of the Boy Scouts attracted a considerable crowd. The exhibition demonstrated the benefits the children are deriving from their training at the playground. Following the drills and games, the Arbella club, the Girls' Tennis class and the Boy Scouts grouped in front of the band stand and sang "America." Accompaniment was by the band.

HOSE COUPLING CONTEST.

Owing to an accident to the hose reel the hose coupling contest by members of the Manchester Fire Dept., was not the expected success. A team composed of Howard Stanley, Ralph Lane, Sumner Mason and John Coughlin started from the fire station on signal, ran to the police station hydrant, but before the hose could be unreeled to make a connection the reel stuck. The team composed of Waldo Peart, William Allen, William Slade and Frank Floyd raced from the fire station, laid a line of hose toward the town wharf and had a stream playing in 47 seconds, a new record. The other team was given another trial, but again failed to make the connection.

MORNING RACES.

The sports at 10 o'clock on School st. attracted a large number of spectators. Members of the Fourth of July committee acted as officials. L. F. McCarthy was starter.

In the afternoon the children gathered in Town hall for an entertainment which was rich in good fun. Miss Baker, a crayon artist, amused with her sketches and also sang for the children. Mr. Wallace entertained with the banjo and harmonica. A feature of the entertainment was Mr. Wallace's talking doll.

In the evening there was a large crowd gathered in Central sq. for the concert by the Salem Light Infantry band, in spite of a sprinkling of rain which lasted throughout the evening.

Rev. Wm. B. Geoghegan of New Bedford will preach Sunday at the Unitarian church. Service at 11 o'clock.

Rev. A. G. Warner will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday on "The Reliable Promises." The evening subject will be "The Power of Ideals."

Rev. Charles F. Carter, pastor of the Immanuel Congregational church of Hartford, Conn., formerly pastor of the church at Lexington, will supply the pulpit of the Congl. church Sunday. Mr. Carter is one of the ablest preachers in the denomination and he will no doubt draw a good congregation Sunday.

The finishing touches are being given to the special highway built through Manchester from the George A. Priest school to the Beverly line. The work was practically completed a few days after the time allowed by the contract and has been open for use. The last coating of asphalt was applied in Central sq. and one of two other needed points yesterday. In order to complete the work 5000 extra gallons of asphalt were required. Each week reports of the state highway commission engineers have been used as the basis of payment for the work. It was feared when the work commenced that the advanced price of materials, etc., which came after the first estimates were submitted by the state engineers, would exhaust the appropriation made on the basis of the first estimates. Although there are two reports yet to be submitted and two payments to be made, it is now certain that the appropriation will not be exceeded. Not only will the cost of the road be within the appropriation, but there will be enough left over to do some of the other road work needed.

George E. Willmorton had a narrow escape from injury yesterday morning and his Ford runabout was wrecked as the result of a collision at the corner of School and North sts. Mr. Willmorton was running north on the right side of School st. and was about to turn into North st. When M. Silverberg, a Boston tailor, who has a branch store at Beverly Farms, swung into School st. from North st. in a big Hudson touring car. Mr. Willmorton set his brakes and stopped his machine, but the larger car kept going and struck his machine in the side, throwing it across the street and onto the sidewalk in front of C. M. Dodge's residence. Mr. Willmorton was thrown from his car and slightly bruised, but otherwise was uninjured. The little car was demolished. The rear wheels were both broken off and the body jammed. Witnesses say the larger machine cut across at the left of the big tree, which stands in the center of North st. at the corner.

FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY

A Few Tips on

Mid-summer Millinery.

THE girl lover of sports and outdoor life will cut a dashing figure on the golf links providing her suit is of light blue and white gabardine and hat of the good old reliable Panama, medium size, carelessly tipped to left side and finished with black grosgrain ribbon band as shown by The "ORANA" Hat Shop of Boston in this issue.

With a morning costume of white tussah and chiffon, a dainty head gear is a broad brim shell pink milan straw with a floral crown of tiny yellow moss buds. It would be well to say the smart wearer gives the finishing touch.

A delightful, yet elaborate, hat for an afternoon gown of the quaint pompadour silk is an unique design of peasant ivory lace made on a bonnet shape, extremely high in the center-back, crownless in front, and brim not exceeding three inches around the sides. The simplicity of this model is still enhanced by the garniture—a crushed crown band of black velvet ribbon and a large loop bow of the same placed over the back of the hat and clasped with a graceful motif of tiny English daisies. One velvet streamer tightly fastened about the neck and carried over the left shoulder is our finis.

In her off day regalia, let us see her in an exclusive tailored hat of dull blue crin—close fitting shape with one inch breton brim outlined with a narrow box plaited black ribbon ruche finished in the direct front with a fancy hand-made ornament of the same.

The Juliet cap of pearl beads is for our bride. The lace Juliet is made up of pearl sufficiently rich looking. If the bride possesses rare lace in a scarf or some other form not large enough for a veil, yet wishes to use it, it may be made into a cap and used in conjunction with lace tulle. The bride may select the loveliest of head wear for her maids. Wide brim hats and quaint bonnet like shapes are at her disposal. Lacey braids, airy fabrics, flowers, ribbons and fancy ostrich make it possible to delight the maids and every one who sees them. With the most picturesque of millinery for the most beautiful of parades.

New Blouses and Separate Skirts

A BEWILDERING array of summer blouses is now on exhibition at the Shops, and the separate skirts are being shown in the newest tailored effects so much desired. These comfortable and very American ideas in clothes are the delight of every woman, since without being at all extravagant they answer every purpose for out of door wear at the shore and in the country, whether for tennis, golf or general wear. Among the most favored materials for blouses we find the stripes that are shown in heavy silk very smart and serviceable for the tailored models. Crepe de chine, always a popular fabric for blouses that are not "too thick nor too thin" seems to hold its own well in the front ranks of pretty blouses. There is nothing daintier than Georgette crepe for the summer blouse and this beautiful material, if purchased in a good quality, allows of no comparison with any of the other fabrics now being shown.

Linens are in good demand, but the prices for a really good article in this line seem to be continually soaring and other fabrics are being substituted to great extent to take the place of the imported linens.

Materials for the lingerie blouses are very sheer and pretty, and organdie, batiste, and handkerchief linen are well in the fore ground in this season's styles. The thin silks make nice blouses and are easily laundered.

While in the shopping district the other day Judy's gaze lingered on the lovely blouses and she will describe some of them for the benefit of the "Colonel's lady" who prefers the cooling ocean breezes and broad verandas to the thronging city.

One blouse, marvelously good-looking, was of white crepe de chine with deep sailor collar and sleeves of Georgette crepe. The jabot at the front was also of the Georgette, and the sleeves full length of course, were finished with circular frills and tiny pearl buttons added much to this cunning blouse.

Another little blouse, with the sweetest expression, which seemed to say, "I want to belong to you," was of the white Georgiana crepe in an attractive little check. Much collar with knife pleating around, and frilly front, also elbow sleeves, finished with the knife pleating completed this blouses, and Judy reluctantly moved on, as the little blouse seemed to smile a faint "good-bye till we meet again." A dignified Russian blouse in a truly royal shade of purple and white stripe was shown in wash satin and was very handsome indeed, as also was a smock of natural color pongee silk with smocking of Kelley green and a vest of swede kid also in the Kelley green. Corduroy develops some of the smartest separate skirts and one shown was gathered on a narrow yoke and the rather exaggerated pocket-welts were a stylish feature. This particular skirt was shown in rose color and could also be had in mustard and in white.

"Honey-comb" material makes such becoming and stylish skirts the suppleness of its texture being especially suited to the fullness now used in skirts. Gabardine, linen, awning stripes and stockinet are good materials for separate skirts and the model opening the entire length of the front of the skirt is still being worn, it being the favorite model of so many on account of its adaptability to the ironing board as well as its becomingness. Rose and white stripe jersey silk with very full shirred pockets and with a full heading at the belt made a skirt both pretty and practical.

Frozen Desserts

FROZEN desserts are refreshing and nourishing and when they are served for a final course at dinner a little hot coffee or hot water should always be served afterwards.

Orange or Lemon Milk Sherbet.—4 cups milk, 1½ cups sugar, juice of 3 oranges or lemons. Mix juice and sugar, stirring constantly while slowly adding milk; if added too rapidly mixture will have a curdled appearance, which is unsightly, but will not effect the quality of sherbet; freeze and pack.

Two men, who claimed Manchester as their home, but refused to give their names, narrowly escaped death early Sunday morning in Gloucester. They had attended a dance and had started to walk home along the railroad tracks, but decided to take a nap on the way. The theatre train from Boston passed so near one of the men as he lay asleep that the man's hat was crushed. The men were discovered by a crossing tender who aroused them and removed them from their dangerous resting place.

About 100 Christian Endeavorers gathered at Tuck's Point last Saturday for the annual picnic of Salem Union. At the outing was postponed from two weeks previous the attendance was not as great as expected, but all had an enjoyable time. The young people gathered in the early afternoon and played games. There were four volley ball games among the girls and two picked nines of boys played ball. The boys' game resulted in a tie, 10 to 10. A team of girls defeated the boys' nine at baseball by so much that no score was kept. In the evening there were services on the pier at which Rev. Don Ivan Patch of North Beverly talked on his early experiences in the ministry and drew some interesting lessons for the young people.

The opening of G. A. R. hall as a receiving depot for supplies for our soldiers on the Mexican border brings a little nearer home the seriousness of the Mexican situation. Although there are rumors of peaceful settlement the condition of the militiamen at the front is about as unpleasant as in actual warfare. The suddenness of the call to the border left many of them stripped, even of the necessities, to say nothing of the accustomed little luxuries. The articles most needed are described in another column in the front of the BREEZE. This important work was started before the troops had reached the border and Manchester is already responding with contributions.

DEFEAT LYNN NINE

MANCHESTER KNOCKS INGALS FROM BOX IN FOURTH INNING AND WINS BY 7 TO 2 SCORE.

"Wash" Ingals, former Harvard twirler and New England leaguer, was not in his old-time form last Saturday when he faced the Manchester.

"HAL" GROVER
Manchester's Star Pitcher

sluggers at the Brook st. playgrounds, Manchester. That was one of the contributing causes to the 7 to 2 beating which the Manchester nine administered to the Lynn Gas & Electric team, but by no means the most important. After allowing four hits and three bases on balls in four innings he was yanked to make way for Berry, whose luck in the box for the Lynners was not much better. It was a Manchester day, and the best game Manchester fans have been privileged to see in a long time was put up by the home team.

Grover, Manchester's star south-paw, was in fine form and kept the game well in hand all the way. He led off with three strike outs disposing of the first three men who faced him in order. Collins behind the bat, in place of Perkins, was steady and handled the nine in snappy style. Gourley, who was first up for Manchester, was out on a grounder to third. O'Leary was walked and went to second when Cody walked. Devlin drove a two-bagger over the rightfield fence and scored O'Leary and Cody. "Sandy" Herron got a base on balls and got as far as third on Conley's two-base wallop, Devlin scoring. Collins and Harty went out in order. Manchester scored again in the third when Cody smashed out a long drive to the brook in center field and scored on Devlin's Texas leaguer. Herron fled out to center fielder Collins, who doubled to first to catch Devlin. Conley struck out. Another run was earned in the fifth when Devlin singled to center with two out. Singles by Herron and Conley drove in the run. In the eighth Collins drove a single to right, but stopped at first while Harty and Grover were out on high fouls above the plate. When Collins' chance of getting home looked dubious Gourley walked up to the plate and smashed a long drive to the stone wall in left field for a home run.

Lynn made both of its runs in the fourth. Herron was a little slow in fielding Moran's grounder and Finn drew a base on balls. "Tom" Whalen, the Yale first baseman, who covered the initial sack for the Lynners, lined out a two-bagger scoring Moran. Ring, who played with Manchester two years ago, drove in the next run with a single to center field. Collins sent Whalen around to third and filled the bases with a Texas leaguer. A two-bagger at that stage would have tied the score, but Grover settled down to his old-time form and struck out the next three men in succession. In the seventh Moran smashed a hot liner to Cody while Powers was on first. Cody fielded the ball to Herron, who snapped it to Devlin for as neat a double play as was ever made. In the eighth inning after T. Whalen had got to second and Ring was on first through a fielder's choice, Collins sent a grounder to short which Herron had to stretch himself to cover, both Whalen and Collins going out, Herron to Cody to Devlin.

Bond, a Manchester veteran of four seasons, was in uniform on the bench, but did not get into the game.

Collins, the Lynn centerfielder, was by all means the most fortunate man in the game Saturday. While others welted in the hot sun, Collins took a few minutes off for a bath in center-field brook. His only excuse for leaving the game was to get Leo Cody's two-bagger in the third inning. Cody's particular failing is lifting balls in the brook, or over it. In practice Saturday he sent one sailing over the road back of leftfield, landing up against the screen door in Austin Morley's office.

FIVE STRAIGHT WINS

MANCHESTER BALL TEAM ADDED ANOTHER VICTORY TO ITS SEASON STRING.

"The team that beats Manchester this year will have to go some," was the verdict of First Baseman Chissong of the Stoneham Town team after Tuesday afternoon's game in Manchester. The exclamation came after the Manchester team, with a splendid display of fighting spirit, overcame a two-run lead in the fifth inning with a batting rally which netted six runs. The game was started in spite of a drizzling rain and continued through a steady downpour for the full nine innings, with a crowd of nearly a thousand fans on hand. It was a wonderful exhibition of fielding under adverse conditions, both field and ball being dripping wet, yet neither side ran up a big score in the error column. When the game was in a dangerous stage in the sixth and seventh innings Grover took no chance of his fielders dropping a wet ball, but settled down and pitched with a speed that baffled the visiting nine. Four of the seven men who faced him in those two innings struck out. In all Grover struck out 12 men, a remarkable record with a wet ball.

Just as the fans were getting down-hearted and the rain was the heaviest in the fifth Conley was struck by a pitched ball. Collins bunted, advancing Conley, who stole third. Conley scored when Bond made a long drive, to center field. Bond was put out trying to stretch his hit for an extra base. Grover singled to right, scoring Collins and tying the score. Gourley lined one to right and romped home behind Grover on O'Leary's long drive over the brook. Cody brought in O'Leary with a two-bagger and scored from third on Devlin's sacrifice fly to Finnegan. Herron went out on a grounder to first base.

In the seventh Gourley laid a bunt just inside the third base line and beat it to first. O'Leary bunted and was safe at first. Both scored on Cody's two-bagger over right field fence. Cody scored on an error by leftfielder, who caught a high foul fly, and then held the ball instead of letting Cody run home at will.

The wet field had a good deal to do with Stoneham's three runs. In the third inning O'Toole doubled to left and Rogers struck out. Herron could not field Riley's grounder in time to get him at first for the second out. When Flaherty sacrificed he brought in O'Toole. In the fourth Magee got a two-bagger and an error by Cody let Finnegan on. Chissong flew out to Cody. Walsh's fly to Bond went as a sacrifice, Magee scoring. Finnegan scored in the ninth when Grover walked O'Toole with the bases full.

Tomorrow's ball game in Manchester should be a hummer. The Dorchester town team which will cross bats with Manchester is the old Dorchester A. A. team—one of the fastest aggregations in the state. They are touring New England and playing all the leading semi-professional teams. They are on the return trip from victorious jaunt through Maine. Grover will pitch as usual and it is hoped that Perkins may be back in the game. The team tomorrow will be one of the strongest which has opposed Manchester this season.

"The lighthouse reservation on Farallon Island, near San Francisco, has been a bird sanctuary for eighteen years," says Outing. "Recent reports show that bird life has increased there. Within the last two years bird reservations have been established by executive order, in the State of Washington, at Ediz Hook and Dungeness Spit, on the southern shore of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, and on Smith and Minor Islands, near the northern end of Admiralty Inlet. The lighthouse inspector reports that the results have been satisfactory. Though in some cases there has been no actual increase in the number of birds visiting these reservations, there is a relative gain, as the number of migratory birds on the coast is thought to be decreasing."

The use of lighthouse reservations for bird refuges is undeniably beneficial, but would hardly be practical

MAGNOLIA

Mrs. Fred S. Lycett spent the week-end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn of West Acton.

William Wilkins of Boston, with his wife and daughter, Virginia, were here recently visiting Mr. Wilkins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Wilkins.

William Commerford was recently awarded the much-coveted "Sawyer prize" given by the Gloucester School Board for excellence in deportment and scholarship.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bannon and son Howard of Lynn were entertained over the Fourth at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Boyd, as was also James Scott of West Gloucester.

Frederick W. Eaton spent the Fourth with his parents at the parsonage, returning the next day to Worcester where he is employed as an electrical engineer by the New England Power Company.

Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton will preach in the Village church Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and at 8.15 p. m. Morning subject: "Waste"; evening subject: "Is Life Worth Living." Prof. Brackett will give an organ recital from 8.15 to 8.30 p. m.

Since his arrival at Seward, Alaska, Hon. Harry C. Foster has written friends here of his calling on D. C. Ballou and Fred Story at Skagway, Alaska, of his most delightful trip and of the splendid business opportunities of Seward for bright and enterprising men.

As yet no policeman has appeared to look after the traffic in Postoffice square which is now a very busy place and which needs an officer to prevent, if possible, accidents, for not all people are careful in crossing the street and not all drivers of automobiles are to be trusted with the lives of others.

With the exception of a short distance a plank walk has recently been laid along the beach from a point near Regan's shop to the North Shore Swimming Pool building and the public is indebted for this convenience to the Village Improvement society. But why was the work not completed by putting up the bridge in front of the Women's clubhouse?

The Beverly Farms Fourth of July committee expresses its thanks to all who contributed or aided in making the celebration a success.

Theresa Ann Doyle of Hale st. and Jeremiah O'Grady of High st. were married on Wednesday evening, June 28, by the Rev. N. R. Walsh.

Miss Muller and Henry Williams were awarded the prize for the best one-step at the dance in Neighbor's hall last Monday evening. The attendance was the greatest this season.

West Beach and the Pavilion are popular places these days, the temperature of the water being sufficiently high to induce a large number to don bathing suits for a dip.

Mrs. William J. Dougherty and son have gone to Union, Me., where they will be the guests of Miss Elizabeth Harding, a Beverly Farms school teacher, until the first of September.

Local ball fans will divide their numbers and attention tomorrow between the Beverly Athletic field and Manchester where good games will be played. The Dorchester town team will be the attraction in Manchester.

An elderly married couple, each of weighty proportions, were about to take an automobile ride. As the husband made no attempt to assist his wife into the car, she turned to him and said: "You are not nearly so gallant as you were when you were a boy."

"And you, my dear," he returned, "are not nearly so buoyant as when you were a gal."

THE Selection of a dealer, now that automobiles and supplies have become more nearly perfected, is the real question today. The facilities for filling orders and attending to the immediate needs, are very important. Delays are annoying and waste much good riding weather. The ability of the dealer to prepare for prospective demands; the size of the stock he carries; his connections with the trade, and his desire to render satisfactory service, are points that command the attention of careful buyers.

WE Carry the largest stock in eastern Massachusetts; our large wholesale department gives customers in our retail department an exceptionally large and superior stock of fresh goods to select from:—our customers experience almost no delays. We are Massachusetts' representatives for many of the best manufacturers and we employ only such assistants as will give immediate and careful attention. We solicit your patronage and offer the very best service.

mousse requires three quarts whipped cream, three gills sugar, one gill water, one of milk, two eggs, and two tablespoons gelatine. Soak the gelatine in the milk two hours, then put one gill of sugar in a small sauce pan over the fire until it becomes liquid and turns dark brown. Now add the gill of water and simmer until the sugar is dissolved again—about 15 minutes. Beat the eggs and remainder of the sugar together until very light. Put this mixture into the double boiler, with the soaked gelatine and the milk. Cook for five minutes stirring all the time. Take from the fire, and add the caramel. Let cool and beat until frothy and gently stir in the whipped cream, pour into the mould. Cover and let stand from four to six hours.

Philadelphia Ice-Cream.—The ingredients for this ice-cream are pure cream, sugar and flavoring. To make mix three pints of cream, a generous half-pint of sugar, and a scant tablespoon of vanilla. Allow the mixture to stand for twenty minutes in the freezer, packed in ice and salt, then turn the crank for twenty minutes. The cream will be hard and smooth and for family use is highly recommended as it is easy to make requiring no cooking.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION

Adj. Gen. Cole highly commends the prompt and efficient service of the temporary relief committee which, under the leadership of Mrs. John Balch, president of the Anti-Suffrage association, worked at the Armory and at Room 249, in the State House, last week, looking after the families of enlisted men.

Eighty-five cases were investigated and assisted by this committee which has now made final arrangements for turning over the work and the data collected to the Volunteer Aid association at 79 Kilby street, Boston.

Mrs. Balch has been asked to serve with Messrs. George H. Lyman, A. C. Ratchesky and Edwin W. Curtis as a member of the General Committee of the Volunteer Aid association. Her assistants from various parts of the State have already been at work at the headquarters of that association.

Life is a lease imposed on the tenant without previous communication of the conditions in the contract.

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN.

North Shore residents and summer visitors will be especially interested in the feature photoplay to be shown at the Strand theatre, Lynn, next Sunday afternoon and evening, by reason of the fact that it was acted and photographed in and around Gloucester and Rockport. Many residents of those picturesque places will remember having seen the company of screen stars and motion picture camera men in town some months ago when the picture was photographed. Jose Collins will be seen in the leading role of the play.

The program for the first three days of the week will present Myrtle Stedman in the Metro play of "An American Beauty."

For the last three days of the week the Strand will show William Collier, Jr., in "The Bugle Boy," a photoplay that established a record business for the New York Strand, and Blanche Sweet in "The Dupe" a Paramount feature.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON.

There has not been such a great theatrical sensation in Boston for years as "Where Are My Children?" the daring photo play which opened its engagement at the Majestic Theatre last Monday. An emergency call for police help was sent out on the opening night to control the crowds trying to gain admission to the theatre. On Tuesday it was necessary to give eight performances from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m., to accommodate the thousands who wished to see this much discussed picture.

There are doubtless ample arguments for and against the picture. From all accounts from New York and Chicago, and other large cities where it has been presented several

Florence Nash, the famous "Aggie Lynch" of "Within The Law" and one of the cleverest character actresses on the American stage, will head the bill offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre, "The Amusement Centre of Boston," the week of July 10. Miss Nash will appear as "Pansy McGuire," the waitress from Childs, in a new comedy sketch written especially for her by Willard Mack, entitled "Pansy's Particular Punch." Miss Nash will be supported by an excellent company of character actors, and her engagement should prove one of the most enjoyable features of the season. Second only to Miss Nash in general interest will be Searl Allen and Ed Howard, in their new one-act comedy, "A Real Pal." This is a lively comedy act introducing some

Red Cross and French Wounded Work-rooms

The Real Interest of North Shore Society This Season is in Toiling to Make Life Pleasanter for Our Own Soldiers at the Front or the Wounded Abroad

By LILLIAN McCANN

"OUR Boys and Our Women!"—the predicted toast for the coming winter.

Do you realize that North Shore society just now is in an extremely interesting period of its development? This period, which is growing in interest daily, began only one season ago. Do you know how the women of the most exclusive homes of America, gathered on the North Shore for the summer, are toiling to make life pleasanter for the soldier at the front, to help the nurse in the hospitals, and to aid the family at home, left without its bread winner? The ability to do something worth while—to stand for something, is giving many a society woman a new zest in life. The ability to open and build up such work-rooms as are on the North Shore might spoil any woman for the life she has always been supposed to lead, by men. Before the war, the world seemed made for the comfort of the well to do and travel was as safe as staying at home. But all that seems tame and uninteresting now. Action is the word, and practically all of our women have interests vastly more important than golf, tennis or tea.

The mobilization of our men and the bringing together of boys of various stations in life; the uplift to the boys, the human sympathy created both in camp and in the homes, and woman's general part in it, were the subjects discussed at a meeting in Beverly on Tuesday of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness, under the auspices of the Beverly Improvement society. The committee in charge included Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft, Mrs. Edward J. Holmes and Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, who presided. The first speaker was Mrs. Barrett Wendell, president of the Mass. branch, who outlined the work of the society since it was formed last October. She said we had time to continue our work for the Allies as well as join in the work of the hour—the making of Red Cross equipments.

Mrs. Montgomery Sears then told the story of the women's work at Framingham for the Mass. Militia at their encampment before the hurry-up call came for them to go to the border. It was a thrilling account, telling how they collected supplies, got a motor truck, cooked, washed dishes, got dinner for the governor, and worked until one and three o'clock in the morning. But they fed them! Mrs. Samuel Mixter, Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp, Mrs. W. A. Paine and Miss Mary Clapp were among the Swampscott women in this great feat.

Mrs. Wm. Lowell Putnam told of the work being done in Boston in regard to the soldier's families. She emphasized the precautions that must be taken to look out for the really deserving, who have too much pride to ask for help. Mrs. Putnam is doing a great work in seeking among the churches of the county in an effort to find out how much money they could raise if needed, and other general matters. She feelingly brought out the point that it is not charity, but only our part to help those left behind.

Gen. Wm. Stopford of Beverly told of the specific work being done along the same lines in Beverly, and gave the audience some wholesome advice along the lines of supplies for the men regarding what to send and what not.

When the call for relief at home came a little over two weeks ago, Miss Louisa P. Loring, secretary of Essex County Chapter of the American Red Cross, at once formed stations throughout the county for the gathering and forwarding of supplies to U. S. soldiers. She was asked this week by the mayor of Haverhill to form a branch there.

Beverly is under the chairmanship of Miss Bessie Baker and Mrs. John C. Phillips is in charge at North Beverly.

The Manchester branch is in the Library building. Mrs. L. W. Carter is in charge of the work, assisted by Mrs. S. D. Warren, Jr., Mrs. Russell Codman, Mrs. J. W. Merrill, Mrs. Richard Lovering, Mrs. John Baker, Mrs. John Newbold, Miss Mabel Lodge, Mrs. F. R. Spalding, Mrs. E. J. Holmes and others.

The Manchester Red Cross work-room is in the Casino of the Masconomo House, and presents a busy scene when the fifty or more women and young folk are busily engaged every Tuesday. Miss Loring is chairman; Mrs. Boylston A. Beal, secretary and Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, treasurer. Among the workers are Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, Mrs. John Newbold, Mrs. E. Preble Motley, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. E. J. Holmes, Mrs. J. Warren Merrill and Miss Elizabeth Hammond. Six machines are kept running and seven or more tables are always occupied. The table of surgical shirts is in charge of Mrs. Gordon Prince. Many of the women take things home to finish or cut out.

The Red Cross society stands for suffering in times of peace or war in all countries without regard as to color, race or creed. No wonder that the North Shore is excelling in its preparedness and sympathy. Has it not always had Miss Mabel T. Boardman of Manchester and Washington,—that queen of womankind—as its example? Has she not always inspired her friends and neighbors to do the broad work for which the Red Cross stands? Why shouldn't the North Shore be taking the lead when it has had Miss Boardman of Red Cross renown as a summer resident for so long?

The North Shore work-room for the American Fund for French Wounded opened in West Manchester, June 1, in Mrs. E. S. Grew's coach-house at "All Oaks." The need and suffering in French hospitals is greater than ever and the demand for such work is being ably met by the women. Mrs. George Lyman enthusiastically opens the place about 8 o'clock in the morning and plans the work for the many workers who come at ten.

Last season the North Shore women made a great success of their work in the coach-house at the home of Mrs. Walter D. Denègre in West Manchester, later moving the work-room to Mrs. Grew's place. The committee was reorganized this season and includes Mrs. Russell Codman, chairman; Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, secretary; Miss Harriet Rantoul, treasurer; Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Mrs. Lester Leland, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, 2d, Mrs. George Lyman and Miss Alice Thorndike. About 50 workers are often present, including some of the young folk and children of the community. The Misses Harriet and Mabel Rantoul, Frances Hutchinson, Jane Tucker, Agnes and Ethel Grew and Master Jimmy Grew make themselves generally useful in making pillows, travelling, etc. Much can be accomplished by spending an hour in earnest work. Sandwiches and crackers are for sale to tide over the long morning. An enormous amount of work was done in June, when not all of the summer colony had come. The work included 1,335 bandages, 9,740 sponges (ten to a package), 142 coussinets, 249 3-metre gauze, 174 1-metre gauze, 166 fly cloths, 438 knit sponges, 12 shirts, 37 socks, 4 sweaters and several other kinds of work.

The latest bulletin from the Paris depot asks for mosquito netting, covers to keep flies out of cups, cheap fans, etc. It speaks of the distress of the bandaged patients with the flies attacking their unprotected faces. It tells of the ambulances at the front which are kept supplied with the surgical dressings. Each woman managing these has received her "citation" to appear for the Decoration. After a fierce attack they often operate at the rate of 15 an hour. Times like these require an enormous amount of dressings. The blindness from liquid fire is frightful, and the bulletin closes by saying, "we must beg, beg, beg,—in fact, keep it up until the terrible struggle is over."

Great interest is manifested by the ladies of Magnolia in the Magnolia Surgical Dressings work which is being done every day, except Saturday, from 9 until 2, in the Oceanside Annex. The work is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Page, from the Surgical Dressings Department of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at Brookline. The bandages were originally intended for the wounded of the Allies, but the dressings will be sent for the use of our American soldiers if necessary, resulting from the Mexican crisis. About 20 workers are present each day from the Magnolia colony. To suit the convenience of the ladies the work has been arranged so that the workers may come on the day best suited for their convenience. Everyone is welcome to come and help in this most worthy cause. The dressings materials is paid for by voluntary donations, which have so far been very generous. The officers of the Magnolia branch are Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, president; Mrs. E. M. Binney, vice-president; Mrs. George F. Willett, treasurer, and Mrs. E. B. Richardson, secretary.

In Wenham the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness is doing a wonderful amount of work at its meetings. The work-room for surgical dressings is in the S. Dacre Bush house near the town hall. Fifty enthusiastic members are now enrolled. Mrs. John C. Phillips is president, Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels, treasurer, Mrs. Charles T. Parker, secretary. Miss Helen Burnham is vice-chairman and Mrs. E. B. Cole heads the lecture committee. The work includes Hamilton as well as Wenham. Mrs. John C. Phillips was at the head of a parade committee, but the parade has been abandoned since the Mexican trouble arose. Interested workers from Hamilton are Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Mrs. John Tuckerman, Mrs. Houtson Thomas, Mrs. Chas. Thayer and Mrs. Jack Brown.

In Ipswich the women are working each Tuesday and Friday at Candlewood Farm, the home of the Herbert W. Masons. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Roger S. Warner (Mary Hooper) the good work has been in progress over a month. The Argilla road colony is well represented among the workers, Mrs. R. T. Crane being one of the number. The Appleton Farms colony make up a good share of the helpers, and Mrs. N. S. Simpkins and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of the Manse have recently joined in the work as the other summer residents will probably do as they arrive. The work is for the French wounded. Mrs. Robert P. Parker also carried on an interesting work all winter, in the Rectory, for Belgian refugees. This she hopes to continue in the fall upon her return from the west. Mrs. Parker furnished the materials and her friends assisted in making the surgical supplies.

In Topsfield the women are meeting in the Town hall under the supervision of Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce and Miss Margaret Cummings. They have a strong branch working for the French wounded. A class in First Aid is also meeting in the old Capen house, with Dr. Peer Johnson of Beverly in charge. Mrs. Willard Emery and Mrs. Ernest Pentacost are enthusiastic members in the class, as are also many of the summer colony.

At Phillips Beach the Friday morning Surgical Dressings meetings which are being held in the Neighborhood clubhouse are very well attended and much useful work is being done under the supervision of Mrs. Stanley D. Forbes, Mrs. J. W. Tapley and Mrs. W. A. Hayford, as well as the other ladies of the club. The club extends a cordial welcome to any ladies who would like to assist in this splendid work. The meetings are held from 10 to 1 o'clock on Friday mornings and is the branch of the Surgical Dressings Work which was carried on in Lynn during the winter. It is supervised by the Surgical Dressings Department of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at Brookline. The Neighborhood club branch is under the direction of Miss Carroll Tapley of Lynn. The dressings, which include wicks, bandages, surgical pads and compresses are all sent to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital to be sterilized and will be kept for our own soldiers if necessary, or sent to the Allies.

At Nahant a Red Cross station has been opened to receive supplies for our soldiers, with Miss Lillie Fay and Mrs. Charles T. Lovering at the head. They are making all kinds of garments. The French wounded work is done in the Nahant Town hall, Wednesday and Friday mornings, under the supervision of Mrs. Thomas S. Bradlee. The entire colony is at work.

Marblehead has a Surgical Dressings work-room in the Marblehead Academy, meeting each Friday, with Mrs. W. R. Castle as chairman. A trained worker from the Peter Bent Brigham hospital is in charge of the work. Part of the supplies are for the Allies and part for our own men if needed. Prominent summer residents are helping in the work.

Mrs. W. Castle is in charge of the Red Cross station at Marblehead; at Salem, Mrs. W. Haggett; Swampscott has joined with Lynn under Mrs. Gordon Campbell; Newburyport, Miss Marjorie Bernheimer, who is today giving a fair on her handsome estate benefiting the Red Cross and French wounded.

In Gloucester work for the French wounded is carried on at the Cape Ann Literary and Scientific Association building on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Mrs. Isaac

Tales of Story-Book Marblehead

By ANNE ACTON

"A queer, old place; yet every stone that trips you in its streets
Is instinct with the loyal pulse that in its bosom beats.

This may be metaphor: it is but true as gospel still,

For Marblehead is Marblehead, has been and always will."

IT has been truly said of our great New York City that there is but one New York; that it bears no resemblance to any other place; that it is original, distinct, different.

The same might also be said of the little town of Marblehead, but for very different reasons; for while New York is a city of today, with all evidences of its past obliterated by the unsentimental march of progress, Marblehead, although nearing its three hundredth birthday, is still more eloquent of yesterday.

A quaintly picturesque bit of the past, clustering upon and around the rocky headlands that give it its name, is Marblehead. A town of winding, circling, labyrinthine streets, for the most part barren of sidewalks, that lead you on over many a hill and through many a hollow, but always down to the sea, where the great, blue ocean seems somehow to mother the little town, for all its rocky barriers.

Motoring among these oddly-terraced byways of Marblehead is like nothing so much as riding a roller-coaster or scenic railway, with long, steep climbs, sudden dips and occasional glimpses of other vehicles far below on the parallel road you have just travelled.

There is no precision, no symmetry, no uniformity in the aspect of the little place. Nor is it haphazard, either, but evidence of an independence as sturdy as its foundation rocks. Dwellings were the first consideration of its practical settlers. Thoroughfares were an afterthought and were made to suit the convenience of the owner, with no arbitrary custom to dictate how or where.

You may know the "Neck" and Devereux and Clifton and perhaps you have motored down through the odd, story-book town to the exclusive Peach's Point. They are the Marblehead of today. Small trace is left of the clustering settlement on "John Peach's Neck" as Peach's Point was once called, and even the sea and the sky have forgotten that the fashionable "Neck" once harbored King George's unwelcome redcoats and that the Naumkeag Indians, ages ago, were undisputed owners of the now slightly Devereux and Clifton.

But it is not so in old Marblehead and if instead of continuing on to Peach's Point, you will turn off to the right of the Point road, you will find yourself on Fisherman's Beach, where in the shadow of the brown, weather-beaten homes of the fishermen you can look out over the age-old sea and dream you are in the Marblehead of years ago.

A pitifully small, pebbly stretch is this beach today, with the comfortable house and prim garden of a summer residence crowding it on the right and on the left a boatyard pressing as close as possible to the stone that is one of its boundaries. Gone are the wharves where schooners from the Grand Banks brought their "fare"; dead is the industry that for so many years was practically the only one in Marblehead.

And now close your eyes to all sights of the present. The old houses that edge the beach are veritable story-books and the waves that play over the pebbles have tales upon tales to tell you and, if you will, they will take you back

Over the years that span the way

town, regarding whose limits there have been more arguments than would confound the far-famed Philadelphia lawyer. Moreover, they still continue, and doubtless will as long as the name persists, for be it known, it is not a complimentary epithet, and thereby hangs a tale—the first that we will tell you.

Sturdy, stout-hearted men were the fisherfolk of Marblehead; simple, kindly souls, who worked from sunup to sundown, with now and then an hour or two at the Fountain Inn for a bit of grog and a story. Pirates there were in the town, though well concealed, and smugglers, and many a bale and cask came in without weighing or sealing. But only by the work of their hands, with rod and net, lived the fishermen. But rivalry will always be and in communities of few interests jealousies and misunderstandings grow apace. Farther up Great Bay, which is now Marblehead Harbor, the work of shipbuilding was competing for first place among the industries of the town and there was anything but a kindly feeling between these workers and the fisherfolk here in the vicinity of Little Harbor. Bickerings became open quarrels and “shipyarders” found straying about this section were promptly “rocked aroun’ the corner” or “squaeled up,” which in either case means stoned, and fishermen visiting the “shipyard” were treated in a like manner. It was then, so the story goes, when feeling ran high, that the name of Barnegat was given to this section. It was the name of a small coast town in the Isle of Jersey, from which island many of the early settlers of Marblehead had come. There wrecks were frequent and the inhabitants not averse to profiting thereby, and so it suited admirably the intention of the “shipyarders” to fasten upon the fisherfolk the odium of thievery.

Such is the story of the origin of the name. Whether it be true or not, it still clings to this part of the town and directions often include the phrases, “Down Barnegat” and “Up the shipyard,” although the shipyard has long since ceased to be.

As to the limits of Barnegat, that is a matter which has never been satisfactorily settled. Residents outside what they consider the odious boundaries say that it begins at the church on Washington street, but those within that territory claim that it is further “down town” at the corner of Orne street. Again, this is indignantly denied and Barnegat is said to be “at the foot of the hill,” meaning here on Fishermen’s Beach. It cannot be pushed further unless we pass it on to the cove or the nearby islands, so the neighborhood of the

The Giles Firmin Garden at Ipswich

THE GILES FIRMIN GARDEN arrests the attention of all motorists through Ipswich. Located on the Essex road, near the County road, and just at the entrance to the town it lies a lovely little spot, where once the dilapidated old buildings stood, as seen in the cut.

Francis R. Appleton of Ipswich had the tablet placed at the entrance, only three weeks ago. He also had the stone posts placed at the gateway.

as to whether this enterprise has been a wise one will be dispelled, by contrasting the present appearance of the garden with the past appearance. A little brook runs through the garden and unusually fine specimens of the Colorado silver fir, Japanese cedar, Austrian pine and white and blue spruce have attained conspicuous size.

Interested friends and contributors from the beginning of the undertaking have included Francis R. Apple-

The tablet inscription explains the garden. It reads: "The Giles Firmin Garden, maintained by voluntary contributions for the use and benefit of the public. Dr. Firmin was the first Ipswich physician. He returned to England in 1644 and became a prominent Puritan preacher. His house lot included this spot. For the proprietors, T. F. Waters."

It is hoped that this tablet will encourage the free use of the garden by the public, and stimulate subscriptions from public spirited friends toward its maintenance. Its beauty and educational value grow apace. Any doubt ton, Mrs. Daniel F. Appleton, James W. Appleton, Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman (Ruth Appleton), Mrs. Gerald L. Hoyt (Mary Appleton), Henry Brown, Augustus P. Gardner, John Proctor, George E. Barnard, Charles A. Campbell, James H. Proctor, Thomas Franklin Waters and Mrs. Anna P. Peabody, deceased.

The Rev. T. F. Waters is known far and wide as the historian of Ipswich, and it is mainly through his efforts that the historic spots in the old town have been located and marked with appropriate tablets. In this work the summer colony is ever an appreciative support.

DR. ROLAND COTTON SMITH, rector of St. John's Church in Washington, D. C., will occupy "Cottonfield," in Ipswich this summer, and have charge of the Church of the Ascension during August.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick of Baltimore, the parents of Mrs. Marshall Fabyan (Eleanor McCormick) have taken the Gordon Means cottage at Beverly Farms for the season.

Mrs. E. Palmer Gavit of Smith's Point, Manchester, has received word of the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bryant Turner, of Colorado Springs. She was a niece of Mrs. Geo. Folsom of Lenox and had many friends in Boston.

Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt of N. State street, Chicago, is among the new-comers to the Shore this season, and is spending the summer in the Stanwood cottage on Smith's Point, Manchester, in one of the most beautiful regions of the entire Shore. She had "Raycroft" cottage at Peach's Point, Marblehead, last season.

John Mitchell returned to Manchester this week from a cruise in his schooner, "Simitar," to Nova Scotia regions, where the party went instead of to Bermuda, as originally planned. They were in Halifax the first of this week. Immediately on his return Mr. Mitchell will join the Naval "Plattsburg," and Jack Merrill, E. Preble Motley and Roger Putnam are other North Shore boys to take the training with the August 15th division.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift of Beverly Cove have with them Mrs. Swift's sister, Mrs. J. C. Hildebrand, of Chicago, who came last week to spend some time on the Shore.

Dr. T. O. Shepard and his sister, Miss S.W. Shepard of Salem are in their cottage on Common Lane, Pride's Crossing. They are adding a new porch and sun-parlor to the attractive looking cement house.

THE NORTH SHORE GRILL CLUB Tea Garden, at Magnolia, always a popular rendezvous for North Shore people, was opened last Saturday afternoon. The orchestra was stationed upon the veranda, nearly hidden by the beautiful foliage, and played for those who wished to dance. Tea was served upon pretty tea tables about the garden. This novelty pleased many who enjoyed the attraction. Saturday evening Mrs. Preston Gibson entertained a party at dinner in the North Shore Grill. Covers were laid for six. Mrs. George Brown of Salem was hostess to a party of twelve Saturday evening.

Miss Margaret Thayer, daughter of William R. Thayer, who is making her home with Mrs. Robert deW. Sampson at Manchester Cove, is a splendid equestrian and rides with all the ease and grace of a true horsewoman. Miss Thayer is an athletic girl and enjoys outdoor life. It is always a pleasure to the beholder to see this gracious young lady as she drives in her smart phaeton through Magnolia.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bristow Draper of Hopedale say that this delightful young couple will spend August at Magnolia, which is, no doubt, a pleasing bit of news to their friends, of which they have a host along the North Shore.

The Richard Henry Dana family were late in arriving in Manchester at their summer home on Dana's Beach. They are usually of the early arrivals on the Shore. Last week-end they entertained Miss Alice Longfellow of "Craigie House," Cambridge, who this week has gone on an extended motor trip through the Berkshires with her cousins, Miss Mary Longfellow and Mrs. Barrett of Portland, who joined her in Cambridge.

Chas A. Stevens of Lowell, who came to spend the summer with Mrs. Stevens, at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. L. Chalifoux, on Smith's Point, Manchester, is stationed at Framingham as adjutant to Col. Buck.

MISS CLARA STANDISH LORING, a young Southern girl, made her North Shore debut at a musicale last Saturday afternoon at "The Moorings," the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Tucker on Norton's Point, Manchester. A representative gathering of people from Boston, New York and other sections of the country, filled the beautiful rooms. Mlle. Germaine Cossini of New York, who is spending the summer in Manchester with Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Campbell, also sang. She is a pupil of Mr. Arthur Alexander of New York and Gloucester, who was at the piano.

The cool green and white music room, with its clusters of pink and red roses, made a most suitable place for the young girl to enter her chosen profession. Miss Loring is only nineteen and showed all the charm of youth when she came into the room. She wore a short, modish little dress of soft gray silk with a touch of rose in the trimmings and had a large pink rose in her girdle. Her hair was done low and in the most simple and girlish manner possible. She charmed all by her sweet and unaffected air and all were delighted and surprised that one so slight and young had such a voice, possessing a high and ringing tone and a wonderful carrying quality. Her expression and breathing were noted with pleasure by some of the music critics present. Her selections from Rossini were given in the most fascinating and happy manner. By request she sang Madam Butterfly in English and gave a dainty little "I Love You" as an encore. At the close of the program she and Mlle. Cossini sang a duet. Miss Loring recently sang before Impresario Pallaco of the Metropolitan and his enthusiasm was so great that he wanted to give her an opportunity to sing at the Metropolitan the coming season. Mr. Otto Kahn has said that she has a voice that should give her the position of leading American prima donna of the operatic stage. She was given the first scholarship in the proposed school for opera in Paris, but this failed to materialize, owing to the war. She is booked to make her debut on the operatic stage in Vienna immediately following the war, and also to sing in Covent Garden, London. An engagement for the coming season with the Havana Opera Company is being considered by Miss Loring.

Mlle. Cossini pleased all with her brilliant selections. She was dressed in silvery gray with a touch of white and dark blue and wore a large pink rose.

Little Miss Jane Tucker, dainty in white and blue, saw that the guests were supplied with programs. Mrs. Tucker was dressed in a rich embroidered white gown and was assisted in receiving the guests by her daughter, Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch, Jr., and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Randolph F. Tucker of Manchester. Mrs. Fitch wore a light salmon colored dress and Mrs. Tucker was in pure white with a large black hat with blue trimmings. Among those noticed were Mrs. Charles E. Cotting, Mrs. John Markle, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, Mrs. Harrison K. Caner, Mrs. E. R. Campbell, Mrs. E. D. Jordan, Mrs. Robert D. Evans and her sisters, the Misses Hunt. The guests filled two large rooms of the house.

Joseph Clark Grew, has returned to his post as secretary of the American Embassy in Berlin after a brief holiday. Mrs. Grew and children, who are with the former's people in Hancock, N. H., will follow the last of this month and will be accompanied on the return trip by Mrs. Gardner, wife of Congressman A. P. Gardner, who goes to Berlin to be with her daughter, Mrs. Grafton W. Minot (Constance Gardner), whose marriage was a year ago this month at Hamilton. Mr. Minot is one of the attaches of the American Embassy at Berlin.

Boylston A. Beal, who has been in London for several months as a member of the American Legation at the Court of St. James, arrived in Boston Tuesday, having come home in a steamer to New York. He came at once to his summer home in Manchester. He will probably return to London within a few weeks.

Philip Stockton and family have gone to Westport, N. Y., to pass part of the summer, as is their custom, at the estate of Mrs. Stockton's late parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Head. They will return to Manchester in mid-August.

LITTLE LEILA MAY STEVENS and her playmates, Hélène and Frederick Ellsworth, and Grumpy, the fine Welsh terrier belonging to Mrs. John Stevens, were joined by a most unusual playfellow the other day. The Stevenses live in the Furman cottage at Manchester Cove, back of which is thick woods, out of which a gentle little fawn wandered, joined the children, much to Grumpy's delight, and then sped on its way down the hill and past the John C. Ellsworth cottage and garage, across the road, and was last seen by the little folk wandering out in the marshy land near the beach.

IN the beautiful new shop of the Bonwit, Teller Company in "The Colonial" on Lexington avenue, Magnolia, this morning, while shopping, I saw three of the dearest hand-made imported French blouses which completely captivated me. Let me describe them.

One was the Pellerette of the finest white organdie, embroidered in front and on the collar in a rich lace effect, so new, so chic. The cape collar was triple, on which was used a delicate shade of corn colored organdie, this lovely shade showing in touches on the French turn-back cuffs. The salespeople said they were specializing in one model blouses only, and this is surely quite the most different waist I have seen.

The second was the dearest little sport blouse of striped French lawn, black and green pencil stripes on a white background. This pretty thing was made more attractive by chic white collar and cuffs of French batiste with narrow fluting. A dainty finish was given by white buttons embroidered in green.

The third blouse was perfectly stunning, of the finest French linen in a pale tone of lavender. This was of the strictly tailleur effect, pleated back and front. The front closing was scalloped with narrow piping of white linen. A combination collar was used, the flat, lay-down collar joined by a wide fluting which ended at the first button. The pearl buttons completed the effect of this fetching blouse.

Complete line of "Sneakers" in White or Brown

VERY stunning and attractive was Mrs. Edward Frothingham Wyman of New York Thursday evening at the hop at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia. Mrs. Wyman wore an exquisite gown of black satin with rich appliques of beaded jet. Her daughter, Miss Rosamonde Wyman, who is a very pretty girl, was sweet and girlish in a dainty white dancing frock. Miss Edna MacMartin, who is chaperoned by Mrs. Wyman, was very charming in a fetching white party dress with veilings of pale blue tulle.

Miss Janet Bryan, one of the most popular of the bevy of sweet and pretty debutantes at the Oceanside is a very graceful dancer. Thursday evening at the hop Miss Janet wore a lovely party frock of pale blue taffeta, with bouffant jupons. Her dancing with John D. Carscallen was very graceful, especially in the one-step, just before intermission.

Mrs. J. A. Hull was gowned in a beautiful pale blue taffeta, appliqued, with bandings of silver.

The Oceanside has within its midst, in the delightful person of Miss Christine Miller of Pittsburgh, a grand opera singer of unusual ability. Miss Miller has a rich contralto voice, which has great expression and range. It is hoped that the guests will have the pleasure of hearing Miss Miller at a concert at the hotel.

Miss Evangeline Beane, the Oceanside exponent of the dance, was very attractive Thursday evening in an apricot taffeta gown with net and silver lace.

At the Thursday evening hop Mrs. C. S. Carscallen of New York was very attractive in a beautiful gown of robin's egg blue with touches of silver. This is Mrs. Carscallen's first visit to the Oceanside, where she has already become a favorite.

Miss Isabella Wadsworth, a popular member of the younger set, wore a flame colored gown Thursday evening. Miss Wadsworth is a very graceful dancer and with Chester Lockwood she certainly can dance the fox-trot.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Alexander Torrance of Morristown, N. J., accompanied by Mrs. Torrance's daughter, Miss Eleanor M. Dieter and R. R. Dieter, also of Baltimore have arrived at the Oceanside for the season and have taken apartments in East cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Vaux of Philadelphia with their three daughters, the Misses Alice, Emily and Susan M., and maids, are season guests at the Oceanside, arriving last week. The Vaux are a very prominent Philadelphia family in circles of the Quaker city. They have apartments in the Sea Crest cottage.

Mrs. Mathew Temple of Philadelphia with daughter, Miss Helen, and maid, are registered at the Oceanside for the season.

I. C. Cooper of Cleveland is making an indefinite stay in Magnolia and is registered at the Oceanside.

Miss F. H. J. Baldwin of Boston has returned to the Oceanside for the summer.

MRS. MARSHALL FABYAN opened her summer home in Preston Place, Beverly Farms, for a musicale, Monday afternoon, which was attended by about 75 people from along the Shore. One third of the gross proceeds of the affair will be used for the French wounded fund. The artists taking part were the Misses Lillia Snelling, Margaret and Helen Whitaker and Herman Lohre. Miss Snelling, an opera singer of note, was charming in the many selections given. The "Don't Care" by Carpenter of Chicago was especially pleasing. Miss Whitaker's violin solos and the songs by Mr. Lohre, a young Polish artist, were of the most artistic rendering. Mrs. Allen Curtis of Beverly Farms brought copies of a little book, "Mademoiselle Miss," letters from an American girl serving in French hospitals, to sell for the cause.

The fine old house (Louis Agassiz Shaw house) came in for much admiration at the close of the recital, which was given in the music room. This opens into the court, the house being shaped like a long hollow oblong, the inner courtway having a large swimming pool in the center. The long pool is entered from the upper chambers by a slide, and the whole is surrounded by sweet-smelling box, ferns and flowers. The quaint old house, low and painted white, has many interesting surprises in its architectural arrangement, all of which was planned by Mrs. Louis Agassiz Shaw (Joan C. Bird). It was originally an old farm house.

The guests were received by Mrs. Fabyan, who wore a blue silk coat, blue and white skirt and a large hat of different tones of blue. Among those present were Mrs. Robert D. Evans, the Misses Hunt, Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., and most of the patronesses including Mmes. S. P. Blake, R. S. Bradley, Alex. Cochrane, W. H. Coolidge, S. F. Corlies, A. Curtis, F. Dexter, P. Dexter, W. S. Fitz, F. P. Frazier, A. P. Gardner, H. S. Grew, M. G. Haughton, H. P. King, E. L. Kent, Geo. Lee, A. P. Loring, G. H. Lyman, J. McMillan, W. J. Mitchell, W. H. Moore, D. L. Pickman, J. H. Proctor, W. L. Putnam, R. deW. Sampson, J. L. Saltonstall, Alex. Steinert, G. H. Shaw, W. B. P. Weeks and W. M. Wood, and the Misses Margaret Corlies, Louisa P. Loring and Fanny P. Mason.

The Misses Harriet and Janetta Alexander of New York left yesterday after a short visit with Miss Edith Deacon in her cottage in West Manchester.

At 37 Central st., Manchester, all next week there is to be a special sale of summer apparel—gowns, blouses, sports, etc., by Bingham of 729 Boylston st., Boston, and chapeaux by Mlle. Jeanne of 400 Boylston st. North Shore patrons of these two concerns will take advantage of some of the unusual offerings and price reductions at this sale.

A notable group of riders, who enjoyed a Sunday morning gallop through the beautiful bridle trails at Magnolia on last Sabbath morning, was made up of Mr. W. H. Coolidge, Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, Mrs. Samuel Stevens, who was formerly Miss Isabel Coolidge; Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, Jr., formerly Miss Eleanor Cole, and Miss Katherine Coolidge. The party was very picturesquely set off by the string of fine dogs, the property of Mr. Coolidge, senior, following ceremoniously with grooms. At the first glance one was strongly reminded of a riding scene in England on a pretty summer morning.

as they disappeared from sight in the wooded paths of one of the estates.

THE Beverly Farms Fair on the grounds of "The Rectory" will be a gala day next Wednesday when the Church Auxiliary society will hold its annual fair from 11 to 6 p.m. At the various tables will be the members of the society, who will sell useful articles made during the winter mostly. There will be a children's table, candy table, cake table, and one of fancy and useful articles. The Girls' Club may assist in selling flowers and candy and at the bundle table. Fruits and vegetables and tea will be in charge of the summer colony. A juggler will also be stationed upon the porch of the rectory building.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Alexander Murray, Jr. (Josephine Rantoul), will return to Beverly Farms tomorrow from their honeymoon, which has been spent in the West. Their wedding took place in Beverly Farms on May 30 in St. John's Church and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Auchincloss of New York, who are now at the Neal Rantoul home in Beverly Farms, will take the Foster cottage at the Farms for a few weeks during the mid-season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson of Beverly Farms returned yesterday from a week's visit in Philadelphia. Next Thursday Mr. and Mrs. J. Conyngham Stevens (Margaretta W. Hutchinson) of Rydal, Pa., will arrive at the cottage on the Hutchinson place. Mrs. Stevens is a sister of Mr. Hutchinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice M. Osborne (Nancy Cabot) and baby of Cambridge are now with Mrs. Osborne's mother, Mrs. Charles M. Cabot, at the summer home in Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Charles H. Dalton of West Beach Hill, Beverly Farms, has an interesting miniature farm on her thickly wooded place. A walk up the hill leads past the large enclosure of chickens; but the pets that attract attention are the pretty white pigeons that seem to be everywhere. The tall green house made for the pigeons is also very noticeable among the trees.

Many new guests were booked the past week at Beverly Farms' summer hotel, Tunipoo Inn. The inn with its exceptional surroundings, a convenient beach for ocean bathing, fine train service and comfortable accommodations, is one of the most desirable places along the North Shore. It combines the comforts of hotel service with the restfulness of home.

WAS anything ever more attractive than the imported Lucky China Pigs which greeted my eye at the entrance to A. Schmidt & Son's fine shop on Lexington avenue, Magnolia, today. They are the cutest little things of Wemyss ware, hand-painted, one mother and her brood in roses, and the other in four-leaf clovers. They tell me they are very fashionable and lucky and used for door-stops and paper weights.

In wending my way through the fairyland of fine things in the shop I noticed the dearest little silver-mounted cocktail glasses adorned with silver cocks, quite the latest thing, and to go with these a really non-leakable, sanitary, silver cocktail shaker, just what I was looking for for a man's gift to a man.

RUNNING in a fog is a hard strain on the navigator as courses must be accurately set and carefully steered, says Outing. Landmarks are all veiled in the gray blanket of mist and lighthouses located by sound instead of sight. The boat's speed over bottom must be known, which means proper allowance for tidal current.

Soundings are useful to verify one's position and the lead should be "armed," that is, the saucer-like depression in its bottom filled with tallow or even common brown soap. Samples of the bottom are then brought up by the lead and the character of the bottom and depth of water compared with those shown on the chart. If blue mud is brought up where the chart indicates "fine sand with shells" something is wrong. But a single sounding is not enough to fix position, there should be a series at regular intervals. A sudden change in depth, such as the edge of a shoal or a decided "deep," will help in locating one's self.

A series of soundings may be plotted on a piece of tracing paper on which the course has been drawn and also a few lines parallel to the meridian, using the proper scale for the interval between soundings and allowing for the stage of the tide if there is much rise and fall. Moving the paper around on the chart a position will soon be found where the plotted soundings agree with the charted ones.

Fog signals are supposed to be started as soon as signs of fog are observed at the station, but sometimes it creeps up unobserved while the signal is silent though fog covers quite an area of water. Then, too, sound in fog is subject to curious aberrations. A signal may be heard at a distance and lost as it is neared. It may be heard from aloft and inaudible from the deck. Sometimes it is heard better to windward than to leeward.

There is, therefore, no certainty that because a fog bell or siren is not heard it must be distant. Vessels have gone ashore in fog or snow storm almost at the base of a lighthouse and their crews have not heard the horn until the boat was hard aground.

"Do you still call your wife 'honey'?"

"Yes, and I have to keep as busy as a bee to support her."

THE OCEANSIDE HOTEL at Magnolia spells gaiety and happiness for its guests with its continual round of pleasure. The days are all too short for the pleasure each affords, and the evenings full of mirth and music. The Saturday evening hops are unusually brilliant, although the Tuesday and Thursday evening dances attract the guests largely.

A beautiful sun parlor has been newly completed on the top floor of the hotel, with a southeastern exposure. This delightful location affords a wonderful view of the ocean, taking in the harbor and the adjoining outlines of the North Shore, rockbound, picturesque and beautiful, with glimpses of Boston on clear days. The furnishings in this pretty room are of the Nile green and white order. The windows are so arranged that they may be opened to a full extent when the weather is mild, or may be firmly closed, making a complete sun-parlor. A dainty green trellis is used on the walls, over which twine pink blossoms. The furniture is of the wicker variety, enameled in green and white. The rugs used are attractive Chinese water rugs of blending tones. This pretty sun-parlor, which was last year an open balcony, has been converted into a veritable bower and will, no doubt, afford much comfort to the guests at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Bullock, accompanied by their son, Hugh, and daughter, Miss Bullock, of Denver, Colo., are guests at the Oceanside for the month of July. They have taken apartments in the Lawton cottage.

Miss Virginia Koehler of St. Louis has arrived at the Oceanside to join her mother, Mrs. Dobyne, and will remain for the season. They are located in the East Flume cottage.

Very attractive and pretty was Miss Rosamond Lancaster in a lovely lavender taffeta dancing frock, very girlish, at the Saturday evening hop. Miss Lancaster is one of the bevy of pretty girls who make life at the Oceanside just one round of pleasure.

M. P. Bryan of Brookline motored down to the Oceanside for the week-end, joining Mrs. Bryan and the Misses Bryan.

Mrs. Edward F. Wyman and friend, Miss Edna MacMartin of New York, are registered at the Oceanside for the season, and are domiciled in the Wilkins cottage. Mrs. Wyman's daughters will join her in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Green of Washington have taken rooms in the Overlook cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Morgan of Philadelphia are making a few weeks' stay at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McMurray with daughter and maid have returned for the season and have taken rooms in the Centre Cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Miller of Pelham, N. Y., were week-end guests at the Oceanside.

Miss Rosamonde Wyman of New York, the attractive daughter of Mrs. E. Frothingham Wyman, was a recent arrival at the Oceanside, coming to join her mother for the summer. This is the Wymans first visit at Magnolia.

Miss Caroline H. Bovey and maid, accompanied by Mrs. Thomas S. Roberts and maid, all of Minneapolis are at the Oceanside for a short stay. Miss Bovey is a regular guest at the hotel each year. She will make a few days' stay leaving for a visit at Marion, but will return to Magnolia for the month of August.

S. A. Fatmann of Minneapolis with his niece Miss Haas, are at the Oceanside for a few weeks' stay. Miss Haas will journey on to Maine, but Mr. Fatmann will remain.

Stanley L. Smith and H. S. Homer of Sheffield, are short-stay guests at the hotel, coming up by motor.

EXQUISITELY gowned in a lovely creation of black net with a bodice of sparkling jet appeared Mrs. Arthur Doane Cook of Boston at the Saturday night hop at the Oceanside. The attractive young matron and her attentive young husband dance exceedingly well together, particularly so in the fox-trot.

The music at the hop on Saturday night was the best yet, which is going some. The orchestra was stationed outside of the ballroom to afford more room for the dancing. Much praise is due the leader for the perfect rhythm and well-balanced program.

Very stunning indeed was Mrs. Charles Potter of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, in a beautiful gown of shimmering white, at the Saturday evening hop.

Quite quaint and alluring was Miss Ethel Morse of Boston Saturday evening in a fetching dancing frock of pink flowered white taffeta.

Mrs. Mary E. Hobart of Philadelphia has returned to the Oceanside for the season and has taken her apartment in the Overlook cottage.

RECENT arrivals at the Oceanside, Magnolia, are Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Carscallen and son, John D. Carscallen of New York, who will be guests for the season. They have taken apartments in the Perkins Cottage. They were accompanied by Mrs. Carscallen's brother, James H. Mairs, who will remain for a short stay. The Carscallen were at Magnolia last season, where John D. was very popular with the younger set.

Newcomers to the Oceanside are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Curtin and daughter, little Miss Virginia, with governess from Brookline. The Curtins will remain throughout July.

H. H. Rousseau has come up from New York to join Mrs. Rousseau for a short stay. Mrs. Rousseau will be a season guest.

John Woodfin of St. Louis and William Coles of St. Louis were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, who are summing at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Gifford of Montreal with their child and maid are making their first visit to Magnolia and are occupying apartments in the Wilkins cottage. They will be here for the season.

A motor party composed of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ohern, Mrs. A. F. Sanfor and Miss Sanfor, all of Knoxville, Tenn., are at the Oceanside for a short visit en route to New Brunswick via the Maine coast.

Another motor party from Fall River over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Swift and Mrs. L. H. Underwood of Youngstown, O.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Poillon of New York and daughter, Miss Aline Yvonne, and governess, are making their first visit at the Oceanside en route for their summer home at Lake Sunapee, N. H.

Mrs. Robert Cable and daughter, Miss Grace of New York, who are season guests at the Oceanside, entertained a party of friends at dinner Sunday at the hotel. Covers were laid for eight at a beautifully appointed table. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dupee of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Marston Harding of Lexington, H. Fitzhugh and Master Richard Fitzhugh of Newport.

Mrs. C. M. Janes of New York and daughter, Miss Janes are at the Oceanside for the month of July. This is their first visit.

Mrs. F. L. Potts and maid of Philadelphia and Mrs. J. R. Wood of Atlantic City have taken apartments at the Oceanside for the remainder of July. Mrs. Potts was a first year visitor last season.

Mrs. T. G. Avery of Buffalo and companion, Mrs. L. A. Thompson have taken rooms in the Highland Cottage for the month of July.

Little Miss Suzanne Anderson of Detroit has arrived at the Oceanside, joining her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Anderson, who are here for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bell Dobyne of St. Louis are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, who are occupying apartments in East Flume Cottage.

Notable among the recent arrivals is Chas. S. Miller of Norwalk, Ct., who will remain during July.

THE NORTH SHORE SWIMMING POOL at Magnolia is the rendezvous for hundreds of North Shore people these warm summer days—not only from the hotels, but from the towns all along the Shore. Many were at the pool Tuesday, the sunshine and the temperature of 64 degrees in the tank being the attraction.

In the group of swimmers many children were seen, doing fancy stunts in the water, some just learning to swim under the instruction of Mr. Allen. During the bathing hour from 11:30 to 12:30 the Oceanside orchestra gave a concert, which was enjoyed by all.

The bizarre bathing suits which have been shown all season in the South were very much absent at the Pool. All of the suits, while very chic, were most conservative, and pretty, too.

The Middleton girls, Helen and Jean, who are spending the season at the Oceanside, are splendid swimmers and do all sorts of stunts in the water. They were unusually smart in black taffeta suits with knickers and black and white caps.

The tennis courts at the Pool are busy every day from early morning until evening. Very soon a tournament will be inaugurated, which will attract scores of people to the courts.

Many visitors have been entertained at the Pool this week, including Miss Frances Carter, St. Louis, introduced by Miss Helen Lane; Mrs. S. C. Payson, Brookline, by Mrs. E. B. Richardson; Arthur Meyers of New York, by Mrs. A. M. Richard; Miss E. Dieter and R. R. Dieter of Baltimore, by Miss Elvine Richard; Mrs. C. S. Barrell, Boston, by Miss Caroline S. Winslow; Mrs. Samuel McClellan, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. John B. Drake, Chicago, Misses Elizabeth and Katherine Drake, by Mrs. Henry W. Farnum; Paul Caskey, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Caskey, Toronto, by Mrs. Myron C. Wick; Miss Eleanor Arnold, Cambridge, Mrs. E. M. Binney; Miss Jane Booth, Youngstown, Ohio, by Mrs. A. D. Cook; J. S. Carter, St. Louis, by N. T. Lane, Jr.; Miss Mayo Smith, New York, by Dorothy M. Nicol; Benjamin F. Smith, Maine, by Mrs. Newcomb Carlton; David Loring, Boston, by M. R. Bryan; Mrs. Charles Read, Manchester, by Mrs. John Tyler; Reginald Ward, Boston, by Helen L. Coates; Charles F. Tappan, Cambridge, by Miss Lane; William Campbell, New York, by Frederick Ellsworth; John D. Carscallen, New York, and Karl Whitmarsh, Cambridge, by Miss Doris Bryan; Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Eustis, Cambridge, by E. W. Longfellow; K. W. Newhoff, New York, by Charles D. Sabin; Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Eaton, Brookline, by John Tyler; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Walton, Bartlett Walton, Miss Katherine G. Walton, Wakefield, by Jennie Beebe; Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Houghton, Boston, by E. G. Houghton.

Saturday afternoon the dansant will take place at the clubhouse for the members and friends.

THE Oceanside at Magnolia is fast filling to capacity. A large number of people are expected on the 15th. The influx will comprise many who are regular summer guests and who have made reservations for the season.

Among the arrivals on Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Max Holtz of New York, with maid and chauffeur. The party motored to the Oceanside and will remain a few weeks. Mr. Holtz is a prominent man of affairs in New York and is president of the Automobile Blue Book Company. This is their first visit.

Mrs. Lewis J. Belloui and daughter, and Mrs. K. H. McLoughlin, all of New York, are at the Oceanside for the month of July.

H. W. Spaulding of Haverhill is the guest of his aunt Miss E. M. Harris at the Oceanside.

Notable among the recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. S. Prentiss Baldwin of Cleveland, who have taken apartments in the Overlook cottage. They will remain for the season.

Doane Cook of Boston is a week-end guest of his uncle, A. D. Cook, who with his family, is spending the season at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Holland, with children and nurses, of Detroit, are at the Oceanside for the month of July.

Recent arrivals at the hotel are Mrs. S. Goodwin, Mrs. I. Foye and daughter of New York, who will spend the season here.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Parkhurst of Wilkes Barre, Pa., Miss Susan W. Carson, Charles H. Carson and L. W. Parkhurst of Philadelphia composed a motor party which spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Mrs. John S. Ibbotson and son, James Burnett of Boston, are registered at the Oceanside for the season.

Mrs. George C. Perkins and daughter, Miss Perkins, and maids of Hartford are recently arrived guests who have taken apartments in the East Cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Haustetter of New York, accompanied by Miss D. Craigin of Brooklyn, are spending a short time at the Oceanside, having motored to the North Shore en route to their summer home in Maine.

but can have the same done at Pierre's branch in the Oceanside Hotel, where an expert with many years' experience is in attendance. Pierre's method is the most gentle and lasting, and there is absolutely no danger of any injury to the hair. It affords the greatest comfort to ladies with straight hair, especially in summer and on the seashore.

We will curl a small piece of hair free of charge, for a test.

WARNING --IMPOSTORS

VARIOUS residents of the North Shore have telephoned and written to the publishers of "Who's Who Along the North Shore," regarding solicitors who are at work seeking orders for a false "Who's Who."

The real "WHO'S WHO ALONG THE NORTH SHORE" is published by the Salem Press Co. at 300 Essex St., Salem, and their annual book is ready for delivery today. It has become recognized as the standard year book and social register of the North Shore, and has a reputations for accuracy and completeness, which is unexcelled.

Persons who have given any order during the past two weeks for a "Who's Who" directory should make sure that they are not mislead into buying the wrong book.

Copies may be had at the Breeze office. Price $3.50

MMAGNOLIA has been visited by real nobility all the way from Russia, in the persons of Prince and Princess Troubetsky, who have been spending a few days at the North Shore Grill. The Prince and Princess were assortment of flowers, but for its Japanese iris, its lilies which attracted a great amount of attention because of their beauty.

Mrs. J. Wingate Thornton of "The New House" on Magnolia avenue, who has been ill for the past few weeks, is now very much improved and is able to sit out upon the verandas and enjoy the sunshine.

Old guests of the Oceanside who have returned for the season and who have a host of friends in the summer colony are Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith of Bay State road, Boston. They have taken rooms in the Annex.

Miss Mary E. Kimball of Boston, who has been a guest at the Oceanside for years, is a recent arrival to stay during the remainder of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Roberts of Boston are at the Oceanside for a stay through July.

Whenever one thinks of Magnolia the thought of the lovely North Shore Grill follows. To the lover of the beautiful and picturesque the North Shore Grill is the quintessence of these adjectives. It is of a rustic and colonial combination of design, a two-story structure at the entrance of the ultra-section of Magnolia, the corner of Norman and Lexington avenues. One enters the Grill through a lovely vine-covered pergola into a reception room cool and inviting with beamed ceilings. To the right is the dining room, all ecru and white with quaint French windows looking out upon the vine-covered verandas and tea garden. 'Tis here in the dining room where such good things are served. The new management under the directorship of Emile Coulon of the Hotel Westminster at Boston, with Mr. J. P. Delmonte as resident manager and host has secured high salaried experts in the culinary art to minister to the wants of the discriminating patrons. For music there is a splendid stringed orchestra with all the tunefulness of banjo, piano and violins. The Grill is open until midnight each day and dancing is enjoyed at the patrons' will.

Robert Jordan, who is spending the summer at Beverly Farms, entertained a party of six friends at the North Shore Grill at the Wednesday night Club Dansant.

Notable among the throng of people at the North Shore Grill Wednesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stearns of Boston. Mrs. Stearns wore an exquisite white shimmering gown with white hat with touches of American beauty tones and shoes to match.

AMONG THE RECENT ARRIVALS at the Aborn Hotel and cottages, Magnolia, are Mrs. F. K. M. Rehn, New York; Myron Holmes, New York; Miss Hunting, New York; Mrs. M. E. Mulligan and maid, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Fuller, A. D. Fuller, Jr., C. A. Atwell, all of Wakefield; Francis Kenchall, Belmont; J. M. McSween, Richmond, Va.

The addition which Ovington Brothers Company have made to their shop at Magnolia is very attractive. The space which the store had heretofore occupied was inadequate to display their beautiful and rich lines of plate and table glass. The added space is filled with a complete line of decorative plates of exquisite English and French china and a fine array of table glasses in all the richness of artistic design. Here too are shown a more complete and better line of lamps and lamp shades for the most fastidious and discriminating.

She—Let us sit nearer the music.

He—But then you can't hear what I'm saying to you.

She (rising)—I know. Come along.

THE committee in charge of the meeting in Beverly, Tuesday, of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness, were happily surprised in getting Mrs. Montgomery Sears and Mrs. William Lowell Putnam to speak at the meeting. Mrs. Barrett Wendell outlined the aims of the society, but the committee did not know until Monday that Mrs. Sears and Mrs. Putnam could be secured. These are busy women and the audience enjoyed hearing of their special lines of work. Mrs. Sears is working along the lines of domestic economics and Mrs. Putnam is doing township and church investigation in an effort to care for the families of soldiers gone to the border.

Dr. and Mrs. Horace Gray (Katherine Meeker) of Boston are staying with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who are spending the summer in the Dalton cottage at Beverly Farms. This Wednesday Mrs. Meeker chaperoned a company of little folk, who were guests of her young daughter, Miss Mary, on a sail to Marblehead on the Meeker yacht, "Arcady." Among the little guests were Master Tommy Laughlin and some of the John Barry Ryan children. This was one of the happiest little picnic parties seen departing from the Beach this week.

Another step in our solicitation of trade among the North Shore summer residents is made in the inauguration of our improved delivery and order system.

We are using our own autos instead of relying upon local North Shore expresses, over whom we necessarily have only limited control, as they, of course, serve a multitude of houses besides ourselves.

One of these autos is situated at the North Shore the entire summer. Goods ordered are shipped there twice daily by American Express on fast trains. The auto meets the train at the station. At one end of our delivery route or the other the goods are loaded and delivered to all parts of Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, West Manchester, Manchester and Magnolia.

The Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by our autos direct from the store.

Orders for merchandise may also be entrusted to the drivers of our autos, who see that the same has prompt attention, or may be telephoned into the store—calling Oxford 3200 and asking for "Order Department."

IPSWICH is anticipating some rare Sundays in August when the Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's Church in Washington will have charge of the Church of the Ascension. It was erroneously stated two weeks ago that the church would be closed. Dr. and Mrs. Samuel McComb of Baltimore are now in the Rectory, and Dr. McComb is officiating in the church during July. Last Sunday he was called away by illness in his family and the Rev. Dr. Thayer, Master of St. Mark's school, took his place in the pulpit. The Thayers have recently arrived in their summer home. Dr. Smith is planning to have several noted ministers as guests in the Ipswich church in August, and announcement will be made later of the Sundays in which they will occupy the pulpit.

Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno of Rowley offered a silver cup for the best company of boy scouts marching last Saturday in the Rowley postponed 4th of July parade. Joseph W. Woods, the young son of the Joseph F. Woods of Boston, joined in the march in company with the Ipswich scouts, who were taken to Rowley by Jerry Campbell, son of Hon. and Mrs. Charles A. Campbell of "Fairview."

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hay (Alice Appleton) of Washington, who occupied the "Cottage" on Appleton Farms last season, will spend the summer at Newbury, Mass. The cottage, which was formerly occupied by the Gerald Hoyts, is closed this summer.

The Misses Atwood, daughters of the Right Rev. Julius W. Atwood, Episcopal bishop of Arizona, have been house-guests of Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno in Rowley. Last year they spent much time in Ipswich.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of Boston, who are at Y^e Rogers Manse in Ipswich, will have their daughter, Mrs. Norman R. Sturgis of Medfield, and her children, as their guests for a few weeks at the Manse.

Y^e Rogers Manse is becoming a very popular place for dances and the pretty little casino is in almost nightly use. The attractive screened veranda is now completed.

At Y^e Burnham House in Ipswich some of the many luncheons given by Oceanside guests have been the most attractive of the week. Miss Ethel Morse has introduced Miss Sichirich of So. America, a new-comer at the hotel, to the delights of the old house. They were accompanied by Abner Merrill and Philip Bryan. Many from Rye Beach have been down, including Mrs. Geo. M. Studebaker and her house-guests, Mr. and Mrs. George F. O'Brien of So. Bend, Ind., and Miss Josephine Flood, who entertained a large party of young folk.

Nathaniel S. Simpkins has joined Mrs. Simpkins at Y^e Rogers Manse. Before leaving Washington their three sons, N. S. Simpkins, Jr., John and Willard Sears Simpkins left with the 1st Regt., Mass. Field Artillery, and are now at El Paso, Texas.

HAMILTON is a representative summer colony of handsome homes and estates of vast proportions. Its remodeled houses are very noticeable just now, and it is interesting to watch the garden improvements that are being made about some of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., have spent most of the winter in Hamilton, first in the remodeled house of Miss Nathalie Matthews, and in the Safford house across from the Hamilton church, where they are now living until they move into a remodeled house on "Brookfield" the John B. Moulton place, where they will be close to the home of the Geo. von L. Meyers. Mrs. Moulton has planned all the changes in this old house, the same as she has made in the two artistic homes now occupied by the Gerard Bements and the Alvin F. Sortwells in Hamilton, opposite the Myopia club on the Geo. C. Vaughan property on Main st.

Dr. and Mrs. John J. Thomas (Frances Pickering Walker) are occupying "Ashleigh cottage," as usual. Dr. Thomas has joined the City Hospital unit and may be called to Mexico. He did service in France last year in the Harvard unit. His sister, Miss Carrie Thomas, of Columbia, O., will come later in the month for the remainder of the season. An interesting item is the fact that Mrs. Thomas' great-great-grandfather, Col. Pickering of Salem, suggested the naming of Hamilton for his friend, Alexander Hamilton. It was formerly a part of Ipswich and known as Ipswich-Hamlet.

The "Gail Hamilton" cottage, the former home of Mary Abigail Dodge of literary fame, is still standing in Hamilton, near the home of Mrs. John G. Walker on Main st. Many of the Dodges in Hamilton are relatives of Abigail Dodge, who wrote so many forceful and brilliant articles on woman's work. She was a cousin of Mrs. James S. Blaine and spent much of her time in Washington and her summers in Hamilton towards the close of her life. The cottage is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Fitzgerald of Boston. Mr. Fitzgerald is now on a trip to California and Mrs. Fitzgerald has returned from the west where she attended suffrage meetings in various states.

their marriage in January, are making a short stay with Mr. Cole's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cole of "Brookby Farm," Wenham. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr., (Eleanor Cole) of Manchester have also spent the past two weeks at the Cole home.

"To increase their income" has always been the keynote of the exchange carried on in connection with the Wenham tea house. Mrs. E. B. Cole has always had special charge of this department. The work is of a high grade and is made by women in the village and country who would otherwise be idle part of the time and who enjoy earning a little more by bringing their excellent handiwork to the tea house, where they have a ready market for it. The beginning was small, but through Mrs. Cole's steady work and encouragement, the exchange has taken on a very "store like" appearance in one end of the new tea house. The pretty things and the beautiful flowers from Miss Helen Burnham's garden at "Overlook" made the place a delightful place for tea parties the past week. Next week the Aquidneck Cottage Industries of Newjort, R. I., will exhibit at the tea house. This is work similar to the exchange method in Wenham, only it has grown on a larger scale in the past ten years. The tea house is simply offering its rooms as a courtesy.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince of "Princemere," Wenham, will soon sail for a visit to France, where their sons, Norman and Frederick H. Prince, Jr., are serving in the French aviation corps.

The chain of tea rooms beginning in Manchester with the long established Sign of the Crane on Summer street; the new Homestead Tea Rooms on Sea street in Manchester; the Tunipoo Inn tea room at Beverly Farms; the new Bluebird Tea Room on Hale street at Pride's Crossing; and ending with the Puritan Tea Room at Montserrat, are typical North Shore tea rooms, each specializing in its own way.

"SYDITH TERRACE" is having its lily season. For six weeks the pure white candidum lily will reign supreme in these lovely gardens in Beverly Farms near West Beach, where Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia make their home. The gardens are noted for their lilies and for the general architectural plan. High palings screen it from the roadway, although delightful vistas may be seen between the palings and at the gateways. On entering, the long and orderly beds of flowers, massed for color effects and surrounded by low borders of English box, form a beautiful and almost bewildering picture. One may as well go up the long grassy walk to the white seat under the big willow tree and after viewing the garden as a whole, then walk among the beds, where the roses, fourteen varieties, ranging from the rich tea rose to the baby ramblers, fill bed after bed and run riot over some archways near the willow tree. The lilies are in four long beds and their whiteness forms a striking contrast for the bright red and pink roses. Next to the garden and directly opposite the West Beach bathing pavilion is low swampy land flooded by both salt and fresh water. The Hutchinsons have a force of men at work who are rapidly converting this into a natural garden. There are no trees on the spot, but trees are to be planted, wild flowers brought to it and with rocks and grass this will be made into a natural looking garden this summer and fall. The large vegetable garden of the Hutchinsons shows many attractive vegetable beds bordered with flowers used especially for cutting, and also some old-fashioned flowers are seen here. A visit to the greenhouse shows luscious melons, tomatoes and long cucumbers. But "Sydith Terrace" must be remembered not for its vegetables and assortments of flowers, but for its Japanese iris, its lilies and roses, of which there are none more beautiful any place on the North Shore.

A shipment of beautiful new Mexican handicraft has been received by Mrs. Lula Hamer at the Mexican room at the Boston Tea Party on Lexington avenue. This collection contains Mexican rugs, hangings, curios and feather-work.

*Homestead on the John P. Palmer Estate
Phillips Beach Station
Swampscott*

Twenty acres of this beautiful estate have been recently sold for high-grade residential development and will be offered at private sale during the present summer in restricted house lots.

A number of the women residents of Phillips Beach, Beach Bluff and Clifton, as well as as far as Lynn, are taking an active interest in the Surgical Dressings Branch, which holds a session in the Neighborhood club every Friday morning, and are working with a great amount of zest, as well as devoting funds to the cause. The ladies are Mrs. William A. Paine, Mrs. E. H. Clapp, Mrs. Theodore P. Gooding, Mrs. C. A. West, Miss Alice Hammond, the Misses Guild, Mrs. W. W. Buckminster, Mrs. A. L. Robinson, Mrs. George A. Craig, Mrs. Alex.

McGregor, Mrs. McArthur of Lynn, Miss Chase of Lynn, Miss Tapley, Mrs. Clement Sargent.

'Twas Miss Edith Ford, a prominent young lady of Swampscott, who made such a success of the grab-bag booth at the Episcopal fair at Swampscott on Wednesday. The stand was arranged very uniquely for this bazaar and attracted both young and old, resulting in a neat sum being realized for the church.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Fuller of Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y.; are registered at the Preston for a lengthy stay.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, SWAMPSCOTT.—The first formal ball held last Saturday evening in the main ball room of the New Ocean House was the biggest social event of the week along the North Shore. Several hundred guests of the hotel and their friends from points all along the shore were present to assist in the very successful party. The music as usual was under the direction of Frederick L. Mahn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who rendered a program pleasing and attractive to the dancers. Dancing started at 9 o'clock and continued until 11:45. At that hour a buffet supper was served in the Tea and Tango rooms to the guests and their friends. With the hotel filled practically to capacity, this first ball of the season indicates an exceptionally successful social season.

The Children's Party held Wednesday afternoon in the main ball room was also among the foremost social events of the past week. More than half a hundred of the little ones and their young friends from the cottage colony along the North Shore were present and engaged enthusiastically in the program of the afternoon. Mrs. Edward R. Grabow acted as hostess, but was assisted in entertaining the little ones by several members of the younger set at the hotel. After the children had played their games, danced their dances and toyed with their pretty favors, dinner was served for them in the Tea room.

The main hotel has almost reached its booking capacity far in advance of records of previous years. Under such conditions all possible means are being employed to have the new $150,000 annex ready for occupancy as soon as possible. Although it was first believed that this beautiful new structure would not be completed until the first of August, work has been carried on rapidly in the interior by increasing the working force and it is now practically certain that some of the rooms will be occupied by the 20th of this month. Reservations in the new addition are piling in with the same regularity and consistency that accompanied the opening of the main hotel a fortnight ago. The month of August under such conditions is expected to draw a large number of persons to Swampscott and North Shore activities. The new hotel is thoroughly up-to-date in every detail, elaborately furnished and equipped with all the essentials for comfort and service.

One of the most distinguished guests of the week at the New Ocean House at Swampscott was Dr. Paulo de Moraes Barros, former Secretary of Agriculture for the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil. The Brazilian Minister with his family was entertained by the management of the New Ocean House during the latter part of the week. Dr. Moraes Barros is a nephew of the former President of Brazil, Dr. Prudente de Moraes Barros, and the son of Dr. Manoel de Moraes Barros of Brazil's SWAMPSCOTT is very proud of its beautiful homes and gardens. And why shouldn't it be! To take a jaunt through this veritable summer bower would assure one of the rights of the residents to feel that there is a distinction and loveliness about them.

Perhaps no estate in all Swampscott is more ideally situated than the magnificent place of the Percival B. Palmers of Chicago, which overlooks the whole of its surroundings at Phillips Beach. Set high on a hill is the fine white residence with all the allurements of the Colonial mansion, yet with every touch necessary to make it one of the best-appointed houses on the North Shore. The estate includes many, many acres of fine woodlands and bounds Humphrey and Salem streets, losing itself in the woods away to the southwest. The entrances to the estate are very rustic, nature being left undisturbed, but wonderfully cared for. The distinguishing beauty of this fine estate is the magnificent trees which adorn the grounds in great majesty. Numbers of evergreen trees abound as well. This fine summer residence is presided over by very delightful people, Mr. and Mrs. Percival B. Palmer, who are a charming acquisition to the summer colony, and whose hospitality is always a pleasure to their host of friends.

Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter of Galloupe's Point, Swampscott, is one of the subscribers to the McAllister series of musicales, the first of which will be given at the home of Miss Margaret L. Corlies on Fuller street, Magnolia, this Friday afternoon. In this list are many of North Shore's most prominent women, both in social life and philanthropy.

A series of Current Event Talks by Mrs. May Alden Ward of Boston are being given at the homes of prominent Swampscott and Phillips Beach residents and are largely attended. Mrs. George C. Brooks of 259 Puritan Road was hostess at the talk given on July 11th at Clapp of Galloupe's Point will be hostess on August 1st and 8th; Mrs. Charles N. Brush at Little's Point on August 15th and 22nd; Mrs. W. F. Watters at Galloupe's Point on August 29th and Sept. 5th.

On Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock the ladies of Swampscott met at the home of Mrs. Samuel J.

Mixer at Galloupe's Point to continue the work of the surgical dressings, which is being done at Swampscott. The ladies meet every Wednesday morning, last year devoting their efforts to Dr. Laparge of Belgium. This year the dressings are being given to the Allies, a percentage being reserved for this country's cause, if necessary.

PHILLIPS BEACH.—The band concert at the Tedesco club on Wednesday evening was the best yet. The wonderfully pleasant weather made the evening ideal for the out-of-door spirit, the stationing of the band on the wide veranda perfect for the enjoying of the music, both for those who sat about and those who danced. The rooms were thrown open, en suite, and a great many of the members entertained at dinner, about 250 partaking of the repast. The dining-rooms were beautifully decorated with cut flowers from the conservatories of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston. Among the many who entertained at dinner were C. H. Conway, party of twelve; J. M. Fairbanks, ten; E. W. Ong, six; F. C. Hall, eleven; T. R. Heath, four; Nathaniel Heath, eight; M. M. Johnson, twelve; J. P. Parker, seven; E. E. Nelson, eight; G. E. Smith, six; C. L. Parker, eight; W. H. Root, eight; A. J. Sweet, four; C. M. Boyd, three; A. S. Glover, four; N. S. Dillingham, five; Ellis Hollingsworth, six; M. P. Clough, six; R. E. Traiser, six; D. Dunne, three; W. B. Phinney, four; A. C. Law, seven; T. H. Logan, five; P. B. Magrane, eight; Ira Vaughn, six; Alex McGregor, six; E. F. Greene, four.

Trap shooting at the Tedesco club is gaining in favor each day and has proven to be a success, taking the attention of many of the members of the club. Eugene W. Ong of Beach Bluff has been the means of bringing this popular sport to the club, and is making a study of other gun clubs to get new ideas and improvements upon the one already established.

E. B. Terhune of Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, whose family are spending the summer at their camp, "Kingfisher," at Norway, Maine, whither they went earlier in the season, has returned from a business trip to New York and Philadelphia, making a visit to Norway before returning to Swampscott.

Much favorable comment has been heard on every side for the true hospitality which abounded at the Neighborhood club on the holiday. The Municipal Band, stationed on the veranda of the clubhouse, gave a fine concert for the benefit of the townsfolk, and in lieu of this fact the house committee in charge of the club ordered its doors thrown open and punch served to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Price of Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, have just returned from a ten days' visit to Woodstock, Vt.

CLIFTON folk are enjoying the summer to a high degree, which is manifested by the number of people that are occupying their pretty cottages for the season. Never before have so many come down for the whole summer and a great number have planned to remain well into the fall. The perfect days of September have brought this about, no doubt, people just beginning to realize the beauties of early autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Buckminster, who have been making a short visit to New York, have just lately returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Parker Gooding of Atlantic avenue, Clifton, are entertaining Theodore C. Richmond of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Gooding are anticipating the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Williams, who were married at Cincinnati, Ohio, on June 13th at a brilliant church wedding. Mrs. Williams was before her marriage Miss Anne Christine Sykes. Mr. Williams is a nephew of Mr. Gooding and is a professor of mathematics at Oxford College, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Kaiser of Rockaway avenue have returned home after a motor trip through Maine and the Provinces.

BEACH BLUFF these days is pretty and restful to the visitor. Most striking at the Bluff is the great number of lovely children that one sees there. Nearly every house is graced by the presence of some sweet child, and they all seem to enjoy the lawns of the big estates as they frolic about, and play on the crescent beach so very near.

The fine estate of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paine on Beach Bluff avenue is merry these days with a bevy of pretty girls who have come to visit Miss Esther Paine, the second eldest daughter. Miss Esther was graduated from Smith with the class of 1915 and returned from a class reunion at Northampton just recently with several of her classmates, the reunion terminating in a house-party at Bailey's Island. The guests included Miss Dorothy Dullas, New York, president of the class; Frances Michael, Buffalo; Natalie Carpenter, Watertown, N. Y.; these three young ladies remaining just for a day. Miss Janet Van Sickle of Auburn, N. Y., and Miss Marion Park of Englewood, N. J., are still house guests and will remain indefinitely. Another house guest at the Paine home is Miss Margaret Paine, niece of Mr. Paine, whose home is at Cleres, France. Miss Paine will remain a month. Alec Mossman of Brookline is also a house guest at the Paine home and is visiting his friend, Stephen Paine.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kelsey of Sea View avenue, Beach Bluff, have just returned to their summer home after a short visit to New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kelsey have rented their fine house on Sea View avenue, Beach Bluff, for the summer and are making their home at the Bellevue on Humphrey street.

Mrs. Lamont G. Burnham of the Somerset, Boston, who is spending a few weeks at the Hotel Preston, gave an elaborate dinner at the Tedesco club on Tuesday evening. The table, the most beautiful of the season, was artistically arranged with sweet peas in a huge mound for centrepiece, with corsages made of old-fashioned flowers at the places of the ladies, and white carnations for the gentlemen. Covers were laid for sixteen. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Little, Judge Bough, Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Baker, Charles Dietrich, Mrs. Frank Anderson, Nashua, and Mr. A. Shuman.

HOTEL PRESTON, Beach Bluff.—Among the recent arrivals at the Preston for a few weeks' stay is Mrs. Lamont G. Burnham, who makes her winter home at the Somerset, Boston. Mrs. Burnham for many years had a summer residence on Atlantic avenue, Beach Bluff, but finding it a great care, disposed of it.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Henley of Brookline are season guests at the Preston.

Mrs. Richard C. Smith of Buffalo is a recent arrival and will remain for the summer.

Mrs. Kerwick M. Speers and her pretty daughter, Miss Miriam Speers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are at the Preston for a lengthy stay.

Mr. W. P. Riggs and T. G. Riggs of Baltimore, who have been guests at the Preston for several seasons, are registered for a short sojourn.

Mrs. John R. Murphy with daughters Janet, Louise and Elinor of Boston are at the Preston for a lengthy stay.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Seaver, Mrs. Spencer P. Kennard and Henry Skilton, all of Brookline, composed a motor party which spent the week-end at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. O'Connell of Brookline are guests at the Preston for the season.

Miss Kate Doggett of Baltimore, a season guest at the Preston, is entertaining Miss Virginia Ficklin of Fredericksburg for a stay.

MARBLEHEAD is the scene of much patriotic work, which is being done by the women with all the spirit of the cause. Every Friday morning from 9:30 until 1 in the Marblehead Academy building, these splendid women come to spend the hours of the allotted time to the making of surgical dressings, a percentage of which will be sent to the Allies, and a portion set aside for the use of our men of the U. S. A. if necessary. The work was originally begun by the Civics Department of the Woman's Club of Marblehead under the supervision of Mrs. Everett Paine, Miss Edith G. Fabens, Mrs. Herbert J. Hall and Mrs. John R. Purdon, who labored unceasingly for his worthy cause. These ladies were untiring in their efforts and a great amount of praise and appreciation should be theirs. The summer work has been taken up by a large number of the summer residents, aided by Mrs. Paine, Miss Fabens, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Purdon, with Mrs. W. R. Castle as chairman, whose wonderful personality, which is felt the moment one comes into her presence, has made the work a brilliant success. The branch at Marblehead is one of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital divisions, which have been established throughout the whole of the North Shore. A trained worker is sent out from the hospital surgical dressings department to supervise the making of these dressings in all of these branches, but the ladies of the Marblehead branch have become so proficient that this is not necessary, and they go ahead with the work with great skill and thoroughness. Any Marblehead women who would like to assist in this splendid work are urged to come and help, and contributions for the purchasing of materials are earnestly solicited.

Mrs. John Appleton Burnham of Nashua street, Marblehead, has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Johnson of New York as her house guests at her beautiful fully appointed home. Mrs. James C. Johnston of New York, the wife of Dr. James C. Johnston, will also be her house guest until she takes up her summer residence in the Paine cottage at Marblehead Neck.

The beautiful home of Dr. and Mrs. Harris P. Mosher, "The Moorings," on Front street, Marblehead, was the scene of much enjoyment Wednesday evening, when these splendid and hospitable people entertained the members of the vested choir of St. Michael's church at Marblehead. About forty were Dr. and Mrs. Mosher's guests at dinner, which was followed by music by the members of the choir.

The Rock-Mere enjoyed a large number of guests over the holiday, many coming down to enjoy from the spacious verandas the fine view of the races. The inclement weather did not dampen the ardor of the guests and many remained until well into the late week. Among the recent arrivals were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Burroughs, Philadelphia; Mrs. David Kelley, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fuller, Passaic, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. H. F. A. Tanke, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Nash, Cambridge; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. LEDGEWOOD, the home of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody at Montserrat, is now abloom with its belated crop of roses—pink and red ramblers, white roses, tea roses, wild roses—almost any kind. "Ledgewood" was seen the other morning about seven o'clock, when the dew was heavy over the garden and there was not a stir of life in the whole place, except from the birds. The place stands on a high, rocky ledge on Montserrat Highlands and is best approached from the little pine-needle walk leading up from the station. Another little path and stone steps also lead up from the opposite side. The big, dark house, with its vine-shaded veranda, from which wonderful views of the water may be seen over the tree tops, faces the climber up these paths. Pine trees and rocks are everywhere, the house seeming to nestle snug and safe, however, in its high and rocky nook. Passing under some of the rose arches brings one to the front of the house, where there is a little Italian garden, full of rocks and flowers, chief among which are the forget-me-nots growing in wild profusion. The rose garden is centered with a sun dial bearing the inscription, "Count the Bright Hours Only," which is the keynote of "Ledgewood."

Miss M. Corinne Dana entertained a party at dinner at the C. Y. C. Monday evening. Included among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Pettengill of Hotel Beaconsfield, Brookline, Mrs. Cyrus Hapgood of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Miss Isabelle Reed and D. B. Hallett, Boston.

"Questenmere," the beautiful summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten at Marblehead Neck, was the scene of the rendition of Parsifal, Wednesday afternoon by Frances Nevin, assisted by John Hermann Loud, pianist. The interpretation was very vivid and beautiful and was enjoyed by a large number of people who gathered in the spacious drawing rooms of "Questenmere." Mrs. McQuesten was very charming in an exquisite afternoon gown of white crepe de chene and silk net. A percentage of the sum realized will be devoted to the Massachusetts Red Cross. The patronesses and subscribers were Mrs. Charles H. Adams, Mrs. W. C. Baylies, Mrs. W. B. Buckminster, Mrs. W. C. Chick, Mrs. W. H. Clafin, Mrs. W. H. Dane, Mrs. N. S. Dillingham, Mrs. G. W. MARBLEHEAD NECK.—Everything is running on just as serenely as ever at the Corinthian yacht club, much to the pleasure of its members. The opening band concert of the season, which was Monday evening, July 10th, was quite the most brilliant ever held at the C. Y. C. and the crowning glory of entering upon the mid-summer season. The clubhouse was ablaze with hospitality and "open house" was in sway. Many of the members entertained at dinner before the concert in a beautifully decorated dining room, a floral color blending of pink and white and lavender and white sweet peas and snap dragons, with rosebuds and greenery. The only other touch of color was that found at the table of C. A. Brown, who was host to a party of fifteen. This was decorated with primrose tones of yellow in snap-dragons and nasturtiums with individual flower baskets filled with candies.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shuman of "Moll-hurst," Marblehead Neck, had as their house guests over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Halliday of Thorn-dike street, Brookline.

Among those who entertained were B. R. Miller, party of four; Dr. Percy, six; E. E. Richards, five; C. C. Whitten, four; W. C. Bowditch, four; L. F. Woodruff, six; J. B. Palmer, six; A. H. Warner, four; J. E. Ditson, five; H. Grafton, Jr., two; A. L. Robinson, twelve; C. E. Longley, four; E. P. Barrett, five; F. W. Rice, eight; F. L. Ripley, four; L. F. Percival, four; H. J. CAPE ANN.—The rain of the holiday interfered with the plans of a great many people from cities who had arranged to visit the hotels, although many came during this week to spend July and August. The Cape Ann Day of the Wingaersheek Tribe of Red Men made a good showing, with the parade and other attractions at Stage Fort Park in the afternoon. The evening fireworks display was postponed till the following evening. An attractive feature of the parade was the Red Cross "Flag Shower," in the Red Cross Division. The earnest band of ladies fell in line towards the end of the procession and were preceded by a large red cross, borne aloft by three ladies. Six young ladies, three on each side of an American flag supported the "bank" and all along the route there were generous hand throws of change. The sailors from the battleships contributed generously and saluted and cheered as the money dropped in.

"Lookout Hill," the attractive estate of John Hays Hammond, opened recently for the season. Miss Elizabeth Hammond, sister of Mr. Hammond, was the first to arrive and the family came later.

"Greyledge" tea house on Western avenue has been opened for the season.

"Brookbank" has a number of guests who are enjoying the attractions at Fresh Water Cove.

John Thomas, the noted humorist, with his wife, came early in the season to his cottage at Fresh Water Cove. Mr. Thomas is becoming familiarly known in the press and by the genial folk of the colony as the mayor of Fresh Water Cove. He is very fond of the place and has been coming there for a great many years, arriving early and staying late.

Some men would never rise in the world if their wives didn't blow them up.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—Nearly everywhere you look, on hill, on shore or on wharf, you see an artist or a group of students painting the grandeur of this locality. Several New York artists as well as Boston painters have classes this season. It seems that artists of note from all over the country have made East Gloucester their summer abiding place and point of interest and local scenes will be extensively represented at the exhibitions in the fall and winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Pearson of Lexington, Ky., are occupying Beach End cottage, Niles' Beach, Eastern Point, for the season, which is usually a long one with the Pearsons.

Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Ames of Melrose are located at their attractive summer home, "Sunset Rock," Eastern Point. Mr. Ames is the owner of a chain of butter and egg stores in New England.

Miss Cecelia Beaux, the noted portrait artist, who claims East Gloucester as her home, although she spends the winter months in New York City, is occupying her studio and picturesque cottage on Green Alley, Eastern Point.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Andrew are occupying their son's cottage, "Red Roof," at Eastern Point for the season. Mr. Andrew is a prominent banker of La Porte, Ind. A. Piatt Andrew, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew, is located on the French firing line at Alsace, France. He is Inspector-General of the American Ambulance Corps.

The Fitzpatricks of Washington, D. C., have taken the Mehlman cottage on Rocky Neck, near the Rockaway. The family last year had one of the Taylor bungalows on Mt. Pleasant avenue.

Miss M. K. Porter of Washington has joined the artist colony here and is stopping at the Rockaway.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brand of Worcester are at the Rockaway for the season. Their daughter, Mrs. Sundilus, and the latter's husband, Capt. Sundilus, U. S. N., are located at Fort Munroe, Va. Capt. Sundilus was active in aiding American tourists abroad at the outbreak of the European war.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Perry and family of Worcester are stopping at the Rockaway, Rocky Neck, East Gloucester.

Miss Lotta Crabtree, the noted actress (retired), is spending the season at the Rockaway.

Amalia I. Franco is a Philadelphia artist registered at the Rockaway.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Abbott and two daughters and Mrs. Tallman, mother of Mrs. Abbott, of Worcester, are making a sojourn at the Rockaway.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Llewelyn and family and Mrs. Marion Wolf comprise a party from Hamilton, Jamaica, stopping at "The Rudder," Eastern Point road.

Mrs. Clara L. Harrington of Boston, who has been coming to East Gloucester for so many years, has recently opened her antique studio on Eastern Point road, near Rocky Neck avenue. Her exhibition of antique furniture is interesting to visitors, especially a chippendale set of dining chairs, six side chairs and two arm chairs of a rare colonial pattern. The choice Oriental wares of the Manila Trading Supply Company are located in the lower part of the place of Mrs. Harrington.

A dancing party was held in the Hawthorne Inn casino on Thursday evening for the benefit of the Gloucester Fishermen's Home. There was a large attendance. Miss Melba Procter of the Eastern Point summer colony gave an exhibition of dancing.

The William Sheafes of Boston are occupying their Eastern Point summer cottage. The family has been coming to East Gloucester for many years.

BASS ROCKS.—The Bass Rocks golf links are in splendid condition this season, owing to the many rains, besides the care that has been taken of them and improvements to the greens. The links are more popular than ever and crowds of enthusiasts are playing daily. James H. Eaton of Lawrence won the cup offered last week in the blind handicap stroke competition match.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chauncy Brewer of Bay State road, Boston, are at their summer home, "Tanglemoor," Little Good Harbor road, Bass Rocks, for the season. Mr. Brewer is the well known lawyer of the firm of Brewer, Weed and Weed, Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Webb and daughter, Miss Caroline P. Webb, of Baltimore, Md., are spending the season at Bass Rocks, occupying the Baker cottage on Atlantic road, near Hotel Moorland.

Mrs. Galston Whittemore of Brookline is occupying her cottage on Bass avenue heights, for the season.

P. H. Duprey of Worcester has leased the Taft cottage on Atlantic road for the season.

Arthur D. Foss of Jamaica Plain has opened his cottage on Decatur road, Bass Rocks. Miss Annie H. Foss is located here for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gilbert of New York City have arrived at their spacious and sightly summer residence on Sunset Heights, Bass Rocks.

The Fred H. Eatons and family of Lawrence are occupying their Bass Rocks house on South road, Bass Rocks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wortz Dundas of New York City have arrived at their beautiful Bass Rocks estate for the season. The trees and gardens on the estate are particularly attractive this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Sargent of Cincinnati, O., are as usual spending the season at Bass Rocks, being located at the cottage on Little Good Harbor road.

The Meggs of Brighton are the occupants this season of the old Souther farm house situated near the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse.

Mrs. Winthrop Sargent of Overbrook, Pa., is occupying her summer home on Nautilus road, Bass Rocks.

Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent and little son, Fitzwilliam Sargent, Jr., from Ardmore, Pa., are spending the summer at Bass Rocks and are stopping with Mrs. Sargent's mother, Mrs. H. W. Wellington, at the latter's cottage on Bass avenue, near Nautilus road. There are four generations represented at the cottage, the great grandmother of California, being also the guest of Mrs. Wellington.

Prof. W. G. McGuckin of New York City College is spending his summer at Bass Rocks and is located at the Thorwald.

Dr. and Mrs. A. R. L. Doane of Baltimore, Md., four children, two maids and chauffeur, are stopping at Hotel Thorwald. Mr. Doane is the junior member of the prominent drug firm of Sharp and Doane.

The Thorwald dance last Friday evening was a pleasant occasion. The house at present has nearly a hundred guests and a great many people are expected soon.

W. T. Humble and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Humble of Forth Worth, Texas, are again located at the Thorwald for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Sawyer and family of Wassau, Ky., are spending the summer at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks.

George Worden, the expert civil engineer of Detroit, Mich., accompanied by his wife and son, Master George M. Worden, are registered at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Resor and son, William F. Resor, of Boston, are annual guests at Hotel Thorwald, who have arrived at that hostelry.

Mrs. Waterman Stone and daughter, Miss Katherine P. Stone, of Kansas City, Mo., are stopping at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks.

Dr. and Mrs. Silas B. Ayer of Boston are occupying their cottage on Atlantic road, Bass Rocks.

Newcomer (at resort)—Is this a restful place?

Native—Well, it used ter be until folks began comin' here fer to rest.

ANNISQUAM.—The social calendar of the Annisquam Yacht club is an attractive one and things will be lively during the season. Club assemblies will be held every Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, excepting August 5th and 26th. Club teas are held every Saturday afternoon and Labor Day. Informal dancing will be held every Wednesday evening from 8 till 10 o'clock, beginning Wednesday of this week, until August 30th. On the evenings of July 13th and 27th and August 10th and 24th, there will be held bridge and "500" parties. There will be awarded Club prizes for both games on each evening, the prizes being first and second for both ladies and gentlemen. On Saturday evening, August 5th, a costume dance will be held. On Saturday evening, August 26th, a pop concert has been arranged. On Thursday, July 20th, during the afternoon and early evening, a lobster bake outing will be held at one of the beaches to be selected by the Entertainment committee. The Club will supply lunches and entertainment features. The cowboy pool tournament started on Wednesday. There will be first and second prizes and ladies may enter. Tennis tournaments will be held in July and August. The usual schedule of Saturday and special races began on July 4th. The race committee includes: H. Sherburne Wiggin, chairman; H. B. Duane, Harry Friend, B. A. Smith and J. P. Prince. The House committee includes: H. B. Duane, chairman; B. A. Smith, W. H. Pear, Lyman Gale, Harry H. Wiggin, H. E. Worcester, C. A. Hight, J. N. Damon, W. O. Adams.

The Henry A. Wise-Woods of New York City are at "Vista View" cottage on Adams road, Annisquam, for the season.

The Field and Forest Club of Boston, Frederick M. Brooks, president, numbering 75 people, held an outing at Wanasquam Inn, Annisquam, over the holiday weekend. The members came by boat, train and automobile, nearly all the people arriving by 1 o'clock on Saturday. In spite of the rainy weather, the environment of the place was thoroughly enjoyed. Two dances were held at the Inn, on Saturday and on Monday nights, the house orchestra rendering music.

Guests for the season at the Brynmere, Annisquam, are: Mrs. Rebecca Newbold Wyllie, Mrs. J. A'Estenaville and daughter of Switzerland; Mrs. Rice of New Haven; George Woods and family of Winchester; M. Whittemore and family of Newton; William Ihlder, Mrs. M. S. Sherwood, A. G. Sherwood and Garrison P. Sherwood of New York.

Lewis E. Tift of Springfield is occupying a cottage on Cambridge avenue, Annisquam.

The Ray Carters of St. Louis, Mo., are located at "The Pines," the Lingard house, Annisquam, for the season.

The new lodge which has been erected by the Rice Brothers of Annisquam near their express business, garage and office, is about completed and it will be furnished within several days. On the first floor are a front office, large dining room and kitchen and six bedrooms and bath are situated on the second floor.

Miss Bute—Jack told me I looked good enough to eat.

Miss Ryval—Some people are very easily satisfied about their food.

PIGEON COVE.—The Edward hotel at Pigeon Cove has been doing a lively business since its opening on June 24. There have been many dinner and tea parties and many guests are registered for the season. Mr. Wilson will have a fine season according to his bookings for July and August guests and The Edward is becoming more and more popular for motorists and cottagers from along the North Shore who entertain friends at tea or luncheon.

Judge T. S. Maxey and wife of Austin, Texas, are at the Edward for the season. They have been entertaining for the past ten days, Bishop G. H. Kinsolving of the Episcopal Diocese of Texas.

A Chicago party spending July at The Edward includes Mrs. M. Haddon MacLean, Master MacLean and Kathrina Menenhall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morse of Boston have motored to The Edward for a brief stay.

An attractive affair at The Edward, Pigeon Cove, recently, was a birthday dinner held in honor of Mrs. R. L. Gray of Brooklyn, N. Y. Beautiful garden flowers and roses were used for table decorations and a special menu was served. A pretty birthday cake was made to order for the occasion and this decorated the center of the table. Among those present were Mr. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Tagg, Mrs. A. Gomer, Mrs. Van Wyman and Dr. Charles A. Gomer of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Among guests motoring along the North Shore, stopping at The Edward were: Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Yates of Honeoye Falls, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Radford of Grinnell, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. M. R. ROCKPORT.—Cottagers have been coming to Rockport rather late this season and there are still a number of cottages vacant, either to rent or because the owners will come later in the month or early in August. The cool, backward season is undoubtedly the cause for the people being satisfied for the present with their city apartments. The outlook for a brisk late summer business is encouraging, however, to hotel keepers and managers of small houses for the entertainment of guests.

The George F. Babbitts of Brookline are occupying their spacious and attractive summer home, "Pineledge," situated in the grove of pine trees at Land's End, on the road near Turk's Head Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Dodge of Boston are occupying the Whitman cottage on Eden road, Loblolly, Rockport, for the season.

Rev. John J. Casey of South Boston has arrived at his Land's End cottage.

Arthur W. Hale and family of Winchester are occupying their cottage on South street, Rockport.

Francis E. Smith and family of Winchester are spending the season on Eden road, Rockport. Mr. Smith is secretary of the Rockport Country club.

The Emil Gruenings of New York are occupying their country house at Land's End, which is one of the most pretentious in the colony.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Colby and daughter, Mrs. F. C. Adams, of Natick are located at their cottage at Land's End. Mr. Colby is a dry goods merchant at Natick.

Col. E. E. Locke is domiciled at the Small cottage, Brierstone road, Land's End, for the season.

Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett of Baltimore has arrived at her summer home on South street, Rockport.

Miss Mary Ware Allen of Cambridge recently arrived at her cottage, South Eden road, Land's End, Rockport.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Strecker of Boston have arrived at their Land's End cottage for the season. Mr. Strecker is Assistant Treasurer of the United States.

Mischa Elman, the noted violinist, of Boston is spending the summer in Rockport and is located in one of the Hale cottages on Marmion Way. Elman is not only a favorite in opera and concert, but also in the Victor records.

A. K. Rogers, Professor of Philosophy at Yale, and wife are enjoying the Rockport shore this season and are located on Atlantic avenue. Prof. Rogers recently received an honorary degree from Colby College.

Brigadier-General and Mrs. William A. Pew of Salem have taken occupancy of their pleasant summer residence at Land's End in the vicinity of the Turk's Head Inn.

Mr. Kalin is now the guest of Frank Duveneck, the noted artist, also of Cincinnati, at Rocky Neck, East Gloucester. Mr. Kalin is a pupil of Duveneck.

The Charles H. Laws of Cincinnati, O., are at their summer home, "Lawiston-by-the-Sea," Land's End, for the season.

The Prof. Max Kellners of Cambridge are not at Land's End and their cottage is occupied by Mrs. L. A. Kinney.

The Arthur C. Baldwins of Chestnut Hill are settled in their Land's End cottage for the season.

The Misses Thatcher of Roxbury have arrived at their summer home, "Billingsgate," Land's End, Rockport.

A. P. Chase of Boston has taken occupancy of a cottage on Marmion Way for the season.

Charles J. Rosebault is located on Marmion Way for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Morse of Boston are spending the season at their cottage on Marmion Way, Rockport.

The Harry Duttons of Boston have arrived at their summer home "The Rocks," Marmion Way, Rockport, for the season. Mr. Dutton is vice-president of the big dry goods house of Houghton & Dutton, Boston.

Joseph F. Reynolds, the artist, and Mrs. Reynolds, of Boston are at their attractive summer residence, "Paradise Cliffs," Eden road, Land's End, for a usual long season.

The Charles L. Parkers of Malden are located at the George W. Harvey cottage, Land's End, for the season.

Prof. J. S. Ankeney, professor of fine arts in the University of Missouri, is spending the season on Atlantic road, Rockport.

Members of the Major Film Company of New York have been acting along the water front in Rockport for the motion picture play, "Damaged or The Never Born." Hal Clarendon is the director. The leading lady is Miss Ruth McTammany and the heavy parts are being taken by Miss MacTammany, Mr. Clarendon and George Larkin. Mr. Larkin will be remembered as "Alan Law" in "The Trey of Hearts" and he has been taking a leading part with Pauline Fredricks in the "Woman In the Case," a film about to be released. He has a very attractive personality. J. F. O'Connor, who has taken many parts in movie-plays, is also with the Major company here. Miss MacTammany is a very attractive young lady. She returned but a short time ago from Europe, being last in Florence, Italy. She has dark curls and violet-blue eyes.

EDITORIAL

AN ATTEMPT on the part of Gloucester merchants to take advantage of a clause in the so-called "itinerant vender law," recently passed by the Massachusetts Legislature, is nothing more or less than an effort to throttle legitimate trade. The object of their animosity is the little colony of summer shops at Magnolia. Under the recent Act the shops, which are located in Magnolia during the summer months, may be assessed for the declared value of their stocks at the prevailing tax rate or, at the option of the Municipal Council, they may be taxed at a fixed rate. It is the action of the Council in using the latter method of taxation that has aroused the ire of the Gloucester tradesmen. They put forward the absurd claim that the Magnolia shops "reap the cream of the summer trade, thereby depriving the Gloucester merchants of their due." It is ridiculous to imagine for a moment that there is any competition between the Magnolia and the Gloucester stores. The shops at Magnolia cater to a class of trade which the Gloucester stores could not hope to secure. The branch shops located in the pretty North Shore village are but service arms of big New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Paris firms engaged in supplying the wants of persons of wealth. They are not conducted at a big profit, as imagined by the uninitiated; they are operated to keep in touch with the best of the city trade which, during the summer months comes to the North Shore. To tax them under the system demanded by the small Gloucester merchants would in all probability mean that they would be driven away. In such an event the very object of the small merchants would have been defeated, as even the present taxes would be lost. Not only that, but the vast concourse of summer buyers would be compelled to seek other markets. Gloucester merchants have benefited indirectly by the coming of the summer shops to Magnolia. The latter have drawn immense numbers of shoppers from a territory reaching from Nahant to York Harbor, Me. They have made Magnolia famous throughout the country as the centre of fashion and thus have been instrumental in bringing many more persons to this section. Employees of the summer residents have made use of the year-around stores of the North Shore and Gloucester has received its share of this trade. Magnolia stores each summer employ about 25 persons and the majority of their trading is of course done in Gloucester. But it appears that the Gloucester merchants would have the whole loaf or none. In their attempt to throttle the shops catering to a trade they cannot hope to attain their attitude resembles that of the fabled canine in the manger.

AN INTERESTING SIDE-LIGHT is thrown upon our Preparedness, when it is recalled that when our batteries were embarrassed at Framingham because of a lack of horses, a ship load was ready to sail from a Boston wharf for the old world.

THE PORK BARRELL has never been raided much for this County, be it said to the honor of the County and our Congressman.

A QUIET, SPLENDID WORK is going on all over the United States on behalf of the young men of the National Guard, who are in service on the Mexican border. Organizations of women everywhere are acting through the Red Cross in sending supplies to the men at the front. Those who hold back from lending aid at this time evidently are not aware that the need exists. Because of the promptness with which the work was started we have been spared the agonizing stories of suffering resulting from lack of proper equipment. While the need of sending supplies to the men in service is not as great as in actual warfare, it should be remembered that these men will be away from their homes for months to come and will miss the comforts to which they are entitled and which the small army pay will not make it possible for them to enjoy.

IT IS REPORTED that efforts are now being extorted by certain interests to have the national government purchase the Cape Cod canal and operate it as a government enterprise. The practicability of the canal has been demonstrated by private interests and proven to be a success. There is every reason why this great waterway should be controlled by the government, the sooner the better. While some private interests may temporarily profit by the transfer in ownership the navigation interests will be served well enough to warrant the expenditure.

SCOTT NEARING SAYS that "the newspapers of America have been carrying on one of the most scandalous propagandas that has ever been carried on to suppress news regarding the German side." This does not appear reasonable in this commercial age. No newspaper will suppress real news from any source, because it is news that sells the papers. The mere commercial end of the newspaper business would forbid any such conspiracy, without mentioning the ethical libel thrown upon the press.

THE TACTFULNESS and diplomacy of Charles E. Hughes is seen in his frank dealings with both wings of the woman's forces. The antis and the pros have interviewed him and have come away with the conviction that he is the man of the hour. Any man who can handle as delicate a problem as that presented by the suffrage question may be depended upon for tactfulness and skill.

AN ORGANIZED EFFORT on the part of the government and of the people of the United States to relieve the sufferings of the starving peons of Mexico is more in keeping with the best traditions of our people and of our government. It is more blessed to give than to receive.

THE NORTH SHORE TREES and shrubbery never looked better. The wet and late-staying spring is responsible for it.

IT WILL TAKE MORE than one submarine to break the grip of the Allies' blockade.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY has made a change in its curriculum whereby the students may receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts without making a careful study of Greek and Latin. For a century the graduates have been obliged, in our American universities, to pass a satisfactory examination in Greek and Latin. The hour has come, however, for a general broadening of the scope of all the collegiate courses in America. It will be admitted readily that the apparent practical values of Greek and Latin are not great. They do not contribute much to the future working knowledge of the student who must busy himself with cares of life. It is urged that, it has a cultural value, in that it disciplines the mind and this disciplined mind can thus better meet the problems that come up in life. But may it not also be true that there are studies of more practical value that render the same discipline and yet give more real pleasure and practical assistance to the student. Greek and Latin have their place, but its place is not one of scholastic tyranny.

A FINANCE COMMITTEE, of which William Endicott of Pride's Crossing is a member, is raising a fund of two hundred thousand dollars for the benefit of the Divinity School of Harvard University. One hundred thousand dollars is to be used to establish a new professorship of Social Ethics and Pastoral Care, to bear the name of Frances Greenwood Peabody, and one hundred thousand dollars for the general purposes of the school. George Wigglesworth of 53 State street, a summer resident of Manchester, is the treasurer of the fund. The school has a working agreement with Andover Theological Seminary, the Episcopal Theological School, Boston University School of Theology and with Newton Theological Institution. The funds ought to be forthcoming, for an institution doing such an effective work for theological training for all of the denominations.

THE REV. ARTHUR J. DERBYSHIRE, formerly of Beverly and now of Haverhill, has been appointed a member of the Prison Board by Governor McCall. Mr. Derbyshire is a man of broad Christian sympathies and of ability and should prove himself a valuable man in the new position. For many years he has taken a keen interest in prison reform and as president of the board he will have an opportunity for service which his abilities fit him. The State is fortunate in having his services in this important position. He will "make good" and do good.

THE MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL and the Charles Street Jail managements are co-operating in a unique humanitarian experiment. The two institutions are near each other and arrangements have been made whereby "trusties" of the jail have been detailed to do work at the hospital at one dollar a day. The plan is in operation now and is proving to be mutually advantageous.

BY ANOTHER SKILFUL financial plan the Boston & Maine Railroad has avoided going into the hands of receivers. It is a good road with great possibilities. It is a pity that the prosperity that it should enjoy cannot come. It will come, but the stockholders will have to be watchful and patient waiters.

MEXICO NEEDS three or four divisions of school teachers to work there for ten or fifteen years to raise a group of native teachers to continue the work.

THE TROUBLE WITH these diplomatic difficulties is that they come at the wrong season of the year and are upsetting too many vacation plans.

"The Thing Most Worth While"

The thing that goes the farthest
Towards making life worth while,
That's worth the most, that costs the least
Is just a pleasant smile.

'Tis full of wealth and gladness, too,
With manly kindness bent
'Tis worth a thousand dollars,
And it doesn't cost a cent.

THE FEAT OF THE DEUTSCHLAND is dramatic and marks a culmination of progress made in the construction of submarines. Since the Confederates constructed their first boiler submarine there have been many mechanical inventions which have made the submarine practicable and reasonably safe. Those who have made a study of the submarine say that the industry is still in its infancy and that progress may still be made. But the practicability of the submarine is dependent upon hostilities between nations. Of itself there is nothing in the submarine to offer competition. As great a feat in war time as the Deutschland episode is, and no one will detract from the credit due the men, the fact remains that the practical results attained for the progress of civilization are nil. The Deutschland episode demonstrates, however, the supreme advantage the submarine maintains during war times and how near Europe is to America and how helpless a fleet of North Sea naval vessels have been. The probabilities are that the Deutschland will be able to return to Germany in safety.

IT APPEARS that the one big issue to be made in the coming presidential campaign is our relations and future conduct toward Mexico. President Wilson, who on Independence Day delivered his "I am in a fighting mood" speech, has very evidently decided to go after the big peace vote of which William Jennings Bryan maintains the existence. His recent Detroit speech points to such a change of mind. On the other hand Mr. Hughes' evident intention is to make an issue of the Administration's vacillating policy in regard to Mexico during the past four years.

THE UNUSUALLY LATE SPRING with its excessive moisture has been a great gain to the farmers who have had soil sown to hay. The crop this year will be a "bumper" despite the losses made in certain localities because of the wet weather.

THE AMERICAN INVENTORS have been in the lead upon the early progress made in the perfection and adaptation of the aeroplane and submarine, but we are rapidly losing the lead. What has become of Yankee ingenuity?

THE DEUTSCHLAND CAME THROUGH, but there are clever minds industriously at work to circumvent the repetition of the adventure. Can it be accomplished?

THE FRUIT AND FLOWER missions in Boston are doing effective work in these days in the crowded tenement districts of the city.

Tommy—Pa, what's a biped?

Father—An animal with two legs. For instance, a man is a biped.

JUDY O'GRADY'S PAGE

*Fashion and Household Suggestions*FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY*Smart Things for Summer Wear*

THE summer season is waxing gayer and gayer and summer finery is becoming more and more tempting. Beautiful women are even more beautiful than usual in the exquisitely colored gowns and coats of the season. Color is the key to the whole situation this year, whether the situation is created by the wearing of a sport suit, sweater or a party frock.

In sweaters, perhaps, more than in other garments, colors are constantly surprising in their beauty and variety. Plaids are being shown, especially for trimmings, and there are some very lovely silk sweaters with sashes, pockets and collars of vivid plaids. A white one with red, blue and yellow plaid trimmings appeared to excellent advantage, and another, of which the body was white checked off with purple, and the sleeves and yoke were of solid purple, was quite smart. An interesting feature in sweater "duds" is the silk sweater-suit, which is the logical development of the very becoming sweater. A particularly good looking one of a somewhat startling yellow was seen recently.

Skirts have become so important a feature of the summer wardrobe that their tale is not yet half told. Black and white will never be wholly in obscurity, as is shown by the fact that one of the best skirts of the season is black and white—white satin (washable) with black stripes running crosswise instead of up and down. A long tasseled sash was worn with it. More popular, perhaps, are the silk jersey skirts with conventional stripes in colors. Rose jersey, or silk sport skirts with deep yokes, seem to be favorites this year.

Hats are of all sorts and all equally charming on the right fair head. Mushroom shapes of woven straw trimmed with a straw basket of colored fruit in the centre front are attractive. Felt hats, however, promise to take the lead as the season advances and they come in all the attractive shades, rose, blue and some very becoming purple and lavender. Charming transparent hats are being worn somewhat for evening.

Tiny round muffs with pockets for milady's mirror and powder puff are trimmed with gold lace. These are more than usually attractive when worn with one of the exquisite new wraps. A wrap that cannot be surpassed for daintiness is a white taffeta, very full and trimmed around the edges and pockets and sleeves with gathered puffing, all in white. A beautiful rose wrap had full bishop sleeves for its distinguishing feature and was quite out of the ordinary.

One of the prettiest party frocks of the season was of taffeta striped in pastel shades. A ruffle around the waist was finished with a band of beads and the skirt and sleeves were edged with lavender tulle.

Hot Weather Breakfasts by Judy

JUDY says that it is indeed "nice to get up in the morning," but nicer to eat a good breakfast. To eat a good breakfast these hot mornings one must have an incentive other than the mere need of nourishment. In other words, breakfast must be an attractive, tempting meal, even more so, perhaps, than the other two of the day. Breakfast should be one of the happy parts of the day's program, when the family can be together undisturbed by social engagements, it should be a pleasant hour for eating and chatting and, above all, laughing. Then gloom and the morning grouch will be forever banished and life will give a fuller measure of joy.

Whatever the breakfast may be, the meal must be attractively served. Let the dining room be cool and fresh with not too many flowers, and morning air blowing in the open windows. Better still, have breakfast out on the porch, screened in from the flies, but not shut away from the breeze and the sun.

This week's breakfast menus are so arranged that the more "hearty" part may be omitted and still a sufficiently nourishing breakfast be left. Fruit and prepared cereals are satisfying and refreshing, and may sometimes be combined in ways that are "different." The following menus contain excellent suggestions for hot weather breakfasts:

Broiled Chicken Baked Potatoes
Tomatoes on Ice

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN.

On the Paramount program, at the Strand theatre, Lynn, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will be seen Donald Brian in his much-talked about latest screen effort, "The Smugglers." The Metro program for the same three days will present Mabel Taliaferre in "The Snowbird." A spoiled but fearless society girl and a French Canadian "cave man" of the Northwest, are the leading figures in the latter play. Miss Taliaferre is a charming actress with a good sense of fun and her portrayal of the boy, Lois Wheeler, gives her an opportunity to at all times make a dainty and pretty picture. The settings of the piece in the great Northwest are unusually fine and the supporting company is excellent. There are six parts to the production. Donald Brian's appearance will mark his debut in Lynn.

Sunday's program will be headed by "Sealed Orders," a thrilling picture dealing with the foreign war.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid will appear in the Paramount play "The Selfish Woman," and Clara Kimball Young will be screened in her latest production "The Feast of Life."

On the following Sunday Frank Losee and an all-star cast will return

MANCHESTER SECTION

Friday, July 14, 1916.

Patrick Gilmore was appointed special officer to handle traffic at Singing Beach on Sundays at the meeting of the Park Board on Wednesday evening.

Barney Kelley, a golf professional from San Antonio, Texas, is at Manchester on a three-weeks' vacation most of which he will spend with his friend, Eugene Wogan of the Essex County club.

J. A. Adams, one of the four U. S. Secret Service men attached to the Italian Embassy at Beverly Farms, has rented E. H. Wilcox' house on Norwood ave. for the summer. Mrs. Wilcox will spend the summer with relatives in Franklin, Vt.

At the meeting of the Manchester club last Friday evening it was voted to give the $15 prize won by the club float in the Fourth of July parade to the visiting nurse fund of the Manchester Woman's club. The club float was a humorous depiction of the new emergency hospital.

Mrs. Samuel Leach of Colorado has come to Manchester for a visit with relatives, Samuel L. Wheaton being a brother and Mrs. Augusta Tappan a sister. Her son, Richard, who is a graduate of the law school at Ann Arbor, Mich., stopped off on the way East, but will join his mother at Manchester shortly.

A safety zone has been established in Central sq. for the protection of pedestrians. A white path is marked on the pavement for crossing and posts for the regulation of auto traffic have been erected. The problem of the police, however, seems to be to find a method of making the autoists go slower rather than keeping them in the right direction.

Playground Director Lawrence F. McCarthy, in co-operation with Fred Dunbar of the Magnolia Men's club, has arranged a singles tennis tournament between Magnolia and Manchester players, the preliminaries of which started Wednesday afternoon on the Manchester playground courts. There are eight men entered from each village and the tournament will cover a space of about two weeks. In the matches Wednesday afternoon both Magnolia men won. Hunt defeated John Danforth of Manchester 6-4, 6-2. O'Neil won from Archer Gibson 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Wogan (Priscilla Fritz) of Summer street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son at Beverly Hospital Wednesday.

Tomorrow is the day of the Manchester Brotherhood picnic at Tuck's Point. A chowder dinner will be served at 12.30 o'clock sharp. Arrangements have been made to accommodate those who can get away from work only long enough for the dinner. A bus will leave Central sq. at 10.30 o'clock in the morning and at regular intervals thereafter. The "dinner" bus will leave the square at 12.10 o'clock and will return immediately after dinner. A notable list of speakers has been obtained for the after-dinner program. The bus will make trips at intervals throughout the afternoon to accommodate those who will want to attend the Manchester-Reading ball game. Tickets are 50 cents and are on sale at the drug stores. Show your loyalty by buying early.

Patch of East Gloucester is in charge. Bass Rocks is forming a branch which will meet at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Charles Scott, Jr. Many have been doing work at home as individuals. Eastern Point has a branch supervised by Mrs. Charles Stewart. Prominent in this are Mmes. John Clay, John Greenough, J. Murray Kay, A. W. Pollard, J. H. Sleeper, A. G. Leonard, H. A. Raymond, Wm. Sheafe and others. These branches send their supplies into the Gloucester central work-room. Gloucester has long supported two Red Cross visiting nurses. Two classes in First Aid are in progress at the District Nurse association in which Mmes. Wm. Sheaf, Wm. Attwood and Isaac Patch and Miss Martha Brooks are interested. This association and the new members of the Red Cross, Miss Brooks the chairman, have jointly planned to send military relief supplies to our soldiers. On the Fourth $137 was collected for the Gloucester boys. Miss Louisa Loring of Pride's Crossing addressed the members last Wednesday.

In Rockport a Special Aid Society has been organized by Mrs. W. W. Campbell. They were addressed recently by Mrs. Thorndike D. Howe of East Gloucester and Lawrence. Work is also being done in Bay View under Mrs. J. J. Vernon.

old beach claims the quaint title and scorns the implied odium as if to say, "What's in a name."

THE FISHERMAID PRINCESS

And now that we have satisfied your curiosity regarding this odd name we will tell you a real fairy story that began here in old Barnegat, the heroine of which played, aye, and worked, too, right here on Fisherman's Beach.

There on your right is Fountain Park, a huge pile of rock, grass-grown and uneven, with the solid, brown stone poking out here and there as if resentful of kindly Nature's efforts to cover its bareness. Let us climb over to the other side, where on a grassy plateau overlooking Little Harbor and the wide, restless sea, a little white house marks the sit of Fountain Inn, the town's hospitable hostelry in the long ago Colonial days. Here, it is said, were held many of the indignation meetings that followed the arbitrary rulings of Great Britain, and here the gentry of the colony resorted when business brought them to the town. It is said, too, that pirates and smugglers received friendly shelter beneath its roof. But, be that as it may, old Fountain Inn stands for us as the scene of our fairy story.

One day in the far away Autumn of 1742 a coach and four drove over the dusty road from Boston town to the door of the Fountain Inn. The late afternoon sunshine streamed in through the wide, hospitable entrance, and a girl of sixteen in a worn, outgrown dress and without shoes or stockings, turned from her task of washing the stairs that led to the upper story and regarded the new arrival with undisguised interest. Visiting gentry from neighboring towns were not infrequent to the inn, but a gallant from the distant Boston, and such a handsome one, at that, in fine lace and velvet and gleaming silver buckles, was an unaccustomed sight in the rough little town. Small wonder then that the answers to his questions, made in the uncouth dialect of the fishermen, were stammering and punctuated with awe. But the musical voice made the homely speech charming and the beautiful eyes and exquisite face of the speaker held Sir Harry Frankland fascinated and forgetful of her shabby attire until, embarrassed, she turned again to her unfinished scrubbing. Then he pressed a coin into her damp, workhardened hand and bidding her buy shoes, made his way to the inn bar.

It was a red letter day for simple, little Agnes Surriage, but she was too much a child and too unfamiliar with fairy tales to dream of a knight who came riding.

Sir Harry transacted the business incident to his position as Collector of the Port of Boston and drove away the next day. Mayhap, a vision of a lovely girl in mean attire, all unconscious of her loveliness, came and went in his dreaming during that long ride back to town; but down on the beach, simple, little Ag Surriage told to the children of the fisherfolk the glowing story of his coming and showed the coin that he had given her to buy shoes, with only wonder and joy at the generosity of the stranger and with never a dream that he might come riding again.

But he did, for his business was to superintend the building of old Fort Sewall, just there across Little Harbor. He arrived after sunset one day the following week and the inn floor and stairs showed traces of a recent scrubbing, but the scrubber was not in sight.

It was not until the next morning that Sir Harry again saw Agnes. He had awakened to the sound of singing and as he listened he became aware that the voice was of a rare and unusual quality, for his lordship was a cultured gentleman and an authority in musical matters. He went to the window that overlooked the inn yard and saw the singer busily engaged in drawing a brimming bucket of water from the well. For a few moments her voice was muffled, then as she turned and came towards the inn, the melody rang clear again and he recognized the little scrub-girl. Her face was as bright as the morning and the water from her bucket splashed unheeded on her bare feet and ankles as she made her way across the inn yard.

Although the hour was early, Sir Harry made a hasty toilet and as soon as he was down stairs he must needs have speech with Agnes. She came, blushing with embarrassment. He asked first why she had failed to buy the shoes for which he had provided and she dropped him a shy curtsy and replied that she had bought them but was keeping them to wear to meeting. His eager, searching questions bewildered her and the disfiguring dialect made her stammering answers quite unintelligible, so he finally dismissed her and sought enlightenment from the proprietor of the inn. He learned that she was the daughter of Edward Surriage, a fisherman, that there were several children and that there was no likelihood that Agnes would receive advantages of any kind. Sir Harry's was a kindly nature and his heart ached for the isolation of her loveliness and her exquisite voice, and after much parleying, into which the minister entered, the parents of Agnes became convinced of the great opportunity open to her, and Frankland was allowed to become her guardian and to take her to Boston to be educated.

Can't you imagine the stir in these crooked, little streets that long ago day? Can't you see the excitement in the humble fisherman's home; the great coach drawn up before the door and surrounded by noisy urchins and awestruck neighbors; the bewildered, little fishermaid bidding goodbye to her weeping mother, her stolid father and the brothers and sisters crowding around for a last embrace? It must have seemed a dream to childish Anger Surriage. And when the coach door was finally closed and the eager horses started on their way, can't you imagine her looking back, with a vague sorrow in her lovely eyes and a sudden loneliness in her heart as she saw the shaking form of Goody Surriage, before the corner was quickly reached and turned?

So, overnight, the whole course of her quiet, uneventful life was changed. She passed from days of toil and poverty to an environment of ease and culture, and the flower of sturdy Marblehead was quick to take root in her new surroundings. Agnes was an apt pupil and quickly learned the graces and accomplishments necessary to a lady of that time. Her remarkable voice attracted much attention and the beauty of Sir Harry Frankland's ward became the oft discussed subject of conversation in the aristocratic circles of the pompous but village-like Boston of that early day.

Then her schooldays were over and the circle that had welcomed and encouraged the beautiful fishergirl, intent upon her studies, whenever she chanced to be brought within its fashionable precincts, turned its back and with Puritanic firmness refused to countenance her presence in Sir Harry Frankland's house.

About this time her mother died. Her father had died some years before and Goody Surriage had remarried. Agnes went down to Marblehead and was greeted coldly by her stepfather, while her family and former neighbors had no welcome for Sir Harry's lady. In vain she tried to approach them. All her overtures were met with repulse and even her use of the old dialect brought no responsive warmth to their manner. Heartbroken, she left the house and proceeded to her carriage, which she had left at the corner. It was only a few steps, but stones and decaying fish hurled by boisterous small boys and cries of, "There's old Ag Surriage, squael 'er up," made the short journey to the coach door a horror.

Poor, little fishermaid! Educated beyond and away from her own people, driven from her own home and ostracized by the town of her adoption, with no mother to counsel and champion, her's was, indeed, a sorry lot!

But through it all Sir Harry remained steadfastly loyal. He gave her his heart's unfailing devotion and showered her with attentions and luxuries, but his pride of birth refused her the only boon that could make his gifts valuable. Her's was a lonely life. She went nowhere and met no visitors to Sir Harry's house. Steadily she faded and faded until, in desperation, he bought a tract of land in the country, in what is now the town of Hopkinton, Massachusetts, and built there a commodious manor house. Its grounds were beautiful and extensive, after the style of ancestral homes across the water, and here the two lived an Arcadian life and Agnes knew a measure of happiness. Their tastes were in perfect harmony, so we are told. They rode together, read together the frequent consignments of books from England and here the aristocrats of Boston were not so averse to visiting them. At least, Sir Harry did not lack guests, for his hospitality was famous and the not over-busy gallants of Boston often rode out to enjoy it.

Then came the call of duty from across the seas. Sir Harry was wanted in his English home and he went, taking Agnes with him. Evidently, he was not of the type that loves and rides away, but he must have been strangely obtuse to dream that England would condone what colonial Boston had condemned. For Agnes it was a nightmare, for in spite of his lordship's forcibly expressed indignation, his beautiful ward was treated with the utmost disdain.

Again they went into exile, this time touring the continent for several months, and finally took up their abode in Lisbon, then the Mecca of European pleasure-seekers. Here was a colony of wealthy English merchants, and immediately Frankland entered into the gay round of pleasure.

All Saints' Day in the year 1755 was glorious with sunshine and the city of Lisbon was astir from end to end in celebration of the feast. It was then, while the churches were filled with worshippers, that the earth surged and quivered like a sea and the shocks of the great earthquake rent caverns in the streets.

Sir Harry, who was riding with a lady, was buried beneath the ruins of a nearby building. The horses and his companion were killed and through what seemed to be ages the helpless baronet read the blurred record of his selfish, pleasure-loving past and there he vowed that if God would deliver him he would make amends.

In the meantime, the distracted Agnes, who had fled from her house at the first quakings, searched the streets. Was it fate or love's own instinct that guided her to the place where a loved voice was weakly calling for aid! She worked with superhuman strength and went for help when her own efforts were unavailing. Bruised in body and soul, Frankland was finally delivered.

Then Agnes had her reward, for as soon as it could be accomplished, they were married there in Lisbon, where the Divine message had been written and read.

They returned to England and now, as Lady Frankland, she was received as a heroine and her beauty and charm soon won for her the love of her husband's family.

Later they came to Boston again and Sir Harry's ostracized ward was welcomed in the person of the Lady Agnes Frankland. Like a princess in her rightful domain she reigned over the aristocratic North End and her's became the life of a happy woman whose deeds are always unrecorded.

Once more they went to Lisbon and Sir Harry's health failing, they proceeded to England, where he died shortly after in 1768. Lady Frankland returned to her country estate in Hopkinton and lived a quiet life with her sister and sister's children until the flame of righteous indignation on the part of the colonies made a mighty conflagration of patriotism that swept before it all Tories and sympathizers of Great Britain. As the widow of an officer of the Crown, Lady Agnes was speedily judged a royalist and betook herself to the safety of England, but not before she had been detained as a suspect by an over-zealous patriot. Before her departure she witnessed from her own home in the North End the famous Battle of Bunker Hill.

She never returned to the land of her birth, and while many of those who knew her in childhood are laid away on old Burial Hill, the once barefooted fisherman's daughter lies in an English grave, marked doubtless, by enduring granite.

And now, although we would fain conclude with a picture of a widowhood devoted to the memory of the gallant Frankland, we must tell you that Agnes married again and this time a wealthy banker of Chichester, John Drew, Esq. But this union was short, for she died within a year at the age of fifty-seven, about two score years after Sir Harry had found her scrubbing the stairs of the inn that is now but a memory, with no evidence of its being but this old well, known as the Agnes Surriage well, and from which on that far-away, sunshiny morning her beautiful voice rose to enchant the knightly visitor to the inn.

This is Marblehead's fairy tale, but there are many others and before you leave Barnegat you should trace the legends the end of which is told by the slate slabs on old Burial Hill.

But we will leave them for another day. Far off over the bay a noisy, giant bird proclaims the presence of an aeroplane and brings us back from Marblehead's wonderful past to its still more wonderful present. And the spell is broken for today!

Manchester women, who have been engaged in sewing and collecting supplies for the young men of the National Guard, sent away their first box to the Mexican border on Tuesday. Although they were delayed in getting started at the headquarters in G. A. R. hall, they have the distinction of being one of the first bodies to answer the call of the American Red Cross by sending supplies. The ladies, who have worked energetically in the gathering of supplies, have also given their time to the sewing of khaki comfort bags for the soldiers. The first box was sent to Co. H, 8th Regt., M. V. M., "somewhere on the border." Among the articles shipped were four boxes of tobacco, the gift of Town Treasurer Edwin P. Stanley. Mr. Stanley, who is Junior vice-commander of the Dept. of Massachusetts, G. A. R., enlisted in the same Co. H in the Civil war. He accompanied his gift with a letter recounting his associations with the company and extending his felicitations to the men now composing it. The work went forward at the headquarters Wednesday under weather conditions strongly remindful of the border climate to which the supplies were sent. Another box will be sent forward the coming week. Supplies are received and work done each Wednesday from 9 to 5.

"Sam" Mindick, the youth who attempted to pass fraudulent checks on various Manchester firms about a month ago, is in Salem jail waiting to face action of the September Grand Jury. Mindick, after his arrest in Manchester on June 3 and arraignment in Salem District court, was admitted to $500 bail furnished by a Boston cousin. When he discovered that the evidence against him was decidedly damaging the youth forfeited his bond and skipped. He was traced to Philadelphia, Buf-

Being unable this time to produce a bondsman he was remanded to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Walter R. Bell, Ernest L. Valentine and Chief of Police William H. Sullivan of Manchester were witnesses against him.

MANCHESTER CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ITS 200TH ANNIVERSARY.

The Orthodox Congregational church of Manchester will celebrate the 200th anniversary of its organization, on Sunday, July 23. An interesting program of special addresses, an historical sketch and special music is being prepared. The committees in charge have planned the day's exercises as follows: In the morning the usual service will be held, the Rev. Dr. Quint of Chelsea preaching. The afternoon service will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Brewer Eddy of the American Board. In the evening Dr. Glendenning will present an Historical sketch of the Life of the Church since its organization. Mr. Joseph A. Torrey has prepared a poem fitting the occasion, which will be delivered at this service.

The pastors of the local church and surrounding churches will assist in these services.

It is the desire and aim of the several committees that the 200th anniversary of the Church be celebrated with an enthusiasm and reverence fitting the occasion, and to this end it is hoped that all will join in paying homage to the church so rich in years of honor.

SUFFRAGISTS AND ANTIS WORKING TOGETHER ON RELIEF COMMITTEES

Dear Mr. Editor,

It is a great pleasure to note the change in the Mexican situation, since my last letter to you; and to add that both Suffragists and Anti-Suffragists are working together on the Relief committees (which are still very busy). I myself am on Miss Katherine Loring's committee, which is the Women's Auxiliary to the Governor's Committee, and I find it a delightful and hopeful thing that some of the leading Antis are co-operating in such a friendly and able manner. The women have not waited for a real war to get together for patriotic service. And let us hope that it will not need a bitter and bloody war before the Government (or the people) of this country will fully enfranchise the women—as it is happening in Europe. In a recent magazine article, Israel Zangwill, the great English writer, shows how the European war has changed the status of woman in Europe, especially in England. And he also points out that German's scornful attitude toward women is an essential part of the system which brings on such a war. Surely we need not wait for such a bitter lesson to prove that "women are people!"

Meanwhile the Suffrage movement in our country goes quietly, steadily forward, in spite of interruptions. Perhaps the greatest victory in its whole history this June, when both the Republican and Democratic parties, at their national conventions, endorsed Equal Suffrage. Woman Suffrage will play an important part in the national campaign this autumn. And I cannot but believe that there will be less of bitterness and misunderstanding because women have been getting together more and more as human beings and proving their worth for public service.

Very truly yours,

LOUIE R. STANWOOD.

BOYS ARE UNCOMFORTABLE

WALTER N. SMITH, MANCHESTER BOY, WRITES THAT BORDER CLIMATE IS OPPRESSIVE.

The first word from the Manchester boys with the National Guard on the Mexican border is contained in a letter received from Walter N. Smith, son of Mrs. Anna Smith of Pleasant st., Manchester, who is in Co. H of the 8th Regiment. That the boys are not finding their expedition a mere pleasure jaunt is gathered from the following extract from Mr. Smith's letter:

"It was a great trip down here, but it will be a much better one home. The air down here is hot, stifling and dry. One feels as if he were going to dry up. I feel it most in my mouth. My lips are all parched and my mouth feels as if it was full of glue. Most of the fellows have a nose bleed every once in a while. It is a common thing to see a fellow prostrated with the heat. One musician in our company dropped yesterday at inspection. It is terrible to stand at attention in this heat. The longest drill we have had was one and a half hours. We will have more as we get used to the climate.

"I wish you could see this place. Our camp is situated on a—well, I should call it a desert—but it is really an alkali plain. We are within 500 yards of the border and at times we can see the Mexican sentries on their side of the border. Yesterday afternoon we had an awful sandstorm. I was on guard duty at the time and I never experienced anything like it before. It lasted about half an hour. Everything is shut from your view like a heavy snowstorm. All you can do is cover your face until it passes. There are also a lot of small cyclones here. It is all interesting until one stops to think that he is surrounded by Mexican territory and a battery of machine guns are on every elevation (that is, on all sides except the north).

"How I long for a swim. I have had only one since I left home, and that was in a mud hole beside the track in Indiana. Over in the Regular Army camp, across the railroad track, there is a set of shower baths. But there are so many who want them at the same time one has to fight to get one. We are restricted very much and cannot leave the camp without special permission from the captain, but expect to have more privileges soon.

"Walter N. Smith."

ANOTHER VICTORY

MANCHESTER WON CONTEST WITH DORCHESTER NINE BY 6 TO 0 SCORE.

Manchester's baseball team continued its season's record of straight wins by defeating the Dorchester town team in Manchester last Saturday afternoon 6 to 0. It was the sixth victory of the season for the still undefeated Manchester team. The features of the game were the fielding and batting of Gourley, Manchester's right fielder, and the all-around fast work of Grover, in the box and at bat.

Manchester started its scoring in the second with a single by Herron through second. Conley was safe at first when Hayes played to get Herron at second. Collins' two bagger scored Conley and Grover's triple to the brook brought in Collins. Gourley secured a pass, O'Leary was hit by a pitched ball and the bases were full. Conley's fly to left field was caught by Delehanty and the scoring stopped for that inning. In the third Devlin and Herron sent drives down the third base line for singles. Devlin scored on Collins double over the right field fence. Bond's sacrifice to short stop brought in Herron for the fourth run. In Dorchester's half of the inning Silva smashed a drive to right that looked good for a single. Gourley made a beautiful running catch, scooping in the ball close to the ground. In the fourth inning Hayes of the Dorchester team got a first on a drive to left. Butler got on through Cody's error and Delehanty struck out. Flynn was out on a fly to Conley, who got the ball over in right field. Connolly singled to right and Hayes started for the plate. Gourley scooped up the ball on the run and whipped it to Collins in time to get Hayes at the plate.

In the sixth Gourley figured in another fast play when he caught Hayes at second. Again in the eighth he put out Hayes catching a fly that looked good for a single. Manchester's last two runs came in the eighth. Bond got to first on an error and Grover singled. Gourley bunted, Bond scoring. O'Leary hit into a double play, Gourley being out at second and O'Leary at first. Cody's single scored Grover. Grover did not need to extend himself to beat the Dorchesterites. He struck out 13 of the 34 men, who faced him in the nine innings, and allowed but five hits, two being of the scratch variety.

It seems strange how obstinate some people are, and it is the more noticeable where it would be expected people possessed more than the ordinary intelligence and breeding. For instance, in regard to the turn-around at Singing Beach, people insist on leaving their cars in the encircle, which is intended to be used as a place to turn around in. The circle wasn't constructed until the increase in the number of motors and the popularity of the beach demanded better facilities in handling the traffic. Even then the place was so crowded that last summer a policeman was sent to the beach Sundays to handle the traffic during the rush hours. This year another step in advance was made when the street was widened to better allow of parking cars along both sides of the road. And even now, people insist on leaving their cars in the circle! Last Sunday one of the car-owners was rather indignant when he was not allowed to leave his machine in the circle and grumbled about the "officiousness of you policemen." Obstinate isn't the proper word to apply to such a fault-finder!

The pranks of livery stable horses—their doings and undoings, their comings and shortcomings, especially the latter—are matters of thread-worn history. The Ford livery now takes its place. The latest Ford prank is related of a local livery machine that ran away when left standing in front of a house on Smith's Point, Manchester. The driver had taken a piece of baggage from the station and left the car at the door as he took the satchel into the house. When he returned the car had disappeared. He waited a while, thinking someone had taken the machine for a minute as a joke, but when the car did not make its appearance a search was made, and in a final effort the police were notified of the "theft." In order to pick up the trail at the start, the police went to the house in question and made another search—for who knows what a Ford won't do,—perhaps climb a tree, hide around a corner, or what not. Sure enough! There it was hiding in a hedge far away from the house. It had started, power on, from where it was left, went over a rather steep embankment and ended up in a hedge and was there, still panting, as though driven there by its chauffeur.

A Manchester man, who owned a little runabout of the "flivver" type until recently, was the victim of an accident a short time ago. The little machine which had been in service a number of years, was demolished in the collision. As the Manchester man pulled himself out of the wreckage he was accused, by the occupant of the machine which struck him, of running "30 miles an hour." "If it would run 15 miles an hour going down hill I'd give it to you," is what the ex-flivver owner thought, but did not say at the time.

He was a big, bright, shiny half-dollar and he bore an air of distinction which none of the other coins in the little green box possessed. His air of pride aroused the ire of a motley collection of "nickels" and diminutive dimes which attempted to crowd him out of the comfortable corner in which he reposed. A company of eminently respectable "quarters" jingled indignantly at the nickel and dime rabble and moved to the side of the big half dollar.

"What are you so 'stuck-up' about?" queried one of the nickels who escaped the cordon of quarters and approached the largest coin in the collection.

"Because I was until lately owned by one of the best and reddest-blooded fans in Manchester," answered the half-dollar. "He thinks a team, that puts up the game Manchester does, deserves his unstinted support. He puts a half-dollar like me in the collection at every game."

"Our owners were the same kind of fans," chorused the quarters in support.

The little nickel slunk away humiliated. "Why didn't that cheap sport that had me in his pocket throw in four more like me or one of those shiny quarters he sorted out to keep?" he muttered. "I am glad to be here doing my little bit in support of such a fine team, but I think it is a shame that 'tightwad' didn't loosen up for more."

"I feel guilty for my ex-owner, too," chirped up a dime. "When the management is paying big money to get good games its a shame to expect us little fellows to cover the expense."

The decree of Dame Fashion, which says, this year, that it is extremely vulgar to acquire sunburn or a coat of tan, has given the summer girl at the more fashionable resorts in this vicinity a good deal of worry. Despite their desire to be cool and comfortable the injunction must be obeyed and hence the following spectacle on Singing Beach, Manchester, last Sunday morning.

under a huge umbrella were quite the centre of attention. One young lady as she rose to go into the water was the cynosure of all eyes. She was garbed in a beautiful black bathing suit of heavy silk, with a high white collar and long sleeves with turned back white cuffs. On her head was a jaunty broad brimmed black rubber hat with a white rubber band. She wore white washable gloves and heavy black stockings and high laced bathing shoes.

Not content with this sunproof combination, she was exceedingly careful when she came out of the briny, to swathe her face in one of those thick veils which make everything but the eyes invisible, while a parasol completed the arrangement. — Salem News.

MANCHESTER CHURCHES

First Unitarian church, Masconomo street, Sunday, July 16, at 11 o'clock, with sermon by Rev. Abbot Peterson of Brookline.

Rev. A. G. Warner will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday morning on "The Command to Believe." In the evening at 7.30 o'clock the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. E. C. Winslow of Boston who will speak in the interests of the "Little Wanderers' Home."

Next Tuesday, July 18, the Baptist Sunday School picnic will be held at Tuck's Point. It will be an all day outing with a basket lunch at noon.

NO SHARKS IN THESE WATERS.

North Shore bathers, who have been timid about going into the water the last couple of weeks because of the attacks of man-eating sharks upon swimmers off the New Jersey coast, need have no fear of attack by the big fish in this section of coast. Seamen all unite in saying that the maneating shark is an inhabitant of the warm water of the tropics and is seldom seen even as far north as New Jersey. Sharks often follow a warm Gulf stream northward, but as soon as they meet the colder currents they turn back. No one need be backward about enjoying the excellent bathing on the North Shore beaches because of fear of these sea-monsters.

The Men's club under the efficient management of Rev. F. J. Libby, is having an unusually successful season. All the rooms are engaged and the restaurant has a very large patronage; dancing Saturday nights and moving pictures Friday and Monday nights. Thus far these entertainments have been largely attended and they have been a financial success. Next Thursday night a Costume party and dance will be given at the club for the benefit of the local Catholic church.

Albert R. Lewis of New York has arrived to open his antique shop in the Library building, this being his fifth season. Mr. Lewis has recently returned from Europe, where he has been on a collecting tour, and he now informs us that he has secured the finest collection of antiques ever exhibited on the North Shore. Mr. Lewis came over the road from New York in the same little motor car which he had used in Europe. He was accompanied by V. Winthrop Newman, the eminent dry point etcher, and by Anthony De Palma, one of the first three racing motorists ever to race in the United States. Mr. Lewis reports that the roads were in good condition except the detour from New Haven to Wallingford.

WENHAM

July is proving to be well filled with important events, at least so far as Wenham is concerned.

Services will be continued throughout all of July in the Congregational church. A special reception of new members will occur at the end of the month.

As a recognition of the aid given by Wenham Congregational Christian Endeavorers to the work of the Boston Seaman's Friend society, the chaplain of that society invited a party of young people, both juniors and seniors, to accompany him down Boston harbor in the power boat, and see him actually at work among the ships and sailors. All enjoyed the voyage to the utmost. The senior society held its last business meeting and social in the form of a picnic, and camp-fire, the beautiful grove of E. B. Cove, Wenham Neck, being thrown open for the occasion.

Rev. F. M. Cutler, alias "Chaplain Cutler" of the Mass. Coast Artillery Corps, was on duty with his regiment for two weeks ending last Tuesday. The recruits whom he helped train constituted one of the finest bodies of soldiers ever sent out by the Commonwealth, and when, on Monday they left for El Paso, there was no doubt that Massachusetts would have worthy representation. The chaplain facetiously points out that the day he went to war was the day which Carranza selected to yield, and surrender his prisoners. "Post hoc, propter hoc." Last Sunday's Globe contained a "write-up" of the seven Massachusetts chaplains, including the one who resides in Wenham. Since love and war often go together, a camp wedding with a charming "war bride," constituted one of the pleasantest features of Chaplain Cutler's tour in Framingham.

Wenham scouts had their camp at the island, near Rowley, owned by the Salem Fraternity. Here again generous contributions from friends came in to increase the pleasure and profit of the week. Since scout-master Cutler was kept away by military duty, assistant scoutmaster Conary was called upon to perform double duty. And right nobly did he meet the added responsibility. Wenham boys are also indebted to Rev. A. H. Gilmore of Topsfield, Charles W. Schaller of Beverly, and Herbert C. Farwell of Salem for valuable assistance. The boys practiced all the activities possible which would aid them to become better Americans, soldiers and scouts, during the week. These same boys served as ushers at the Italian Festa

West Beach and the Pavilion continue to attract large numbers of visitors daily. The warm water the past few days has furnished an inducement for many to enjoy the bathing facilities.

The annual outing and picnic of the Beverly Farms Sunday school took place at Centennial Grove on Tuesday. Pleasant weather, a fine program of sports and other entertainment combined to make the occasion an enjoyable one.

Eugene T. Connolly left on Tuesday for the Plattsburg training camp where he will spend a month together with other Harvard men of his class. Mr. Connolly recently received his degree from Harvard Law School and has tried his bar examinations.

The Willey-Gibson Co., which has conducted a hay and grain business at Beverly Farms for a number of years past, has gone out of business, the members of the firm retiring. It is very probable that Andrew McGann, who has been in charge of the business, will conduct it in the future for himself.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the minister, Rev. F. M. Cutler, will be present and will preach. Sunday School at noon. An informal service under the department of Bible Study is planned for 7 p. m.

A successful effort was made to introduce the "Men of Wenham" to the Wenham Tea House—thitherto they had timidly left that dainty institution to the ladies. But Mrs. Downes' admirable dinner was a strong attraction and drew many members of the Men's club. It is safe to predict that this new acquaintanceship between the men and the Tea House will ripen into friendship.

conducted one of the most successful picnics in all its long history. Ninty happy children, with their attendants, journeyed to Gloucester and Long Beach, and each time they passed a human habitation they explained to whosoever would listen "W-E-N-H-A-M, That's how to spell it, Here's the way the way we yell it, Wenham." Arrived at the beach, the picnic developed into one prolonged swim, for all hands. Never were weather conditions more favorable for bathing. While there was not the slightest danger, still a gentle surf kept the bathers wide awake and afforded unlimited enjoyment. Contributions from generous friends helped make the picnic a thing to be remembered. Besides the box lunches, everyone had ice-cream also.

KEITH'S THEATRE, BOSTON.

The favorite musical comedy stars, Amelia Stone and Armand Kalisz, in their newest one-act capricious romance with music, "Ma'mzelle Caprice," will head the bill offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre the week of July 17. This clever couple have one of the best and most entertaining light operas de luxe ever staged in vaudeville. Another big feature will be the two Broadway favorites, Robert and Lawrence Ward, better known as the Ward Brothers, as "Bertie and Archie." Still another feature will be the distinguished Franco-American singing comedienne and musical comedy star, Juliette Dika, presenting a series of character songs, with some marvelous gowns; and other features will include Noel Travers and Irene Douglas in the merriest and quaintest of comedy sketches, "Meadowbrook Lane," from the pen of Edgar Allen Wolf.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Lionel Barrymore, one of the cleverest and most distinguished character actors on the American stage, will head the bill at the Boston Theatre the week of July 17. Mr. Barrymore will appear in a brand-new five part romantic drama written especially for him, and entitled, "The Quitter." Mr. Barrymore has the role of a young man whose quailing in the face of an imaginary danger causes

LARGEST ANIMAL ON EARTH

Spark's World Famous Shows are billed to exhibit at Gloucester, on Friday, July 21, and from the newspaper reports preceding them their exhibition will be worth going many miles to witness.

Among the many features the show carries is what is claimed to be the largest land animal on earth. It is an elephant said to be three inches taller than Jumbo and a half ton heavier.

Some idea of her immense size can be obtained when you consider that she is 11 feet, 7 inches tall and weighs over 5 tons. In other words she weighs as much as 10 ordinary horses.

Another extraordinary feature with the show is Capt. Wesley's troupe of educated Seals and Sea Lions. These interesting sea animals perform the most seemingly impossible feats; balancing chairs, umbrellas and whirling brands of fire while climbing ladders, walking tight ropes and riding the backs of galloping horses. This feature baffles description and must be seen to be appreciated.

A mile long street parade of dazzling splendor, beautiful women, and handsome horses, interspersed with three brass bands and a steam caliope will traverse the streets shortly before noon, and this feature alone will be worth going many miles to see.

"Whoever shall behold the image of St. Christopher shall not faint or fail on that day."

—Translation

Saint Christopher was one of the patron saints of the early Christian traveler. The modern custom observed more commonly in Europe of carrying a St. Christopher medallion in one's automobile, is rapidly becoming more common in this country. The medallion measures 2½ in. diam., heavy sterling silver, gold finish, superbly modeled centre in French grey, rim beautifully engine-turned and enameled in any color to match car. Back is covered with velvet pad to match enamel. In ordering state color desired.

Two Automobile Robe Clips, 1½ x 5 in., hand sawed monograms, connected by 12 in. chain. Clips slip over rail of auto and hold robes in place, preventing them from slipping to bottom of car. An ideal gift for an automobilist. M205 Gold plate 4.00 M206 Silver plate 4.00

DOORWAYS of OLD PORTSMOUTH

Upper left-hand corner—The Doorway of the Rice house.

In 1894, behind this doorway, a thrilling party was held. Bales and bales of calico had been captured from English merchant men on the high seas by William Rice's privateers, and brought home to their master in Portsmouth. One evening the jocosely old soul—Rice—invited all the dames of Portsmouth to his house and gave them all as much calico as they could take away.

Upper right-hand corner—Doorway of the Boardman house—one of the most ornate in the town.

Doorway of the Warner house is shown in the lower picture. It is here that Franklin set up the lightning rod in 1762. The house is said to have been built in 1718. The Corinthian pillars are admirably executed, and the old latch and foot scrapers are excellent example of their kind.

The Children's Island Sanitarium in Salem Harbor

One of North Shore's Deserving Charities

WHO will help a deserving charity on our own shores?

Who will help the little crippled, suffering children in our midst?

Do the Shore people really know of the needs so near home?

Will the Shore people answer these questions by assisting at a bridge tournament to be given on Friday, September 1st, at 3 o'clock at Mrs. R. S. Bradley's, Pride's Crossing, for the benefit of the Children's Island Sanitarium, Salem Harbor.

The committee in charge is composed of Miss Bradley, Mrs. George Denny, Miss Fitz, Mrs. Marshall Fabyan and Miss Mary Franks.

Mrs. Vickery will run the tournament. Tables at $10 each can be engaged from Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Beverly Farms. Owing to the number of tables being limited it would be wise to make application as soon as possible.

In next week's BREEZE we shall give a short story of the work done at the Island, with information for anyone wishing to visit the place, see the children and the work they do in weaving baskets and in pottery work.

Boats leave Tucker's Wharf, Marblehead, at 3 p. m. on Sundays for the choir service. Visitors are most welcome and will find this service both pathetic and interesting.

Progress of the Mosquito Campaign

THE following circular letter has been mailed to a large number of residents of the North Shore. Attention is now called to it that anyone desiring to contribute to the Mosquito Extermination fund may do so. No work will be done until the full amount needed has been subscribed.

The letter referred to was signed by William D. Sohier, George R. White and Charles C. Walker, finance committee, and was as follows:

"At a meeting of the association it was decided that it was impossible to raise enough money on the plan started last year—to wit, fifty-dollar subscriptions—to do a thorough job in exterminating the mosquitoes.

"The estimated cost of the work, by the United States Drainage and Irrigation Company, was $30,000 last year. This would substantially take care of the area reaching from the city of Beverly or Beverly Cove to Freshwater Cove in Gloucester, draining the salt marshes and stagnant pools, coating the ones that couldn't be drained with oil, unless they were big enough for fish, filling the water holes in the rocks, etc. This irrigation company has been carefully looked up and it has given most excellent satisfaction in many other places.

"It was evident that if the work was to be done on a business-like basis that we must secure subscriptions of reasonably large sums of money to do the work in the first instance, and then rely on a small yearly subscription later for maintenance. The undersigned were therefore appointed on a finance committee to see whether it was practical to secure enough money to insure thorough work. In the last two weeks the following have, among others, agreed to contribute:

Wm. H. Moore	$1000	D. L. Pickman	$200—300
Wm. H. Coolidge	1000	Dr. H. F. Sears	250
H. C. Frick	his share	Chas. E. Cotting	250
George R. White	500	Philip S. Sears	250
Walter Denègre	500	W. S. & J. T. Spaulding	250
Lester Leland	500	J. Harrington Walker	250
Mrs. Quincy Shaw	500	M. Graeme Haughton	250
Francis Whitehouse	500	Wm. D. Sohier	250
Eben D. Jordan	500	Philip Dexter	250
Frank Frazier	500	Robert S. Bradley	250
E. P. Gavit	500	Wm. B. Walker	250

"It seems probable, therefore, that if the residents on the Shore are willing to do their share and join in this work, that enough money can be secured. Any contribution that you may subscribe now will be in place of the amount you may have already agreed to give for this year. If you are willing to join with the subscribers named above in carrying on this improvement, please reply to Wm. D. Sohier, State House, Boston, stating what sum you will contribute."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Katherine E. Turnbull to Chalmers Wood, Jr., is of interest to many on the North Shore. The Chalmers Woods of New York and Appleton Farms, Ipswich, have many connections here. Miss Turnbull is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Turnbull of New York and Morristown, N. J. Mr. Wood is a member of several clubs, including the Racquet and Tennis clubs.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of "Ledgewood," Montserrat, returns today from a week at Northfield. Mrs. John H. Mason of Montserrat also returns. Mrs. Mason gave the opening address at the missionary conference. Before going to Northfield, Mrs. Peabody gave a tea for the members of the Montserrat Syndicate. It was an enjoyable affair although a very rainy day.

A Militia of Patriotic American Women

This is the Object of a New Movement to be Given Birth in New York City Within a Few Days---Mrs. John Hays Hammond the Instigator

LILLIAN McCANN

MRS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND has mothered many benevolent enterprises in her lifetime. At this crucial period in our history, she and Miss Elizabeth Hammond, a sister of John Hays Hammond, are giving up all the pleasures of a summer on the North Shore to build up a "militia of patriotic American women" that will be permanent and who "will be prepared for such service as women can render toward national needs."

Mrs. Hammond explains that they are not supplanting any society. Their "object shall be to supply necessities to the men at the front, and in mobilization camps; to furnish needed assistance to families of soldiers in the way of work or relief; to furnish hospital supplies to the Red Cross and other war relief agencies, and to create and develop in the United States a Militia of Patriotic American Women, trained and prepared for such service as women can render toward national needs." It will be known as the Woman's American Supply League, and will have quarters in a house given by Mrs. Ogden Goelet at 4 West 49th street, New York.

Mrs. Hammond has made it broad and democratic in its scope, just as she always makes everything she comes in touch with. It is hoped to gather American women from the Atlantic to the Pacific into this broad stream of work. There are no dues and no overhead charges, the work being supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Anyone can belong, from the richest to the poorest. It is an opportunity for every American woman, without class or creed distinctions. From the large workrooms established in New York there will be entire cooperation with the Red Cross and other relief agencies, and the families of the soldiers will always find a welcome and a place to assist and be of the society, which is really the keynote of it all. The officers are Mrs. John Hays Hammond, president; Mrs. James R. McKee, treasurer, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Peabody Stewart; Mrs. William K. Harcourt, who spends the summers at Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, recording secretary; Mrs. Claude Pinney, corresponding secretary.

Assisting Mrs. Hammond to form the league at this psychological moment were Miss Helen Frick of Pride's Crossing, Mmes. William K. Harcourt, Charles E. Hughes, Champ Clark, Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Louis Livingston Seaman, Lindley M. Garrison and Thomas J. Preston. Others on the executive council are Mmes. George W. Wickersham, Ogden Goelet, Charles Hathaway, William Cumming Story, William Randolph Hearst, Charles D. Hilles, Lewis B. Woodruff, Harry Payne Whitney, James Speyer and Henry W. Taft.

Mrs. Hammond and Miss Hammond left "Lookout Hill," their Gloucester home at Fresh Water Cove, Tuesday afternoon, for New York, to spend ten days in special work for the society. Mrs. Hammond has not been on the Shore long, having remained in New York organizing the work, while the family had come on to their summer home. She will be making constant trips all season to the headquarters. The North Shore is fortunate in having two such prominent residents as Mrs. Hammond and Miss Helen Frick, who, through their prominence socially and benevolently, are linking the Shore with the origin of this "militia of patriotic American women," pledged to help from the tiniest gift to the greatest.

War Notes.

The end of Mexic War no man can see;
Better to cut out force and try diplomacy.

The surest antidote for war's alarm—
A peaceful heart and a strong arm.

War has taught,
That in ourselves our safety must be sought
And by ourselves our freedom must be wrought.

Much may depend
On how the war shall end—
The issue of the fight
In a new day or in a darker night.

A nation without power must submit,
Yet grit is sometimes overmatched by wit.
Courage sans Science scarcely will avail
And bravery unprepared will surely fail.

War settles differences by force of might,
Not by a fair arbitrament of right.
And might again breeds war
To end again in fight.
Weakness or strength make not for lasting peace;
How then shall warfare cease?
Not until Brotherhood increase.

—JOSEPH A. TORREY.

Poets and Poems of the North Shore

HELENE SHERMAN

THE beauty of the North Shore, whether the blue waters are flashing in the bright summer sun or whether the Storm King rides imperiously upon the roaring waves, is always an inspiration and seems to have been so to many of the poets. History and romance and flights into the realms of fancy are whispered softly to us with the rhythm and swing of the undulating tides. Can there be a fairer scene than the shining sands and dancing water with the white sails "round the rocks of Marblehead?" From Nahant to Rockport the awakening echoes bring to memory some of the verses of our best beloved poets.

Richard Henry Dana, dwelling in peace and solitude in his summer home at Manchester, often held communion with the muse. In "The Little Beach-Bird" we get a delightful picture of the poet strolling on the sand of Graves' Beach listening to the song of the sea, as it seemed to call his feathered friend to flight:

*"Thou little bird, thou dweller by the sea,
Why takest thou its melancholy voice?
And with that boding cry
O'er the waves dost thou fly?
O! rather, bird, with me
Through the fair land rejoice."*

Mr. Dana was born in Cambridge on November 15, 1787, and died in Boston, February 2, 1879. He was the first to establish a summer home at Manchester, now so beloved as a summer playground, and each succeeding generation of Danas has always found enjoyment and pleasure around the beautiful home of their celebrated ancestor. Mr. Dana was an invalid until fifty years of age and did not publish his first poem until he was thirty-eight years old. In 1827 his first book of poems appeared and was well received by the critics. Richard Henry Dana is said to have been one of the most powerful and poetical composers of American literature, and we proudly honor his name among those who sang their sweet songs along the rocky shores of Cape Ann.

Beverly became the scene of an interesting event in 1826, for in that year of grace Lucy Larcom, poet and teacher, first saw the light of day. Many of her poems deal with the humble fisherfolk and "Hannah Binding Shoes" is one of her best. It is full of pathos of the lives of fishermen and those who love them. She began to write when only seven years of age and while still a very young girl, some of her work attracted the attention of John G. Whittier, who at that time was conducting his Free Soil paper in Lowell. Mr. Whittier freely encouraged Miss Larcom and some of her finest poems were those written under the influence of the greater poet and were of patriotic sentiment of the Civil War days. In 1880 she published "Wild Roses of Cape Ann." During Miss Larcom's literary career, she was editor of Our Young Folks, and published a complete collection of her poems in 1884. Hers was the rare nature that uplifts the commonplace and she found human love and heart interest among the sordid scenes of her early life, for Lucy Larcom knew what it meant to suffer; and her sympathetic interpretation of the sorrows of the humble people she had known is born of her love and knowledge of them. The sight of the fishing vessel returning from Newfoundland, with its flag at half-mast, was familiar to her, for hardly ever, even in these more modern days, do the boats come back to port without the loss of some of the crew. Many a brave sailor boy, setting out for the Grand Banks, proudly but unsuspectingly, waves a last farewell to dear ones on the shore. When the vessel returns, the signal of mourning is shown. Friends of the crew, from the captain down to the poorest hand, gather to hear read the names of those lost at sea and never found.

Among Lucy Larcom's poems of the sea, the following is one of the best and will be most enjoyed by lovers of the North Shore, because of its familiar setting:

THE LIGHTHOUSES

(BAKER'S ISLAND, OFF BEVERLY, MASS.)

*Two pale sisters, all alone,
On an island bleak and bare,
Listening to the breakers' moan,
Shivering in the chilly air;
Looking inland towards the hill,
On whose top one aged tree
Wrestles with the storm wind's will,
Rushing wrathful from the sea.*

*Two dim ghosts at dusk they seem,
Side by side, so white and tall,
Sending one long, hopeless gleam
Down the horizon's darkened wall;
Specters, strayed from plank or spar,
With a tale none lives to tell,
Gazing at the town afar,
Where unconscious widows dwell.*

*Two white angels of the sea,
Guiding wave-worn wanderers home!
Sentinels of hope are ye,
Drenched with sleet, and dashed with foam,
Standing there in loneliness,
Fireside joys for men to keep;
Through the mid-night slumberless
That the quiet shore may sleep.*

Some of the most beautiful poems of this region were written by America's favorite poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Mr. Longfellow was born in Portland, Maine, in February, 1807. He was named for his mother's brother, who, a youth of nineteen, but lately commissioned a lieutenant in the United States Navy and serving before Tripoli under Commodore Preble, perished in the fireship "Intrepid," which was blown up on the night of September 4, 1804. Happy boyhood days, spent in the sweet environments of Portland, "the beautiful town that is seated by the sea," and to which his thoughts turned so often in later days, influenced his whole life. Young manhood found him a student among the classic groves of old Brunswick. After graduating, he filled the chair of modern languages, both at Bowdoin and, later, at Harvard. During these early years, poems appeared often. It was after Mr. Longfellow took up his residence in Cambridge that he established a summer home at Nahant. "The beauty and mystery" always held enchantment and inspiration for the great man. The bells of Lynn were heard at sunset at Nahant, as he watched the summer day pass into memory. Longfellow knew and loved the Shore. "The Fire of Driftwood" is the poet's dream. Longfellow travelled rather much for those days, but he always paid tribute to his native land. When he passed on in Cambridge, March 24, 1882, the nation mourned the loss of its best beloved poet. Although of New England, old England gave to him the honor of a niche in Westminster Abbey, where his bust was placed in 1884.

Contemporaneously with the name of Longfellow, is that of the good Quaker poet, John Greenleaf Whittier. One of the sweetest of all singers was he "in the hearts and homes of the people," and the world of letters has always recognized as masterly his productions of American poetry. He was born in Haverhill, December 17, 1807, and he died at Hampton Falls, N. H., September 7, 1892. His parents were members of the Society of Friends and he was ever faithful to this sect, even conforming to its speech and garb. His ballad of "Floyd Ireson" is among the very best in literature and is thought not surpassed, if equalled, even by Scott. While yet a lad of fourteen years, Whittier's ambition to become a poet was awakened by reading a copy of Robert Burns' poems, which fell into his hands. Whittier delved deep into the history of Massachusetts Bay and "Skipper Ireson's Ride" and "Agnes" are both traditions of old days at Marblehead, the more interesting because authentic. This village was the scene of the ride of unhappy Ireson, "torr'd and futlier'd and corr'd in a cort by the women of Marblehead." "Agnes" is a longer work and is a real romance of Colonial days on the North Shore. Agnes Surriage, poor and beautiful, after many adventures, becomes the bride of Sir Charles Henry Frankland.

*"The vow is spoke,—the prayer is said,—
And with a gentle pride
The Lady Agnes lifts her head,
Sir Harry Frankland's bride."*

The exquisite beauty and purity of diction and the simplicity of style of Mr. Whittier's poems greatly endeared him to his readers. In fancy we see the good poet, in his Quaker garb, among his favorite haunts at Amesbury. We hear the "thee" and "thou" of the Quakers softly spoken. We see him writing his anti-slavery articles with fiery pen. We say, "His was the complex nature of sweetness and of strength. Mr. Whittier loved nature and he wrote as he lived, simply, filled with love of the quiet things of the world. His poems are household words, and the North Shore does well to feel honored that it has been sung in so many sweet songs by one so gifted. Perhaps, the best known of the poems he wrote about the North Shore is "The Swan Song of Parson Avery," the scene of which is laid at Newburyport and at Gloucester, where Thatcher's lights now stand. "The Tent on the Beach" is another favorite referring to Newburyport and is especially interesting because it is an incident in his life, shared by other poets who knew the Shore.

Other poets have lived and sung here on the Shore, but space will not permit of a further description of them and their works. Still others will come and go, but the beautiful Shore, with its limpid waters and shining sands will remain forever, a poem yet unwritten.

"I have been treated very badly by my native city," said a man who had just been fined for drunkenness, "but I love her still."

"True," remarked the magistrate; "I should say her still is about all you do love."—Exchange.

"I have nothing to live for," said Slowpay at table. "Well, you'll soon find out that you can't live here for nothing," snapped his landlady.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Activity of Red Cross Workers in Manchester

SCORES of natty little "comfort" bags have been turned out by the Manchester women, who gather each Wednesday in the G. A. R. hall to assemble supplies for the National Guardsmen on the Mexican border, in response to the appeal made by the American Red Cross. A peep at the contents of one of the compact "individual" outfit pouches reveals an assortment of articles selected with the view of meeting the most pressing needs of the man at the front. A toothbrush, pocket comb, paper of safety pins, folding mirror, shaving soap, "bachelor" buttons, pocket knife, stiptic pencil, a pencil and five postcards are among the contents of each neat khaki bag.

But sewing khaki comfort bags is only a small part of the work which is going on in this particular receiving depot. Magazines are assembled, quantities of tobacco, cigarettes and other smoking materials are packed in the border-bound boxes. One thoughtful gentleman contributed dozens of pipe cleaners for the boxes sent this week. Articles of under-clothing, socks, etc., are among the things shipped and still needed. Not all of the articles have been contributed, but may have been purchased with the funds kindly donated by those interested in the work. Among those who have donated money or material since the start of the work two weeks ago are Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. H. S. Grew, Mrs. Boylston Beal, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, Mrs. George Howe, Mrs. J. Warren Merrill, Miss Mary F. Bartlett, Mrs. Russell Codman, Miss Louie Stanwood, E. P. Stanley, Misses Nan and Lucy Carnegie and Miss Rosamond Merrill.

Among the additions to the workers the past week were Mrs. Oliver Mink, Mrs. Nathan Hayward and Miss Elizabeth Beal. Two boxes of supplies were packed under the direction of Mrs. L. W. Carter Wednesday afternoon.

Women's Municipal League of Boston Closes Successful Exhibit at Beverly Farms

THE EXHIBIT AND SALE carried on at the old Library Building, Beverly Farms, by the Beverly Farms Branch of the Beverly Improvement society, under the auspices of the Women's Industrial League of Boston, closed on Saturday, July 15.

The management is much pleased with the work accomplished. Over 500 visitors came to the exhibit; some asked for advice, others bought some of the useful household articles that were for sale. Much literature was distributed and, when the scare came about infantile paralysis, inquiries came from a distance as well as near home to know what could be done. To quote an authority: "The origin of infantile paralysis comes from unclean conditions."

"As the exhibit represented a 'clean-up' campaign," said the executive head of the league, "it was not surprising that people turned to us for help, which we gladly gave—trying to impress upon all the importance of sanitary conditions; that co-operation is most essential.

"Keep your own house and surroundings clean and then go for your neighbor's."

"It is most important in all this work that each one shall do his share. The decrease in mortality from typhoid fever is one of the most important things that has happened in the last few years—largely due to inoculation—but, as one health report puts it: 'Owing to the education of the ignorant.'

"If by co-operation we can at least reduce the pests, such as mosquitoes, flies and rats—such pests as are dangerous to any community—all who help may feel they are helping toward the health of their city or town. Let us all join eagerly to assist in the work of such organizations!

"The little shop did unexpectedly well financially—thanks to kind friends. A check of one hundred dollars was received from a friend interested in the work of the Women's Municipal League. Another friend ordered ten dollars worth of fly slappers sent to the French wounded, thus doing two good things with one stroke of the pen. The freight congestion held up some of the goods that were ordered and they arrived the day the store closed."

For a short time these goods, with a few left-over articles, will be for sale at the stable of Mrs. Robert S. Bradley. Fly chasers, sprayers, fly traps and the Phinotax Disinfectant are some of the useful goods that can be purchased during the coming week.

Fair in Aid of St. John's Church, Beverly Farms

GENEROUS were the donations and extravagant were the purchases at the Beverly Farms fair at "The Rectory" on Wednesday. The Auxiliary of St. John's Church may well feel repaid for their winter's work in preparation for the mid-summer fair in which the summer parishioners so generously gave their time, presence and liberal patronage. The booths were arranged in a hollow square around the grounds and were in charge of the Auxiliary and summer colony.

The children's table showed many pretty dolls and clothes, and the things at the useful table and fancy table were the products of the winter's sewing at the Auxiliary meetings and were of the finest and daintiest handiwork possible. The candy and cake tables were rich in their donations, many huge boxes and cakes coming from summer parishioners. Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge was among those sending one of the delicious looking cakes. The Girls' club had the fancy table and bundle table. Mrs. Frank Preston was in general charge and the girls assisting were Charlotte Metcalf, Helen Campbell and Jennie Bolam.

At the table for children were Mmes. E. F. Campbell, George Northrup, John Mackey and Robert Stoops; at the candy table, Mmes. Thomas Jack, Martin Warner, Millett Younger, Victor Borden and Edwin May; cake table, Mmes. John Bolam, Charles Allen, Frank Preston and Edward Estes; useful table, Mmes. Willard Publi-cover, Walter Newton, Lewis Williams and Robert Smith; fancy table, Mmes. Ernest Townsend, Alfred Rogers, Benjamin Osborne and Mrs. Holton.

The little girls selling candy were in charge of Sally Cabot and included Mary Meeker, Harriet Rantoul, Mabel Rantoul, Ethel Cummings, Elizabeth Miller and Frances Weld.

The flower booth was beautiful in the great clusters of sweet peas, roses and other flowers donated by the summer colony and in charge of Mrs. Henry L. Mason, Mrs. Charles M. Cabot, Mrs. Frederick I. Galacar and Mrs. Maurice Osborne.

Vegetables and fruits, some from their own farms, were sold at fancy prices by Mrs. Charles M. Amory, Mrs. Bayard Warren and Mrs. S. D. Warren, Jr.

Miss Katherine Tweed, assisted by Mrs. Harrison Tweed, sold "rummage" as fast as they could make up the prices. Very desirable "junk" was for sale here and Miss Tweed did some of the liveliest business of the day.

The pretty tea tables were looked after by Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake, Miss Helen Frick and Miss Margaret Thomas.

The ice cream stand was vigorously looked after by Miss Rosamond Bradley and Miss Mary Curtis. Both were very persuasive and many came their way. Nobody enjoyed the fair any more than Miss Alice Thorn-dike, who, although unseen, was the life of the fish pond in charge of Miss Mary Franks and Mrs. Walter Hunnewell. The latter guided the little fishers on the outside, who eagerly stood in line ready to cast their hooks over the high enclosure around the "pond." Miss Thorn-dike was the "water witch" within who baited their hooks with a suitable "catch."

Prof. Leroy of Boston and Gloucester gave exhibitions in magic and the North Shore Cadet band of Beverly Farms played in the afternoon.

Notable among the heavy purchasers were Mrs. W. B. Thomas, Mrs. R. S. Bradley, Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. William M. Wood and many more who were buying something from every table in the place.

Belle—Nellie, dear, may I introduce you to my fiance?

Nellie—Delighted to meet you, sir! All of your predecessors have been such bully fellows.—Cleveland Leader.

Alice—I like Tom immensely, and he's very much the gentleman, but he does like to talk about himself.

Grace—Yes, dear, your knight hath a thousand I's.—Puck.

MISS KATHERINE BLODGETT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Blodgett of Pride's Crossing, who met with a severe accident four weeks ago, while horseback riding in Beverly Farms, is making a slow and tedious improvement, but it is hoped that in two or three weeks she will be able to be about. Mr. Blodgett and the young son, John W. Blodgett, Jr., will return tomorrow from an extended trip through California and Oregon. They have not been on the Shore this season, having left for the West early in June, before opening their summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Carnegie of Pittsburg and Fernandina, Fla., who are occupying the C. Howard Clark, Jr., cottage in West Manchester, have as their guest Mrs. Carnegie's mother, Mrs. William Thaw of Pittsburg. Mrs. Carnegie was formerly Miss Margaret Thaw. Mrs. Thaw will be entertained also by Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey G. Whitney (Alice Thaw) of "Sky High," Marblehead Neck. The Whitneys are of Milton.

Miss Edith Fisher of Philadelphia is the guest of Miss Margaret Corlies at "Att-Lea House," Magnolia. Many entertainments are being given in her honor.

Mrs. Maynard Ladd of Smith's Point, Manchester, has returned from a week spent at Newport, R. I.

Mrs. Charles B. Taylor has returned from a delightful visit in Chicago and is now at her cottage, "The Craigs," on Smith's Point, Manchester. Her daughter, Miss Marcia Taylor, is entertaining for several weeks Mrs. E. Armond Tower of Babylon, L. I.

Mrs. James D. Safford of Norton's Point, Manchester, is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Carlett of Springfield. Mrs. Safford's sister-in-law, Mrs. R. K. Safford of Springfield, is visiting her, but is staying at the Masconomo house in Manchester for the month's visit on the Shore.

Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch of "Riverhouse," Norton's Neck, Manchester, entertained last Friday with six tables of auction bridge. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Conover Fitch, are making an extended visit at "Riverhouse."

Mrs. John S. Carter, Miss Frances Lane Carter, John S. Carter, Jr., of St. Louis are the guest of Mrs. Carter's mother, Mrs. Lane, at "Overledge," Manchester Cove, for the remainder of the season. Miss Helen LeRoy Lane is visiting Miss Janet Elliott, daughter of Mr. Howard Elliott, at Dublin, N. H., but will return in a few days accompanied by Miss Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Arturo de Heeren (Fernanda Wanamaker) of Philadelphia are among the new-comers to the Shore. They are of the recent arrivals at Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman (Elizabeth Van C. Parker) of "Deer Park," Waltham, are now in the E. P. Motley cottage at Pride's Crossing.

Judge and Mrs. William H. Moore will return to "Rockmarge," Pride's Crossing, today, from Chicago, where they were called by the death of Mr. Moore's brother, James Hobart Moore of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Lake Geneva, Wis. Mr. Moore's death occurred Tuesday at Lake Geneva, where the family has a handsome estate. Mr. Moore was always interested in horses and had large and unusual quarters for them at Lake Geneva. Judge Moore and his brother were formerly lawyers in Chicago and formed four great corporations known as the Moore group, which were later absorbed by the U. S. Steel Corporation.

PLAYING in the Montserrat club tennis tournament in the ladies' handicap singles, which began Monday, are the Misses Cabot, Snelling, McCormick, Brainard, Read and Thomas, Mrs. Haydock, the Misses Thorndike, Sears and Denègre and Mrs. Shurtleff. Tweed—Miss Thomas, Miss Edith Deacon and partner, Mrs. Boardman—Mrs. O. A. Shaw, 2d, Mrs. Haydock—Mrs. Shurtleff, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby—Mrs. Lincoln Davis.

T. Jefferson Coolidge and Mrs. Nathan G. Horton of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, will have with them their usual August visitors, the Thomas Newbolds of Hyde Park, N. Y., who will arrive by motor next week. Mrs. Newbold (Sarah Coolidge) is Mr. Coolidge's daughter. They will also visit their son's family, the T. Jefferson Newbolds of Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Snowden of "Crowhaven," Manchester Cove, have with them Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rose Danner of Indianapolis and Miss Gertrude Prim of Toledo, O. Mr. and Mrs. William Hastings, who have been visiting in the Snowden home, have returned to Albany, N. Y.

Miss Rosamond Bradley left Pride's Crossing last night for Murray Bay, Canada. She will return August 4 and on the following day go to the Children's Island sanitarium as a volunteer worker for one month.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hazelton and daughter, Miss Helen Hazelton, of Marlboro, have come to Brownland Cottages, Manchester, for the season. The garden in the rear of the cottages is looking unusually fine just now with the great display of roses it is putting forth. The cottages are located on Old Neck road in the quietest and most exclusive part of Manchester and are eagerly sought each season by guests who come year after year and never tire of their homelike and refined atmosphere.

The Masconomo house, at Manchester, is enjoying its usual mid-summer festivities. Last night a moving picture entertainment was given in the Casino. Among the guests are Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Nicholson, who have just arrived from London, Eng. From the West have come Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Preston of St. Louis, Paul Dudley Childs of Kansas City, Mrs. E. A. Loring and her daughters, Mrs. G. L. Williams and Mrs. H. C. Van Bergen of San Francisco, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McMahon and their daughters, the Misses Helen and Mary McMahon, of Philadelphia, are recent arrivals. Others from the East are Mrs. W. B. Palmer of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Mrs. L. P. Ficks and family of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Todd, Jr., Miss Faun Lyda Todd, Edward Todd and George A. Speers of Brooklyn.

NAHANT will be interested in the lecture at the home of Mrs. H. Staples Potter, Apthorp cottage, Summer street, Monday, July 24th, at 3 o'clock, when Mrs. Anna Johnson, A. M., will talk of the orphans in France. It is under the auspices of the Orphelinat des Armees. Mrs. Johnson is one of the best known lecturers in the country and is a charming, brilliant woman.

THE THURSDAY EVENING HOP at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia, was marked by a very large number of people dancing and a great many looking on. The gowns of the ladies were very elaborate and beautiful, and if the death knell for the bouffant skirt has sounded, not even an echo has reached Magnolia, for they grow more "hoopy" each day, and with the grace and beauty shown by this very modish style, which to many of us seems a bit old-fashioned, we can readily understand why our grandmothers wore the puffy jupons.

Among the many pretty girls dancing was Miss Rosamonde Wyman, who was lovely in a very soft pink chiffon taffeta, so girlish and sweet.

Miss Ruth McLean was very attractive in a dainty dancing frock of Quaker gray, most bouffant and pretty. Miss McLean is a graceful dancer, and in the one-step which she danced with Winthrop Lockwood, they made quite the best looking couple on the floor.

Vivacious Miss Ethel Morse wore a girlish party frock of white taffeta striped in the tones of the American Beauty.

Mrs. Harriet S. Cowles was very stunning in a lovely black net gown with iridescent bandings.

A distinguished couple are Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Perry of Boston, who spend their summers at the Oceanside. They seem to enjoy "looking-on" at the hops, for they are always in attendance at the dances. Thursday evening Mrs. Perry wore a very pretty gown of beautiful black silk and lace.

Very notable among the dancers was Mrs. Leslie Wheeler of Evanston, Ill., elaborately gowned in a wonderful creation of green tulle and lace.

Miss M. A. James of New York, a very sweet girl, wore a pretty dancing frock of pink chiffon, very, very bouffant.

The two Misses Brainard were very attractive and lovely Thursday evening at the hop. Miss Adelaide wore an exquisite gown of royal blue taffeta, while Miss Frances was gowned in a pretty dancing frock of pink chiffon.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers of Chicago was very stunning in a rich gown of turquoise blue with crystal and silver touches. Mrs. Chalmers danced quite a bit during the evening with her son, Thomas S. Chalmers.

Miss Hidden wore an exquisite gown of black crepe over an underdress of beautiful gold embroidery.

Quite the most different gown of the evening was worn by Miss Flora Barton, a very stunning girl. A flesh colored silk with many layers of white tulle formed the skirt, and a bodice of soft pink panne velvet with deep back panel completed this lovely frock.

Dainty Miss Evangeline Beane, the dancing teacher and social hostess, wore a lovely gown of black tulle with a single red rose nestling in the draping of the skirt.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bettman were notable during the evening by their beautiful dancing. Mrs. Bettman's gown was of black chiffon with jet bodice.

Mrs. J. Arthur Hull wore a beautiful gown of day-break yellow with touches of lavender and lavender corsage.

Miss Doris Bryan, who without doubt is quite the most popular girl at the hotel, with young and old alike, wore a dainty frock of taupe chiffon in endless layers, shading into the palest yellow.

Mrs. W. F. McCombs of Washington is spending the summer in Beverly Farms with her parents, Col. and Mrs. John R. Williams of Washington, who are occupying "The Meadows," the attractive summer home on Hart street, formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Bement.

A SERIES OF THREE LECTURES, illustrated by moving pictures, is to be given on the North Shore the first week in August by Prof. Van Hecke of Louvain university, who will tell of the reconstruction work in Belgium, showing portable houses for refugees, the concentration camps, etc. The first of these will be at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia, on Wednesday evening, August 2, at 8.15; the second on Thursday evening at Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, and the third at the Moorlands, Bass Rocks, on Friday evening, August 4. Tickets may be obtained at the hotels or from Mrs. Clough C. Overton, at Hawthorne Inn, the chairman of the committee, and eral and Mrs. Pierre Mali, and many prominent members from Mrs. Reeves Lewis at the Moorland.

The lectures are under the patronage of Consul General of the North Shore colony, including Miss Beaux, Mrs. John Greenough, Mrs. John Clay, Mrs. Randall-MacIver, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mrs. S. A. Raymond, Miss Anne Aspinwall Curtis, Mrs. William Beach Olmstead, Mrs. William Atwood, Mrs. Steele Gray, Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard, Mrs. Jacob L. Loose, Mrs. Jackson Piper, Mrs. Edward Vickery, Mrs. Frederic Holden, Mrs. Louis V. De Foe, Mrs. Edward R. Musgrave, Mrs. Arthur Merriam, Mrs. Francis L. Wayland, Mrs. Barrett Ridgley, Mrs. Herman Erben, Mrs. Clough C. Overton, Mrs. A. W. Paige, Miss Robbins, Mrs. Frank Schlenger, Mrs. Alexander McLeman, Mrs. Frederick Todd, Mrs. Richard K. Tyler, Mrs. Anson Mills, Mrs. Winfield Scott Overton, Mrs. Ernest Baldwin, Mrs. Edward Flach, Mrs. Crocker, Mrs. Charles Oliver, Mrs. William E. Clarke, Mrs. Marcus Dennison, Mrs. William Roscoe Thayer, Mrs. Costello C. Converse, Mrs. S. Fisher Corlies, Mr. Courtney Guild, Mrs. F. K. M. Rehn, Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, Percy Atherton, Mrs. Samuel Kennard, Mrs. Basil Gildersleeve, Miss Margaret Corlies, Mrs. Charles Scott, Mrs. E. B. Currier, Mrs. E. B. Sargent, Mrs. Herman Bosler, Miss McGuckin, Mrs. E. K. Dearborn, Mrs. H. B. Warner, Miss Goldsborough, Mrs. Alexander Nelson, Mrs. Walter Richards.

ALL roads seemed to lead to the Village Church at Magnolia, Wednesday, where its annual flower bazaar was held. The day was ideal and the church and its spacious lawn were transformed by skillful and tasty hands into a veritable fairy-land. Never did the place look more beautiful or attractive, with its ten tables tastefully decorated and covered with aprons, fancy articles, home-made candy, flowers, punch, ice cream and cake. All the booths gave evidence of originality and good taste, but five of them deserve special mention,—the candy table, in charge of Mary Boyd and Ruth Scott; ice cream, Mrs. Jonathan May, Mrs. William Wilkins, Abbie May, Beatrice Story, Helen Castle; apron, Mrs. Fred S. Lycett, Jennie Brown, Amy Lycett; fancy, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Mrs. Frank Dunbar, Mrs. M. Kehoe, Mrs. W. S. Eaton, and cake, Mrs. Ernest Lucas, Mrs. Willis Malonson. The 25-cent table was in charge of Mrs. William Richardson, Mary Burke, Mrs. Charles Hoysradt; domestic, Mrs. E. L. Story; "Mrs. Wiggs and the Cabbage Patch," Mrs. W. R. Boyd, Mrs. Carrie Brown, Susie Symonds; flowers, Mrs. Harry C. Foster, Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, Jr., Miss Catherine Coolidge, Clara Corrin, Margaret Pickles, Anna Stromblad, Mona Height, Alice Height, Elsa Swanson, Phyllis Lycett, Marion Barter, Dorothy Wonson; punch, Mrs. Frank Abbott, Jennie McKay, Edith Height, Mrs. Clifford Story. The ladies of the church desire through the BREEZE to express their thanks to all contributors to and patrons of this bazaar, which was suggested by Mrs. Thomas H. Hunt, and to whom much credit is due for its great success.

MRS. LUCIUS M. SARGENT opened her home at Pride's Crossing last Wednesday for a lecture by Mrs. Johnson, benefiting French war orphans. It is estimated that there are now one million fatherless children in France. An effort is being made to induce people to give ten cents a day to aid in the government's allowance of ten cents a day, which would be sufficient to support a child. Mrs. Sargent is again opening her house today for a recital by Miss Frances Nevin, who will give interpretations of grand opera. Miss Marion Lina Tufts will be at the piano. It will take place at 3.30 and one third of the proceeds will be given for the French orphans. "Hansel and Gretel" will be the special subject of the afternoon. Another recital by Miss Nevin will be held Aug. 4, at Mrs. George Lee's in Beverly Farms, when "Madame Butterfly" will be given. Patronesses and subscribers for these recitals include: Mrs. Larz Anderson, Miss Mary F. Bartlett, Mrs. George E. Cabot, Mrs. R. McM. Colfelt, Mrs. Allen Curtis, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. Eugene G. Foster, Mrs. E. Palmer Gavit, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, Mrs. W. H. Johnson, Mrs. J. H. Lancashire, Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Thornton K. The Misses Paine of Pride's Crossing have been entertaining their Sunday School classes of the First Church (Unitarian), in Boston. Last Wednesday Miss Marianne Paine had her class of sixteen girls and on Friday Miss Sarah C. Paine had her class of nine girls. After dinner rowing and bathing were enjoyed along the fine beach near the Paine home. This is an annual affair with the Misses Paine and is thoroughly enjoyed by their classes. The Paines were the first Boston people to come to their section of the North Shore and their house occupies one of the most sightly places on the hill overlooking the water.

Mrs. L. M. Sargent's large parlor is well-filled each Wednesday at 12 o'clock when the Pride's Crossing women gather to hear Mrs. May Alden Ward discuss current topics. The hour before she talks to another group at "All Oaks," the home of Mrs. Edward S. Grew in West Manchester.

The Henry W. Stephens family of Detroit are among the late arrivals in Pride's Crossing where they occupy a cottage on the Paine estate. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Henry Stephens, 3d, is spending the summer with them. She has recently returned to Michigan from Budapest. Mrs. Stephens is also entertaining Miss Ella Liggett and and Mrs. Charles Backus of Detroit.

"HIGHWOOD," the West Manchester home of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Walker, is one of the estates with many wooded paths and drives, in which it is the easiest thing imaginable to get lost while wandering around and enjoying the beauties of the place. The most sightly spot is the rose garden reached from the house by a flight of stone steps. These lead first to a little dale made cool and attractive with a pool in which goldfish are playing. A few water-lilies are in bloom and the place is so charming that one must walk around the pool, walled in with stones, ferns and vines, and after entering the rustic arbor in which the walk ends, stand and admire the rocky background of the pool and all of the pretty rustic effects. In the arbor is a bird bath and the rose garden is also centered with one. The birds are everywhere and many find homes in the comfortable bird house seen near the garden. The rose garden is entered by steps from the arbor. Many of the posts of this arbor are so covered with vines that they look as if the vines were really a part of the natural growth of the posts.

The rose garden is filled with beds of pink, red and white tea roses of great beauty. On one side is a vine-covered wall, over most of which the red ramblers are running riot. Grassy walks lead to the terrace back of the garden in which are the green houses, old-fashioned flowers and flowers for cutting. An immense bed of pansies is very interesting just now. The handsome old trees, the well-kept and trim looking appearance of the drives and lawns, all make "Highland" one of the particularly typical places on the North Shore. The large and beautiful house is fittingly situated on the highest part of the estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs Frick (Frances S. Dixon) of the Hamilton colony are receiving congratulations over the birth of a baby daughter, Monday morning at the Beverly Hospital. This is the second child added to the family, the older one being also a girl, Adelaide H. Childs Frick. The Fricks were married in October, 1913. The baby's maternal grandmother is Mrs. Isaac Dixon of Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Frick of Pride's Crossing are the paternal grandparents. Mrs. Frick, before her marriage, was a social worker with Miss Helen Frick, a sister of Childs Frick.

The Misses Loring of Pride's Crossing have been entertaining Mrs. Richard Strong, wife of Dr. Strong, who was connected with the sanitary commission in Serbia at the time of the typhus fever scourge.

Mrs. F. L. Higginson of Pride's Crossing is president of the class of twenty members, composed of the summer colony, who are taking a course in home nursing at the Beverly Hospital. Miss Cushman, the superintendent, teaches the class each Monday and Thursday at 3.30. At the close of the 15 lessons an examination will be held by a specially appointed examiner. The work is under the supervision of the American Red Cross society. Miss Denano of Washington is at the head of the department in which elementary hygiene is taught. A first aid class has just closed its work creditably at the home of the Misses Loring in Pride's Crossing. Several of these are being conducted along the Shore.

The Bluebird Tea Room at Pride's Crossing is one of the unusually busy little places on the Shore. Mrs. Jacob M. Loeb of Chicago recently entertained a little party of four, and it is fast becoming the rendezvous for tourists.

A DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL was given at the Oceanside Annex, at Magnolia, Monday afternoon when Miss Virginia Wainwright gave a musicale talk with illustrations in music, with "Belgian" music as the subject. Miss Wainwright is a finished musician with ability as a pianist, composer and lecturer on subjects musical and her rendition was very interesting. Miss Frieda Gerhardt assisted at the piano. This is the first of a series of three musicales which Miss Wainwright will give. On Monday afternoon, July 31st, the second will be given at the home of Mrs. George Lee at Beverly Farms with "Italian" music as the subject. Miss Gerhardt will again assist at the piano. On Monday afternoon, August 14th, the third will be given at the home of Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot at Beverly Farms with "Franz Liszt as Man and as Composer" for the subject. Mrs. Frank S. Tower will be at the piano.

Miss Wainwright is a member of the Sewing Circle of 1909, the year which she made her debut into Boston society, and is also a member of the Vincent club. SATURDAY evening at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, was very, very gay with a great many people, bright lights and beautiful women in exquisite gowns. Never was the Grill more brilliant. Reservations were many, and the "grill room" was taxed to its capacity. Among those noted were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Steiner of Beverly Cove, who entertained a party of sixteen. Mrs. John Lancaster and her lovely daughter, Rosamond, entertained a party of eight. Charles M. Amory was host to a party of friends.

Notable among the diners at the North Shore Grill Friday evening were Miss Eleonora R. Sears of Beverly Farms and R. H. Black of Philadelphia. Miss Sears wore a strictly tailored suit of mixed tweed and a trim panama hat.

Mrs. J. D. Cox, who is summering at Magnolia in the Winslow Cottage entertained three tables of bridge Thursday afternoon in the reception room at the North Shore Swimming Pool, at Magnolia. A luncheon was served following the card game.

Without doubt not any of the many young men of the summer colony who frequent the North Shore Swimming Pool are quite as proficient in the art of swimming as Charles Wadsworth, 3rd. Every day Mr. Wadsworth is seen at the pool and seems to enjoy his revels in the water. His strokes are many, which include the trudgeon and crawl. His diving is very fine, also.

The officers for the North Shore Swimming Pool for the season of 1916 have recently been posted on the walls of the clubhouse and include, C. C. Converse, president; W. H. Coolidge, vice-president; H. H. Stevens, treasurer; C. S. Penhallow, secretary. The House Committee is made up of W. H. Coolidge, H. H. Stevens, C. S. Penhallow, Mrs. C. S. Penhallow, Mrs. Henry G. Hall and Mrs. Arthur M. Jones. The committee on admissions, Dr. J. H. Lancashire and A. M. Jones. Entertainment Committee: Mrs. E. C. Richardson, Mrs. E. P. Rowe and Mrs. S. S. Stevens. The Tennis Committee: Miss Josephine Stevens, Miss Helen O. Penhallow and Chester Lockwood.

Mrs. Anna D., widow of William H. Howard, died two weeks ago today in San Francisco. Her summer home on Highland ave., West Manchester, is being occupied this year by a Pittsburg family. Mrs. Howard went West last fall. She was taken ill about two months ago and gradually failed until the end. She is survived by two sons, John K. Howard of San Mateo and D. M. Howard of San Francisco, and two daughters, Mrs. Fred S. Whitwell of Milton and Miss Frances S. Howard, who has been with her mother in the West.

ON Monday evening, July 24th, a big charity bridge party will be given at the North Shore Swimming Pool, Magnolia, for the benefit of the Surgical Dressings Branch at Magnolia. This is an object of charity in which all the North Shore people are deeply interested and a large number is expected. The bridge game will begin at 8 o'clock.

Among the little chaps who enjoy a swim at the North Shore Swimming Pool most every day is Henry Livingston Rowe, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe, who are spending the summer at Magnolia. Master Rowe is a natural swimmer, very courageous and daring. He has mastered many of the strokes, and rare, indeed, are the days when this manly boy doesn't brave the temperature and take his dip.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White and family of Lowell, who have been coming to Magnolia for a number of seasons and making the Oceanside their home, have leased the Stearns villa on Norman avenue and have taken up their summer residence there. Mr. and Mrs. White are accompanied by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Kennard of Boston, and their little baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Costello C. Converse of Magnolia and Boston have been entertaining Elisha Converse, R. W. Converse, Miss Converse and Miss Margaret Converse, all of Marion, at the North Shore Swimming Pool.

Among those who have been guests at the North Shore Swimming Pool, Magnolia, during the past week are Niles Goodyear, Mrs. LaMonte Rowlands, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Fanny Rowland, all of Chicago, introduced by J. C. Ellsworth; Mr. and Mrs. W. Grant Stewart, Montreal, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Fletcher, Marblehead Neck, Mrs. Minot, Marblehead, by Mrs. Fraser Campbell; E. F. Bickford, Malden, Mr. Cleveland, and daughter, Malden, by C. C. Converse; Mrs. George R. Alley, Miss Mary Thompson Sawyer, Norwood, by Mrs. H. H. Stevens; Mrs. Thomas Sanders, Marblehead Neck, by Mrs. Fraser Campbell; Granville B. Fuller, Boston, by Robert S. Steinert; Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Smith, Miss Pauline Smith, Boston, by Mrs. C. C. Converse; Pierce Bufford, Boston, by R. L. Steinert; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davidson, New York, by Mrs. Richard Frothingham; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Graham, New York, by Arthur M. Jones; D. Walter Gibson, New York, by Eugene G. Foster; John H. Densmore, Brookline, by G. E. Winslow; T. W. Penhallow, Boston, by C. S. Penhallow; F. E. Warner, Boston, by Blanche A. Warner; Lieut. C. O. E. King, Wakefield, by J. D. Carscallen; Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Macdonald, Belmont, by Jessamine M. Allyn; Mrs. G. N. Stone, New York, by Mrs. J. Pierpont E. Dutcher; Miss Jeanette Johnson, New York, by Mrs. J. L. B. Buck; Mrs. J. C. Simpson, Washington; James M. Green, Richard G. Croft, Pittsburg, Pa., by George B. Secor.

John Hays Hammond, who has been quite ill at his summer home at Lookout Hill at Gloucester is reported as much improved. Mr. Hammond was taken ill soon after returning from the Republican national convention at Chicago.

The popularity of Tunnipoo Inn at Beverly Farms is fully established. During the past week many of last year's guests have returned for the season and there are many newcomers among those registered. The new hotel is an exceptional one for a small village and presents unusual attractions to the vacationist.

The Sign of the Crane tea room in Manchester has a special line of maids' aprons for sale just now. They are made of material chosen by a charity club of women, who give out the work to needy sewers. They are particularly well made and are selling at reasonable prices for such good patterns.

Miss Charlotte Maxwell of Boston, who has been spending the past month with Mrs. Margaret Bradley Purdy at the Fuller homestead on Lexington avenue, has gone to North Hatley, Quebec, for a six weeks' stay, and will return to Magnolia for another visit early in September.

Harold S. Vanderbilt's schooner yacht, the Vagrant dropped anchor off West Beach, Beverly Farms, Saturday. Mr. Vanderbilt has been on the Maine cruise of the Eastern Yacht club and his trim craft captured the handsome silver cup offered by Capt. Guy Norman of "Bee Rock" at Beverly Cove, for leading all the yachts on the run home to Marblehead.

Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., is most kindly opening her house at Coolidge's Point, Manchester, next Thursday and Friday, July 27 and 28, for a summer sale of the Boston Society of Decorative Art. The good work of this society is well known; its beautiful examples of embroideries and of the other decorative arts will indeed have a very perfect setting in Mrs. Coolidge's handsome house. All should see them.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Jones of Summer street, Magnolia, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sturtevant of New York City as their house-guests for the past week, and have been frequenters of the North Shore Swimming Pool where they have enjoyed the many diversions there.

Colonel and Mrs. Cranmore N. Wallace of Beverly Cove were recent luncheon guests of Miss Charlotte Maxwell at the Boston Tea Party on Lexington ave., Magnolia.

Mrs. Robert Treat Paine (Marie Louise Mattingly) died in Brookline on Monday. The Paines were formerly of the Pride's Crossing colony, where they occupied "Pinthewaite" on the Paine estate. Mrs. Paine is survived by her husband, one son, Robert Treat Paine, Jr., of Pride's Crossing, and a daughter, Miss Dorothy Paine. The family is now at the country home in Waltham. Mrs. Paine's father, Mr. Mattingly, who resides in Washington, also survives his daughter.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL

MAGNOLIA

THE OCEANSIDE HOTEL, at Magnolia, spells happiness and comfort for the summer guest, for 'tis here that one can enjoy both the seashore and the country in delightful admixture. The hotel is so ideally situated on a slight rise from the sea that a perfect view is afforded. And the spacious verandas, oh! to the lover of the outdoors these are perfection, for they yield the sunshine and the ozone with a slight protection for the guest. The service at the hotel is very finished and unsurpassed. No want is left unfilled, and the slightest detail for the comfort of the guest is material.

A very gallant young man is "Jimmie" Pollak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Pollak of Cincinnati, Ohio, who are spending the season at the Oceanside. Master Pollak, altho' not yet having entered his teens, is a very graceful dancer and has mastered the art of leading his partner to a nicety.

Mrs. M. Sichirich, mother of Miss "Billy," was very stunning Saturday evening at the hop at the Oceanside in a beautiful black silk evening gown and black picture hat with black aigrettes.

Miss Alice Richard was very attractive in a shell pink taffeta veiled with same tone tulle and silver. The only other touch of color was shown in the dainty pale blue girdle. Miss Alice is very popular with all the young people and is a beautiful dancer.

Mrs. Lily Middleton, the mother of Misses Helen and Jean, and who appears more like a bigger sister, was very attractive Saturday evening in an exquisite gown of black taffeta and chiffon.

Mrs. Walter S. Wyatt of Chestnut Hill, Pa., has returned to the Oceanside for the season.

Noted among the recent arrivals at the Oceanside were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brainard of Pittsburg and their three daughters, the Misses Frances, Adelaide and Margaret, and son, Ira F. Brainard, 2nd. They are regular season guests and will remain until September. Miss Frances and Miss Adelaide are very attractive young ladies and are sure to be popular in the younger set, as usual.

A popular young lady with the younger set at the hotel is Miss Dorothy Nicol, a very sweet girl with a fine personality. Tuesday evening Miss Nicol was becomingly gowned in a delft blue taffeta which contrasted beautifully with her wonderful Titian hair.

Mr. James Gayley of New York, a regular summer visitor, has returned to the Oceanside for a few weeks' stay.

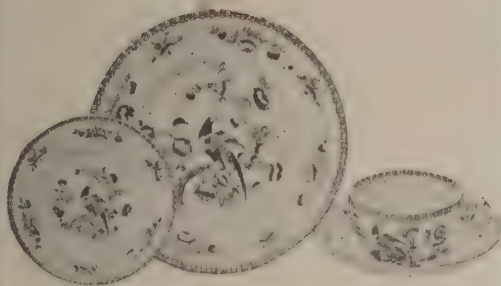

Miss E. P. Hamlen of Boston has returned to the Oceanside for the season. Miss Hamlen has been a regular guest for several seasons and has a large circle of friends in the summer colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Caleb S. Ridgeway, Miss Sarah S. Ridgeway, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob E. Ridgeway, all of Columbus, N. J., are at the Oceanside for a two weeks' visit.

Lieutenant C. A. E. King, whose home is at Wakefield was a week-end guest of John D. Carscallen, a season guest at the Oceanside.

Mrs. W. Couch Stuart and daughters the Misses Edith and Lillie of Paris and Newport, were week-end visitors at the Oceanside, coming up in their motor.

New arrivals at the hotel on Tuesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Williamson and son, Raymond, of White Plains, N. Y., who motored down from the White Mountains where they have been stopping at the Mount Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Williamson are very delightful people and were here three years ago. Mr. Raymond Williamson is a cadet at West Point in the class of '18 and is a very versatile young man, which will insure ready entree into the younger set at the Oceanside.

A MOTOR PARTY made up of Miss Louise Smith, Tacoma, Wash.; Miss Marion Mead of Arlington, and Miss S. E. Crompton of Brookline, lunched at the Oceanside, Magnolia, on Tuesday en route to Bar Harbor, Maine.

Some of the gowns worn at the dance Saturday evening were unusually beautiful, especially the one worn by Mrs. Richard of New York. Her clothes are always remarked upon for their good style and elegance.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley L. Smith and daughter, Miss Gwendolyn Smith of Sheffield, Mass., are registered at the Oceanside for a two weeks' stay, and are occupying apartments in the Breakers cottage. They are accompanied by Miss Agnes Ketcham of Sheffield.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Aderton accompanied by the Misses Margaret Houser and Grace Houser, all of St. Louis, comprised a motor party which spent Tuesday and Wednesday at the Oceanside en route for their summer home at Dark Harbor, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cronkite and maid of Memphis are recent arrivals at the Oceanside and are domiciled in Sea Vista cottage for the season.

Mrs. Oren Scotten, Mrs. Edward S. George and Mrs. David McGregor, all of Detroit are spending a few days at the Oceanside. They are personal friends of Mrs. Angus McLean of Detroit, who is a July guest at the hotel.

H. P. McIntosh, Mrs. R. D. Beatty and son Henry M. Beatty of Cleveland are registered at the Oceanside for a lengthy stay, and are occupying rooms in the Sea Vista. This is their first visit to Magnolia.

J. G. McGee of Belfast, Ireland, has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne of Boston, who are summering at the Oceanside.

R. T. Riley and party of Winnipeg composed a motor party which lunched at the Oceanside on Wednesday en route for Canada via the coast to New Brunswick.

Mrs. Frank Chick of Salem was the guest at luncheon recently of Mrs. Frank Warner.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown of Providence motored to the Oceanside on Friday and spent the week-end, returning to town on Monday.

Another week-end motor party were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Palmer of Detroit, who are on their way to Bar Harbor, Maine.

Notable among the dancers Saturday night were W. H. Coolidge, Jr., and his charming young wife. Mr. Coolidge spent the week-end at his home, coming up from Framingham. Mrs. Coolidge wore a quaint frock of the Kate Greenaway order of champagne tones.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey of St. Louis entertained with a lovely dinner party at the North Shore Grill last Thursday evening, later coming over to the Oceanside for the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. John Woodfin with son and daughter of Rutland, Vt., motored to Magnolia for the week-end and registered at the Oceanside. The Woodfins are friends of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne of Boston, who are spending the summer at the hotel.

Mrs. George N. Stone and maid of New York are domiciled in the Perkins cottage for the season.

Little Miss Joan Williams and maid of Chicago have arrived at the Oceanside to join Miss Williams' grandmother, Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, who is spending the season at Magnolia, with apartments in the Breakers.

Among the recent comers are Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Bowerman, prominent residents of Washington, D. C., who will make a few weeks' visit at the Oceanside.

What a delight to the feminine heart to know that one can go to the seashore for the summer, disregard the dews and the damp, take as many baths in the briney as desired and still have beautiful waved locks. This fact has come to stay and Pierre of New York, the originator of the permanent wave is right at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia, with all his latest improved methods of waving, without the least discomfort to the patron. With Pierre are several expert beautifiers in the persons of Miss Angela Roos of the Ritz-Carlton, a facial massage specialist, Mr. Sears of New York and London, proficient in the Pierre method of waving, and Miss Dorothy Ellis, for ten years with A. Sironson of New York, a specialist on the hair. Pierre is famous for his transformations and has a beautiful display here, as well as fine tortoise shell goods, rhinestone studded, also a full line of cosmetics. His shop is newly remodeled and is perfectly sanitary.

THE OCEANSIDE, at Magnolia, is far-famed for its coterie of pretty girls, who are the life and attraction of the hotel. Never was there such a number of the various types of beauty than at the hotel this summer. No doubt this explains why there are so many young and attractive men at the hotel each awaiting his opportunity to be of some small service to the "sweet things." None of the girls at the hotel are more attractive with all the charm of the Western girl than vivacious Miss Ruth McLean, of Detroit. Miss McLean was very stunning at the Saturday evening hop in an exquisite black net which enhanced her peach-blow coloring.

Noticed among those who enjoyed the Saturday evening hop at the Oceanside were Mr. and Mrs. William Baldwin Miller of Beverly Cove, who came in with a party of friends. Mrs. Miller was very stunning in a beautiful black tulle gown, the only touch of color appeared in the American beauties at her girdle.

Lovely Doris Bryan was as dainty and attractive as ever on Saturday evening in a pretty lavender taffeta dancing frock.

Mrs. George A. Dobyne of Boston, a season guest at the Oceanside, was very stunning Saturday evening in a rich black velvet gown with princess lace and pearl trimmings.

Clarence H. Flack of Troy, N. Y., who is a guest at the Oceanside entertained a party of friends at dinner Saturday evening. The table was beautiful with quantities of cut flowers. Covers were laid for seven.

Pretty "Billy" Sichirich wore a dainty green frock Saturday evening and danced the whole evening through. Miss "Billy" is spending her first summer at the Oceanside, but is very popular and has many beaux.

Miss Isabella Wadsworth was very sweet and attractive at the Saturday evening hop in a dainty creation of pink and blue chiffon.

Miss Suzanne Anderson, the lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Anderson of Detroit, who are summering at the Oceanside, was the centre of all eyes Saturday evening as she danced in the ball-room. Little Miss Suzanne is a dainty and graceful dancer and was very charming in a white lace frock with pink taffeta bolero. Mrs. Anderson was gowned in a beautiful pink satin creation with rich lace and silver.

Miss Theodora Willard, who can readily count dancing to her already long list of accomplishments, was very stunning Saturday evening in a fluffy sea-foam creation of tulle.

Miss Janet Bryan wore a very bouffant dancing frock of pink taffeta with her usual grace and attractiveness.

A trio of beautifully gowned ladies were Mrs. Robert Cable and her two attractive daughters, Mrs. Charles Dupee and Miss Grace Cable. Mrs. Cable was gowned in an exquisite black silk. Mrs. Dupee wore a lovely flesh-colored taffeta, a Lucille model. Miss Cable appeared in a dainty Nell pink creation with bodice of silver and beautiful lace. These charming ladies are a pleasing acquisition to the hotel colony.

William Cary Sanger, Jr., of Sangerfield, N. Y., was a guest of his aunt, Miss Sanger at the Oceanside for the week-end.

BRIDGE games seem to have come to the fore at the Oceanside, and many of the guests who do not dance enjoy the intricacies of this popular pastime. It seemed to the observer that a greater number than ever were busy with the game on Tuesday evening.

Tuesday evening's hop at the Oceanside was very pretty and a kaleidoscopic array of brilliant colors displayed in the ladies' gowns. Black appears to have come to its own, however, for many of the dancers wore beautiful black dancing frocks.

It seems as if the mothers of the young people have mastered the difficulties of the new steps for it is noticeable at each of the hops that more of the ladies enjoy the dancing with their children. Particularly true was this Tuesday evening when Mrs. Calvin Bullock of Denver danced with her handsome young son, Hugh, several of the numbers with much grace. Mrs. Bullock was beautifully gowned in day-break yellow silk.

Miss Ruth Knowles of Boston, who is summering at the Oceanside chaperoning Miss Theodora Willard, gave a delightful concert Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock in the southeast parlor to a number of her friends. Miss Knowles possesses a rich mezzo-soprano voice which has a great amount of expression and volume, and which seems to unfold this lady's wonderful personality.

Thomas S. Chalmers of Chicago has come to the Oceanside to visit his parents Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, who are here for the season. Mr. Thomas will remain for a few weeks.

Mrs. Harriet S. Cowles of Boston is domiciled at the Oceanside for a month's stay.

Mrs. Charles Dupee, a charming young matron, of New York, has come to the Oceanside to join her mother, Mrs. Robert Cable, who is making her abode in the Gables cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Eddy and Mr. and Mrs. William Armour, all of Providence, motored up to Magnolia for the week-end which they spent at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bethany with two children and maid of St. Louis have journeyed to Magnolia to join Mrs. Bethany's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Pollak, who are spending the season at the Oceanside.

Notable among the week-end arrivals at the Oceanside was A. S. Haxton of New York, who came to spend the week-end with Mrs. Haxton, who has apartments in the Centre cottage for the season.

Mrs. Annie Klein and Mrs. Isaac Guggenheim and maids of New York are recent arrivals, coming in their motor from Manhattan for a stay at the Oceanside. They are domiciled in Lawton cottage.

Rev. and Mrs. Harry P. Dewey and the Misses Eleanor, Cornelia and Margaret Dewey of Minneapolis, were short stay guests of Miss Caroline H. Bovey of Minneapolis, who is at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac N. Seligman and daughter, Miss Margaret and maids of New York are registered at the Oceanside for a two weeks' stay. They are accompanied by Miss Mary Foyer of London, Eng., and are domiciled in Seacrest cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Jennings of Catskill, N. Y., motored up to the Oceanside for the week-end to renew their many friendships here. Mr. and Mrs. Jennings are regular visitors each season.

Mrs. F. A. Roberts of Bala, Pa., and maid, accompanied by Miss E. C. Smith of Hagerstown, Md., are at the Oceanside again for the season, which is pleasing news to their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Rowland of Baltimore have returned to the Oceanside for the remainder of the season.

Miss Caroline Bovey of Minneapolis entertained a party of friends at dinner Saturday evening at the Oceanside. The guests were all from Rockport, coming up to enjoy the hop after dining. Covers were laid for eight at a table burdened with a profusion of cut flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Norton and Mrs. R. M. Speddin, all of Baltimore were an automobile party which spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

H. Foster Hinderlang of Brookline is a two weeks' visitor at the Oceanside.

Miss M. A. Shannon of Boston is a guest of Florence St. John Baldwin for a two weeks' stay.

Mrs. John E. Howe of New York is making an indefinite stay at the Oceanside. Mrs. Howe is a friend of Mrs. James McLean, who is a July guest at the hotel.

James McLean has come up from New York to join Mrs. McLean until the termination of their visit which will be the first of August, when they will leave for their country home in New York state.

William L. Shaw of Dallas, Texas, who with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Keating is spending July at the Griswold, New London, was a week-end visitor at the Oceanside. Mr. and Mrs. Keating and Mr. Shaw spent last season at the Oceanside, and will probably spend the month of August at Magnolia.

WARNING --IMPOSTORS

VARIOUS residents of the North Shore have telephoned and written to the publishers of "Who's Who Along the North Shore," regarding solicitors who are at work seeking orders for a false "Who's Who."

The real "WHO'S WHO ALONG THE NORTH SHORE" is published by the Salem Press Co. at 300 Essex St., Salem, and their annual book is ready for delivery today. It has become recognized as the standard year book and social register of the North Shore, and has a reputations for accuracy and completeness, which is unexcelled.

Persons who have given any order during the past two weeks for a "Who's Who" directory should make sure that they are not mislead into buying the wrong book.

Copies may be had at the Breeze office. Price $3.50

Private and Class Instruction

THE LADIES OF MAGNOLIA are working with a will and zest at the Surgical Dressings meetings every morning at the Oceanside Annex. The ladies have been granted the privilege of using the front parlor in the west wing which is more roomy and pleasant than the back, which they have occupied heretofore. The ladies have given generously to the fund for the purchase of materials for the work, and continued donations are earnestly requested. Thursday morning's meeting was in charge of Mrs. Edith M. Binney, the vice-president of the Branch, who is untiring in her efforts for the progress of this splendid work. Three other ladies who are enthusiastic workers at the meetings are Mrs. Charles Berwind of Philadelphia, Miss Irene Cramp of Philadelphia and Mrs. Charles Potter of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. They have been very generous in their donations to the fund, as well as devoting a great portion of their mornings to the work.

Mrs. Chas. Potter of Philadelphia, who is considered one of the best dressed women at the Oceanside, looked very handsome last Saturday evening at the hop. Her gown was of velvet, a delicate lavender shade, and with it she wore her beautiful pearls.

D. B. Hussey and Allen T. West of St. Louis both won beautiful silver cups in the recent tournament at the Essex County club. Mr. Bert Walker, also of St. Louis, came down from Kennebunkport for the tournament.

This Friday evening will be celebrated at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, by a special "Auto Festival" dinner, which ought to be a gala event. A number of invitations have been sent out to North Shore residents. Automobile numbers will be taken by attendants as the motor cars arrive, and at ten o'clock a drawing will be taken, the lucky number receiving a beautiful souvenir. The North Shore Grill is the popular rendezvous of the smart set, and a notable gathering is expected.

A charming visitor to Magnolia Wednesday was Mrs. P. A. O'Connell, the attractive wife of Mr. P. A. O'Connell, president of the E. T. Slattery Co. stores. The O'Connells are spending part of the summer at Beach Bluff, making the Hotel Preston their home. Mrs. O'Connell was accompanied in her motor by Miss Anna O'Connell of Brookline, a sister of Mr. O'Connell, who is their guest at Swampscott for a short stay.

WONDERFULLY beautiful and attractive were the bride's complete trousseaux which I saw today while shopping at the Grande Maison de Blanc, "The Trousseau House of America," at Magnolia,—everything for the bride-to-be, including table and bed linens of the finest qualities, richly and heavily embroidered in monograms of every conceivable combination of letters. Then there were the dearest comfy silk comfortables, monogrammed, also, and in the most delicate colors to harmonize with chamber color schemes. Next I saw the most adorable brides' handkerchiefs in delightful array from the more inexpensive qualities for everyday wear, to the sheerest and cobwebiest textures for the dressier requirements. To complete the splendid exhibit of things for the coming bride, were the loveliest garments of French underwear, all-hand-fashioned, from the plainer qualities to the richest, fluffy and most alluring that could possibly be procured or desired.

VERY artistic and dainty, cool and inviting, is the Garden Room at the Grande Maison de Blanc, Magnolia, which is fitted for the patrons of the shop for resting, writing or reading. It is a beautiful room—all cream and refreshing green. The walls are cream, latticed with green up to the very dome of the ceiling. A pretty marble fountain in the centre of the room trickles with sparkling water. Pretty green and cream furniture is used and the drapes and lamp shades on the tables are of the same color tones; so also is the rug of green and cream, blocked. Through the pretty French doors entering upon the balcony with its flower boxes of geraniums one looks upon the beautiful rose garden and lawns.

Another new craft in Marblehead waters is "Jack-tar" which Henry A. Morss has added to his already fine collection of boats. It is a small boat, but very pretty of design.

ANNISQUAM

Rockholm Tea House, Annisquam, was opened July 19th by the Misses Whitcomb, Simmons College graduates. The Tea House is situated on a hill overlooking Ipswich Bay and the ocean, and the view is wonderful. There are splendid automobile drives around Rockholm. A card party is to be held at the Tea House the first of next week. adv.

The young society set of Annisquam, were entertained at the Barnacle on Friday by Miss Lloyd Shafer of Newton. The prizes were taken by the guest of honor, Miss Margaret Royer of Piqua, Ohio, Miss Katharine Gordon of St. Louis, and Miss Margaret Rice of New Haven. The other guests were Miss Priscilla Gale, Boston; Miss Margaret Concerse, West Newton; Misses Laura, Katherine and Virginia Rice, New Haven; Miss Sally Damon, Misses Dorothy and Joan Simpson, and Miss Bailey, Newton; Miss Josephine Woods, Winchester; and Miss Hilda Prince, Lexington.

NOTHING IS MORE ABSOLUTELY CERTAIN than that one thing comes from another thing. Results follow causes. Antecedents produce consequences. Causes produce effects and effects become causes which produce other effects. We sow to reap and we reap to sow again. The present is the fruit of the past and contains the seed of the future. The old man suffers the penalties of his wrong doing committed in his youth. There are no exceptions to the law of harvest. Every individual, whatever his station in life, will reap what he sows. In this law there is no pity nor mercy. Whatever one may do by way of reformation it can never change the results of his acts. If young boys persist in smoking cigarettes; if girls are determined to talk and act immodestly, having already forgotten how to blush; if people will continue to sow the seeds of evil and pernicious habits, as sure as day follows night, sooner or later they will reap a harvest of a stunted brain, a dwarfed and sickly body, a soiled and ruined character, a debauched and worthless life.

The moral tone of the social world is not as high as it ought to be to make it easy for the young to do right and difficult to do wrong. Some books which are too generally and too eagerly read should be burned if not sold to the junk-man. Not all that is on the stage is uplifting and elevating. Some of the popular songs are neither fit for the home nor for the theatre.

It is an open secret and one much talked about that far too often the style of dress is, to say the least, immodest and the occasion of remarks that are not to be repeated in the company of the pure and good.

BEVERLY FARMS AND MANCHESTER

¶From the island one has a magnificent panorama of the North Shore for twenty miles, in every direction, with an atmosphere like the Coast of Maine, yet within nineteen miles of Boston. The Island has about eighty acres, with several beaches and one of the finest swimming pools in Massachusetts, which tempers the ocean water about fifteen degrees. Very fine tennis courts are maintained by the Casino, where homelike rooms and board may be obtained for reasonable rents. ¶The property is being developed into beautiful summer homes and is one of the most attractive summer colonies in New England. ¶One housekeeping cottage to rent for August, or meals can be had at the Casino. ¶Apply to Steward, Mystery Island, or J. Mrs. J. Burdick of the Annisquam summer colony gave a delightful bridge on Wednesday at The Barnacle in honor of her sister, Mrs. Frederick Baldwin of Sherbrook, Canada. The guests were Madam Baldwin, Mrs. Harry Duane, and Mrs. Dwight Thomas of Brookline; Mrs. Frederick Eaton, Bass Rocks; Mrs. John Shafer, Newton; Mrs. Samuel Gordon, St. Louis; Mrs. Walter O. Adams, Winchester, and Mrs. Kirkaldy, Mrs. George Andrew, and Mrs. Frederick Simpson, Newton.

Mrs. Leila Kline of Hawthorne Inn was hostess to a very agreeable tea party at the tea house, The Barnacle. Her guests were Gen. and Mrs. Anson Mills, East Gloucester; Miss Minnie Smiley, Mrs. Jane Smiley and Allen Mills of Thornton, Indiana; Mrs. Winfield Scott Overton and Miss Kathleen Kline of Washington.

Mrs. Ralph H. Booth, Virginia, and John Lord Booth of Detroit are stopping at the Thorwald again this season. to be a very pleasant affair and an orchestra will furnish music.

Like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hide some men are living a double life.

*"But he who lives more lives than one,
More deaths than one must die."*

Nations too are no exception to this law of harvest. They will reap what they sow. Rome fell not because of her enemies without, but because of her enemies within, for she was big with the elements of her own destruction. Witness France in the days of its revolution when the cheapest thing in the nation seemed to be a human life and when no one knew how soon he might be seized and rushed to the guillotine.

And now witness the nations of Europe that are at war with one another! What a harvest they are reaping! For years they have been sowing the seeds of jealousy, envy, malice, hatred, and now they are reaping a harvest such as the world has never before witnessed and the end is not yet. Shall we as a nation take notice and avoid their un wisdom and errors? The seeds of war will produce a harvest of bloodshed. We should everywhere scatter the seeds of peace that we may heap a harvest of good-will, friendship and love for all mankind.—Contributed.

AFTERNOON TEA

IPSWICH has the honor of starting something really new this Wednesday. That is, it is new as far as the BREEZE knows. A class in Preparedness Cooking was opened in the Winthrop school under the auspices of Fred B. Knight, superintendent of Ipswich schools. The pupils are from Ipswich, and Coolidge's Point, Manchester, Wenham, and other resorts will soon be represented. The young matrons and society girls who make up the class are zealous in their efforts to learn to cook along these special lines, and their progress will be watched with interest. Mrs. Montgomery Sears, who has charge of the domestic economics of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness, suggested, in her recent talk at Beverly, that every woman prepare in some way, so that in case of need, it would be known who could do special lines of work best. She said that the canning department, in charge of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer (mother of Mrs. Frederic Winthrop of Hamilton), had thought of sending to the troops in Texas, the results of their work this summer. The class in Ipswich is composed of Mrs. John Heard, Mrs. H. N. Doughty, Mrs. H. P. McKean, Jr., Mrs. Robert Haydock (Ruth Harrington), and the Misses Eleanor Jackson, Corinna Searle, Polly Proctor, Ruth Paine, Elizabeth Paine, Ruth Foster, Caroline Fessenden and others. Another section will probably be made soon, ten being considered sufficient for one group. The class is open to all at $5 for the course. Miss Nutter of Rowley and her assistant are in charge.

"Briar Hill," Appleton Farms, has not been opened for several years, but it is occupied this summer for a short time by Mrs. Norman R. Sturgis and children of Medfield, who have come to visit Mrs. Sturgis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of Boston, who are staying at Y^e Rogers Manse in Ipswich. Mrs. Sturgis has with her Mrs. A. Boynton Glidden of Medfield. "Briar Hill" is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods (Harriette G. Cotton-Smith) and is one of the old homesteads on the Appleton Farms.

Prof. Arthur S. Kimball and family of Oberlin College are spending the summer at Little Neck, Ipswich. Prof. Kimball is an artist of much renown and is busily engaged in making sketches of North Shore scenes.

Mrs. Joseph B. Breed of Lynn is spending the summer with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Berry of Lynn, at Ipswich, where they are occupying the Charles Bohlen estate on County road. The place is known as "Ingleside," taking its name from the little brook or part of Ipswich river that runs through it. The house stands well back from the road and is entered by a long driveway passing over an old wooden bridge near or seemingly part of an old mill building. The whole place is a charming, quiet place in which to spend a summer. It lies between the George E. Barnard home and that of Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman near Appleton Farms.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wendell (Ruth Appleton) of Charles River village are spending the summer with Mrs. Wendell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton of "Appleton Farms," Ipswich. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hay (Alice Appleton) are in Newbury in a quiet country place far from other estates.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins of the Manse gave a river party last Tuesday night, taking the Joseph F. Woodses, Mrs. Norman R. Sturgis and her house-guest, Mrs. A. Boynton Glidden, for a trip up Ipswich river.

Miss Elsie Heard of Ipswich, who has painted pictures of many children in North Shore homes, is now making frequent trips to Kendal Green to paint the portrait of a little child in the Austin T. White home.

Y^e Rogers Manse did a thriving business during the recent hot spell. As many as fifty came during the hot night of last week. Mrs. C. D. Stanford and daughter, Miss Amy Stanford, of Ipswich and Mrs. Joseph C. Kilham of Beverly have been among those giving luncheons. The place is becoming known far and wide as one of the best Inns in its locality.

Y^e Burnham House has been a busy place lately. Among the many Shore guests have been Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle; and a luncheon party recently was composed of Mrs. John B. Moulton, her mother, Mrs. George E. Niles, Mrs. John Heard and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr. The register shows names from all parts of the country, many of whom make a special trip through Ipswich in order to stop at the old house. Mrs. Herbert Nickerson of Chicago and the New Ocean House, Swampscott, entertained sixteen for luncheon last week.

The lazy worker watching the clock is unconsciously looking for the hour when he will get "fired."

THE BARNARD GARDENS again! Once each season the BREEZE writer visits the beautiful gardens in Ipswich belonging to the George E. Barnards of "River Bend Farm." This summer more changes have been made than usual and the whole presents a beautiful picture when viewed from the high rocky garden on the hillside. The greatest change is that the rose garden has been lifted up bodily and transplanted to another part of the place and is now in full bloom, a most unusual thing for the first year after such a change. The re-planting was made the middle of May.

One of the most striking features of the place is the new garden of California heliotropes, where 1000 of the rare plants form a purple mass in serpentine beds with tree heliotropes in the center. Imported lilacs are also becoming a feature of the garden. Much space has been added this year by taking out vegetables and fruits and making all into flowers and wide lawns. Notable among the rare plants in the rock garden are the Japanese Iris, Japanese cedar, the Scotch heather, little white saxafarge and the edelweiss, the latter two being natives of the Alps.

A little water garden lying at the end of the garden near the Ipswich river is very attractive looking. The great beauty of the place seems to be the neatness of arrangement, the wide spaces of lawn between the many flowers, the river scenery and the delightful little rock garden with its cosy summer houses and broad view. The garden is ten years old and has many prizes, among them being the Special Diploma, given last year by the Mass. Horticultural society. Two second prizes were taken in Boston recently at the rose show.

Leading up from the garden to the fine terraced lawns surrounding the house is a grassy, shaded walk where many fine trees and shrubbery of much beauty are noted. The terraces are filled with their usual wealth of flowers.

HAMILTON is in the midst of the haying season just now. Nothing is prettier and more picturesque than the roads leading past the large estates where their hay crops are being gathered in, in many cases by a large force of men. Strings of horses and dogs are also among the frequent sights on the road. Missed from the polo players constantly traveling the Hamilton roads to the Myopia Hunt Club have been Bobby Shaw, who has been playing at Narragansett, and Shaw McKean and Harry McKean, who were of the large party going to the Calumet and Hecla mines in the Rodolphe L. Agassiz party.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Bement, who are living in Hamilton in one of the remodeled houses on the Vaughan property are having the grounds laid out in a very artistic manner. Mrs. John B. Moulton planned the changes in the place, and when work was in progress a spring was struck of considerable force in spouting. This spring was run into a brook and the brook widened into two ponds. Mr. Bement has had goldfish put in the ponds, and with flowers growing around them and throughout the place, the pretty little ponds are very noticeable to all passers-by. The quaint old house finished in the brown natural wood tint and bearing the date 1721 over the old-fashioned doorway, is shaded by brown canvas awnings at all of the windows, matching the house in color and giving a very effective touch.

Mrs. John B. Moulton has some interesting and fancy breeds of dogs at her home in Hamilton. Among the dozen or more of French poodles and West Highland terriers there is a rare one from Belgium, named Tello, a corded poodle, whose long shaggy locks hang in cords or fringes to the ground. He has a wonderfully intelligent face, is a good watchdog and has a record showing that he has been a winner in many shows. He was originally purchased by Mrs. Moulton's mother, Mrs. G. E. Niles, from a Paris dog show.

WENHAM.—There will be an exhibit of gladioli at Cedar Acres, the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 9, from 3 to 7, for the benefit of the American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly, France. Tickets at 50c may be obtained from Miss Julia Meyer in Hamilton or at the entrance to Cedar Acres. In case of rain the flowers will be shown the next day.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sharp of Boston are spending their first season in Wenham at "Cranleigh," the fine home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Little. This is one of the most attractive looking places at Wenham Neck, located on Grapevine road. The pretty formal garden in front of the house in very showy now with the tall red ramblers which are clinging to arches swung together by heavy iron chains. It is a most unique arrangement and makes a striking picture now when seen from the roadway. The roses over the doorway and the vinecovered stone wall are also pretty features of the place. The house and barn, large gray-shingled affairs with white trimmings and green blinds are among the most noticeable in this region of Wenham Neck. The Arthur Littles and their daughters, the Misses Anne and Jessie Means are living in Beverly Farms this season in the School House cottage.

Mrs. Charles T. Parker of "Cotshabbie," Wenham, spent Wednesday in Beverly at the Thorndike club of which she is the founder. The club was having a pastry sale in the afternoon and a lawn party at night. Dancing was enjoyed in the assembly room. The club is now in its new quarters on Dane street. An old house was remodeled making a commodious place for the girls, about 200 members, to enjoy classes, rest rooms and recreation rooms. Mrs. Parker gave the club a piano and some of the furnishings. The club is entirely self-supporting. An exchange is also one of the features. The club is fulfilling a long felt want in Beverly and cannot fail to have the support of the many friends of the working girl. Mrs. Parker is constantly working and planning methods by which its usefulness may be spread to all girls.

The Clifton Improvement society with Messrs. Charles Boyd as president, W. L. Terhune, secretary, and George A. Dill, treasurer, gave a dinner at the Tedesco club Monday evening to about thirty members. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed. Mr. William D. Sohler of Boston, of the Highway Commission, was the speaker of the evening, his subject pertaining to better roads.

A charming addition to the Clifton colony is Mrs. C. A. Rice of Brookline with her two daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Buckminster of Atlantic avenue, Clifton, are entertaining their grand-daughter, Miss Joan Buckminster of New York, who will remain for the rest of the summer.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, Swampscott.—The busy social season at Swampscott has struck a happy measure, providing plenty of entertainment for the guests at the New Ocean House. The hotel is still accommodating its capacity and the management is anxiously waiting the opening of the new $150,000 fire-proof annex in order that the large numbers already making reservations may be provided for. The season at the New Ocean House is running far in advance of previous years and by the first of August and the opening of the new building it is expected that the social activities of the guests will assume even greater proportions.

Among the most important of the past week's event was the Children's Party held Wednesday afternoon in the main ball room of the hotel, at which Mrs. E. R. Grabow was the hostess. More than half a hundred of the younger set at the New Ocean House and their friends from the exclusive cottage colony were present to take part in the delightful festivities. Attractive favors consisting of paper poppies and canes of bizarre hues were presented to the little ones. The prizes in the grand march were awarded to the Misses Schrafft and Meggison and the Masters Geisinger and Hall. The individual dancing numbers consisted of a serpentine dance by Miss Josephine McNichols; toe dance by Miss Elizabeth Walker; and numbers entitled "The Fairy Snowflake" and "Dove of Peace" by the Misses Maxime Maxwell and Rose Brophy.

Not only has the main hotel as well as all the bungalow cottages been filled to capacity during the past week, but the floor space in the main garage has also reached its limit and the management has turned over to the use of the guests the service garage attached to the hotel plant. The increasing number of cars has been very gratifying in view of the endeavors of the hotel to supply equally efficient service in all departments connected with the house.

Scott C. Carboe, the American portrait painter, has registered at the New Ocean House for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. D. W. Baldwin, Mrs. G. D. Brunnell and Miss C. T. Baldwin of New Haven, Conn., comprised a luncheon party which stopped at the New Ocean House Saturday on a tour through New England. Others in the party included Miss Mary Woodruff of Orange, Conn., and Mrs. M. A. Mansfield of Nashua, N. H.

Dr. J. H. Morron of Peoria, Ill., and the Misses Morron entertained at dinner Saturday evening Mrs. D. P. Grier, Miss Anne M. Grier, Mrs. R. H. Todd and Miss Ann M. Todd.

J. M. Francis and the Misses Francis of Detroit, Mich., have arrived for the season at the New Ocean House.

Mrs. Ernest W. Diehl of Brookline entertained at luncheon Friday a party consisting of Mrs. Fred W. Crosby, Mrs. John N. Gannon, Miss Bertha Harrison, Mrs. Augustus Hawley and Mrs. O. D. Clark, all of Brookline.

Among the arrivals of the past week have been the following: J. M. Francis and the Misses Francis of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. C. D. Dudley of Haverhill, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Walker, Frederick W. Walker of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Cornwell, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Johnson of Hartford, Conn.; H. B. Vaughn of Orange, N. J.; Mrs. P. Duffy, Miss Rose Duffy, Miss K. Ewald of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hooper of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. H. S. Ripley of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Converse of York, Me.; Mrs. Charles Donnelly of St. Paul, Minn.; S. O. SWAMPSCOTT has experienced a very busy week with a great influx of visitors and with the prospects of many more. The season which has advanced into the third week of July is by no means half over yet, which is generally supposed when the 15th is passed and over, because many have signified their intention of remaining at the shore until away into September, probably bearing in mind the wonderful days which the approach of Autumn usually brings. Nearly all the women of the summer colony have taken a deep interest in the Surgical Dressings Work which has a branch at the Neighborhood club, and the attendance is large.

Three lovely girls with all the charms of youth and good looks are the Farrar girls, the Misses Katherine, Margaret and Ruth. The three girls are earnest and industrious workers at the Surgical Dressings meetings which are held in the Neighborhood club at Swampscott each Friday morning. Miss Ruth Farrar recently announced her engagement to James Percival Hale of Salem and Topsfield.

The Wednesday morning meeting of ladies which is held at the home of Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter at Galloupe's Point for the purpose of making surgical dressings was a very successful one, and much work was accomplished. The dressings will be used for our own boys, if necessity demands them.

NEWCOMERS along the Shore will be interested to learn that there is a high-class women's specialty shop conveniently located in Lynn where many of the fashionable summer colonists do their shopping, thereby saving a long trip into Boston. This store is Goddard Bros. and is located on Market street. They carry fine quality wearing apparel, from Italian silk underwear to the most attractive outing hats. A visit there would be pleasant.

PHILLIPS BEACH is in the throes of the summer season with a vast amount of its colony doing its part to help the worthy cause of the Surgical Dressings Work, which meetings are held each Friday morning at the Neighborhood club. A number of the residents, too, are interested and enthusiastic golfers, and spend a great deal of their spare time on the links of the Tedesco club. Mrs. Stanley Forbes is one of these ladies and plays a very good game.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Terhune of Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, have been entertaining W. E. Worcester of Brookline for a short stay.

Mrs. Frank Aborn has rented her beautiful home on Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, to Mr. Maurice J. Curran and family of Andover, who took possession on Monday last. Mr. Curran is building a palatial summer residence at the corner of Atlantic avenue and Ocean avenue which will not be completed until next season. Miss Marguerite Curran is an attractive young lady, a member of this charming family, who will, no doubt, be a pleasing acquisition to the younger set at Phillips Beach.

Mrs. Robert F. Kimball of Atlantic avenue entertained Miss Ruth Hichborn of Cambridge and Miss Dorothy Crosby of Brookline on Friday last, the young ladies coming to Phillips Beach to enjoy a golf match at the Tedesco club.

On Saturday afternoon the members of the Equal Suffrage club of Swampscott, as well as those of Lynn and Nahant, all of the Sixth Senatorial Suffrage District, held a Basket Picnic at Phillips Beach. Although the weather was not very propitious, still a large number of women were present and a pleasant afternoon enjoyed. Unfortunately, Miss Florence Luscomb of Boston, a very able and interesting speaker, was unable to be present, which was a disappointment. During the afternoon cards were distributed among the members to sign which will make them members of the Massachusetts State Women's Organization without the payment of dues. Miss Louise Earle of Lynn is senatorial chairman. Mrs. C. H. Bond is president of the Equal Suffrage club of Swampscott and Mrs. Joseph A. Ingalls is vice-president.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Chatman of Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, entertained at a dinner at the Neighborhood club Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Paul of Overbrook, Pa., who are house-guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Carpenter at Phillips Beach. Mrs. Paul is a sister of Mr. Carpenter and has a large circle of friends on the North Shore where she visits every summer. The table was beautifully decorated with roses and covers were laid for eight. Mr. and Mrs. Paul will soon leave for their mountain home in the Adirondacks.

In the passing of Thomas Upham of 332 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and Phillips Beach into another life, this community has lost one of its oldest summer residents. Mr. Upham was within one month of his 105th birthday and enjoyed very good health up to about two months ago, which illness resulted in his death.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Holloway of Phillips Beach, who are spending the summer at the Bellevue, entertained a party of friends at dinner at the Neighborhood club on Friday evening last. Covers were laid for eight.

Wednesday evening was band concert and dinner dance night at the Tedesco club and a gala event it was. The clubhouse was beautifully illuminated with Japanese

Spencer, four; Rev. A. H. Robinson, three; J. C. Woodley, ten; J. C. Gray, four; G. C. Dempsey, four; F. M. Saltell, five; H. B. Ingalls, four; C. F. Smith, six; W. A. Pevear, three; C. H. Hood, five; E. F. Greene, six.

In the men's open tennis tournament at the Tedesco, the finals of which were played off last Saturday, W. A. Carl beat R. C. Seaver. In the ladies' handicap singles Mrs. P. B. Magrane won over Miss Mary Glover, which was a most interesting and close match. In the ladies' sweepstake tournament, which was played off Tuesday, Mrs. R. F. Kimball won, her score being 103-15-88; Mrs. Alexander McGregor, 100-10-90; Miss Frances Cross, 108-18-90; Mrs. S. W. Forbes, 119-25-94. In the gentlemen's sweepstake tournament, played off on Saturday, Alexander McGregor, Jr., won with a score of 97-22-75; C. W. Conklin, 97-24-75; H. F. McNeil, 94-18-76-P. C. Wiggin, 98-21-77. Handicap vs Par: Alexander McGregor, Jr., 5 down; H. H. Holton, 7 down; H. F. McNeil, 6 down.

Hotel Preston, Beach Bluff

HOTEL PRESTON, BEACH BLUFF.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Pizzini of New York are among the recent arrivals at the Preston for the remainder of the season.

H. H. Fudger of Toronto and the Misses Fudger are registered at the Preston for a stay indefinite. The Fudgers are very prominent people of Toronto and are a pleasing addition to the Preston colony.

H. S. Griggs of Jacksonville, Fla., with his young son, are among the recent comers to the Preston. They will probably remain until the middle of August.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Strout of New York have arrived at the Preston for the remainder of the season, which has been their custom for several years.

Mrs. MacDonald McCarthy of Montreal has returned to the Preston for a month's stay. Mrs. McCarthy has been a regular visitor at the hotel for years.

Mrs. D. H. Allis and daughter, Miss Catherine, of Springfield are registered at the Preston for the remainder of the summer.

Loving kindness is greater than laws, and the charities of life are more than all ceremonies.—Talmud.

BEACH BLUFF, too, is very busy with its quota of summer people. Nearly every one here is interested in the Surgical Dressings Work and are doing their fair share for this splendid and worthy cause for the helping of mankind. Many of the women have not only given their time, but have donated munificent sums for the promotion of the work.

Mrs. Alexander McGregor of Sea View avenue is an enthusiastic golfer and has mastered the sport to a remarkable degree. Mrs. McGregor has a wonderful stroke, playing with great skill and measuring distances very accurately. A series of tournaments have been put on at the Tedesco club, where Mrs. McGregor plays the game, for every Tuesday, which is in charge of Mrs.

McGregor and Mrs. Robert F. Kimball of Phillips Beach. Much interest has been aroused by these tournaments and many entries have been made.

Two interested attendants at the series of "First Aid" lectures which are being given by Dr. George Sumner Hill of Boston at Marblehead under the auspices of the Red Cross are Miss Frances Cross and Miss Muriel Squire. Both young ladies are spending the summer at the Bellevue.

Mrs. J. C. Clark of Beach Bluff has gone to her summer camp at Ipswich for the remainder of the season.

Quite a mechanical genius is young Stephen Paine, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paine of "The Farm" at Beach Bluff, who has become very proficient in the art of moving picture machinery. Mr. Stephen has been interested in the workings of motion picture machines for several years and has two very complete ones, one at the town house at Boston and another at Beach Bluff. He has added many ideas of his own to the machines with a remarkable degree of success, which plainly show his skill at things mechanical. Stephen has given many motion picture shows on the grounds of the Paine estate, inviting friends to come in and enjoy the performances. One night last week over a hundred witnessed a fine "show." He has just been graduated from Mr. S. K. Kerns Country Day School at Newton, and will enter Harvard this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston of "The Arches" are entertaining Miss Doris E. Thompson of New Haven as their house-guest. Miss Thompson has been a regular season visitor at the Preston residence for several years and has a number of friends among the summer colony.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paine of "The Farms" at Beach Bluff have had as their house-guest Miss Louise Hamilton Paine, the niece of Mr. Paine. Miss Paine, whose home is at Cleres, France, is a student nurse at

SWAMPSCOTT is the popular entrance to the beautiful

North Shore which is daily demonstrated by the continuous string of motor cars which wend their way down Puritan road and Atlantic avenue. To stand and observe this fact is rather astounding when one makes mental note of the number of cars which pass. It is interesting to note too the registration numbers from the various states. Any day one can see cars from nearly every state in the Union glide by. It brings to mind also that with the coming of the automobile distance is only mere detail and no summer colony strictly sectional.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Schrafft of Newtonville, who are occupying Mrs. C. H. Bond's house on Puritan road have been entertaining as their house guest Frank G. Shattuck of New York City for a short stay. Another house guest at the Schrafft home has been W. E. Schrafft, a brother to Mr. Schrafft, whose home is in New York. Expected week-end guests at the Schrafft home for the

A glowing tribute was paid Lieutenant Eugene H. Clapp of the First Corps Cadets in a recent issue of a Boston newspaper for his splendid management of the affairs of the Militia while at South Framingham. Lieutenant Clapp has been in charge of the Commissary Department for a number of years, and it was his excellent judgment and far-sightedness which spelled comfort and convenience for our boys when they were called into camp. Every man was furnished with good food and plenty of it, through the fine manner in which Lieutenant Clapp executed his commission. Lieutenant Clapp is a son of Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp and spent the week-end with his mother at "Tedesco Lodge," Swampscott.

Noted among the interested workers at the Friday morning meeting of the Swampscott Surgical Dressings Branch of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at the Neighborhood club are Mrs. William A. Paine, Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp, Miss Carroll Tapley (chairman of the Branch), Mrs. Fred Woods, Mrs. A. L. MARBLEHEAD NECK presents the appearance of mid-summer loveliness in both its fine homes and wonderful gardens. The gardens at the residence of the Frederick McQuestens are gorgeous in their full bloom and the array of beautiful blossoms are impressive.

The Oceanside hotel finds business very brisk at this time and the pretty tea garden overlooking the water, an ideal spot on a summer afternoon, is filled each day with guests. Motor parties, too, are many each day, judging from the long line of automobiles which stand outside the hotel.

The musicale which was given in the parlors of the Oceanside on Friday evening last by Madame Amy Trevanion, contralto, assisted at the piano by Pauline Keyte, was well attended by both the guests at the hotel and many of the cottagers at the Neck. The artists were well received and delighted their hearers with many fine musical numbers.

The recital which was given at "Questenmere," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten, at the Neck on Wednesday afternoon for the benefit of the French wounded, was well attended by a very appreciative audience and a substantial sum realized for this very worthy cause.

Three beautiful children are Edwin Arthur, Jr., Francis and Lillian Gertrude Shuman, the two sons and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shuman of "Mollhurst," Marblehead Neck. It is so refreshing to meet these lovely children and to enjoy their naturalness and interest. Edwin Arthur is a manly little boy of ten and is a very fine swimmer. His delight is to perform in the water. Francis is a dandy boy, too, of nearly nine, and his hobby is swimming, also. As to Lillian Gertrude, nearly four, she is the jewel of the household, a very pretty child, with large, blue eyes.

The Tuesday noon lecture at the Eastern Yacht club by Miss Ward of Boston given in the ladies luncheon room was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Whitcomb of Marblehead Neck entertained a large party at dinner at the Corinthian Yacht club on Monday evening. The table was beautifully arranged with a profusion of cut flowers. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Frothingham and Mr. and Mrs. John Appleton Burnham.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Cleghorn have just returned from a delightful motor trip through the Berkshires and the western part of Massachusetts.

The regular Monday evening dinner and band concert at the Corinthian Yacht club last Monday evening was a brilliant success, a large number of the members entertaining their friends at dinner, and enjoying the concert. The club was illuminated with myriads of electric lights, and the rooms were thrown open, en suite, for the comfort of the guests. The dining-room, a veritable bower of floral beauty, was made more charming by the beautiful gowns of the ladies. Among those who entertained at dinner were C. P. Blinn, Jr., six; C. E. Longley, six; C. O. Whitten, four; Howard Whitcomb, ten; H. Willis-

The "Vagrant," the beautiful big schooner of Harold S. Vanderbilt of the Eastern Yacht club and New York Yacht club, was the winner of the Norman cup in the race which started on Friday morning from Egg Rock Whistling Buoy off Bar Harbor, finishing at Halfway Rock, off Marblehead, a distance of 162 miles. It made a very pretty race and sailed into Marblehead away ahead of the other contestants.

C. H. W. Foster, who with his interesting family are spending the summer at the lovely home on Foster street, Marblehead Neck, has sold his yacht "Autocrat" to Walter C. Hubbard of New York and has a beautiful new craft "Finback."

MARBLEHEAD'S rock-bound coast is lovelier than ever as the summer progresses. Everywhere can be seen the pretty flower gardens which seem to grow upon the very rocks. Marblehead is quaint because of its old-fashioned houses and streets, but could anywhere be more orderly and well-cared for. The view from Crocker Park is a delightful one, which is appreciated by a large number of people each day, who come to the park to enjoy the outlook, and to feel the refreshing breezes as they blow from off the water.

The Girls' club of Marblehead with Miss Edith Fabers as president are planning a course of lectures to be given by Dr. G. S. Hill of Boston on "First Aid." The lectures will be held one evening a week in the high school, but the exact day has not yet been decided.

The summer colony at Marblehead is very busy arranging for a "Market Day" for the benefit of the Marblehead Visiting Nurses association which will take place at Crocker Park on August 10th from 10 in the morning until six. Among the prominent women who have interested themselves in the festival are Mrs. Francis B. Crowinshield, who will receive contributions of food, also taking charge of the children's show; Mrs. B. Devereux Barker, who will have charge of the bridge tables, and Mrs. William R. Castle, Jr., Mrs. George S. Hill and Mrs. Thomas G. Frothingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Cleghorn of Peach's Point, Marblehead, have been entertaining as their house-guests Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Spencer of the Copley-Plaza, Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Cleghorn gave a dinner at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, last Friday evening in honor of their guests.

CAPE ANN.—The terror in which the New Jersey coast has been thrown by the killing of bathers by man-eating sharks is a subject much talked about on Cape Ann. It is no wonder that some of the hundreds of bathers who take their daily dip into these waters have a "scarey" feeling when they enter the deep water. One prominent New York business man was heard to remark, "It takes some courage for us city folks to face the 'water sharks,' yet in the danger there is some fun after all. It's like flying and motor racing, knowing that there is danger, there is more ginger in the sport." However, bathers on Cape Ann need have no fear from man-eating sharks, as that species is not known in this locality. It is the opinion of Gloucester fishermen that it would be an almost unheard of thing for a shark to attack a person in these waters. The Boston Fish Bureau and old fishermen of Massachusetts Bay have stated that they have no knowledge of man-eating sharks in these waters. No less a person than William Ernest Castle, Ph. D., professor of zoology at Harvard, says that Boston and vicinity has little to fear from sharks. Bureau officials believe a lack of food may have brought them to the middle Atlantic coast in great numbers, from the waters farther south.

John Hays Hammond is now here from New York City where he was seriously ill with intestinal trouble. Mr. Hammond contracted his illness while in Chicago attending the National Republican Convention. Mr. Hammond is recuperating nicely at "Lookout Hill," his beautiful estate at Fresh Water Cove, where the cool salt sea breezes drift through fragrant pine branches about the estate. Mrs. Hammond arrived from New York a few days ago.

A movement has been started for the citizens of Gloucester to purchase the site of land on Western avenue, which was occupied by the Surfside hotel, burned down three years ago. Through the suggestion of Proprietor George O. Stacy of the Hawthorne Inn and other prominent citizens of Gloucester, it is purposed to make a public park of the land. This will indeed be most desirable as a magnificent view of the outer harbor is obtained from this point besides leaving an open view from the avenue and Main street. The encouraging report comes from the treasurer for this fund that over a thousand dollars has already been donated. Any person wishing to contribute towards the good work can communicate with John Cunningham, Main street, Gloucester, treasurer of this special fund.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening, July 26, a garden party will be held on the Cape Ann Fisherman's Home grounds, Eastern avenue, Gloucester, for the benefit of the Home. The Ladies' Auxiliary association has the affair in charge and the usual booths attending such an affair will be stocked for patronage. The party is being held for a most worthy cause, as the Home is a pleasant abiding place for fishermen past labor or infirm and the institution is supported only by voluntary contributions or assistance on social occasions.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—Although 2000 guests are housed at the various hotels in this colony of the North Shore at the present time, the resorts are by no means filled to overflowing. There is yet room for more. However, the heated weather is driving the people from the cities and by the first of August practically everything will have been taken. The Hawthorne Inn has the largest number of guests of any house and during the week-ends all rooms are occupied.

Percy Lee Atherton of Boston, the composer, is at the Hawthorne Inn for the summer.

The annual garden party given on the estate of the Misses Lathrop, Rocky Neck, East Gloucester, for the benefit of the Children's Island Sanitarium, Marblehead Harbor, was held on Friday afternoon. The party was attractive in its setting, a flower stall being a feature and tea was served at prettily decorated tables. A number of people from the hotels and cottages patronized the sale and the afternoon was one of much pleasure.

A card party was given at the home of Mrs. Harriet W. Patch on Eastern Point road on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, the proceeds to be given to the local Red Cross committee to buy material and clothing and equipment necessary in the Red Cross base hospitals near the Mexican border.

Late Beachcroft arrivals are: Mrs. F. W. Webb and daughter, Boston; Jeremiah Harrington and Miss Josephine McNaughton, Fall River; Mrs. J. G. Sullivan and son, New York; Jennie Powell Grady, Jessie Logie, Fannie Carter, Armistead, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Robertson Taylor, Mrs. Templeton Taylor, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. W. L. Root and son, Mrs. Carey S. Hayward, Laura F. Hayward, Pittsfield; Mary Loring Warner, Middleton, Ct.; Mrs. E. H. Paine, Somerville.

John Bowler of Worcester has joined his daughter, Mrs. Raymond Royce, and family at the Bowler estate, "High Cliff Lodge," Grape Vine Cove.

The Alexander Bowlers of Worcester are occupying "Twin Light Manor," their charming estate at Grape Vine Cove.

Richard W. Spalding of Brookline has purchased the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Albert Locke of Hackensack, N. J., situated on Ledge road, at the rear of Mt. Pleasant avenue. This charming cottage, containing eight rooms and two baths, is located in a picturesque spot on the hill and the outlook is most attractive, moor and sea being in the landscape. "The Birches," which is the name of the estate, is being occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Spalding.

The Misses Spalding of Brookline, sisters of Richard W. Spalding, have purchased a fine lot of land on Ledge road, near the estate of the latter, from Ex-Mayor Patch. Plans are to be drawn for an attractive cottage and building will begin in the autumn or spring.

W. E. Atwood has taken the studio on the estate of Mrs. Clara Harrington, East Main street, for the season, while his big studio is in the process of construction.

Miss Emma Eastwick of Philadelphia has taken the Spurr house on Gerring street, near Mt. Pleasant avenue, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Reid and family, of Washington, D. C., have taken a cottage on Rocky Neck, near the Gloucester Yacht clubhouse. Mr. Reid is the only son of the late Brig. Gen. George Croghan Reid, whose widow owns "Heathercrest," an estate at Eastern Point, of which the general was very fond in his late years.

G. B. Marean of Michoacan, Mexico, has recently joined his family here, located in one of the Taylor bungalows on Mt. Pleasant avenue. Mr. Marean had a thrilling experience in the Gulf of Mexico, when the Monterey of the Ward Steamship line, upon which he was sailing to New York from Vera Cruz, met with a violent storm and it was reported that the steamship was lost. The wireless apparatus on board was destroyed by the gale so that no messages could be sent of the ship's safety. Mr. Marean is engaged in electrical work in Mexico and he also has flour mills. Michoacan is situated nearly 800 miles in the interior of Mexico. The country is fertile and productive. As to the heat, Mr. Marean is feeling it here very much more than in Mexico, where it is a drier heat and averages often between 78 and 82 at the hottest. At night he has slept with two blankets over him, while here, he is uncomfortable with a sheet. "The anti-American spirit in my locality is not apparent," says Mr. Marean, "and conditions there among the natives are almost beyond realization. The people are starving and it is so common to see them going about in tatters and clothing worn and torn to shreds, mostly kept on the body for decency's sake." Mr. Marean was born in Washington, D. C., and he has been in Mexico for ten years. He has a wife and three children, one of the latter of whom was born in Mexico. Mrs. Marean is popular in the Eastern Point colony and she is an expert swimmer.

Miss Caroline Sinkler of Philadelphia has opened her Eastern Point estate for the season.

The William Beach Olmsteads of Pomfret, Conn., are comfortably located in their pleasant summer home on Niles' Beach boulevard, Eastern Point.

BASS ROCKS.—Bass Rocks society had the privilege last Friday evening at 8.30 o'clock, of hearing Aline van Barentzen of Paris, the noted young pianist of only 19 years of age. Miss van Barentzen has been in this country with her mother since the outbreak of the European war. She studied in Paris being a pupil of Dohnanqui. She received the grand prix at Paris conservatory when only eleven years old. Paderewski has spoken most approvingly of Miss Barentzen's playing and the future for her. The Bass Rocks golf clubhouse, where the recital was held, was filled by an interested audience of Bass Rocks cottagers and guests from along the North Shore. Miss Barentzen's playing thrilled the audience and the splendid musical treat included selections from Chopin, Scarlatti, Wagner Brassin, Schubert-Liszt, Pierne, Grieg and Liszt. While at Bass Rocks, Mrs. Barentzen and her daughter, Miss Barentzen were the guests of Mrs. Winthrop Sargent of Philadelphia, at her attractive Bass Rocks cottage on Nautilus road. The Barentzens are residents of Philadelphia while in America. The gifted young pianist will play with the civic orchestra next season, appearing in New York and also in recitals in Chicago and Philadelphia. On Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Barentzen gave a recital at "Questenmere" the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten of Brookline, at Marblehead Neck. The recital was given for the benefit of the French wounded soldiers.

G. W. Velsey, the actor, of Troy, N. Y., is spending the summer at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks. Mr. Velsey is with his mother, Mrs. Charles (Velsey) Dean. Others of the Troy, N. Y., party stopping at the Thorwald are Charles Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Thompson, Master Grant B. Thompson.

Irving G. Humphreys of Andover won in the handicap match tournament at the Bass Rocks golf club last week, winning in the finals over Dr. Jarvie.

Recent arrivals at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks, include: Mrs. George S. Searing, New York; Mrs. A. C. Eastwood and family of Cleveland, O.; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Love, Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. I. H. Burney, Mrs. N. Harding, Fort Worth, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nichols, Leesburg, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sills, East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. C. A. McGregor, Janette McGregor, ANNISQUAM.—The first of the informal Wednesday evening dancing parties was held last Wednesday evening at the Annisquam Yacht club. A card party was enjoyed on Thursday evening. On race days the members of the club have the privilege of following the boats or getting to vantage points to view the races, in a motor boat which starts from the club float each Saturday at the start of the races.

On Saturday evening, August 5, a costume dance will be held at the Annisquam Yacht clubhouse. This is an annual affair and much interest is being taken in the coming event.

A new tea house which has been added to the Annisquam list is the "Cathedral Pines," situated a quarter of a mile in from the trolley line on the heights near Dennison street.

William Balbour of Norwood is occupying "Rockside" cottage at Annisquam for the season.

James Newton has taken the Hawley cottage on Annisquam Heights for the season.

The R. Sanford Rileys of Worcester are located at their summer home on Norwood Heights, Annisquam.

The Julian Burdicks of Pittsburg, Pa., are occupying a cottage at Annisquam. They dine at the Brynmere.

Rev. Pitt Dillingham and family of Boston are spending the season at Beach cottage, Annisquam.

Prof. H. G. Cone, a writer of poetry and an instructor in New York Woman's College, is located at Beach cottage for the season.

C. A. Waldo, professor of Mathematics in Washington University, St. Louis, accompanied by Mrs. Waldo and daughter, is spending the summer at Annisquam, at Beach cottage.

Beach cottage near the Brynmere is entertaining this season: Miss Ella Klauser and Miss Emma Klauser of New York City, Mrs. C. W. May and the Misses May of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Adams of West Newton, Miss May Poole of Concord, and Miss Nancy Oglevee of Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. Mary P. Converse and family of West Newton are occupying the Sylvester cottage on the shore of Lobster Cove, Annisquam.

The three-act comedy "Daddy" was presented in Village hall, Annisquam on Wednesday evening before a large audience. The Bay View orchestra rendered music between the acts. Miss Hazel Huff, pianist, of Manchester, N. H., and John Murray, violinist, of the New England Conservatory of Music contributed numbers to the program of the evening. The proceeds of the affair were for the benefit of the parsonage fund.

ROCKPORT.—Things socially are rather quiet at the present time. People seem to remain quiet in their restful abodes by the seashore after a busy social season in the city. Golf is the principal amusement and the Saturday night dances at the Rockport Golf clubhouse are pleasant for the many cottage residents who attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lincoln Parker of Malden with their three daughters, Charlotte, Mary Elizabeth and Eleanor, are spending the season at Land's End and are located in one of the G. W. Harvey cottages on Marmion Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wheeler of Brookline are at Land's End for the season, occupying their cottage near Cape Hedge. Mr. Wheeler is connected with the John C. Page Insurance Company.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Townsend of Brookline with their four children, Charles S., Newell C., Clara G. and Edith H. Townsend are at Land's End, occupying their summer home on Penzance road. Mr. Townsend is a well known Boston lawyer.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Reardon and Miss Gertrude Reardon of Dorchester are occupying their Land's End cottage.

Miss Etta Paddleford of Brookline is spending the season on York avenue, near Marmion Way.

Rev. and Mrs. William S. Packer and four children, William Satterlie, Jr., Mary Gertrude, Louise Frost and nephew, Robert White Frost, of Winchester have arrived at their Land's End cottage, Rockport.

Dr. and Mrs. James Arthur Gage of Lowell have taken occupancy of their Land's End cottage, Paradise Cliff, Rockport for the season.

The George Dudley Halls of Forest Hills are at their Marmion Way cottage.

"Ye Olde Tavern Shop," located at Pigeon Cove near the postoffice is being extensively patronized this season. The quaintness of the house itself attracts interest. It is about 175 years old and in early Cape Ann days when the old State road leading to Salem was used, this big house was familiarly known as "The Tavern." Miss Johnson, who conducts the tea house and exchange is having success and patrons rarely ever visit the place but what they return. An exhibition of hand-made braided and hooked mats of quaint patterns, created by old New England housewives, is most interesting. Some of these mats were made by old Cape Ann women of 90 years and over. Bed quilts of beautiful design are also included in this rare exhibition.

Manchester's Lost Industries

HELENE SHERMAN

ONE of the most beautiful towns along the North Shore is Manchester, which within a comparatively few years has become Manchester-by-the-Sea. It is now recognized everywhere as one of the leading summer resorts of the country and to many people the name, Manchester, brings visions of a charming, peaceful little New England town, where one goes in the early spring to enjoy the beauties which Nature has scattered down with a generous hand; remains through a gay summer, with golfing and dancing and dining at the Essex County club, swimming at the lovely Singing Beach, motoring from the pretty town to its pretty neighbors, and doing, in short, all the happy, carefree things that go to make a summer resort the delightful place it is; and leaves only when the first snowflakes warn one that "the people have gone" and that it is time to return to town.

There is another side to Manchester-by-the-Sea—the story of the place when it was plain Jeffrey's Creek. Few of us think of it as one of the pioneer towns of New England, of America in fact, but it was just that. It was settled not more than five or ten years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth and was ever a healthy, happy community. Manchester was never a laggard in industry; true to the type of village to which she belonged, her people worked early and late and bore hardship uncomplainingly and even, if we may judge from some of the accounts that have come down to us of the merrymakings of those days, cheerfully. Every home had its spinning-wheel and a woman who was adept at running it. The men grew some wool on the hills that surround the town and this was carded, spun and woven at home, taken to the mills at Ipswich for fulling, and finally brought back to Manchester to be made up into clothing. Not only clothing was made in the busy little community, but hats of palm leaf and straw braiding. Many a "lone Hannah" sat binding shoes, too.

Saw mills came early to play an important part in business in Manchester. The first comers had built their homes of logs and their first frame buildings of hewn timber, but it was not long before a surprising number of saw mills had been put up by the thrifty people. The brook must have been larger and more energetic than it is in these days of degenerate ease, for it could never gather up enough power now to turn the wheels of a mill. Perhaps there were other streams in town, too, for we read of various saw mills, all of which must have been dependent upon running water. One was at Cheever's Creek, north of what is now called High School Hill (Bennett street). As early as 1694 this was referred to as the "old" saw mill, so it must have been built quite early in the town's history. There was one, also, at the old Baker farm and there were three at "The Cove." Other mills, particularly grist mills, furnished occupation for some of the villagers, also.

Few who pass the quiet pond on Summer street, just above the railroad bridge, can picture it a flourishing, noisy, dirty brick-yard, but it was just that not so very many years ago. That is why it is no more. Manchester's present calling cannot permit the presence of anything too blatantly businesslike, so the old brick-yard had to go. In 1894 106,000 bricks were put from this yard in the one month of August; this year it will be a charming bit of landscape, with its still waters and its gold-fish and its pond lilies and the great trees bending over them, in the month of August.

Farther back than this period takes us, Manchester had many shipwrights engaged in the making of the fast Yankee sailers that made Gloucester and her sister ports famous for their fishing vessels. Manchester men made fishing craft of from ten to one hundred tons and, possibly, even larger vessels. Ship building in those days was no sinecure, for it meant real work with real materials. The boats had to be stout enough to withstand the assaults of all the winds that blew from the Banks of Menan to San Domingo and to give good service in time of fight. Merchant sailors had often to fight their way to their destination and back again in those old days. Sea navigation was not so much a trade as an instinct, therefore, and men learned to be good sailors and navigators through force of circumstance. Manchester has produced many a seaman of whom she may well be proud. Their lives read like a page from "Treasure Island," for pirates play their parts, as well as Indians and other enemies of the colonies. Manchester's men rendered to their country good service in the wars of 1776 and 1812.

Next to cabinet-making, which another article will describe, fishing has been the great factor in the industry and consequent prosperity of Manchester. And Manchester may thank it for much besides the money it brought into town. First of all, fishing was the hard school that made real men. The severities of the journeys they took—to the Grand Banks in summer to catch the fish, home to Gloucester to cure it, and on again to the West Indies in the winter to sell it—made muscle and courage. Hardly a boy grew to manhood who had not stood watch upon a slippery deck through a long, winter night, or heard the cry, "Man overboard!" in a cold nor'easter that made mountains of the sea and widows of the women back home. Such men as these are men who founded a colony on bravery, steadfastness and kindness. Of this school was Capt. Thomas Leach, who was born at Manchester in 1807. He was born a sailor, the son of a sailor father. At an early age he sailed with his father, who, incidentally, was a mariner of note in the employ of William Gray, and no discipline of ship-board was relaxed for him. At the age of twenty-five he was made captain of the brig "Oregon," an honor in itself and especially an honor coming to a man so young. Capt. Leach sailed about the world for many a useful year after that, seeing strange sights and strange ports. What a curious thing it would be if these quiet, New England towns could bring back their dead captains to tell of the deeds they have done and the sights they have seen overseas! What a tale each one could tell—a story of brave fights won or of brave fights lost, a story of standing alone at the wheel through the bitter, dark watches, while a drunken crew caroused, fought and finally slept below. The courage and will of these men is our priceless heritage, and it is for us to see that we do not shame it. To go back to the story of Captain Leach—for more than fifty years he made his home upon the sea, and after retiring, served for twelve years as port warden of Boston. Ill health finally forced the cheerful, kindly, self-reliant old man to give up this task, too, and on the fifth of December in 1886 he died in the house where he was born at Manchester. Capt. John Allen was another such man and his descendants still form the greater part of the village population. Not second to these fine men were their women-folks! They never hesitated to put aside the bonds of conventions and

The Largest and Best Equipped School of Music

Located in the music center of America. It affords pupils the environment and atmosphere so necessary to a musical education. Its complete organization, its imposing Conservatory Building, splendid equipment, and the Residence Building offer exceptional facilities for students.

Complete Curriculum. Courses in every branch of Music, applied and theoretical, including Opera.

Owing to the practical training of students in our Normal Department, graduates are much in demand as teachers.

The free privilege of lectures, concerts and recitals, the opportunities of ensemble practice and appearing before audiences, and the daily associations are invaluable advantages to the music student.

A Complete Orchestra offers advanced pupils in voice, piano, organ and violin experience in rehearsals and public appearances with orchestral accompaniment.

Dramatic Department. Practical training in acting.

of their necessarily narrow lives when need arose. Mrs. Samples Crafts of Revolutionary fame was a splendid example of the courage and coolness a woman had need to show in those troublous times. There was a distressful need of pins and needles among the women of Manchester, who were even using thorns in their place. Boston was invested by the British and no one dared to make the attempt to go there. No one, that is, dared to go except the good Mrs. Samples, who walked to Boston, eluded the sentries, got the needles and pins, eluded the sentries once more and returned to Manchester. She had, indeed, "done her bit." Other women of this type were "Aunt" Martha Lee and "Mother" Dodge. Mrs. Abigail Hooper Trask was for many years the brightest beacon in Manchester's financial world. She was a keen, kindly woman, intent only upon doing what she thought right. She was the widow of Capt. Richard Trask and at the time of her death, March 3, 1885, was the oldest resident of Manchester at nearly one hundred years of age.

Providence doubtless meant to make fishermen of Manchester men, else why did He place so many fish within their reach. The early records are filled with references to the abundance of fish, and in 1622 a proclamation gave to the Massachusetts Bay Company a monopoly "of fish and fish curing on the shores of New England." The fisheries were a means of support to the seaboard and, indeed, to the whole colony. Vessels were fitted out and sent to many ports. These boats were of small size, often without decks, and in these the sailors faced the fiercest storms and wrested their living from the sea. The ships were sometimes of less than twenty tons, but this seems less a matter for exclamation when considered in comparison with other important boats of early days, such as the craft in which such men as Christopher Columbus, Sir Humphrey Gilbert and Sir Hendrick Hudson sailed across the ocean. Around Manchester even smaller boats were made for in-shore fishing. Those were prosperous, if primitive, days. The fish flakes were loaded with good hake and polluck that brought good market prices. The first flakes were probably on Gale's Point, near the remains of the old wharf and on the opposite shore, where the Bartol house now stands. From these and other flakes schooners and brigs, loaded to the gunwales, were sent from Gloucester, Salem and Boston, to Virginia, the West Indies and Southern Europe. They returned with freights of bacon, corn, salt, rum molasses, sugar and coffee. The date of the erection of the first flakes is not known, but in 1642 Jeffrey's Creek was represented to the General Court as "much engaged in the fishery." The fish industry was always encouraged by the General court and we may imagine that Manchester basked in the light of this approval. In 1630 this court ordered that fishing vessels be exempt from taxes and fishermen from military duty. It is not strange, then, that the codfish was a symbol of prosperity in Massachusetts. An evidence of this is the "sacred cod" which hangs in the Hall of the House of Representatives in the State House at Boston. This was carved from wood by John Welch, patriot and signer of the first protest against the Stamp Act, at the suggestion of another patriot, John Rowe. This man on March 17, 1784, moved the General Court that such an emblem ought to be exhibited as a memorial of the importance of fisheries in the Commonwealth, and also to replace the codfish which had hung in the old State House, burned in 1747.

Manchester suffered, as did the other colonies along the coast, from the jealousy England felt in regard to the fisheries. This feeling awakened very early over there, in the latter part of the 17th century, in fact, and existed so long that it finally culminated in the latter part of the next century in the passage of an act by Parliament forbidding Americans from taking fish in Canadian waters. England, perhaps, was justified in feeling that the prosperity of the colonies would work towards her own downfall, for the fisheries were indeed not only making the colonies rich, but were supplying them of men of the finest calibre, who were later to prove their independence when such acts as England's in regard to the fish had brought about a great war.

For about twenty years, there was a period when warfare might almost be said to have been one of the occupations of Manchester men. The fishermen of New England were always first to enter the ships and armies, and records prove that Manchester was no exception to this rule. In the Revolution Salem and Beverly alone sent 52 vessels as privateers with 750 guns. They did good work, these hardy fishers, as shown by the story of such battles as Trenton and Long Island. In the War of 1812, they were among the foremost in bravery and promptness. At about this time there were fifty masters of merchant vessels who were citizens of Manchester, and at one time and another there were ninety-one Manchester captains of vessels in the foreign trade. This was a class of seamen that made Manchester known all over the world. At one time this little town had more captains in the merchant service than any other in Essex County, — a goodly stock from which to draw in time of need.

THE BUREAU OF INFORMATION established by the Women's Municipal League, with the co-operation of the Improvement Society at Beverly Farms, has completed its month's work. Visitors came in daily from all along the North Shore. Under the direction of Mrs. Robert S. Bradley and a corps of helpers, many pages of literature dealing with the problems of municipal cleanliness, rat and fly extermination and mosquito prevention were distributed. The old library was a busy place and it has served as an effective educational centre. One of the interesting parts of the work of the bureau was the number of children and young people who visited the exhibit, saw the pictures, read the instructions and received literature for study. The movement against the fly and the rat as domestic problems is still in its infancy and when the public awakens to the seriousness of these pests there will be a wide-spread effort to suppress the pests. Already the educational propaganda so efficiently begun is bearing fruit and it could only be wished that such an exhibit could be placed in every summer resort along the shore. Judging from appearances, many of them need such a propaganda.

ON SUNDAY THE OLDEST CHURCH in this district celebrates its anniversary and all of the churches in this vicinity will unite with the mother church in the celebration of its great day. For generations the Orthodox Congregational Church has been continuing its faithful work in the community and has attained an honorable age with a long and glorious history. The history of Congregationalism in Manchester is an interesting one and everyone who has leisure on the coming Sabbath should unite with the old church in its celebration. A service of worship will be held in the morning. In the afternoon a fellowship service will be held when the ministers from the neighboring churches will bring greetings. In the evening an historical address will be read by a layman of the congregation. The church has been a valuable agency for the good of the town these 200 years of life.

THE MANCHESTER BASE-BALL TEAM continues to add laurels to its crown. The games played this year have been well contested, with success for the home team. If the present showing is maintained there is no doubt but what Manchester will have a champion small town team.

ON THESE WARM SUMMER DAYS the Floating Hospital becomes a popular charity. Year after year it continues its good samaritan work, bringing health, refreshment and comfort to suffering babies.

THE SEA SERPENT is out of date and the shark has taken its place, only be it said that the sea serpent attracted trade and the shark,—

IT HAS BEEN HINTED that America has gone "stale" on the war and that the first indications and feelings of sympathy felt by this nation have been put aside and that American movements now appear to be commercial. There is some truth in this, but behind it there is a colossal error that ought not to be allowed to pass without refutation. The first terrible shock of the news of the battlefields of Europe has passed. Americans are becoming accustomed to the reports of the dead and wounded. Why should they not, since they come with every copy of the daily journal. America has become accustomed to the reports, but not "steeled" to their importance and their meaning in suffering, loss and destruction. America knows all this today and appreciates what it means as much as in the first days of the conflict. On the other hand, there are great industries that have vast amounts of invested capital that are using every artifice known to trade to increase the profits directly gained because of the war. All such enterprises create their own little world of influences which in turn are seen reflected in the articles which reach the press. There are many men who are richer because of the war, but this is only a part of the story. The philanthropic interests of the whole country have been taxed to their uttermost and the unknown private benevolences which have been directly demanded from war conditions can never be known. America has not become hardened to Europe's sufferings, neither is she unconscious of the gains made by avaricious men. When a just balance has been struck it will be found that America has a heart of sympathy that Europe little realizes.

GERMANY MAY NEVER BE DEFEATED in this war, but it is now apparent that she cannot win the conflict. There are three signs of weakness that cannot be overlooked,—the successes of the British in their drive about the Somme, the successes of Russia before the demoralization of Austria, and the failure of Germany to make gains before Verdun, where every effort has been exerted to make a military demonstration. To these indications must be added the consequences of the effective control which Great Britain has maintained upon the sea.

BEVERLY FARMS AND MANCHESTER have been enjoying the summer band concerts which have been provided. Manchester is very fortunate in having a town appropriation providing for band concerts all through the summer. Beverly Farms is not so fortunate and is dependent upon the always generous subscriptions of its dwellers to make the enterprise possible.

THE BEACHES AT MAGNOLIA, Manchester and Beverly Farms have been well patronized during these late hot days. There are few places in this part of the world that are more fortunate than the North Shore. The beaches are broad, sandy and clean—everything that a suitable bathing spot should be.

THE FRENCH FLAGS were conspicuous along our shore Bastille Day. France has made history, but the date of the Marne will take the place of the 14th of July, for from that date a new France came into being.

THERE ARE MANY REASONS to believe now that labor will have a period of prosperity that will continue until the war is ended and then for a year perhaps after the signing of the treaties of peace, but after that there will be a period of business depression combined with a larger number of unemployed men unknown in any other period of the life of America. Thousands of men will be relieved of temporary employment in the munitions factories and in industries dependent upon the war. To these will be added the large number who will forever forsake the old world to try their fortunes in the new land. Then the opportunities of the old world will have been developed and American goods will inevitably meet the competition of the foreign-made article. Many such industries will inevitably go to the wall. For business will seek the more economical market and failure will mean just so many more men freed of employment. The laborer is wise who trims his sails for the coming trouble.

BISHOP WILLIAM LAWRENCE has been successful in collecting three million dollars of the five million-dollar pension fund for the Episcopal Church. The plan has been very carefully worked out by a well known financier and when the fund has been assimilated it will be a success. Episcopal clergymen, in common with the ministers of other denominations, are not paid munificent salaries, and when the terms of usefulness end there is usually very little accumulated for old age. The proposed plan is mutual, in which the trustees of the funds and the churches become partners and the clergymen the beneficiaries. It is this co-operative scheme which marks the distinctive advantages of this unique and scientific plan. The other two millions of dollars needed to complete the fund should be forthcoming soon.

NEITHER PRESIDENT WILSON nor former Justice Hughes have begun their great drive. President Wilson evidently intends to be aggressive and Hughes is big enough to see the futility of putting Wilson on the defensive. If signs do not fail the American people may expect a clean, ethical, above-board campaign. The campaign four years ago was a disgrace to the American people and everyone felt it, but this year there will be a great political contest that will be an honor to both contestants.

CONGRESS IS STILL IN SESSION and there are indications that adjournment will not be voted until as late as August 20. Meantime most anything can happen in Mexico or in Europe to continue the session. President Wilson intends to postpone his active campaigning until Congress adjourns if he adheres to his present plans. Meantime everyone will be spared the rigors of the contest.

THESE ARE THE HAPPY DAYS of conferences, summer institutes and schools. Each year there are an increasing number of such conventions of people and during the summer months New England is a great vacation field for tourists and summer inspirational gatherings.

IT IS QUITE NOTICEABLE that all of the churches along our North Shore are open all through the summer and the clergymen are on duty. The summer visitors may well encourage them in their work by attending at least one service on Sunday.

THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY intends that the navy shall be thoroughly dry and has had sold at auction all of the expensive cut glass so necessary when a social glass was passed. The world moves. Daniels means to keep the navy out of temptation.

NEW ENGLAND HAS MAINTAINED the lead in the manufacture of shoes and of shoe machinery and the history of the two industries, which are really one, reads like a romance. It is but a few short years ago when the North Shore was dotted with small houses, many of these are still standing and may be seen near old buildings, wherein the workmen were able to turn a shoe out from the leather to the finished shoe and with but few simple tools. The shoes were essentially home-made and hand-made. But in these few years progress has been rapidly made until now there are a great number of processes, requiring highly developed and ingeniously conceived mechanical devices. The "shoe" exhibit now being held in Boston gives the ordinary citizen as well as the expert an opportunity to see the progress that has been made. New England evidently is determined to maintain the supremacy already attained.

MISS SAGE HAS MADE A BRILLIANT SUCCESS of the Buffalo Salon of American Sculpture. For generations the new world has been bowing, justly it is true, to the precedence that the old world has inevitably taken in salons. In introducing this feature to America and confining it to American art, as a distinct inspiration for American artists, Miss Sage has scored. The exhibit demonstrates that while the new world must still reverence the old world and concede the leadership that has been gained by years of inheritances, it is evident that America is proving an apt learner and that the future looks bright for American artistic progress.

THE SHARKS IN NEW JERSEY have given just cause for apprehension of danger in those waters, but there need be no fears of danger in the waters about the North Shore. There has never been any reported attacks in this vicinity. Despite the fact that the yellow journals have featured the shark scare for more than the facts warrant, the in shore bathers on the North Shore are not in any more danger than in their walks along frequented roads. The automobile is a greater menace than the shark.

THE RED CROSS will have another opportunity to render aid in the flood districts of the South. One calamity follows swiftly upon the heels of another, but the Red Cross Society has been efficient enough to meet the exigencies as they have arisen.

ALL IS QUIET ALONG the Rio Grande and most Americans prefer that it should be so. The citizens will be glad when they learn that the recruits have been discharged and are on their way home for the pursuits of peace.

THE FRENCH DRAMATIC COMPANY which declined to meet engagements in America this winter because of the tragic conditions existing in the fatherland, had a knowledge of the fitness of things that is admirable.

LORD KITCHENER EVIDENTLY CONCEIVED and brought to its perfection the plan, already history, of a concerted plan of attack. It is one of Irony's fates that he was unable to live to see his plan in action.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY

For the Colonel's Lady's Littlest Children

THE most charming frocks for little folks are smocked. Whether they are for "best" or for play, smocking is the most attractive trimming, as well as the most practical. One family of North Shore children, aged two, three and four years are kept in Anderson gingham for all every day wear. The little frocks are made like English smocks and loose bloomers are worn under them. These are wonderfully attractive in the plaids and in plain colors, and are very picturesque when all three children are dressed alike.

A little boy's romper suit of white dimity has been attracting attention in the shops lately. The round collar and the cuffs are overcast with worsted and the belt, which is placed well up under the arms, has a motif of worsted flowers in front. There are tucks in the front of the waist and the trousers are unconfined at the knee.

For the youngest sister there is a dress in linen that is most attractive. The square neck has filet tire motifs of animals and birds and birds and about the low waist line are similar squares with slits for a black or colored sash. It is quite the smartest frock imaginable for the small girl. The filet tire is Porto Rican work, beautifully done.

A demure little dress in dotted muslin is trimmed with quite sophisticated bands of blue crepe de chine and a braided girdle of ribbon of the same shade. Groups of roses are cleverly placed at effective spots.

A coat of pongee was cut "just like mother's." The fullness hung smartly from the shoulders in back and a collar and hood of brown and white checked silk furnished trimming enough and to spare. Wide cuffs provided an excellent place in which a little girl might tuck a handkerchief, and the patch pockets, too, were large enough to hold much that might be of interest. Altogether, it was a smart and practical little garment.

For the wee girl, as well as for her older sister, come the worsted sweaters, shaped somewhat like a "T shirt," that pull on over the head. These are very pretty in blue, rose and yellow and are made even more becoming by the dark Angora edging at throat and wrists.

Judy's Summer Beverages

ALONG the North Shore, perhaps even more than in other parts of the country, we give our summer parties out of doors in a happy, wholesome fashion. Simplicity is the watchword, but it is the simplicity of a few things well chosen from a vast assortment and not the simplicity of necessity. The porch or garden furniture must be selected with all care, the dishes, the silver must be picked out with an eye to suitability and good taste, and above all the food and beverages must be chosen to suit the tastes of many.

Among the best of the cool beverages for summer parties is the old favorite, lemon squash. Use the usual proportions of lemon and sugar as for lemonade, and use club soda in place of water. In each glass put a maraschino cherry and a whole strawberry, a slice of orange, a slice of pineapple, and there you have it!

Cucumber Lemonade is another excellent variation of that most cooling of drinks. Lemons and sugar in the usual proportions (i. e., one tablespoonful of sugar to each lemon), and one cucumber for four lemons are the ingredients. Slice the cucumber lengthwise with the rind still on and rub the slices on the inside of the pitcher. Squeeze the lemon juice into the pitcher, and stir in the sugar and water. The cucumber flavor is a distinct addition to the drink, and a bit of claret added just before serving is delicious.

Shandy Gaff is a favorite drink that is not new, but that is one of the few things that taste as well to this sophisticated age as to an earlier generation. It is made of equal parts of ale and ginger ale poured over ice in a pitcher and served at once. Everyone, who likes it, will prefer it served in long large glasses.

Grape Punch is as attractive to the eye as to the taste, and should be served in a large glass punch bowl with an island or two of ice. For one pint of grape juice allow the juice of six lemons and one pound of fine sugar and two quarts of water. Grated pineapple lends a new and pleasing flavor for variety.

After a "peppy" game of tennis or golf a good egg-nog is not to be despised. For the yolks of six eggs, six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and one quart of new milk, one pint Madeira wine and a half pint of French brandy. Just before putting the mixture into glasses, put in the beaten whites of the six eggs and serve immediately.

And now we may only glance at the possibilities of tea for their name is legion and we have not space enough to speak of them all. Of course, iced tea is the greatest known factor in summer hospitality and it is, therefore, but fitting that a few suggestions for its making be given to the Colonel's Lady. Make fresh tea, double strength with water boiling hard. Allow this to stand for five minutes, then place a thin slice of lemon in the bottom of each glass and a heaping teaspoonful of sugar. Fill glass with finely chopped ice and pour in the tea. Iced tea made in this way will be found greatly superior to the tea that is cooled in a jar on the ice. A dash of rum in iced tea is enjoyed by many.

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN

Summer-time shows at the Strand theatre, Lynn, maintain the same high standard of excellence that made the winter programs so popular. There has been and will be no change of policy. Paramount pictures head every bill and incidental music is furnished by the largest orchestra now playing in any theatre in New England. The musicians appear in silk outing shirts and white flannel trousers and ushers and other attaches of the house in gray jackets and white duck trousers, as in President Mark's New York Strand theatre.

The current attractions, through Saturday night, are Clara Kimball Young in "The Feast of Life" and Cleo Ridgley and Wallace Reid in "The Selfish Woman." For Sunday the principal attraction will be Frank Losee in "The Old Homestead."

The presence of dog-fish or some other fish in the waters outside Manchester harbor was denoted by the immense schools of hake which were driven in shore last Saturday. The fast Queen Quality nine, which has given Manchester many a battle on the diamond, will be the attraction at the Brook-st. grounds tomorrow. The best game of the season is looked for when the local team meets this fast aggregation of athletes, who are playing first-class ball this season. Last year's game with the Queen Quality nine was one of the closest of the season, when Manchester won, 2 to 0. The shoe company nine is composed of many well-known athletes and includes in its line-up Charley Brickley, the famous ex-Harvard football player. The line-up of the visiting team is announced as follows: Norton ss, Regan 2b, John Mitchell 3b, Charles Brickley cf, McGaffee rf, Driscoll lf, Hagan 1b and Robertson c. Murray or Boles will pitch. TROLLEY LEAGUERS DEFEATED BY MANCHESTER NINE,

Manchester's lithe southpaw right-fielder and relief twirler, Gourley, had an opportunity to show what he could do in the box last Saturday against the Reading Trolley League nine. The speedy youngster, whose all-around good game has attracted the attention of the fans on several occasions, pitched the last seven innings of the contest which Manchester had little trouble in winning, 21 to 2. Errors behind him were responsible for the one run made in the innings he pitched. Five scattered hits were secured from his delivery.

Simms, the regular twirler for the Reading nine, is at the Plattsburg training camp and the three men who attempted the task of subduing the heavy-hitting Manchesterites, were hammered into helplessness. Newell was the first twirler to try his hand. He hit Gourley with a pitched ball, walked the next two men, gave Devlin a hit and let Herron bunt safely. Conley got to first on an error by shortstop and Collins singled to right field. Bond was handed a base on balls, and pitcher Newell retired to the bench without a Manchester man being out. Rung succeeded Newell and started off by giving Grover and Gourley each a base on balls. O'Leary's fly was caught by White, but Bond was safe at home. Cody got to first on a Texas leaguer, but Devlin hit into a double play, retiring the side after eight runs had been made.

Grover struck out the first three men who faced him. In the second, Eames of Reading dropped a fly into Devlin's hands. Stark struck out and Murray secured a base on balls. Chase smashed a drive along the third base line for a two-bagger, scoring Murray. McKenny struck out.

The fans have been anxious to see the young high school (Peabody High) boy in the pitcher's box, after his brilliant all-around work at the bat and in the field all season, and so it was with some pleasure and a good "hand" from the gallery that Gourley took Grover's place in the third frame, after the game was well on ice. He made good and pitched a steady game for the remaining six innings without once being in danger.

In the third inning Bond singled to center and stole second while Grover was up. He advanced to third on Gourley's out and scored on Rung's wild pitch.

Reading made its second run in

"Busy" or "Don't Answer"?

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS THAT "THE LINE IS BUSY," it is because she has taken the time to test the line called for. It would be easier for her to complete the connection than to make such a report. If the operator did not test on every call, she might plug in on a busy line.

Furthermore, "Busy" means that the line (not necessarily the telephone number you have called) is in use. The subscriber on a four-party line may not be talking, but one of the three other subscribers may be, making the entire line closed to traffic, or some one of the party subscribers may have put in a toll call and the line is being held awaiting its completion. Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters often congest party lines and give cause for protests from other subscribers in common.

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS "THEY DON'T ANSWER," she has done all within her means to compel an answer to her summons. That summoning power is the ringing of a bell, a mechanical signal which says, "Someone desires to speak to you." It remains with the person called to be prompt in responding.

If a subscriber is slow in responding, the calling person may hang up the receiver, assuming that the former is inaccessible. Then there is an additional inconvenience to the called person when the operator reports, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it." The operator who makes that report usually is located at a different switchboard than the operator who rang the bell, and is unable to ascertain where the call originated.

the sixth when Herron fielded Eames' hit wild to first, hits by Stark and Murray, bringing in the run. Singles by Devlin, Conley, Collins and Bond netted three runs for Manchester in the sixth. Eight runs were added in the seventh when Rung was batted out of the box. O'Leary walked, Cody singled to left field, Devlin's fly was caught by White, Herron tripled to the brook and Conley was safe at first on shortstop's error. The procession around the bases continued when Collins singled to right, Grover beat a scratch hit to first, O'Leary tripled and Cody and Devlin singled. Bond scored another run in the eighth when Chase made a balk as Bond started to steal home.

In the last inning, just to show their all-around fielding ability, the men in the infield shifted positions, Devlin going to shortstop, Cody from second to third, Herron from short to second and O'Leary from third to first. In these positions they pulled off a snappy double play when Chase hit to Cody with Murray on second.

Neither of the triples by Herron and O'Leary inspired the Reading fielders to go into the brook after it. Whether it was sharks or the wetting the fielders feared both hits went for an extra base.

One of the features of the game was the clean-cut throw-in of a ball from right field to home plate, cutting off a man from a run.

BAPTIST PICNIC

OVER 300 GLOUCESTER AND MANCHESTER CHURCH GOERS AT TUCK'S POINT.

Over 300 young people from the Baptist churches of Manchester and Gloucester enjoyed the picnic at Tuck's Point, Manchester, on Tuesday. About two-thirds of the number were from Gloucester and came on the 9.30 train in the morning. Dinner was enjoyed in good old picnic fashion, each person bringing his lunch in a basket. In the afternoon sports were held with the following results:

100 yard dash for boys—Won by Edward Leavitt, Gloucester; Phillip Sawyer, Gloucester, second.

100 yard dash for girls—Won by Edith Graham, Manchester; Ruth Brooks, Manchester, second.

Sack race for boys—Won by Duncan Baker, Manchester; Edward Leavitt, Gloucester, second.

Broad jump for boys—Won by Walter White, Gloucester; Elliott Goodwin, Gloucester, second.

Nail driving contest for girls—Won by Ruth Brooks, Manchester.

Nail driving contest for ladies—Won by Mrs. Hugh Quirkham, Gloucester.

Potato race for boys—Won by Edward Leavitt, Gloucester.

Base ball throwing contest for girls—Won by Ruth Brooks, Manchester; Lorna Congdon, Gloucester, second.

Base ball throwing contest for boys—Won by Russell Shackelford of Gloucester; Elliott Goodwin, Manchester, second.

Doughnut contest—Won by Harry Reynolds, Gloucester; Olive Davis, Gloucester, second.

Girls' race—Won by Evelyn Davis, Gloucester; Edith Thomas, Gloucester, second.

Three legged race—Won by Etta Parsons and Olive Davis of Gloucester.

Junior baseball—Gloucester 4, Manchester 1. The committee in charge was Frank Rowe and Mrs. Pinkham of Gloucester and Abbott Foster and Mrs. Ellery Rogers of Manchester.

A baseball game between Manchester and Gloucester resulted in a victory for Manchester, 9 to 4. Bert Johnson and Nelson Butler were Manchester's battery, the latter doing effective work in the box. Rev. A. G. Warner was first baseman for Manchester and his work at the bat was a feature of the game. A. B. Dunn was umpire. "The capture of Villa," which Gen. Pershing's hard-riding cavalymen have been unable to accomplish in several months, was executed in less than an hour by a party of searchers. Albert Peters had the honor of making the capture. "Villa" was a comic doll hidden away in the trees. Boating and bathing were enjoyed and music was furnished by an organist direct from Italy, who churned out tunes throughout the afternoon. Coffee and ice cream were served.

James, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Goldthwaite, fell while playing on the rocks at Singing Beach last Friday afternoon. His forehead was cut on a sharp-edged rock, but he was otherwise uninjured. Rufus W. Long, "safety first" man at the beach, rendered first aid and the lad was afterwards taken to Dr. Blaisdell's office, where the wound was dressed. The injury was not serious. This was the second case in which the new life guard has rendered prompt assistance. He stopped the flow of blood from a bad cut received by a boy at the beach last week.

Julius F. Rabardy celebrated the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, the French national holiday, July 14, at his home last Friday. Mr. Rabardy, who passed his 83rd birthday recently, has been unfailing in his observance of the anniversary of this great event. Each year he has hoisted the French flag to the top of the staff in his yard, but this year, lest his action be misunderstood Mr. Rabardy displayed the French and American emblems side by side. Mr. Rabardy, who is a native of France, observes the day not so much as an act of loyalty to the land of his birth as in recognition of a significant event in world history.

Ample appreciation of the spirit of the town of Manchester in providing free band concerts was shown by the great gathering at last evening's concert in Central sq. by the Salem Cadet band. It was estimated that the largest crowd of the year enjoyed the concert. About a hundred automobiles, carrying people from far and near, were packed in the streets adjoining the square. One of the numbers on the program which brought out enthusiastic applause was the trombone solo of Donald Wade, a Manchester boy, who is playing with the famous Cadet band for his first season. The next concert will be given next Thursday evening.

MANCHESTER YOUNG MAN WRITES OF HONOR FOR 2D MASS. INFANTRY.

Mrs. John Baker of Manchester has received a series of letters from her two sons, Irving and Harry, who are with the National Guard on the Mexican border. Harry D. Baker is a musician with Co. H, 8th Regt., and Irving Baker is a member of the Worcester City Guard, Co. A, 2d Regt. Writing from Albuquerque, N. M., on July 2, Harry says:

"We passed through Colorado early this morning, stopping at Trinidad, where they put on three big ten-driver engines to take us up over the hills and through the tunnel at Raton Pass. There two of them left us and we've been going down grade ever since at a good sixty miles an hour clip. At Raton we stopped to get water and have a hike to keep us limbered up. The major would not allow us to do double time on account of the altitude. As we go down, the country changes from the mountainous to a plateau. We are having a fine trip. The scenery when we started was beautiful through Connecticut and up through the Catskills. Then we passed the prairies of Indiana and Illinois with the fields of corn and wheat, and the miles of wheat in Missouri and Kansas. It gets pretty tiresome, some times, in the train so long, but at several places they have given us the chance for a good swim, which made us much more comfortable. At a little lake in Missouri, near the city of Mexico, the whole battalion went in together. 'Pretty fine.'"

From Camp Cotton, El Paso, Texas, he writes on July 4:

"We reached camp at 8 a. m. yesterday and made camp in the hot sun. At noon I was detailed to Regimental Headquarters and didn't get through until 'taps' (10 p. m.). This morning we had musicians' school and this afternoon our company goes on guard. We keep double guard at all times and each man has been issued 100 rounds of ammunition, which he wears constantly. We are about 300 yards from the border and can see the Mexicans almost any time. Last night you could hear shots every once in a while, but we couldn't answer, because ordered not to. No trouble is anticipated as yet, so don't worry. Just returned from taking a shower bath at the quarters of the 23rd U. S. Infantry, which is camped just back of us. We are to be issued entire new outfits very soon, for which we were measured back in Ohio."

Writing on the 6th he tells of receiving the first mail, which started from home on June 28. He tells of the need of money by the men as they do not know when they will be paid. He said there was no paper money except what the men took with them. He saw a good many silver dollars and understood the men were to be paid in gold.

J. Irving Baker wrote from Columbus, N. M., on July 7:

"We reached El Paso on the second and were shipped right on to Columbus, where we arrived at 1.30 in the morning and marched to camp. I haven't been able to write for the last two days as our company was on guard duty and not allowed to leave the company street. Night before last we were on as interior guards around our own camp and last night we were on outpost duty. We had to march out to put up our pup tents and then go out and lay down for two hours at a stretch with four hours for sleep between. This is only at night; we have the regular duties during the day. We are to go on again tonight. We feel pretty proud as our regiment is the first Massachusetts regiment to get outpost duty. We had it before we had been here a week and the troops of New Mexico didn't get it until they had been in a month."

He enjoyed the trip to the border and described the send-off given the men by the towns along the route.

BROTHERHOOD PICNIC

MANCHESTER MEN GATHERED LAST SATURDAY FOR OUTING AT TUCK'S POINT.

No voracious shark ever displayed a better appetite than the 55 men who gathered at Tuck's Point, Manchester, for the annual picnic of the Manchester Brotherhood last Saturday afternoon. The men made the trip to the point by bus in time for the dinner, which was served at 12.30 o'clock. They did full justice to the ample supply of chowder prepared by Granville Crombie, and then enjoyed brief talks by members of the Brotherhood. Rev. A. G. Warner reviewed the work of the Brotherhood during the past year and remarked on its growth. It now boasts of a membership of 225 and has had an average attendance of over 100 at the meetings the past year. There are 15 nationalities represented in the membership of the organization which has no restrictions of a racial or religious nature. Among the countries represented by the nativity of the members are Ireland, Scotland,

The Brotherhood during the past winter has had speakers who have touched upon important religious and social problems and have discussed the European war and American preparedness from every available angle of vision. Among the speakers have been Congregationalists, Baptists, Methodists, Unitarians, Universalists, Roman Catholics, Greek Catholics, Episcopalians and Socialists. The question period, which has followed each address, has been a feature of the meetings and the courteous treatment accorded the speaker during these periods has been a source of pride to the Brotherhood. Questions have been asked for the purpose of bringing out information and never to embarrass the speaker.

Rev. Dr. Levi M. Powers of Gloucester spoke about this feature of the Brotherhood meetings. He said that during the last winter he had felt it his duty to set forth certain facts regarding Germany not generally known. During his lectures in various places he met with a good deal of criticism because he had taken an unpopular side of the war question. In Manchester, however, he was accorded the most courteous treatment during the question period, which brought out a lively debate.

Brief talks were also given by Town Clerk Alfred S. Jewett and Rev. Clarence S. Pond, pastor of the Beverly Farms Baptist church. Regrets were sent by Rev. A. E. Isaacs of Dorchester, J. Mott Hallowell of Boston, member of the League to Enforce Peace and Roger W. Babson of Wellesley Hills. All of the above were speakers at the Brotherhood meetings during the past season. Horace Atherton, clerk of the Essex County Probate Court, who was announced as one of the speakers, was unable to be present.

Following the dinner the men enjoyed a social period and a refreshing fruit punch prepared by Clarence Morgan. This marks the last gathering of the Brotherhood until the opening meeting for next season, which will be held Monday evening, September 17.

The shark scare of the past few weeks has made many people timid about going into the water at Singing Beach. The number who swim out to the raft is noticeably smaller than a couple of weeks ago. The other morning an automobile driver was sending his machine along the newly surfaced Manchester highway at a good clip. There was little traffic at that hour and he settled back in his seat and let the car shoot along the smooth road at a speed which would have brought tears to the eyes of a traffic officer. Just as he approached the corner of Beach st. on Union st., he felt a sudden jar, his machine lurched to the side of the road and he narrowly missed a collision with a car making the corner. He brought up against the curb opposite to the Post Office and pulled one of the Manchester traffic posts from beneath his car.

A driver for a Beverly Farms market was arrested in Manchester Tuesday after his automobile had collided with a machine from the Connor's livery. He was charged with operating an automobile while intoxicated and pleaded not guilty when arraigned in District Court in Salem Wednesday morning. His case was continued nisi.

An automobile owned by Fred M. French of Cambridge in which Mr. and Mrs. French and a colored chauffeur were riding at the time, collided with a car owned and driven by Miss Linda Makanna of New Hampshire last Friday evening. The accident occurred just after six o'clock at the corner of School and Central sts. Miss Makanna's machine was making the turn from School st. into Union st. when the Cambridge car proceeding toward Beverly struck it. The running board on the left side of the Makanna car, the mud guard and rear axle were broken. The occupants of the machine were considerably shaken and Miss Makanna's hand was injured.

Edward Goldthwaite fell from his bicycle yesterday, injuring his arm to such an extent that he is going to the Beverly hospital today for an X-ray examination to see if any bones are broken.

Several hundred Red Men, the largest gathering in years, assembled at Tuck's Point yesterday for the annual outing of Conomo tribe. Visiting tribesmen and their families helped to swell the numbers. Sports for the women and children constituted the program of the day, and boating and bathing were enjoyed by many. The real event of the day was an appetizing fish and chowder dinner. So many were served that the supply of dishes ran out and a relief expedition was sent out to secure more. Long's orchestra furnished music.

200TH ANNIVERSARY

THE MANCHESTER CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH WILL OBSERVE IMPORTANT EVENT SUNDAY

A significant event in the history of Manchester will be the celebration next Sunday morning, afternoon and evening of the 200th anniversary of the establishment of the Congregational church. An invitation to the Baptist church to join in union services in commemoration of the founding of the old church has been accepted. The interior of the church has been decorated in anticipation of the event.

At the morning service the Rev. Dr. John H. Quint of Chelsea will preach the sermon, Rev. A. G. Warner, pastor the Baptist church, and Rev. Charles A. Hatch, pastor of the Congl. assisting. At four o'clock in the afternoon Rev. D. Brewer Eddy of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions will deliver the principal address. The address will be singularly appropriate in view of the fact that the wives of the first Missionaries ever sent out from America were teachers as well as organizers of the Congregational Sunday School in Manchester. At this service greetings will be extended by the Rev. A. G. Warner of the Baptist church in Manchester, the Rev. Walter S. Eaton of the Village church, Magnolia, and the Rev. Clarence Strong Pond of the Baptist church in Beverly Farms.

Dr. R. T. Glendenning will read an address on the history of the church at the evening service and Deacon Joseph A. Torrey will read an original poem. Rev. C. A. Hatch will speak on the future of the church.

Rev. Dr. Clark of Salem Tabernacle church had planned to bring greetings from his church at that service, but owing to illness will be unable to be present.

Special envelopes will be placed in

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Butler are at Townsend, where they are to spend some weeks on their farm.

Mr. Dion of Lanesville spent the week-end with his daughter, Mrs. John V. Carr, on Magnolia ave.

Thomas Abbott and wife of Hartford, Conn., are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Ernest Howe, off Magnolia ave.

The embroidery class meets Thursdays from 3.30 to 5 p. m. and the sewing class Fridays at the same hour at the Women's club. Preparations are being made at the club for an entertainment to be given about the first of August.

How can a tame crow with a broken wing and housed under a wire rack fly a mile away from its home? This is what its owner, Jennie Brown, would like to know. Well, her pet did not fly or walk out of its rack. Someone was mean enough to steal it. By the way, Jennie and her pet seem to be very fond of one another. Even her little chipmunk, when released from its cage the other afternoon, refused to take advantage of its liberty and suddenly scampered back into its cage, preferring a captive's life under the care and protection of its good mistress and friend than to be free to roam at will.

Dr. and Mrs. Miller, two daughters and servants of Dayton, Ohio, arrived at the Tuttle house on Summer st. last Saturday, coming all the way in two automobiles. Mrs. Miller is the eldest daughter of the late Lucius Tuttle, whose strong and genial personality is still greatly missed by his many Magnolia friends.

Miss Susan Wentworth of Boston has recently purchased a shore lot from the estate of the Rev. Dr. Foote, off Hesperus ave.

Services will be held at the Village Church, Sunday, at 10.45 a. m. and at 8.15 p. m. The pastor, Dr. Eaton, will preach both morning and evening. From 8.15 to 8.30 p. m. Prof. Brackett will give an organ recital.

NEW GAS AND WHISTLING BUOY

According to John A. Bagley, chairman of the Maritime Affairs Committee of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, the can buoy, which for many years was placed off Newcomb's Ledge, to the eastward of Southeast breakers, outside of Baker's Island, has been removed and is now supplanted by one of the latest types of gas and whistling buoys, the latter being officially known on the new navigation charts as "Newcomb's Ledge Gas and Whistling Buoy H.S."

During the night this new buoy, which operates automatically, will show a white light and in stormy weather will give out a strong whistle at frequent intervals, thereby warning mariners of the proximity of the dangers lurking in the dreaded ledges and surf in the vicinity of the Southeast breakers and Newcomb's Ledge.

ASK CO-OPERATION.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad is conducting a campaign for the prevention of accidents at grade crossings. The crossing tender's flag has been replaced by a big disk with the word "stop" printed upon it. This precludes any misunderstanding of the gateman's signals. The company asks the co-operation of autoists in the campaign to eliminate the useless waste of human life resulting from grade crossing accidents.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

At the Beverly Farms Baptist Church last Sunday morning the minister, Rev. Clarence Strong Pond, preached upon "The True Life," and in the evening upon "Every Man His Little Bit." The sermon in the evening was based upon the slogan in the old world; it was used as a slogan for Christian service;—every man should aspire to do his little bit to bring in the Kingdom of Christ. Miss Alice Chapman lead the Young People's meeting. There will be service next Sunday morning and evening; sermons by the minister. In the afternoon the minister will bear the greetings of the church to the Congregational Church in Manchester, which observes its two-hundredth anniversary. The classes in English for Italians meets on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, Mr. Tessicinni, assistant. The Scandinavian services are held upon alternate Friday evenings at 8.30 p. m. Dr. Lund of Lynn preached last Friday and on next Friday Dr. Oester of Boston will preach. The other dates are August 11, Rev. J. A. Kallman; Friday, September 25,

Mr. and Mrs. James E. McDonnell have leased their house, West st., to a family from Philadelphia for two months.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. McKeigue (Catherine Cashman) of 10 Warren st., Montserrat, July 14. Mr. McKeigue is a former resident of Beverly Farms.

The first of a series of band concerts by the North Shore Cadet Band, formerly the Beverly Farms Band, was given in Central square last Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance and the numbers were greeted with well-merited applause.

MORE FAKE ADVERTISING

The Advertising and Charities Endorsement Committee of the Salem Chamber of Commerce has been advised that solicitors are operating along the North Shore soliciting advertisements for a book which is, it is stated, to be published in the interests of the various historical societies along the North Shore.

As several of the historical societies interviewed by representatives of the Advertising and Charities Endorsement Committee of the Chamber have stated that they know nothing about such a publication and that none of the proceeds are to be turned over to them, as far as they know, it would be well for firms and individuals approached for advertising in the publication in question to consult the Chamber offices before agreeing to take or pay for advertising space.

"How do you make the distinction between popular and classical music?" asked the very young man.

"Oh, that's easy!" answered the dispenser of home grown philosophy. "It's popular if I enjoy it, and it is classic if I don't."—Chicago News.

Mrs. August Heffenreffer (Ruth Hardy) and child of Jamaica Plain are visiting Mrs. Heffenreffer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hardy, Hale st.

From letters received this week it is learned that Fred E. Pierce, a Beverly Farms young man, is one of the men with the Beverly battery at El Paso, Texas.

Blandin's drug store at Pride's Crossing suffered considerable damage last Friday evening from a fire which gave the Beverly Farms fire department some trouble in extinguishing. Both the stock and the store were damaged, the latter to such an extent that Mr. Blandin is using temporary quarters in the building adjoining the store. The cause of the blaze is laid to mice and matches.

"Sarah," said her mistress during the dinner hour, "will you go down to the basement and get the catsup?" Sarah departed, and a few minutes later the family heard a great shooing and scampering of feet. Shortly after Sarah came breathlessly into the dining-room and said to her astonished mistress, "They're up, mum." "What are up?" "The cats, mum." Youth's Companion.

A Canadian teacher fell heir to an English estate of £20,000. In the lawyer's office the clerks made bets as to how she would take it. One thought she would scream, two were of opinion she would burst into tears, two others favored hysterics. Her reply to the messenger was disconcerting: "I shall finish my monthly report, hear these spelling errors, whip two boys and be at your office in forty minutes."—Century.

KEITH'S THEATRE, BOSTON

For the week of July 31, one of the strongest, triple feature bills of the summer season will be offered at B. F. Keith's theatre, "The Amusement Centre of Boston." Helen Ware, Belle Story, and Merton and Moore are the three big attractions that combine to make this week's show one of the most memorable of the year. Helen Ware, one of the best and most powerful emotional actresses on the American stage, will make her Boston vaudeville debut in a new one-act play entitled, "Justified," from the pen of C. T. Dazey, author of "In Old Kentucky." This shows Miss Ware in a splendid role, and is the first opportunity in some time for Boston theatre-goers to see this excellent actress. RETAIL STORE OF DANIEL LOW & CO., SALEM, MASS.

You are invited to make "Daniel Low's" your headquarters when you visit Salem.

Salem is rich in places of historical interest and every year thousands of visitors come here from all parts of the world.

But they do not consider their visit complete unless they stop in at "Daniel Low's," for our Store, too, is noted throughout the civilized world for its large and interesting stocks of fine gold and silver wares, unusual and unique articles and novelties gathered from all corners of the globe. Indeed, many of them are to be found in no other shop.

And so we cordially invite you to old Salem—and to Daniel Low's. You will be welcome without being put under any obligation whatever to purchase.

Our Store is located on the corner, Town House Square, the intersection of all trolley lines and within two minutes' walk of the Boston and Maine station.

The Children's Island Sanitarium, Salem Harbor

One of the North Shore's Most Deserving Charities---Where Happiness Reigns Supreme

LILLIAN McCANN

DO you want to know where happiness reigns supreme upon the North Shore? Do you want to see it? Do you want to help create it? Then come with me to an island in Salem Harbor and visit the Children's Island Sanitarium, one of the North Shore's most deserving charities.

The boat for the island is taken at Tucker's wharf, Marblehead, and a most enjoyable ride it is over to the rocky place. The long, low buildings and little summer-house high upon the rocks are enough to excite anyone's curiosity.

Upon landing and following the little pathway up to the main building, one is ushered into a large room, neat and trim, with long tables set for children and some smaller ones for nurses and workers. Here, Miss Lucy W. Davis, the superintendent, greets one and gives a cordial invitation to go through the place.

She tells us that eighty-eight children are now being cared for, ranging in age from three to fourteen years. These are recommended to the sanitarium by social service agents employed by the big Boston hospitals. Most of the children stay all summer and play the entire time, with the exception of a little handiwork, which they delight in doing.

The children are grouped according to age, sex,—and disease in some cases.

The "baby room" is an interesting place. This is the second season for Miss Mary S. Bullard of the Brimmer school in Boston, who is giving her services and conducting work along the lines of the Montessori system, and also doing some kindergarten work. More of the theory of the system is being used, rather than the actual materials, the Montessori gifts being rather expensive, and then, just enough is given to keep them happily occupied. The children are happy, sweet little bodies under Miss Bullard's rare discipline and charming personality. She has taught them many little songs and hymns, and they eagerly swarm around her with their poor, little, diseased bodies swaying as best they can to the rhythm of the music, which they feel so much and express so sweetly in their thin baby voices. Great care is taken of the piano, and when Miss Bullard leaves it little hands tenderly help to pull down the dimity cover, and little promises are given that the pretty case will not be touched.

In this department are the play-room, play-yard and dining room for the tiny tots who cannot go to the general dining-room.

Passing from here the large bath-rooms and dormitories are seen. The "Clover Breeze" cottage then comes in for inspection. Here are seventeen of the older girls, who are keeping house all by themselves under Miss Long, who is "big sister" to them. They do their own kitchen-work and keep the little place as neat as wax! Pretty good for sick girls! But it is the wonderful air, bathing, good food and regular life habits that bring health and strength to these city children. Half of the girls play hostesses one week and do the work, while the other half are the guests. Their breakfasts and suppers are sent to them, as three meals a day are considered too strenuous. For dinner last Thursday, when we visited them, they had boiled beef, mashed potatoes, string beans and apple tapioca pudding. Radishes were served from their own gardens. The little gardens are really a strong feature of the place, numbering about thirty at this time.

The industrial department has many of the older boys and girls charmed with the big looms, little looms and other devices by which they are weaving raffia pillow tops, table covers and other handiwork. Many beautiful things are being created for a future sale and all are being made so cheerfully and contentedly by the little folk when they tire of other occupations. In the large room of this department is where the Sunday services are held. At one side is a little green-curtained alcove where the vested choir sits. The choir is composed mostly of girls. This is a sweet and simple service suitable for all nationalities and creeds. Last summer Rev. Neilson Poe Carey of Beverly Farms went over one Sunday afternoon and talked to the children. One little girl said, later: "We had real church today, didn't we?"

The Farwell Room has taken the place of very inadequate quarters for bedridden children and "heart" cases. This room has twenty-two beds and all are filled. The attractive feature of the room is the hard-wood finish in the dark English oak stain. A motto, "It is not life that matters, but the courage that you bring to it," hangs on the wall, also a tablet stating that the room has been given in memory of Marian Farwell. It was given by Reginald C. Foster of Marblehead Neck, one of the directors of the sanitarium, in memory of Miss Farwell, his fiancée, whose death occurred in 1915. Miss Hitchcock is in charge of this room.

The morning dip is enjoyed by the children, the girls in charge of some of the volunteer workers and the boys with Miss Davis. The crippled children and others unfit to enter the surf are taken down to the beach with the others and have a regular bath in a somewhat different manner. This is done by the young workers bringing pails of water to them and giving them a thorough drenching. Poor little backs and joints are tenderly rubbed and patted in this next-to-the-real-thing bath. The sun bath is a new feature this year that is bringing beneficial results to many of the children.

The pleasant piazza for the older girls, the cots and swings near the Farwell building, the cottages for the volunteer workers and the other buildings, such as laundry and cottage for the paid helpers, are all interesting parts of this unique place. The working force of twenty people is ably assisted by the nine volunteer workers, who go for three or four weeks and give half a day daily, in the care and educational activities of the children. Many of the young girls from North Shore homes count it a great privilege to go as a volunteer and some have spent more than one summer on the island. The committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Roger W. Cutler, is composed of the Misses Rosamond Bradley, Lucy W. Davis, Edith G. Fabens, F. M. Faulkner, Edith Fitz and Mmes. A. G. Grant, Harry C. Low, William E. Russell, F. W. Sargent, Jr., Henry B. Sawyer and George S. West. The officers include George S. West, president; Augustus Hemenway, Jr., treasurer; Alexander G. Grant, secretary.

The North Shore will be interested in the bridge tournament to be given on Friday, September 1st, at 3 o'clock at Mrs. R. S. Bradley's, Pride's Crossing, for the benefit of the Children's Island Sanitarium.

The committee is composed of Miss Bradley, Mrs. George Denny, Miss Fitz, Mrs. Marshall Fabyan and Miss Mary Franks. Mrs. Vickery will run the tournament. Tables at $10 each may be engaged from Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Beverly Farms. Owing to the number of tables being limited it would be wise to make application as soon as possible.

Boats leave Tucker's wharf, Marblehead, at 3 p. m. on Sundays for the choir service. Visitors are most welcome and will find this service both pathetic and interesting. Visitors are always welcome who may happen to be near the island in their boats and wish to stop.

An exhibition and sale of small water colors painted by French artists and art students fighting in France will be held at the house of Mrs. Charles Hopkinson, off Summer st., Manchester, every afternoon next week from three to six o'clock—July 31 to Aug. 5 inclusive.

The oculist is naturally optimistic, there being lots of money in sight for him.

On the other hand, the dentist is not necessarily pessimistic because he often looks down in the mouth.

Two Happy Little Friends

“Mother Ann”

CHARLES ELWOOD FOSTER

Lone on the rugged Eastern Shore,
Breasting the sea by night and day,
Where the breakers rush with ceaseless roar,
And the storm wind scatters the spray—

O, mother of rocks, wind and sea!
With sea grasses fringing thy feet,
Hast thou no summer's welcome for me,
Nor a smile my coming to greet?

Ever facing the rising sun—
Hast thou hope for the breaking day?
Hope that looks onward to victory won.
When the storm clouds shall pass away?

Never answer the lips so cold—
Nor a greeting from face so calm,
Ever faithful earth's secrets to hold—
Watchful, but silent, lies “Mother Ann.”

Driving About Old Cape Ann

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

NEXT to painting Cape Ann with its magnificent beauty of hill, sea and sky, I would say that one of the greatest pleasures in life is to take a drive through this quaint and picturesque section of the North Shore.

When I stroll with my canvas, to a spot along the coast, where the green bayberry tips the cliff of buff and pink, I study the subject at hand and pitch my easel at a vantage point where the perspective, form and color will be most attractive to me. A camera would catch the scene more quickly, of course, but the value of life and color, what of that?

So it is with receiving the greatest benefit of the ride. Not only do I drink in the vigor of the bracing salt air and the fragrance of the fields and the wild flowers, but the mind is painting something enduring and the being is receiving something of greater worth than the mere reflection of the scene upon the lense of the eye.

The other day I saw at Stage Fort Park, an old elm bending very low. There did not seem to be any great amount of breeze, so I naturally became much concerned over its behavior. It did not take me long, however, to discover the cause of this profound salaam,—a splendidly equipped victoria, with its handsome chestnut span and a coachman handling the ribbons, was coming into town from Magnolia! It seemed evident that the party sitting upon the tan upholstered cushions was thoroughly enjoying the drive. Behind this quietly moving equipage, a scurrying automobile came making a horrid noise; its horn tooted, its siren screeched, its motor spitted and chugged, and finally in an open space the "pace wagon" bounded over the hillock, past the Victoria, with a quartette of the most distorted, disturbed faces imaginable, they too bound for a pleasant afternoon drive.

But you should not ride around Cape Ann in this mad haste if you wish to take a truly delightful trip for the soul's and body's refreshment. An automobile is all right if one goes at a moderate speed taking time to observe things as he goes,—such a pace as did the tourist of the phaeton and victoria days, who on their return to distant homes made famous the loveliness of Cape Ann by sea and land with many a fireside tale.

Coming down from Magnolia after leaving the beautifully wooded road, one gets a striking glimpse, through the trees near the John Hays Hammond estate, of Gloucester harbor. At the left one sees "Fisherman's Field" as history called it, or "Stage Fort Park" as it is known today, the landing place in 1623 of the Massachusetts Bay colonists; on the right Eastern Point with its lighthouse and breakwater, and lying in between, the blue harbor, an American Bay of Naples. The town rises quaintly in the distance, its picturesque buildings at the waterfront resting on thousands of wooden spiles. Here and there a white sail stands against the blue, and snowy sea gulls dip and soar on tireless wing high in the azure dome. The New Yorker, who daily moves between the dizzy structures of the great metropolis, when on Cape Ann is possessed with a tremendous sense of the openness and freedom of its vast open. He feels, as one has expressed it, as must the sea bird that stretches his wings and floats out and beyond,—out into God's own space!

One may continue along Western avenue or take a cut through Stage Fort Park to Blynman Bridge. It is more pleasant, however, to drive through the park, along under its avenue of tall and stately elms that fringe the water's edge. On entering this driveway, directly ahead, is seen a great boulder, once the spot of Indian religious worship. Imbedded in its side by the citizens of Gloucester is a large bronze tablet marking the landing place of the Dorchester Colonists from England in 1623, and commemorating the later founding of the city.

When passing through this locality one is on historic ground. As far as is known no European visited these shores after Champlain's departure in 1606 until 1623 when a colony was established here mainly through the efforts of a Puritan minister of Dorchester, England, Rev. John White, who collected a little band of emigrants for colonization in the new world and that they might have freedom from religious oppression. Fishing and farming were the occupations of the colonists until they were recalled by the Dorchester company two years later. Roger Conant and a few others resolved to stay, but in the next year they removed to Salem. It is probable, however, that some remained at Stage Head to continue operations. On this ground walked Miles Standish, Captain Hewes and others noted in Pilgrim days.

Continuing from the park along Western avenue and arriving on Blynman bridge we are driving on an iron structure named in honor of the first minister of Cape Ann, the Rev. Richard Blynman, who emigrated from Wales to Plymouth; but later came to Gloucester in 1642. This bridge crosses the Annisquam river, a waterway separating Cape Ann from the mainland, thus making the cape really an island.

Continuing along Western avenue one still has a magnificent view of the outer harbor, where can be seen the fisher craft with sails all set dashing through the brine, bound out to the bay and the far fishing grounds. We also get a better view of the half mile stretch of breakwater, where, perchance one of the fishing schooners may be just disappearing across the bar.

Leaving Western avenue, we come at length, to the head of Main street, where is the interesting old colonial home of the late Addison Gilbert (now the Gilbert Home for Aged Women).

Passing along to the right several rods we get a view of a bit of Main street, a section reminding one of old English towns, the ancient colonial houses and the spires of churches against the sky giving this touch of England ways.

We turn up Washington street past the Puritan House, on around the old Town Hall of Gloucester with its Corinthian pillars and driving through a section of Middle street, connect with Western avenue again.

In a subsequent issue of the BREEZE we will continue our drive about Cape Ann.

MAGNOLIA'S smartest affair of the week was given at the North Shore Swimming pool on Monday evening in the form of a "charity bridge" for the benefit of the Red Cross Surgical Dressings Branch at Magnolia. A very notable gathering it was of representative people of the summer social colony. Beautiful prizes were given, donated by the Magnolia shops, which were very anxious to assist, and generous in their donations. John Allyn won first prize for gentlemen; O. W. Richardson, second; R. L. Livingston, third; Mrs. E. H. Brainard, first ladies; Mrs. Allyn, second, and Mrs. E. B. Richardson, third. Mrs. Edward B. Richardson and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe comprised the committee of arrangements. Mrs. Richardson was very stunning in a beautiful black gown of tulle and lace. Mrs. Rowe wore an exquisite gown of black chiffon over white silk with bodice showing touches of royal blue satin veiled with beaded tulle. Mrs. Alice Moore Richard of New York, a season guest at the Oceanside, was gowned in a taupe georgette crepe with stunning lavender hat. Noted among the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rhodes of Brookline. Mrs. Rhodes wore a beautiful royal blue silk veiled with tulle of the same coloring with bandings of iridescent beading. Mrs. George E. Carter was very attractive in a black and white striped silk with black hat with a cluster of cerise blossoms. Miss Hidden was gowned in a black georgette crepe with white fox throw and stunning black tocue. Mrs. Charles Potter wore a stunning creation of black satin veiled with black tulle and rich jet trimmings at bodice. Mrs. D. B. Hussey wore a beautiful gown of white tulle with folds of black tulle appearing on the skirt and bodice. A smart, all white hat completed this costume. Noted among the players were Mrs. E. H. Brainard, Mrs. William Tucker, Mrs. John Stevens and Mrs. J. C. Ellsworth.

Mrs. Michael Foster and daughter, Miss Russell, who have been the guests of Mrs. Robert de Wolfe Sampson at Manchester Cove, sailed for England last Saturday. Her son, William E. Russell, who has been at Plattsburg, will spend August with Mrs. Russell's father, Joseph Dorr of Smith's Point, Manchester.

Francis L., 3d., the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Jr., of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, is spending several weeks at the Mowglis Camp for boys in New Hampshire.

The Argentine Republic

Article Prepared for Breeze on This Interesting South American Country by Guest at Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia

(Member Second Pan-American Scientific Congress)

THE constitution of the Argentine republic was definitely sanctioned on the 25th of September, 1860, at the congress of Sante Fe and is described in the act as Representative Republican Federation. It is a most liberal constitution, and provides for the protection and encouragement of foreign residents as well as Argentine. The following is the preamble to the act of constitution:

"We, the representatives of the people of the Argentine nation, assembled in General Constitutional Congress, by the election and the will of the provinces which compose it, in compliance with pre-existing compacts, with the object of creating national unity guaranteeing justice, consolidating internal peace, providing for the common defence, promoting the common good and assuring the blessings of liberty to ourselves, our descendants, and from people from all parts of the world who wish to reside on Argentine soil, invoking the protection of God, fount of all wisdom and justice, decree and establish this constitution for the Argentine nation."

The government is exercised by the legislative chamber, who frames the laws; by the executive power, who sanctions and promulgates them, and by the judicial power who interpret and apply them.

The legislative power is vested in two chambers, which meet in the federal capitol, that of the Senators and that of the Deputies. The Senate consists of thirty-two members, being two for each of the fourteen provinces and two for the federal capitol. A senator must be thirty years of age, must have been an Argentine citizen for at least six years, and have an annual income of not less than two thousand dollars. If not a native of the province which elected him, he must have resided in it for at least the two preceding years. A senator can retain his seat for nine years and thereafter can be re-elected; one-third of the members, selected by lot, retire every three years. The Vice-President of the republic is "ex-officio" president of the Senate. The Chamber of Deputies is composed of 120 members elected directly by the people of the province and of the federal capitol. The requirements in a candidate for Deputies are a minimum age of 25 years, four years of Argentine citizenship; birth in the province for which he stands, or two years' previous residence in it. The period of membership is four years, subject to a bi-annual retirement of one-half of the chamber. The initiation of laws relating to taxation and to the recruiting of the army is a prerogative of the Chamber of Deputies. The ordinary period of session for both chambers is from May 1st to September 30th. In case of necessity they are extraordinary convened. Senators and deputies receive payment of $8000 gold annually, and are thus the best paid legislative body in the world.

The executive power of the nation is vested in the President for the time being of the republic; he must be born on Argentine territory, or be a son of a native born Argentine. Simultaneously with the President a Vice-President is elected, the term of office in both cases being six years. The President is by virtue of his office the supreme head of the state and commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces. He nominates the judges of the Supreme Court and other courts of justice. The President is assisted by eight secretaries of state, namely: Interior, Foreign Affairs, Finance, Justice and Education, War, Marine, Agriculture and Public Works, selected by the President and are jointly responsible with him for the administration of their respective departments.

The judicial power of the republic is exercised by: 1st: The Supreme Court of Justice, which has its seat in the federal capitol; 2nd: Chamber of Appeal in the capitol and in the cities of Cordoba, Parana and La Plata; 3rd: Federal Court in the capitol and throughout the provinces and territories of the republic; 4th: Chamber of Appeal in the capitol for civil, commercial, criminal and correctional cases.

The national laws are all codified under the penal, civil, commercial, criminal, military, et cetera codes—trial by jury does not exist.

The provinces of the republic are autonomous and elect their own governors, chambers and judges. Provincial governments are expressly prohibited by the national constitution from usurping such functions of the federal government as: Entering into political treaties, making laws affecting commerce, navigation, citizenship and naturalization, establishing custom houses, or coining money. Each province organizes its own tribunal and formulates its own laws as to legal proceedings, but the federal, civil, commercial, penal and mining laws apply to the entire republic, and custom house establishments and tariff are national, and under the control of Congress. The provinces can only enact such laws of procedure as do not affect the fundamental laws of the country as a whole. Nothing could be finer than the conception of the Argentine constitution, the provisions of which are based upon the highest principles of liberty, justice and equality. Every inhabitant of the republic has the right to engage in any lawful commerce or trade, to petition the authorities to enter, remain upon, travel over and leave Argentine territory at will; to publish his ideas in the press without prohibition, to use and dispose of his property, to form part of any society or association having useful ends, and to practice his religion freely. The Argentine nation does not recognize prerogatives of blood or of birth. There is no personal prerogative or titles of nobility—all are equal before the law and eligible for any position under the state by mere reason of aptitude. Property is inviolable. A father of a family must leave his children four-fifths of his fortune; a husband, if there are no children, is obliged to leave his wife half of his; an unmarried son is compelled to leave his parents two-thirds of his property. Only unmarried persons, having no parents or descendants, are permitted to dispose of their property by testament.

Every author and inventor is given the sole right of the products of his genius for the period allowed by law. A man's dwelling place is inviolate, as are also his correspondence and his private papers.

Strangers enjoy within the republic all the civil rights of citizens, with liberty to exercise their trades, industries, or professions; to hold and deal in real estate, to navigate the rivers and coasts, to practice their religion freely, to bequeath property and to marry in accordance with the law. They are not obliged to become citizens or to pay especial compulsory taxes. They can, if they so desire, become naturalized citizens after two years residence, or even sooner if they have rendered especial service to the state, or have married an Argentine wife. Strangers, indeed, have a privileged position in Argentine, as regards their civil rights, for the constitution provides that the foreigner shall have the right to have their cases tried by the Federal Courts; that is to say, by judges appointed in the capital and in every province by the national government. Accordingly, such cases are taken out of the jurisdiction of the local court.

The Appleton Farms at Ipswich

Monument at the Round Point in the Rides at Appleton Farms, Ipswich

"APPLETON FARMS" always suggests Ipswich, and

Ipswich always suggests that beautiful section where the Appleton families have gathered for so many years. "Appleton Farms" means acres and acres of farmland and cultivated woodland through which there are many miles of grass roads. These grass roads, or the rides in "Appleton Farms," as they are usually called, were begun by the late Mr. Daniel Fuller Appleton, who cut away the brush and trees so that he might drive in and about the woods and pasture lands. His son, Francis R. Appleton of "New House," "Appleton Farms," has widened and perfected the roads. Some beautiful pines are here and there along these lonely drives,—standing like sentinels over the aged forest, and perhaps surprised that their quiet has been disturbed. At one little spot in the rides there is a clump of "life everlasting," known many years by the Appleton children, who have gathered its blossoms and carried them home to tell its sweet story.

Could there have been a more fitting place than in these rides for a monument, representing the past, to be placed? In one of the intersections of the rides stands a gray granite pinnacle, one of the twenty-six on Gore Hall, which was formerly the library at Harvard College. Gore Hall, built in 1838, was demolished in 1913 for the new general library, known as the Harry Elkins Widener Memorial Library, and given by his mother, Mrs. George D. Widener, now Mrs. A. Hamilton Rice. Harry Elkins Widener, Harvard '07, lost his life in the Titanic. The pinnacle was placed in "Appleton Farms," August 5, 1914. Engraved upon a brass plate upon it is the following poem written by Helen Hay, daughter of the late John Hay, and who is now Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York:

*"So grave it stands this stone apart"
You would not think how kind
It sheltered once beneath its heart
Young life and pulsing mind.*

*Glad ardent questing minds of youth
This pinnacle has known,
Who came from far to seek for truth
Within its walls of stone.*

*Now like life's twilight it seems shorn
Of all its powers, and yet
The spirit children it has borne
They will not soon forget.*

*Still brave it meets the sun's first rays,
Girdled by laughing trees,
Unvexed by time it rests and dreams
Its deathless memories.*

—H. H. W.

Another poem about the pinnacle has been written by Ruth Appleton Tuckerman.

CROWN OF LIFE

*Lie here the pinnacle brought low from place
Of honor where the wise dream dreams and plan
Great deeds. Here now it looks into the face
Of children near and hears the voice of man.
So humbled it has joy not known before,
In this its lowliness has touch and sight
Of tender human things and sees the door
Of souls stand wide and knows the might
Of sympathy. It has come down to strife
Of earth. It has found here its Crown of Life.*

Prominent Corner Property at Manchester

To Be Improved for Summer Stores?

Building Suggested for Corner of Pine and Bennett Sts., Manchester

SUMMER shops are coming to be a most important and noticeable feature of the development and growth of the North Shore as a summer resort. Magnolia's growth as a shopping center is one of the most amazing things of the last decade in this direction. Other places are showing evidences of like development. It is now reported that the property at the corner of Pine and Bennett streets, Manchester (opposite the Pierce studio), where a stable was located for a generation, until the automobile arrived, is to be developed by the erection of a casino-like structure, with one main entrance into a beautiful court, from which the dozen or more small stores are reached.

Laid Corner-stone of Memorial Hospital in Ipswich

IN the midst of a representative gathering of townspeople and the Ipswich summer colony, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr., laid the corner-stone of the Benjamin Stickney Cable Memorial Hospital on County road, in Ipswich, last Saturday, July 22. The hospital is to be the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Crane to the town, in memory of their friend, Benjamin Stickney Cable, who was killed in an automobile accident last September in Ipswich.

"Perhaps another generation will pass before there will be a gathering in Ipswich for a similar purpose," were the words with which Bayard Tuckerman of Ipswich prefaced the short address he made after the stone had been laid. Herbert W. Mason, president of the hospital association, had charge of the exercises. The filling of the copper box with its precious documents was interesting as well as being a very solemn occasion. Rev. Wm. J. Kelly offered prayer. Then came the chairman of the selectmen of the various towns of Ipswich, Hamilton, Essex, Rowley and Topsfield, who made brief addresses upon depositing their respective documents. For the town of Ipswich Dr. F. W. Kyes deposited an engrossed scroll, setting forth the appreciation for the hospital felt by the people of Ipswich. Luther W. Wait, past commander of Gen. James Appleton post, G. A. R., deposited a G. A. R. button and two small American flags. Mr. Crane put in several personal mementos sent by Mrs. Cable, and also several personal things belonging to him and to Mrs. Crane. The list of names of the trustees and of the various committees was read and placed in the box by the Rev. T. Franklin Waters of Ipswich, secretary of the association. Howard N. Doughty, the treasurer, put in a coin of 1916. Mr. Mason, according to custom, put in a newspaper, the copy being one of The Ipswich

Chronicle of July 21. Mr. and Mrs. Crane then stood by the stone while the box was sealed and placed within, after which they ceremoniously laid the stone. Bayard Tuckerman of "Sunswick" then made the principal address of the occasion. Fr. John M. Donovan pronounced the benediction. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crane of Wood's Hole, who were guests at "Castle Hill," the estate of the Cranes; Mrs. Crane's father, H. N. Higinbotham, Francis R. Appleton, Mrs. Daniel F. Appleton, Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Mrs. Evans Dick, Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald L. Hoyt, Mrs. Frederick J. Alley, Mrs. Herbert Mason, Mrs. H. N. Doughty, George E. Barnard, Mrs. F. B. Harrington, Mrs. John Heard and Miss Heard, Prof. Arthur Dow, Mrs. T. F. Waters, the Rev. Wm. G. Thayers, Rev. Roland Cotton-Smith, Mrs. Joseph F. Woods and others from the Appleton Farms and Argilla road colonies. The new hospital will occupy one of the most slightly places in Ipswich. It is located on the Barnard property at the corner of Essex street and the County road. The site is of considerable elevation and affords a fine view in all directions. The building will be one of the finest and best equipped in New England for its size. It will be ready for occupancy next spring. Ipswich had long made plans for providing the town with a hospital, which had never materialized until the Cranes, who have been of the summer colony on Argilla road for several years, generously offered one as a memorial for their friend. The executive committee includes R. T. Crane, Jr., Bayard Tuckerman, Herbert W. Mason and Howard N. Doughty. On the finance committee are John S. Lawrence, George E. Barnard and John Tuckerman.

RAYMOND BROWN, RESIDENT-MANAGER

MRS. and Mrs. F. L. Higginson of Pride's Crossing and Boston announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Juliet Higginson, to Frederic S. Goodwin of Boston. Mr. Goodwin is a lawyer of 84 State street. Miss Higginson is the sister of Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr., (Barbara Higginson) of Beverly Farms, and of Mrs. Philip S. Sears (Mary C. Higginson) of Pride's Crossing, and her brother is F. L. Higginson, Jr., of Coolidge's Point, Manchester. Miss Higginson returned this week from the Calumet mines in Michigan, where she went with the Agassiz party. She has maintained a place of her own in Dover for a few years.

Mrs. Charles Linzee Tilden of Hyde Park is staying with Mrs. George D. Howe at "Cliffs," on Smith's Point, Manchester. Mrs. James Howe has gone to visit her son at Philadelphia, but will return to the Shore later in the season.

♦ ♦ ♦
Mrs. Franklin Haven of West Beach, Beverly Farms, has her cousin, Miss Mabel Endicott of Boston, with her for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewell H. Fessenden of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, have with them the latter's sisters, Mrs. Reginald Gray of Boston, who is spending a month, and Mrs. H. L. Hammond of California, who will remain with them until they return to Boston.

Ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Beverly Farms has spent the last eighteen months in writing the life of Chief Justice Marshall. He has returned to his home in Beverly Farms from New York, where he spent several days last week, and is enjoying a quiet rest with Mrs. Beveridge and the children, before attempting the strenuous work of the Hughes campaign, for which he declared his intentions at a banquet last week in New York.

MRS. JOHN MARKLE entertained four tables at bridge yesterday afternoon at her summer home in West Manchester in honor of her house-guest, Mrs. Alonzo Hebbard of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Markle are leaving next Monday to spend a part of next week at the Virginia Hot Springs, making the trip by motor. Mrs. Markle's mother, Mrs. J. Hood Wright, is to spend August in the White Mountains with another daughter, Mrs. J. M. Conyngham.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newbold of Hyde Park, N. Y., arrived at the T. Jefferson Coolidge home on Coolidge's Point, Manchester, Tuesday.

Miss Caroline Ticknor and Miss Edith Ticknor of Boston, who have been spending July at the Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, have gone to Marblehead Neck for the week-end with their sister, Mrs. Melville Hunnewell, but will return to East Gloucester next week.

♦ ♦ ♦
Mrs. F. M. Stanwood and son, Paul Stanwood, of Manchester, were on a motor party last Sunday to Portsmouth and Little Boar's Head.

Mrs. V. Y. Remnitz of Brookline and Kentucky is giving two series of charming talks and readings on "Modern Poetry and Drama," one at the Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, on Wednesday mornings, and the other at the Straitsmouth Inn, Rockport, on Tuesdays. Her first talk at the Hawthorne was on the new American poetry, and her audience were especially interested in her reading of Miss Amy Lowell's remarkable poem, "Patterns." Mrs. Remnitz is staying at Rockport through mid-summer, and it is hoped that she may give some of her talks or readings at Manchester, Magnolia, etc.

THE initial supper-dance of the summer at the Essex County club, Manchester, is scheduled for Friday evening of next week, August 4, from 9.30 to 1. Supper will be served at 11 o'clock. Arrangements may also be made for a limited number of tables to be occupied during the dancing as well as at supper.

Rev. Wilfred H. Crook of England will preach Sunday, July 30, at the Unitarian Church, Manchester. Service at 11 o'clock.

The Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart, who have rented their Manchester cottage for the season and are spending the summer at North Andover, have started away on a visit to the Thousand Islands.

Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins, Jr., and her little son, Nathaniel, 3rd, will return to Beverly Farms next week from New Hampshire, where she has been spending a few weeks. Mr. Simpkins is on the Mexican border.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Reynolds Hitt entertained at dinner Wednesday evening at their cottage in Beverly Farms. Guests at the Hitt home recently have been Harry Gray of New York, a brother of Mrs. Hitt, and Diaz Albertina, also of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Little and daughter, Miss Jessie Means, return today from a short visit in North East Harbor, Maine. Miss Annie Means, another daughter, will return Sunday from a two-weeks' visit in New York and vicinity. The Littles are living in their own School House cottage in Beverly Farms this season.

Mrs. Lowell M. Chapin of Chicago, who has spent a month on Smith's Point, Manchester, with her mother, Mrs. J. L. Chalifoux, will leave next Tuesday for her summer home at Harbor Point, Mich. Mrs. Paul Chalifoux and her mother, Mrs. James McLester of Birmingham, Ala., will spend August at the Chalifoux cottage.

Rev. John McGaw Foster, rector of the Church of the Messiah, Boston, will preach at Union Chapel, Magnolia, next Sunday morning at 10.45.

Mrs. Frank B. Bemis, formerly of "Old Place," Beverly Farms, is spending the summer in a cottage at Pointe-au-Pic, Province of Quebec, Canada. It was erroneously stated in the BREEZE and other papers that she was at Bar Harbor.

Mrs. John C. Phillips of Moraine Farm, North Beverly, has had her daughter, Mrs. Andrew J. Peters and three children of Washington, with her for their usual visit before going to North Haven, Me., where they are now spending the summer. Mr. Peters is Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in Washington. Another daughter, Mrs. Raynal C. Bolling and children, Miss Nan and Carter, of "Greylodge," Greenwich, Conn., have also been visiting at Moraine Farm. Mrs. Phillips' son's family, the George W. Phillipses and baby, Geo. W., Jr., of South Sudbury, have also been guests.

Mrs. George Lee of Beverly Farms has been visiting in Dublin, N. H. Before going, Mrs. Lee entertained at luncheon on Sunday in honor of the Italian Ambassador and Countess Dolores Macchi di Cellere. Among other guests who came to the luncheon at "Villa al mare," were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Niles Roberts of Boston. Mrs. Roberts is of Italian birth and was prominent at the Italian Festa at the Hon. George von L. Meyer estate. She had painted many Italian badges for the occasion, which she sold to nearly every one on the grounds.

WEST BEACH, Beverly Farms, is having interesting times, sharks or no sharks. Ever since the exciting races of the Fourth there has been a little dissent in regard to the winners. To settle this controversy a race was pulled off this week in which the participants were Miss Eleonora Sears, William Laughlin and Thomas Powers, who drives for George Chipchase, the latter being in charge of all of Judge Moore's string of horses at Pride's Crossing. The race started half a mile down the fine stretch of sand and ended near the West Beach pavilion, just back of the Sydney E. Hutchinson place. An interested gallery of bathers watched the finish, and although it was close, the judge decided that Powers, Laughlin and Miss Sears won in the order named. Miss Sears is seen nearly every day riding on the beach on her handsome bay. She seems more fond of this sport than joining in the surf with the bathers, although when it comes to actual swimming and water sports Miss Sears is always in the lead with the other athletic girls who are frequenters of this noted beach.

Plans are under way to extend the pier one hundred feet within the next two weeks. A large float will be placed at the end. This has always been one of the finest bathing beaches on the North Shore and is the rendezvous for many of the summer colony.

Seen almost daily in the surf enjoying a good swim is the Italian Ambassador, whose little children, Agnese and Stefano, are about the earliest risers in the Farms, and make for the beach with their governess as soon as breakfast is over. Others seen are Hon. Albert J. Beveridge, the Sen. Henry F. Lippitts, W. G. Sharps of Wrentham, Mrs. Thomas Barber, Robert Means, Mrs. Charles Cabot, the G. L. Cabots, the George Lees, J. H. Wright, the Robert Jordans, Mrs. F. I. Emery, the John Barry Ryans, B. C. Weld, Mrs. J. Brown of Hamilton, Miss Alice Thorndike, George G. Snowden, the Arthur Littles, Henry B. Sawyer, Matthew Bartlett, W. B. Miller, Mrs. J. C. Phillips, Sr., of North Beverly, A. W. Weld, the Arthur Meekers, E. A. Boardman, J. J. Thomas of Hamilton, F. I. Galacar, Harris Livermore, Mrs. Randolph Frothingham (Mrs. S. Reed Anthony), the Julius Eismannns and Miss Grace Edwards. And then the babies and the little folks!—a place to delight in to their hearts' content. No wonder carts and cabs and little ones laden down with pails and shovels are seen hurrying along the streets every morning, all bound for the beach.

This is an exceptionally good place to see the yachts as they touch the Shore off and on all season. This week the Nirvana has been in and out. On it was Rodman Wanamaker of Philadelphia, whose son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arturo de Heeren (Fernanda Wanamaker) are recent arrivals in Beverly Farms in the cottage occupied last season by the Marshal Fabyans. The yacht will be here most of the season, for at Manchester are Mr. and Mrs. Gurnee Munn (Marie Wanamaker), who are spending the season with Mrs. C. A. Munn.

Another yacht seen is the Admiral, belonging to Gordon Dexter, who has chartered it to Sydney E. Hutchinson this summer. Mrs. Dexter is ill and not able to go on the cruises they formerly enjoyed. The Arcady is out this week with the Arthur Meekers, who have taken a party of friends on a trip. The Astec, belonging to A. C. Burrage of Smith's Point, and the Blue Bird, to the E. Palmer Gavits of the Point, are seen constantly going and coming, usually conveying parties of guests, for both are hospitable families. The Seminole, belonging to Allan C. Bakewell, Jr., of New York, was seen off the shore a few times this week.

West Beach is also the finest place possible from which to see the aeroplanes, that unique industry of the North Shore, developed at the Burgess plant in Marblehead. Godfrey L. Cabot of Beverly Farms is president of the Aero club of New England and is interested in forming a North Shore aviator unit. The seaplanes make thrilling pictures as they skim through the air, darting hither and thither at a mile a minute, sometimes, or are seen quietly resting on the water. The peculiar buzzing sound overhead warns one of their approach in mid-air.

Tunipoo Inn at Beverly Farms is receiving its full quota of guests. Recent arrivals: Emile N. Spaul of Boston Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Donnelly of Gardner, Dr. Charles Brodie Patterson of New York, Earl A. Aldrich, Ohio; Michael Birdner, Locust Valley, L. I.; John H. M. Fallon and Mrs. F. F. Fallon of Worcester, Misses Jessie O'Connell and Mary O'Rourke of Worcester, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Barry, Thomas J. Barry and Margaret Barry of Whittiersville, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Darling of Auburndale, Mrs. Charles R. Coverly of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Count and Countess Giulio Bolognesi.

Homestead Tea rooms on Sea street, Manchester, are offering attractions in the way of antiques. These are new tea rooms and many are finding their way to them. The Homestead is a most fascinating house of old Colonial days and is well worth a visit.

Mrs. J. L. B. Buck, Mrs. Pierpont E. Dutcher, Mrs. George N. Stowe and Miss Johnson made up a Magnolia party at the Bluebird Tea room at Pride's Crossing this week.

MR. AND MRS. BAYARD TUCKERMAN, JR., (Phyllis Sears) returned from their wedding trip on Wednesday. They are now occupying the Francis Bartlett house at Pride's Crossing, the home of the bride's late grandfather, Francis Bartlett. Their wedding, which took place on June 20th, was one of the largest ever held on the Shore, nearly eight hundred guests being at the al fresco breakfast served on the beautiful lawns at "Wood Rock," the home of the bride's father, Herbert M. Sears of Pride's Crossing and Boston. The young people have been on a trip through the West and Alaska. The Bartlett cottage has a quaint, formal garden of old-fashioned flowers interspersed with trees of box cut in formal ornamental designs. The garden is reached by a long flight of wooden steps close to the house, and the whole presents a charming picture of an unique, formal arrangement of walks, shrubs and flowers. Exceedingly tall pine trees are around the lawns and the whole place has an air of restfulness and quiet beauty. It was occupied last season by Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, now of Beverly Farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Jr., of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, are planning a beautiful home in the Wenham Lake region. It will be near the William Phillips home. Work has just started on the grounds and the avenue is being made.

Mrs. John Caswell and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Robbins Caswell, will remain at their home in Beverly Farms through August. Mrs. Caswell's son, John Caswell, Jr., is at Plattsburg. Last August the place was occupied by Mrs. Caswell's sister's family, the Albert G. Milbanks, who are now in New York.

The Henry Cannon Clarks of Beverly Farms are leaving today in their private car for Westport, N. Y., where they will occupy "Headlands," their fine estate on the west side of Lake Champlain. The Paul Moores of Convent, N. J., who have been at Judge Moore's the past week, will move into the Clark home tomorrow for the remainder of the season.

Miss Katharine P. Loring of Pride's Crossing, president of the Massachusetts Library club, has been attending the state conference of librarians at Simmons College, Brookline. She was present at a dinner given Wednesday night.

You can get meat, tomatoes, onions, Mexican beans and Chili powder compounded into delicious Chili-Con-Carne by a famous San Antonio recipe at the Bluebird Tea room, Hale street, Pride's Crossing. Southern waffles and maple syrup, home-made ice-cream and cakes are other good things to be found here. adv.

MANCHESTER will send its next box of supplies to the Red Cross for forwarding to the troops on the Mexican border next Monday. The gathering of supplies is being carried on each Wednesday as usual and new workers are being added to the staff of women who assemble at G. A. R. hall, Manchester, to sew comfort bags for the men at the front. Among those who gathered this week to sew were Mrs. Edward J. Holmes, Miss Elaine Denègre, Mrs. John Baker, Mrs. L. W. Floyd, Mrs. William W. Hoare, Mrs. Frank A. Rowe and Mrs. F. Clifford Rand.

Mrs. Boylston A. Beal of "Clipstone," Smith's Point, Manchester, is opening her house today for the first of a series of lessons in first aid, a part of the American Red Cross work. Dr. Peer P. Johnson of Beverly will conduct the lessons. The class will meet Friday afternoons at 4.30 o'clock. The class in the Home Nursing department, meeting twice a week in the Beverly hospital, and under the management of Mrs. F. L. Higginson of Pride's Crossing, is much interested in the work being given by Miss Cushman. An inspection of the hospital was made by the class this week, resulting in much praise being given to the institution. The Essex county home nursing and first aid classes are increasing. Calls for purse strings to open are numerous these days on the North Shore, but there will be some little crippled children in Boston sadly disappointed if their really fine handiwork is not purchased in August at the summer salesroom of the Boston Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, located in Manchester at 28 Central street. Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Kent of Pride's Crossing are of the committee interested in its welfare. This is one of the charities in which many Shore people are interested.

Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent's beautiful home at Pride's Crossing was opened last Friday afternoon for a musicale by Miss Frances Nevin and Miss Marion Lina Tufts. The characters of "Hansel and Gretchel" were charmingly represented by Miss Nevin, and the grace and ease of the singing was harmoniously set off by the exquisite playing of Miss Tufts. The recital was given within the hour set. It was held in the large hall of the Sargent home. Luncheon guests of Mrs. Sargent that day were her father, the Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge, and Mrs. Nathan G. Horton of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, who remained for the musicale. Yesterday Mrs. Sargent entertained at luncheon for Mrs. John L. Gardner of Boston, and afterwards took the guests to the Pride's Crossing home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Frick, at "Eagle Rock," where the wonderful and newly-acquired pictures were examined.

"STUDIO HOUSE" PINE ST.

TWO homes on Jersey Lane, West Manchester, have unusually fine views from their verandas out over the water. They are those of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Carr, "The Jungle," a big white house with green trimmings, attractively set high up among the trees; and that of Mrs. S. Parkman Blake and her daughter, Miss Marian L. Blake. The Blakes have an extremely interesting view from their place. One of the long flights of steps, an outdoor feature of some Shore homes, is notable here. It leads down to a grassy avenue running around the hill on which the house stands. The steps have stone slabs for treads and wooden pieces to help form the steps, thus making an easy artistic mode of descent and step-climbing.

These outdoor steps are varied in their architectural treatment. Some are formed of bricks, some of logs, some just stone slabs, as seen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Coolidge at Blynman Farm, Magnolia. An unusual outdoor stairway is seen at the Harold J. Coolidge's, Branch lane, Pride's Crossing. There the steps are entirely of sod, without any stronger support whatever. These lead down from the house to the little garden of roses and past the rockery. Although not exactly belonging to houses, steps and perrons, there is an interesting sight that can be seen from the Coolidge steps. No other North Shore home can show a flock of sheep as family pets, but that is what is seen grazing in the field just beyond the garden.

Madame Grouitch, who was the guest of the Misses Loring at Pride's Crossing, gave an interesting account of Serbia at the Red Cross sewing rooms at the Masconomo in Manchester on Tuesday. She reviewed Serbian affairs up to the time of the typhus scourge, when the expedition under Dr. Strong was sent out by the American Red Cross. Austrians, Bulgars and Germans have conquered the country since then. Out of a population of four and one-half millions, barely a million will be found when Serbia again comes into her own. Paris is the headquarters for refugees and London is headquarters for the Serbian government. "Where is Serbia?" is pathetically set forth by Madame Grouitch in talks in this country, by means of which she is raising funds for a refuge for women and children in Nisch. She will be the guest over this week-end of Mrs. Russell S. Codman at Smith's Point. Tonight at 8 o'clock she is speaking in Lynn at the Unitarian Parish house.

"Hallo, Newedd, why so sombre?"

"Say, old man, I've made a very painful discovery.

My wife can't sing."

"Painful? Why, man, you are to be congratulated."

"Alas, no! You see she thinks she can."—Exchange.

MR. AND MRS. GODFREY LOWELL CABOT opened "The Oaks" at Beverly Farms for a musicale this Tuesday which was attended by over seventy guests from along the Shore. These summer musicales at the Cabot home are among the pleasantest features of the season. Artists taking part were Mrs. Anne Roberts Barker, who has sung with the Boston Opera Company, Mrs. William Ellery (Bessie Bell Collier), the noted violinist, and Mrs. Dudley L. Fitts, who was at the piano. Mrs. Barker was in all black with bright flowers in her belt. Mrs. Ellery was in pure white and Mrs. Fitts wore lavender. Mrs. Fitts has played in many North Shore musicales. Among those present were Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson, Mrs. Boylston Beal, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. H. S. Grew, 2d, Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William R. Thayer, Mrs. S. P. Blake, Miss Eleanor Bancroft, Mrs. Robert de Wolfe Sampson, Mrs. Samuel Carr, Miss Florence Lee, Mrs. Robert D. Evans, the Misses Hunt, the Misses Edwards, Mrs. John Blodgett, Mrs. Robert Means, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. A. N. Reggio, Miss M. L. Corlies. Tea was poured by Miss Harriet Dexter and Miss Eleanor Cabot.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL MAGNOLIA

VERY charming and interesting people are Mrs. Clara M. Janes and her daughter, Miss Maude Adelaide Munn Janes of New York City, who are making a lengthy stay at the Oceanside, Magnolia. The Janes' have been visitors at Magnolia before, but not for several years, and find that things are as attractive as ever at the hotel. Miss Janes is a pleasing young person, very vivacious and dances with much grace. Although a person of much wealth Miss Janes is very democratic, and has lately fallen sole heir to the estate of her uncle Dr. H. K. Glover of New York. She also has just been the recipient of a family heirloom in the possession of some rare, hand-made sterling family silver and plate which has been in the Janes family for generations. Miss Janes on her mother's side is a direct descendant of Captain Glover of Boston, an old and early settler, and to the Munns of New York, of which the late Stephen B. Munn, who was a millionaire merchant of Manhattan, and very well known, was a member.

Miss Rosemonde Wyman, the attractive daughter of Mrs. Edward Frothingham Wyman of New York, who is a season guest at the Oceanside, is visiting at the home of ex-U. S. Senator Chase, "Miramar," at Narragansett Pier for a short stay. Miss Wyman will return to Magnolia later to join her mother for the remainder of the season.

The Oceanside has been graced by the addition to its summer coterie of Mrs. Landon Thomas and her lovely daughters, the Misses Ellen and Emily of Atlanta, Ga. The Thomas girls are very attractive and are exceedingly popular in the inner social sets of the Southern city. They will make an indefinite stay at Magnolia.

A bridge party of one table was given in the lobby of the Oceanside Monday evening by Mrs. Potts. The ladies who played in the game were Mrs. E. M. Binney, Miss Irene Cramp and Mrs. David Loring. The prize was awarded to Mrs. Binney—a beautiful handkerchief box fashioned from real lace and decorated with beautiful rosebuds.

Charles Wadsworth, 3rd, and his sister Miss Isabella Wadsworth, are very enthusiastic tennis players, and play a very good game together, spending a great portion of their leisure on the tennis courts at the Oceanside. No doubt they will make a fine showing in the tennis tournament which will soon be started.

Another brother and sister who play a splendid game are Charles D. Sabin, Jr., and his sister, Elizabeth Sabin. They have a very graceful style of play and will undoubtedly enter the tournament.

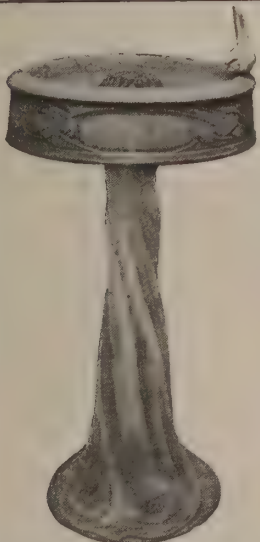

Mrs. M. Morris White of Cincinnati and Mrs. P. D. Eustis of New York motored up from Watch Hill on Wednesday and are registered at the Oceanside for a few days. They are domiciled in Sea Vista cottage and are guests of Miss Irene Cramp and Mrs. H. P. Vaux.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Lombard and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Moseley of Arlington were luncheon guests at the hotel on Thursday.

Mrs. H. M. Catherwood of Philadelphia, who is a season guest at the Oceanside has as her guest Mrs. Charles A. Farnum of New York for the remainder of the season.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Binney of Boston were dinner guests of Dr. Binney's mother, Mrs. Edith M. Binney at the Oceanside on Thursday evening.

An interesting motor party which arrived at the Oceanside on Wednesday for a few days' stay was composed of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bean and Mrs. Neinhem of New York and Miss Emily Tower of Long Beach, Cal. They are motoring along the shore to Canada and complimented Magnolia to the extent that it was the prettiest country that they had passed through.

WITH the wending on of summer the hops at the Oceanside, Magnolia, grow apace, which was very pronounced at the Tuesday evening hop, a great many dancing throughout all the numbers. The music Tuesday evening seemed to strike an unusually merry chord, the selections all having a rhythm to them which could hardly prevent the listener from tapping his foot, if he couldn't express his happiness by dancing.

Black seems to have reached the zenith of its popularity, for there were no less than a score of pretty debutantes gowned all in black, enhancing their loveliness to the last detail.

Miss Janet Bryan wore a fetching frock of black chiffon and tulle, while Miss Doris Bryan was adorable in a flame colored creation of net and tulle. Mrs. Bryan was stunning in an exquisite creation of white chiffon taffeta with bodice of black velvet and black tulle.

Mrs. Spencer Kennard, nee Madeline White, is being welcomed back to her old haunts at Magnolia and she appeared at the Tuesday evening hop in a lovely dancing frock of black tulle and chiffon. Mr. Kennard is with Battery A of Boston on the Mexican border.

W. M. Brown, Jr., of Miami and D. W. Ellsworth of Lynn were week-end guests at the Oceanside.

Miss Ethel Morse was quaintly charming on Tuesday evening at the hop gowned in a pretty frock of pink chiffon taffeta with skirt edged with silver fringe, and the bodice of silver lace. Mrs. Morse wore an exquisite gown of shimmering seafoam satin, heavily embroidered in pastel shades and touches of rose pink velvet on the bodice. Mr. Morse made up this charming trio, who was all attention to his pretty daughter and charming wife.

C. S. Carscallen of New York was a week-end visitor at the hotel, journeying up to spend a few days with Mrs. Carscallen and John.

Dr. Wendell A. Anderson of La Crosse, Wis., is a recent arrival and will make a visit of two weeks at the hotel. Dr. Anderson is the father of J. W. Anderson, who with his family is spending the summer in the Sea Crest cottage.

Mrs. Katherine Reidy of New York with her sweet young daughter, Miss Marion, are recent arrivals, planning to remain about four weeks, when they will leave for their country home at Saratoga Springs. This is their first visit and they are a charming acquisition to the summer colony. Mrs. Reidy hopes to be joined later by Mr. Reidy, who is an official of the Arnold, Constable Company of New York City.

THE OCEANSIDE, at Magnolia, has in its midst two very interesting and delightful people in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Cronkrite of Memphis, Tenn. This is the Cronkrites' first visit to Magnolia and they are charmed with the beauties and pleasures which it affords. Mr. Cronkrite is a cotton expert holding a high official position with the firm of Stewart, Gwynne Company at Memphis. Mrs. Cronkrite was formerly Miss Gena Norfleet whose father, Colonel F. M. Norfleet is the owner of the largest cotton plantations in all of the cotton belt. One plantation which is Mr. Norfleet's pride, he has very appropriately named "Flower Lake," which is an immense tract of about 6,000 acres fifty miles below Memphis on the Mississippi river. This plantation is two-thirds devoted to the growth of cotton and the other third to corn and the like. It is in the very richest Delta land, producing the finest cotton, with 2,000 bales in a season the average output. On "Flower Lake" plantation is a beautiful lake six miles long which, with the surrounding country is a paradise for the gunmen, being rich in choicest game. In all their naturalness, living on the plantation are nearly 250 negro families who daily work in the cotton fields. Col. Norfleet has nearly a score of other plantations located in Mississippi and Arkansas, which all lend themselves to making the Colonel the biggest cotton grower in the Southland.

Mrs. B. B. Hunt and Mrs. G. M. Massey of Memphis are newly arrived guests who will remain until the close of the season.

Mrs. E. G. Jacques of Kansas City, Mo., has returned to the Oceanside for the remainder of the season.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL, MAGNOLIA

A very sweet young girl is Miss McLoughlin, the daughter of Mrs. Lewis L. Belloni of New York, who are at the Oceanside for the summer. Miss McLoughlin rides very well, and was seen Monday morning with her riding master in a jaunty ride over the bridle paths at Magnolia.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Josephs, who have been guests at the Oceanside for the past month, left on Friday accompanied by Miss Christine Miller for a motor trip through New Hampshire, Vermont and New York state which will terminate at their summer home at Saranac. They will return to the Oceanside in about two weeks.

Miss F. E. Hidden of New York,* who is a season guest at the Oceanside, entertained a party of her friends at bridge in the sun parlor at the hotel on Friday afternoon. This is the first party to be given in the sun parlor which is ideal for daylight affairs and will no doubt become the popular thing. It was beautifully decorated with cut flowers in profusion. After the card game a delicious buffet luncheon was served.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Lee McMillan of New Orleans entertained the Sewing Class in the parlor in the west wing at the hotel. Afternoon tea was served.

Mrs. H. M. Catherwood of Philadelphia, a season guest at the hotel entertained a few of her most intimate friends at an afternoon tea in the east wing parlor at the Oceanside on Friday afternoon in honor of her guest, Mrs. Charles A. Farnum, who has lately arrived to spend the remainder of the season with Mrs. Catherwood.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brown of Detroit have come to the Oceanside to join Mrs. H. P. McIntosh at the Sea Vista cottage. Mrs. McIntosh is Mrs. Brown's mother. The Browns will remain indefinitely, and this is their first visit.

Miss Edythe Howard of Washington and Miss Katherine Gwynn, also of the capitol city, are recent arrivals at the hotel and have taken apartments in the Lawton cottage. Mrs. Howard, Miss Edythe's mother, will soon join the young ladies, coming up by motor and will remain for the rest of the season.

Among the August guest arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mathews of Baltimore, who are very prominent residents of that city.

Mrs. W. C. DeLenoy of New York and daughter, accompanied by Mrs. John Hussey of Plainfield, N. J., and John, Jr., make up a motor party which arrived on Wednesday for a short stay, en route for Bar Harbor.

Notable among the new arrivals at the Oceanside are Dr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Getty of Yonkers, N. Y., who will be guests at the hotel during August. Dr. Getty is a prominent physician in New York and both he and Mrs. Getty have a large circle of friends on the Shore.

Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Edgerton of New York with child and nurse are recent arrivals from the Hotel Wentworth at Newcastle. They will remain for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. J. A. Churchill and Miss N. L. Heyl of New York are registered at the hotel for the remainder of the season, having motored up from Narragansett Pier where they have been spending July at the Mathewson.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Miller and maid, of Cincinnati, are at the hotel for the remainder of the season. Mrs. Miller is not a newcomer, having occupied the Underwood cottage at Magnolia for a number of years, but for the past few years has been spending her summers in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Hall and Mrs. Lillian H. Abbott of New York are occupying apartments in the Tennis cottage for the remainder of the season.

THE SATURDAY EVENING HOP proved to be the most brilliant so far this season, and was attended by a great many of the guests, as well as bringing out a large number of the Magnolia cottagers. The feature of the evening was the number of couples dancing. Never once during the dance was the floor not well filled, and when the more popular dances were in vogue, such as the one-step and fox-trot it was crowded with dancers. Several of the guests entertained at dinner before the dance. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Hull, who entertained a party of six. The Misses Brainard entertained a party of ten, Miss Ethel Morse entertained a party of eight. All the tables were artistically decorated with cut flowers.

Miss Ethel Morse was very sweet and attractive Saturday evening in a dainty dancing frock of baby blue chiffon taffeta over a petticoat of white lace. She carried a blue ostrich fan.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Greene were noticed among the dancers. Mrs. Greene wore an exquisite gown of heliotrope taffeta and tulle.

Dainty Janet Bryan was very sweet and girlish in a lavender taffeta. Miss Janet Bryan danced quite a bit with young Jack Middleton.

Mrs. William J. Ehrich wore a lovely Quaker gray chiffon satin and tulle. Mrs. Ehrich's two attractive sons, Edward and Robert were very attentive to their mother.

Mrs. Charles Potter was her usual charming self in a rich white gown of silk with overdress of net and lace with bandings of rhinestone trimmings on the skirt, and bodice.

Pretty Virginia Koehler was very dainty and attractive in a quaint dancing frock of pink and white figured chiffon taffeta.

Mrs. David Loring wore an exquisite gown of black silk with overdress of black tulle and lace. A pink rose at bodice added the touch of color.

One of the most strikingly beautiful gowns was worn by Mrs. C. S. Carscallen of New York. It was a creation of the palest tone of lavender chiffon taffeta embroidered in silver and silver lace, which brought out the beauty of Mrs. Carscallen's coloring and silver hair.

Mrs. Reginald Kennard was very charming in a pink taffeta, of the "Miss Simplicity" type.

Notable among the beautiful black gowns at the Saturday evening hop was that worn by Mrs. L'Leconte of New York. It was a beautiful creation of black satin with overdress of black tulle and jet trimming.

Charles Wadsworth, 3rd, entertained Richard M. Elliott of New Haven over the week-end. Mr. Elliott was in attendance at the Saturday evening hop at the hotel.

Ira Brainard, 2nd, and Miss McLoughlin, who was very sweet and dainty in a blue taffeta dancing frock made attractive partners in a number of the dances.

A striking gown was worn by Miss Helen Semple, at the Saturday evening hop. It was of pale blue under-dress of chiffon taffeta with overdress of satin of American beauty coloring. The overskirt finished in points over the blue, which effect was carried out on the bodice.

Private and Class Instruction

THE OCEANSIDE at Magnolia, is finishing the last week of July with a cycle of special festivities among which none will be of more pleasure to the guests than the announcement of the special concert which will be given at the hotel on Sunday evening, August 6th, by the hotel orchestra assisted by the New York artist, Miss Donna Easley, soloist. * Miss Easley has won much praise from the New York press for her singing. She has a host of friends all along the North Shore among which are such persons as the John Hays Hammonds and the Henry Clay Fricks.

Mrs. C. S. Carscallen, a season guest at the Oceanside, is entertaining Pollen Jewett of Nyack, N. Y., who is a friend of John Carscallen.

Mrs. Dorothy Potter of Philadelphia with Baby Dorothy and nurse are recent arrivals to spend the remainder of the season with Mrs. Potter's mother, Mrs. Charles A. Potter.

Mrs. R. T. Howes of Cambridge is a guest of Mrs. I. Newton Peirce of Brookline, who is a season guest at the hotel.

Dr. J. S. Ibbotson, a prominent physician of Montreal, and Mrs. Ibbotson are new arrivals and will remain until the close of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Howard of Washington, D. C., are recent comers at the Oceanside and will remain for the rest of the season.

Miss Helen O. Bigelow entertained at dinner on Saturday evening at the hotel. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ewing of Brookline.

Many motor parties were entertained at the Oceanside over the week-end, notable among which was the Whiting party which comprised Mrs. William Whiting and son, W. B. Whiting, and daughter, Mrs. P. V. C. Bauer, all of New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerry and family of Brookline are registered at the Oceanside for a short stay. Mr. Kerry is a high official in the Bacon dry goods stores of Boston.

Mrs. M. B. Conway of Louisville, Ky., is a recent comer to the Oceanside and has made reservations for the rest of the summer days. Mrs. Conway is anticipating the arrival of her grand-daughter, Miss Dorothy Stetson in the near future to remain until September.

Miss Delia Champlin and Miss Martha Hollister, both of Grand Rapids, Mich., were luncheon guests on Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth.

THE OCEANSIDE has in its midst a very delightful personality in the person of Mr. Willis Boyd Allen of Boston, who is far famed for his children's stories, stories which have charmed the children, both young and old for a long time. Mr. Allen is a familiar figure each evening in the hotel lobby when just before dinner he sits with a large group of children and tells them stories. Some of them, as they get more and more interested leave their seats and cluster about Mr. Allen, while a favored one climbs up upon his knee. Viewing this pretty picture, one is strongly reminded of the poem "The Children's Hour" and a marked resemblance is noted in the kindly features of Mr. Allen to our poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Mr. Allen thoroughly understands the little ones and the expressions of their faces as the stories progress show the complete rapture which has enveloped them. Mr. Allen's countenance, too, shows his love for children and complete happiness when surrounded by them.

Mrs. E. W. Bentley of St. Louis has arrived at the hotel with her maid and will remain throughout the month of August. Mrs. Bentley is accompanied by her two sons, John J. Rowley and James C. Rowley.

Mrs. Latham Bartlett of New York has taken an apartment in the Tennis Cottage for the month of August.

Mrs. Charles J. Brown and her daughter, Miss Nettie L. Brown, of Newton are registered at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay.

EXPERIENCED traders in things Oriental know that in order to get the best, it is necessary to go direct to the sources of production. The needle-work industry in the Philippine Islands is of so recent development that up to date most of the trading of dealers in this country has been done through middlemen. Recently the William Filene's Sons Company of Boston decided, in order to give its patrons every possible advantage, to send an expert direct to the Philippines. This was done with results that proved the experiment well worth while. A recent shipment of Philippine hand-made and hand-embroidered undermuslins resulting from the trip will be on exhibition at the Oceanside, Magnolia, Monday, July thirty-first and Tuesday, August first. It will include patterns which have not heretofore been shown. One of the features of this very attractive lingerie is the fact that prices are not extravagant. The exhibit will be open to all who are interested.

THE FORD & WASS SHOE STORE,
POSTOFFICE SQUARE

AMONG the shops of the North Shore, none occupy a more prominent position than the North Shore shoemakers, Ford & Wass, of Gloucester. We illustrate the interior of their shop taken on a busy day. The very best of fine shoes are carried and in addition a complete department devoted to the sale of high-grade sweaters and hosiery. Shoppers will find the store centrally located at 6 Pleasant st., directly opposite the Postoffice.

A SERIES OF THREE LECTURES, illustrated by moving pictures, is to be given on the North Shore the first week in August by Prof. Van Hecke of Louvain university, who will tell of the reconstruction work in Belgium, showing portable houses for refugees, the concentration camps, etc. The first of these will be at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia, on Wednesday evening, August 2, at 8.15; the second on Thursday evening at Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, and the third at the Moorlands, Bass Rocks, on Friday evening, August 4. Tickets may be obtained at the hotels or from Mrs. Clough C. Overton, at Hawthorne Inn, the chairman of the committee, and from Mrs. Reeves Lewis at the Moorland.

Albert G. Van Hecke, professor of the Louvain university technical department, civil engineering, after being with his wife the witness and nearly a victim of the German cruelties at Louvain, left Belgium at the end of 1914 for England. Two months later he became a delegate of the Belgian government in order to take care of the professional training of his countrymen living in Holland as refugees or as prisoners—the Belgian interned soldiers.

Dr. Van Hecke was charged, at the request of the Dutch government, to organize under the auspices of the Dutch Central Relief Committee, professional schools and workshops for the purpose of building movable houses, which, after the war, will be sent into Belgium and placed in those parts of the country which suffered most. As it is known, many thousands of houses have been burned and destroyed.

Thanks to a Danish gift and another made by the Society of Friends, three hundred and fifty houses have been built and furnished, and more than a thousand refugees who, before the war, were common laborers, have been given the opportunity to learn a trade. These are now helping, during their exile, in the rebuilding of their country, and they do it generously, as patriots, because they receive only nominal wages. They are paid eighty cents a week, the half of which is deposited in a savings bank; after the war they will become the owners of the tools they are using. Movable houses are also built by the interned soldiers.

Mr. Van Hecke paid weekly visits to the camps in which the refugees are living. These camps, built by the Dutch government, which provides also the material needs, are real villages, with a church, city hall, post-office, hospital, schools, etc. He had the opportunity to see how an original and novel popular community life had developed amongst a people brought together by their misfortune, and generously provided for by their Dutch neighbors.

Prof. Van Hecke was permitted by the Dutch government to take moving pictures of the camps, in order to bring with him to this country a complete representation of the life there, and to show how the money and the clothes sent so generously have been used. These views—about 3000 feet of film, present many very striking contrasts; funerals of refugees, children—there are in one of these camps 1200 children—going to school, the interiors of the kindergartens, primary classes, workshops created by the Rockefeller Foundation for sewing, dress-making, etc., workshops organized by the Society of Friends; needlework, embroidery, mattresses, toys, brushes. Our Flemish lace-makers with their cushions. Interiors of sleeping-halls, dining-halls; each dining-hall with a capacity for a thousand people, the soup-servers, kitchen, etc. Interior of the hospital, the clothing store, where the clothes so generously contributed by America are classified and distributed. Interesting views show the workshops for carpenters, cabinet-makers, and smithies working on the construction of portable houses. Then appears a view of one of those little cottages completely furnished, where the exiled families can find their home again. These cottages are grouped together in a part of the camp, forming a small suburb, symbol of a new Belgium. The proceeds of these conferences will go to the support of these workshops until the end of the war. The names of those who have contributed, whether cities or individuals, will be inscribed on the wooden constructions; houses, churches, schools, hospitals, etc.

"I'd like to be a soldier," said Bobby; "but not a corporal, 'cause people talk a lot about corporal punishment."

IPSWICH.—Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hunt Trumbull (Miriam Mason) were week-end visitors at "Candlewood Farm," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason in Ipswich. The Trumbulls were married in Ipswich in June and a large reception was held at the Mason home. The young people are living in Wayland.

The Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C., will have charge of the Ascension Memorial Church in Ipswich during August.

Ye Rogers Manse in Ipswich is located at the foot of Town Hill, from which a forty-mile view is discernible, taking in Cape Ann to the Isles of Shoals, New Hampshire and Maine vistas lying beyond. The Ipswich river offers fishing, canoeing and motor boating.

Ye Burnham House, Ipswich, is the quaintest old place on the North Shore to wander around in. The delightful old-time rooms are open to all, and it is no wonder so many antiques are sold here, after they are seen displayed so ingeniously, forming the decorative scheme of the place and fitting in so well with the general surroundings.

HAMILTON young folk are anticipating their usual August pony drags which start next week and run through the month. Miss Emma Mandell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Snell Mandell of Hamilton, is again master of the drags this season, and has planned the meets.

The S. Dacre Bush family is often down from their summer home in Marlboro, N. H. Recently they made a short visit in Hamilton when they had with them Mrs. H. N. Doughty of Ipswich, who had been their guest in Marlboro. Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Doughty were formerly of Englewood, N. J.

Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., is one of the young brides of the past year who is a welcome addition to the summer colony in Hamilton, where she and Mr. Burrage are occupying the Safford house until a remodeled house on the J. B. Moulton place is ready for them. Mrs. Burrage, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Marshall Shirk of Philadelphia, is fond of the antique and has transformed the Safford home interior, by bringing out rare old pieces of antique furniture, stored away in the attics, and replacing the modern furniture with these old-time relics, until the old house has a truly, delightfully quaint appearance. It is located just across from the picturesque old church in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell of Hamilton have had two handsome black and white fox terriers brought to guard their new home. Other interesting dogs are seen at the Hamilton home of the Rodolphe L. Agassizs, where brown water spaniels are the family pets.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cleveland Perkins of Washington, who are living in their new home, "Windacre," Miles River road, have with them their daughter, Mrs. Robert Wallack, and her young son, who will spend the summer while Mr. Wallack is on the Mexican border. During the past month Capt. Naurson's wife, who is the daughter of Gen. Mills of Washington, has been their guest. Capt. Naurson is also in Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr. (Frances S. Saltonstall), of "Longmeadow," Hamilton, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son last Saturday at their summer home. The baby will be named George von L. Meyer, 3d., in honor of his grandfather on the paternal side. The baby's grandparents on the maternal side are Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. Saltonstall of Milton. "Longmeadow" is located close to the handsome estate of the Hon. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, known as "Rock Maple Farm," on Main street.

WENHAM, the village of many things typical of New England, has no more delightful spot than the Wenham Lake region. Here are some of the most beautiful and stately homes of the North Shore.

Mrs. John C. Phillips of "Windy Knob," one of the fine homes by Wenham Lake, is spending the mid-summer with her little children at Ashland, N. H. She also spent part of last summer at Ashland.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Hopkins of Boston are in the Newhall cottage by Wenham Lake. They have with them for some time, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ryan of Boston.

Miss Virginia Tufts of Boston is occupying her own cottage at Wenham Lake this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Perkins of Salem have a cottage this summer at Wenham Lake.

Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr. (Eleanor Cole), entertained at luncheon last week at the Wenham tea house. Her guests were Miss Doris Andrews of New York, Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell of Hamilton, Mrs. Lawrence W. Morgan of Beverly Farms, Miss Bessie Burrage of Manchester and Miss Corinna Searle of Ipswich. The tea house is using yellow flowers in very effective decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cunningham of "Hillcroft," Wenham, made a short visit to Wenham last week. They are spending the summer as usual at Brookville, Me., where they live practically in their yacht the entire summer. The house in Wenham is closed this summer, but will be ready for their occupancy in the fall. The Cunninghams spend the winters in Boston.

Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels of "Old Farm," Wenham, will have as her guest in August, Miss Elizabeth Baker of Brookline, who also spent some time with Mrs. Daniels early in the season. Mr. Daniels, who recently returned from Plattsburg, gave an interesting account of a day's routine at the camp, when he was one of the after-dinner speakers before the Men of Wenham, who banqueted at the Wenham tea house.

The Wenham tea house is preparing to have suppers later in the season when it is somewhat cooler. No more charming place on the North Shore could be found for evening affairs. The room is large, the music could be stationed in the small private dining-room and supper could be served on the screened porch. Bridge parties are also being planned. The new house was taxed to its capacity one hot day last week when every table indoors and on the porch was filled. Recent luncheon parties were Miss Rantoul, four; Mrs. Charles W. Taintor, four; Mrs. W. S. Semple of the Oceanside, Magnolia, eight; Mrs. R. H. Fitz, who entertained Mrs. Geo. H. Swift and the latter's sister, Mrs. J. C. Hildebrand; others seen at the tea house were Mrs. Wolcott H. Johnson with Mrs. Julian Codman; Mrs. E. B. Cole with Mrs. Edwin Sheafe and others; Mrs. Charles F. Ayer and her little girls, Theodora and Anne Beekman.

The Misses Burnham of "Overlook," Wenham, entertained over thirty members of the Village Improvement society, recently, at their beautiful home. After the business meeting, Southern dialect stories were told by Miss Barbee of Kentucky, who is a house-guest of the Burnhams. The guests went through the fine rose gardens and were served strawberries, later, fresh from the gardens. Another guest at the Burnham home is a cousin, Mrs. Perkins, of Hartford, Conn.

Miss Mary Greenough of Boston has been a recent visitor in Wenham where she spent the day with Miss Frances Downes.

No little pets in Hamilton have any better time than the French poodles at the home of Miss Julia Meyer. They are often seen accompanying Miss Meyer to the beach, when she is out walking or when she is driving. They are certainly dear looking little things and it is no wonder that they claim so much attention from Miss Meyer.

CLIFTON HEIGHTS is the popular summer place this summer, and all social activities radiate around Clifton Heights Casino, which is a very attractive building and ideal for the pleasure of the summer folk. Last Friday evening the first subscription whist party of the season was held in the Casino, and everybody was present. Prizes were given, which stimulated interest, and each and all had a regular good time.

The Monday afternoon bridge is a popular diversion also, and is always very well attended. This Monday past Mrs. S. R. Ellis and Mrs. C. H. Hood were the hostesses. The prizes were awarded Mrs. Walter Estabrook, Mrs. A. B. Shaw, and Miss Smith, who attained the highest scores. Noted among the guests were Mrs. George Faxon, Miss Edith Faxon, Mrs. A. T. Thompson, Mrs. J. A. Richards, Mrs. R. L. Baker and Miss Fanny Hayden.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Josselyn of Clifton Heights have been entertaining friends from New York, and have just returned from a week-end spent in Atlantic City.

DEVEREUX has been very popular for the past week because of its delightful sea breezes, which always seem to strike this very pretty summer colony, and the number of bathers has been greater than ever before. Evidently the Devereuxites are not afraid of sharks.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dunlop, who are occupying the No. 3 Goldthwaite cottage, have just returned from a delightful motor trip through Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Godding of "Fayrcliff," Atlantic avenue, entertained a party of friends at the Tedesco club on Wednesday evening on the occasion of the weekly dinner dance at the club. Covers were laid for four.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, SWAMPSCOTT.—Several hundred guests of the New Ocean House and their friends from along the North Shore attended the second formal ball held last Saturday evening in the main ball room of the New Ocean House. Not only was the main hotel filled to capacity for this big social affair, but the top floor of the new $150,000 annex was opened to accommodate the unusually large number of guests seeking reservations. The new fireproof addition to the New Ocean House has met with instant popularity with the guests, the luxurious appointments of the suites offering all that may be desired for the comfort of patrons.

With the opening of the top floor, work is now being rapidly pushed to furnish the remaining floors and have all the suites ready by the first of August. The reservations to date have been pouring in with a consistency which will make it necessary to have every suite ready for occupancy by the first of next month.

With the increased accommodations offered by the opening of the Annex, an unusually large number of guests were present at Saturday evening's ball. The affair was one of the most brilliant social events of the month along the North Shore. The musical numbers included the popular melodies, splendidly rendered by the New Ocean House orchestra under the direction of Frederick L. Mahn of the Boston Symphony. The usual buffet supper was served in the Tea Room at the conclusion of the dance.

Sunday evening a special concert was given in the ball room of the hotel by the New Ocean House orchestra at which Mrs. Martha Atwood Baker of Boston was the soloist. More than 100 guests of the hotel were present to listen to the delightful program. This feature of the Sunday evening concerts is an innovation of the 1916 season and it is the intention of the management to continue them throughout the season. At regular intervals a soloist of some note will be engaged to assist.

Among the arrivals of the past week have been the following: W. K. Kellogg, Battle Creek, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kitching, New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Austin R. Bill, Hartford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mott, Miss E. A. Mott, Miss Helen Mott, Miss Gretchen Mott, P. S. Mott, Scranton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Munro, H. N. Miller, Detroit, Mich.; G. W. Fraker, Benj. Trotter, C. P. Wall, Spray, N. C.; Gerald H. Dempsey, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Dickinson, Springfield; C. H. Hapgood, New York; Miss E. W. Todd, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Wentworth, Hopedale; Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Marco, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Heatter, Miss Marjorie Heatter, Larchmont, N. Y.; Donald Campbell, New York; Miss Gwendolin Moore, Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fairleigh, St. Joseph, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Parsons, Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Wyatt, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Merrill, Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Steigers, St. Louis, Mo.; W. W. Tapley, Springfield; Floyd Cranska, Calvin Cranska, Moosup, Conn.; Mrs. Malcolm C. Mitchell, Chicago; E. M. Diehl, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Packard, South Deerfield; Edwin S. Thompson, Richard Buckingham, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sompson, Auburndale.

Mrs. Austin White of Newton was the hostess at a luncheon party last Saturday at the New Ocean House. Included in the party were Mrs. Robert S. Minot of Boston, Mrs. Robert A. Manning from Boston and Miss Hall of Milton.

Among the many dinner parties Saturday evening at the New Ocean House was the one given by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hood of Brookline. Others in the party included Miss Caroline Hood, Miss Lowe, Mr. James Howard and James Moore, all of Brookline.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving W. Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Hall, Richard D. Hall, Ernest K. Hall and Gordon Knauth comprised one of the numerous luncheon parties at the New Ocean House Sunday.

During the past week a decided and gratifying improvement has been made in the general appearance of the grounds of the hotel. The two new tennis courts, situated near the Thorne cottage, have been completed and are being used daily by the guests of the hotel. Attractive boulevard lamps and picturesque pergolas have been erected on the plaza opposite the main entrance of the hotel, enhancing to a considerable degree the beautiful outlook from the hotel veranda.

SWAMPSCOTT folk have divers ways of spending these beautiful July days, but judging from the large number of people who frequent the beach at eleven each day in bathing attire, it would seem that this is the most popular pleasure. And the bathing frocks are very pretty, too. During the past week a very stunning bathing suit was worn by a pretty debutante at Phillips Beach. It was a black taffeta with short puffy skirt from below which showed black knickers with a wide fluting. The sash at the waist was of a beautiful Roman stripe, which coloring appeared at the collar and cuffs and in the smart Mandarin bathing hat.

Mrs. George A. Brown of Swampscott entertained her bridge club, which is composed of prominent ladies of the summer colony of Swampscott and Marblehead Neck, at the Tedesco club on Thursday. A luncheon was served before the card game at a table decorated with an abundance of cut flowers. Among the guests were Mrs. Edward Brown, Mrs. W. L. Terhune, Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shuman, Mrs. C. O. Baker, Mrs. Frederick McQuesten and Mrs. Hugh Brown.

One of the smartest affairs of the past week was the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Little of Ocean avenue at the Essex County club, Manchester, when they entertained ten of their friends at dinner. The table was beautifully decorated with a profusion of pink sweet peas and greenery. Among the guests were Judge Brough of Toledo, Mrs. L. G. Burnham of the Somerset, Boston, Mrs. Charles Dietrich of Toledo and Mrs. Frank Anderson of Nashua.

"Eagle Patrol," a company of boy scouts of Swampscott, left Monday morning, under the command of Scout Master Harvey Scranton, for a month's visit to Maine at the Terhune Camp at Norway. Among the boys were Leader Charles T. Johnson, Sherwin Brown,

One of the most attractive girls in the summer contingent at Swampscott is Miss Dorothy Gage, who is at the New Ocean House. Miss Gage has a great variety of accomplishments, equally proficient in all. Her latest hobby, however, seems to be that of riding, and each morning comes over to Magnolia to ride with Mr. Coulter, her teacher. Miss Gage is a familiar sight each day in her fine White motor car as she whizzes over the roads at Swampscott. She is a Texas girl, her home being at San Antonio, and she possesses all the charm of the Southern maiden. Miss Gage will leave on Saturday afternoon for Lake Sunapee, N. H., for a visit.

Paul Clay, a prominent attorney of Lawrence, and treasurer of the Merrimac Valley Country club at Methuen, was a week-end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ward, and was entertained at the Tedesco club.

Scott Clifton Carbee of Boston, the famous American portrait artist, has come down to Swampscott for the summer and is occupying the Thorne cottage, having fitted up a summer studio. Mr. Carbee needs little intro-

Billy Carpenter and Frederick Wood. At camp they will be joined by the other three members of the patrol, who are Everett and Philip Terhune and their cousin, Grover Bowles of Connecticut. Scout Master Scranton is a Harvard graduate of last June and is a very competent commander.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Johnson of Swampscott entertained over the week-end Donald Cameron and family of Westford and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Murkland of Lowell. Mr. Murkland is treasurer of the Vesper Country club.

Stanwood Wellington of Chestnut Hill, Brookline, has rented the Arthur F. Estabrook house on Atlantic avenue for the remainder of the season, taking up his residence there on Monday last. Mr. and Mrs. Estabrook have taken apartments at the Bellevue until September.

PHILLIPS BEACH.—Mrs. Charles Edmund Longley of 121 Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, is entertaining her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Sternberger of Cincinnati, who is better known as Rosalind Longley, and whose recent marriage took away from Swampscott one of its most attractive debutantes. Charles Edmund Longley, Mrs. Longley's eldest son, is also visiting his mother with his charming young bride. Mr. and Mrs. Longley make their home in New York.

A novelty which is attracting the attention of the feminine members of the Neighborhood club is the sewing class, which holds its meeting Wednesday afternoon of each week. Hemstitching, lace-making and embroidering are the diversions. Mrs. C. H. Holloway and Mrs. G. H. Crosby are leaders in the work.

The Friday morning surgical dressings class was very well attended and much work accomplished by the ladies.

A huge box of the dressings was packed and sent to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital for sterilization before being sent to the war zone. Bulletin No. 6 was read at the meeting, which was a letter from Mrs. Austin, superintendent of the Paris Depot of Surgical Dressings Committee, which explained the necessity of cutting off the selvages from the gauze to prevent torture to sensitive wounds, urged all to work for this humane cause, saying that never could there be too many dressings for the use of the thousands of wounded soldiers. Mrs. Austin said that great appreciation was felt for the generosity of the American women, and that she, as an American woman herself, was greatly relieved that no war action had been decided upon in our own country, knowing the horrors of war. Among the ladies at the meeting were Mrs. William A. Paine, Mrs. Theodore Gooding, Miss Chase, Miss Tapley, The Misses Farrar, Mrs. P. N. Jones, Mrs. J. F. Langmaid, Mrs. C. B. Price, Mrs. C. H. Price and the Misses Guild.

Mrs. William Terhune's house at Phillips Beach, was the meeting place last week of the Marblehead Neck Ladies' Whist club. A delightful luncheon was served by the hostess and among the ladies who were entertained and who enjoyed their weekly game of bridge whist, were Mrs. George Hough, Mrs. Oscar Shepard, Mrs. Edwin A. Shuman, Mrs. Frederick McQuesten, Mrs. Edward Mrs. Cyrus O. Baker, and Mrs. George Brown.

Percival B. Palmer left his summer home at Phillips Beach on Monday morning for a business trip to Chicago, which will be of indefinite duration.

Miss Marietta Nute of Brookline held her first class for folk dancing at the Neighborhood club Tuesday morning, which was a decided success. The classes will be held every Tuesday morning in the clubhouse.

BEACH BLUFF.—Wednesday evening was a gala one at the Tedesco club, the occasion of the weekly dinner dance. Sharpe's orchestra entertained with music on the inside of the clubhouse, whilst from the veranda a delightful band concert was given. The clubhouse was thrown open and the dining-rooms were a mass of beautiful cut flowers from the greenhouses of several of the members. Among those who entertained were E. W. Ong, six; A. M. Creighton, four; M. W. Breed, six; J. M. Farquhar, six; T. L. Godding, four; Z. Sears, ten; T. R. Neath, six; Ned Conway, seven; C. H. Hood, fourteen; F. P. Cox, six; W. W. Foster, six; W. G. George, six; C. M. Boyd, twelve; W. H. Felt, four; E. Hollingsworth, six; M. P. Clough, six; L. G. Atherton, five; D. A. Donahue, two; O. D. Clark, nine; P. A. O'Connell, five; E. L. Davis, four; W. H. Maxwell, ten; H. B. Lewis, four; D. H. Smith, twelve; E. N. Carpenter, five; J. H. Blodgett, eight; M. N. Eaton, six; J. H. Osborne, four; M. L. Madden, five; C. J. Reuter, nine.

Parry C. Wiggin of Beach Bluff entertained several of his friends at the Tedesco club during the past week, including W. J. Tully, W. E. Aldred and E. E. Wilson, all of Providence, and men well known in the manufacturing industry.

Expected at the Bellevue this week for the remainder of the season are Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Morrison and family of Essex Fells, N. J.

W. G. Bronson and family of Toronto, Canada, are among the recent arrivals at the Bellevue for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman North of Boston, who have been making an extended visit at Minneapolis, have returned from the West and are at Beach Bluff for August.

Brown had the best score. There were twenty-two entries, which included E. L. Brown, P. C. Wiggin, R. B. Sprague, C. H. Holloway, D. T. Kennedy, E. F. Ladd, H. F. McNeil, F. M. Sawtelle, J. M. Rothwell, H. W. Wheeler, H. B. Prout, K. J. Lennox, F. I. Geisinger, H. B. Craig, J. R. Simpson, W. H. Carl, G. H. L. Coulthurst, C. W. Conklin, W. F. Richardson, E. F. Bacheller, A. McGregor, Jr., H. C. Brown. In the handicap medal play H. H. Holton's net score was 84, the best. In the women's sweepstakes Mrs. R. F. Kimball was the winner with a net of 88. Mrs. A. McGregor was second with a score of 90.

A delightful luncheon and bridge was given at the Tedesco club on Tuesday by Mrs. S. G. Adams of Beach Bluff. A delicious luncheon was served at an artistically arranged table laid for eight. Two tables of bridge followed.

Tuesday afternoon at the Tedesco club was Ladies' Day and was well attended by the feminine members and their guests. Tea was served.

Extensive preparations are being inaugurated for the coming of the ball at the Tedesco club, which will take place on the evening of August 9th, and which promises to be the gala event of the season.

Jack Fanning, a crack trap-shooter of the DuPont Powder Company of Wilmington, Del., was at the Tedesco on Wednesday and Thursday to instruct and coach the members of the club in the art of trap-shooting. Many availed themselves of the opportunity and big scores are expected in the next competition.

Mrs. Lamont G. Burnham of the Somerset, Boston, who is spending the summer at Beach Bluff, is entertaining her cousin, Franklin J. Burnham, and Mrs. Burnham. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham also make their winter home at the Somerset.

MARBLEHEAD NECK was gay and festive Monday evening on the occasion of the Corinthian Yacht club's weekly band concert and dinner. A notable gathering of people along the North Shore enjoyed the festivities and the gowns of the ladies were extremely beautiful. The Salem Cadet band gave the best concert of the season. The tables were beautifully arranged with cut flowers, each table carrying out a complete color scheme. The flowers used were snapdragons, sweet peas, nasturtiums, roses and gladioli and greenery. Among those who had dinner guests were M. Salisbury, four; C. E. Longley, four; Dana Estes, eight; G. R. Beardsell, sixteen; W. B. Phinney, six; D. B. Hallett, seven; A. Boutell, twelve; E. W. Cobb, eight; W. M. Pratt, seven; C. O. Whitten, five; C. F. Messer, two; F. A. Flood, six; F. N. Bushnell, five; R. E. Hall, four; F. S. Cleghorn, eight; W. V. Mott, five; H. A. Norton, six; W. O. Todd, four; C. W. Cheney, four; L. V. Grover, four; W. A. Riggs, six; H. S. Wheelock, three.

Mrs. Charles Johnson of Boston, who has just returned from a trip around the world, has been a guest of Miss M. Corrine Dana at Marblehead Neck.

Miss M. Corrine Dana entertained at dinner on Monday evening at the Corinthian Yacht club. Covers were laid for seven. The table was decorated with a huge centrepiece of pink gladioli. Four smaller vases filled with pink snapdragons were placed at intervals about the centrepiece. Rich greenery radiated from the centrepiece Marblehead, and has a host of friends who were pleased to welcome her return to Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten leave Friday for a week-end visit with Mr. and Mrs. William A. McKenny at their summer home at Paradise Point, Boothbay Harbor, Me. Mr. and Mrs. McQuesten are planning to go aboard Frank B. McQuesten's yacht Juanita at Boothbay on Monday for a week's cruise along the Maine coast. Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus O. Baker of Marblehead Neck will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten on the house-party to the McKenny home at Paradise Point and also on the yachting cruise on the Juanita.

Mrs. Percy H. Tarr of Marblehead was hostess on Friday last to a pretty luncheon given at the Corinthian Yacht club at the Neck. Covers were laid for eight. The guests were Mrs. G. P. Brackett, Mrs. E. Walkley, Mrs. S. G. Humphrey, Mrs. D. R. Hawley, Miss Elizabeth Vickery, Miss Pauline Masury and Miss Helen Paine.

Luncheons were given at the Corinthian Yacht club on Wednesday by Mrs. W. S. Barker, Mrs. E. E. Gray and Mrs. Frank S. Cleghorn.

Miss Isabelle Reid of Marblehead Neck, who has been ill for some time past, and who was obliged to go to Boston for treatment, will return to the Neck this week, very much improved, which will, without doubt, be pleasant news to her friends.

Miss M. Corrine Dana of Marblehead Neck entertained a number of her friends Friday last at a bridge MARBLEHEAD will make all the North Shore take notice, when on Thursday, August 10th, from ten in the morning until six in the afternoon the townspeople aided, and most substantially, too, by the smartest of its summer colony, will hold a "Market Day" for the benefit of the Visiting Nurses association at Crocker Park. The committee is headed by Mrs. Chester L. Dane as chairman, assisted by an able committee of ladies, who are working earnestly and well for the success of the affair, composed of Mrs. Herbert J. Hall, Mrs. Everett Paine, Miss Amy Lindsey, Miss Mary E. Nichols, Mrs. William J. Goldthwaite, with Mrs. John Purdon as treasurer for the day.

There will be numerous stalls for the sale of fruit, vegetables, cake, candies, useful household articles, flowers. Then there will be a soda fountain, where delicious cold drinks may be had at a fair charge.

Perhaps one of the greatest attractions will be the Punch and Judy show, the delight of the little ones. This unique feature will be in charge of Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, who is giving this allurements her undivided attention.

Mrs. B. Devereux Barker will have complete charge of the auction bridge party, which, through the generosity of Herr Heinrich Unberhau of the New Fountain Inn, will be played in the parlors at the inn, which makes it possible to entertain a greater number of players.

The drawing of the "Market Day" poster has been made and given by Thomas G. Frothingham, which has called forth the admiration of many people.

Elmer Howe has generously donated the Marblehead band, which will furnish music throughout the day.

'Tis hoped that the day will be pleasant and the skies fair for this stupendous undertaking, and that a goodly sum will be realized.

Bowdoin B. Crowninshield has returned to the "Anchorage," his beautiful summer home at Peach's Point, from the fighting line in France, where he went in connection with the American Red Cross, and is being welcomed by a host of relatives and friends. Mr. Crowninshield has brought back with him a wonderful collection of pictures taken under most harrowing conditions at the front.

Mr. Edward A. Filene and daughter, Miss Catherine Filene of Boston, were week-end guests at the Rock-Mere, coming down in their motor.

The children's party at the Rock-Mere on Thursday afternoon was a brilliant success. A large number of children attended both from the hotel and the surrounding summer cottage colony. Every game dear to the childish heart was played and dainty refreshments served.

Among the recent arrivals at the Rock-Mere were Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Whittemore, Miss Goodwin, Worcester; Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Davenport, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Andrews, Akron, Ohio; Otis A. Mygatt, Paris, France; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Porter, Memphis; Mrs. L. A. Wilson and Miss Wilson, Jacksonville, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Barnes, valet and maid, Toledo; Dr. Carl P. Hubscher, Swiss Legation, Wash.; Count and Countess Villafrance, Naples, Italy; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mott, Scranton; Mrs. H. F. Dinger and Miss A. J. Dinger, Pittsburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Lamont Rowland, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burdick, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Parker, Buffalo.

Friendship

FRIENDSHIP is a tender flower,
Which needs a deal of care,
Lest it wither in the bower,
Before we are aware.

Years may tarnish love's bright gloss
(The frost may kill a rose);
But friendship doth the soul emboss—
Each June the flower grows.

Friendship is a tender flower,
And with the sunshine, too,
It needs the summer's morning shower,
To prove the heart is true.

ROCKPORT.—A social event of the past week was the annual hospital fete held on the attractive grounds of the Leander M. Haskins Hospital on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The affair was not only patronized by the townspeople, but more largely by summer residents and there was a good list of prominent matrons of the Land's End colony. The musical comedy, "The Enchanted Mummiy," containing much Cape Ann historical atmosphere, was most successfully presented, under the direction of Miss Vianna Knowlton of the Rockport summer colony and J. Paul Gardner of Boston. A neat sum will be realized for the benefit of the hospital. The patronesses from the summer colony included: Mrs. Harrison T. Garrett, Mrs. George W. Harvey, Mrs. Charles Douglas Wheeler, Mrs. A. G. Clerk, Mrs. G. D. Hall, Mrs. J. E. Harris, Mrs. Fred L. Morgan, Mrs. William Morgan, Mrs. J. R. Worcester, Mrs. Harry Dutton, Mrs. Charles T. Small, Mrs. Charles W. Small, Mrs. Erving Morse, Mrs. Perley Chase, Mrs. William A. Pew, Miss Elisabeth B. Thatcher, Miss Lillian C. Thatcher, Mrs. Arthur W. Hale, Mrs. Charles Liffier, Jr., Mrs. James E. Cotter, Mrs. Charles H. Law, Mrs. E. S. Townsend, Mrs. Ernest W. Roberts, Mrs. George F. Babbitt, Mrs. Charles B. Strecker, Mrs. Charles Lincoln Parker, Mrs. James A. Gage and Mrs. Henry Edward Drayton.

On Wednesday afternoon a sale for the benefit of the St. Mary's Episcopal church of Rockport was held at the Straitsmouth Inn.

The ladies of the Baptist church of Rockport have chosen Wednesday, August 2, as the date for their annual lawn party, which will be held on the lawn in front of the quaint church of the town. The church is the first Baptist church erected on Cape Ann, but it has been remodeled.

Major and Mrs. W. S. Hale of Boston are stopping at the Granite Shore.

Dr. R. M. Schley has gone to the business men's training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y. His wife and son are spending the summer at Sea View Farm, Rockport.

The Granite Shore has opened this season under the management of Mrs. H. D. Pierce of New Hampshire. Among the guests are: Mrs. W. S. Brine and family of Dorchester, who are spending two weeks at the Granite Shore, Mrs. M. R. Brown and two daughters of West Newton and Mrs. Cornelia Hall of New York City, who are at the hotel for a month's sojourn, Mrs. Mary Shroder and two daughters, Misses Anna and Sophie Shroder of Hoboken, N. J.

Charles A. Locke of Chestnut Hill is occupying a cottage on Eden road, Land's End.

Frederick N. Chandler has taken occupancy of the Hampton cottage, near Eden road, Land's End.

Rev. M. A. Dougherty of Cambridge is stopping at the James Smith house on Main street, Rockport.

The George H. Brown cottage at Land's End is being occupied by Miss Lucy Allen, for the season.

Rev. Harry P. Dewey and family are occupying the Dr. Hall cottage, near Eden road, Land's End.

PIGEON COVE.—The Edward at Pigeon Cove has entertained many prominent people who are motoring along the North Shore and either stopped for dinner or luncheon or remained for a short stay at this fine hostelry. Proprietor Wilson of The Edward is having an improvement made to the veranda of the house, one end of approximately 20 feet being screened, where outdoor luncheons are served.

Dr. G. M. Eddy of New York, a member of the Piping Rock club, entertained a party of ten at luncheon at The Edward on July 19.

A party motoring in this section taking dinner at The Edward, included: Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Kingmann of West Falmouth, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Ryder of Albany, N. Y., Dr. W. A. Faxton of Stoughton, M. V. Hackett of Albany and S. A. Baker, Jr., of Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lockwood of San Antonio, Tex., who are motoring en route to Maine, are spending a week at The Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph F. Tucker of Manchester, the latter the daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. M. House, were at The Edward for dinner one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Warren of Three Oaks, Mich., the former the "Featherbone" manufacturer, and Mrs. McClure of Worcester, comprised a party spending the week-end at The Edward, Pigeon Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sullivan, the former editor of the Boston Globe, and Miss Witman of Los Angeles, Cal., motored down from Boston for the week-end.

A dinner party from Bass Rocks in the grille of The Edward, recently, comprised Mr. and Mrs. Macomber, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pope, Miss Carl, Mr. Price and Mr. Warner. Dorothy Perkins roses were used for decorations and an attractive menu was served to the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Vander Burgh of Englewood, N. J., who are touring Maine, spent last week-end at The Edward, Pigeon Cove.

BASS ROCKS.—A largely attended social event of the season at Bass Rocks was the cabaret held at the Golf clubhouse last Saturday evening. "Every seat taken" was the cry after 8.30 o'clock and many people were turned away after nearly 250 people were fortunate enough to gain admittance. The small tables and chairs not only occupied space in the clubhouse, but the spacious veranda was screened with canvas and brilliantly lighted. The evening's program was interesting and those who took part were appreciated and warmly applauded. Hibbard Ayer of Brookline sang songs of his own composition which made a "hit." Ralph M. Pope of Boston and Miss Katharine Price of Baltimore appeared in a dancing act and sang "I Can Dance With Anyone But My Wife." A merry quartet which sang songs cleverly accompanied by Mr. Ayer, comprised George Wightman of Brookline, Edward Merrihew, R. Pope and Fred Warner of Boston. Mr. Merrihew as a black-faced comedian did some good stunts with the Saxophone. Howard Brown of Brookline sang two character songs imitating Chevalier, the French actor. Harry Johnson "brought down the house," when he appeared in female Scotch attire and sang "For I Am the Mrs. Harry Lauder." Mr. Johnson is the state champion tennis player. Mr. Norton appeared in a clever clog dance, as a black-faced comedian. Mr. Ayer was at the piano. Soft drinks were served during the entertainment. An orchestra furnished music for dancing, from 10.30 till 12 o'clock. The enterprising committee comprised Ralph M. Pope, chairman; Mrs. Henry Souther, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. Max Talbot and Mrs. Joseph Procter, Jr.

The first of a series of band concerts by the Quimby's Military band of 24 pieces, formerly the Eighth Regiment band of Lynn, will give the first of a series of three concerts this season, at the Moorland this Friday evening, from 8 till 10 o'clock, weather permitting. Dancing will follow in the casino after the music rendered on the hotel

Leigh and daughter, Detroit, Mich.

In the men's best ball foursome, par handicap, 18 holes, played July 22, on the Bass Rocks golf links, Joseph V. and Hildreth Meggs won the cup, the score being 10 up on par. It was truly a wonderful exhibition of playing eclipsing anything before played of this nature on the local links.

One of the leading tournaments in this season's schedule is promised for Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, of next week, when a handicap mixed foursome match competition for both men and women will be held, 18 holes each day. Cups have been offered for the winners.

In the Women's tournament held at the Bass Rocks links from July 18 to the 21st, Miss Mitchell and Mrs. Burney won, 5 up and 4, in the foursome.

Mrs. Compton and Mrs. Edgar have taken their departure from Bass Rocks, where they were stopping with Mrs. H. W. Wellington and are now in New York state.

The Arthur M. Cox family of New York is occupying the Cox cottage on Bass Rocks road.

Mrs. Gelston Whittemore of Audubon road, Boston, her sister, Miss Annie H. Foss and brother, Arthur D. Foss, both of Jamaica Plain are located at their comfortable summer home on Decatur street, Bass Rocks.

Mrs. Charles D. Fisher of Baltimore, Md., arrived recently at her pleasant cottage on Haskell street, near Beach road, Bass Rocks. She has her car and chauffeur with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Nelson (Sallie T. Fisher) and daughter, Sarah Charlton, of Roxton, Md., are located at their cottage on Haskell street, near the Fisher cottage. Mr. Nelson is a stock broker of Baltimore.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—The women of Eastern Point are finding time to do some good work in aid of the war sufferers, aside from the social duties of the week, and on every Wednesday and Friday, the Red Cross War relief circle meets at "The Ramparts," the summer home of Mrs. S. A. Raymond.

An item of interest to the Eastern Point colony especially, where A. Piatt Andrew is a resident, came recently over the cable from Paris and states that the long expected split in the American Ambulance Corps neutrality has come. The field section under A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, has broken away from Neuilly and established itself in separate quarters, with separate repair shops, parks and officers. It even has its treasurer and its funds unconnected with those of the Neuilly hospital. Official announcement of the separation has been made. It is reported that for a long time there has been extremely unpleasant conditions in the hospital, owing to the way in which George Washington Lopp had been allowed by Lawrence V. Benet, chairman of the executive committee, to dominate the hospital affairs. After Lopp had beaten his wife and step-daughter, and after his wife had sued him for divorce, Andrew's friends urged him to take the field section away from the hospital. Opportunity for this action came when Lopp and Benet were forced off the transportation committee of the hospital after the arrival on this side of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. The transportation committee being thus disrupted, Andrew took the field section away from the hospital before any new means of control could be organized. Mr. Andrew's action is received with pleasure and is entirely in accord with the ideas of the real leaders of the American Ambulance; also that Robert Bacon, former Ambassador to France, who is the head of the American Ambulance, is cognizant of and satisfied with the action of Mr. Andrew, who is now the active head of the organization in the field of action.

Clock golf, teas and luncheon are popular this season at the Eastern Point Golf club. Several Hawthorne Inn guests have entertained delightfully. On Monday, July 17, Mrs. Hill gave a clock golf party and tea to 18 people at the clubhouse. On the following Tuesday evening, Mrs. Erwin gave a dinner, covers being laid for four. On Wednesday, Mrs. Erwin gave a clock golf party and tea to 16 people. On Thursday, Miss Rumney gave a golf and tea party to six guests and Miss Wilder entertained ten friends at tea at the clubhouse. On the following Saturday, Miss Barnes gave a luncheon to six guests. Mrs. Scott O'Connor entertained a large party of 20 at clock golf and tea, also, on Saturday. On Tuesday, Mrs. Garrison entertained a party of ten at tea. Later in the week, Mrs. Tyson of the Hawthorne Inn gave a large tea party to 45 friends at the clubhouse.

days have really set in in earnest. Social events held over till August will make the coming month a busy and interesting one.

One of the busiest real estate offices along the North Shore is that of D. A. McEachern at Gloucester. Mr. McEachern has been in the summer realty business about four years and in that time has succeeded in building up a splendid business. This spring his office has completed a number of very important sales, among which was the sale of "Felsenmere," Mr. J. Sloat Fassett's residence at East Gloucester. This was, perhaps, the largest transaction that has been made along the North Shore for many years, involving as it did practically a quarter of a million dollars.

The piano firm of Fred W. Peabody of Gloucester, Haverhill, Amesbury and Newburyport has been located at Gloucester for the past 18 years. The past three years the Gloucester house has been located at 195 Main st. under the management of W. N. Peabody. The firm deals in pianos, talking machines, records and musical merchandise. The best makes both in pianos and talking machines are handled. Kodaks and photographic supplies are also a specialty. Motor truck delivery enables the concern to give a wide radius of delivery service. One of the practices of the firm is to let out pianos and talking machines to summer visitors to the North Shore for short periods and the convenience is one which has been greatly appreciated in the past.

ANNISQUAM.—Things socially at Annisquam have been rather lively the past week. Card and dancing parties at the yacht club, teas and luncheons at private houses have marked the social calendar most pleasantly.

An attractive tea room has been opened in Annisquam on the edge of the fascinating woods known as the Cathedral Pines. The location is very lovely and the tea room quaint and secluded. Machines can drive to the door and the Tea Room is only a short distance from the main road. Scotch scones are a specialty and luncheons and suppers will be served on short notice. The studio tea room may be rented for card parties, dances and other entertainments. Miss Sattler and Miss Rapp of Cincinnati are managing the enterprise. Miss Rapp has for several years conducted a very successful tea shop in Cincinnati, "At the Sign of the Green Bay Tree." Parties are motoring down for afternoon tea from Magnolia, Bass Rocks and Eastern Point and the reputation of the Cathedral Pines Tea Room is spreading fast.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Babson, the former the noted statistician of Wellesley, and Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jelly of Salem, all summer residents of Annisquam, gave a dancing party at Village hall. About 150 people of the colony attended and it was an attractive and enjoyable occasion. An orchestra rendered music, behind a bank of greenery. Colored lights added to the pretty scene and many handsome gowns were in evidence.

About 130 people, summer residents of Annisquam, enjoyed the annual lobster and clam bake of the yacht club held on Thursday afternoon on Short Beach, on the river, nearly opposite the clubhouse. The club launch and private launches conveyed the party to the opposite shore. J. Edward Stanwood cooked the lobsters and clams and they were considered splendid. The supper, served at 6 o'clock, consisted of lobsters, clams, crackers, sandwiches, cake, pickles, olives, watermelon, bananas, coffee and soft drinks.

The assembly at the Annisquam Yacht clubhouse last Saturday evening was a pleasant and well attended affair.

Auction Sale of Seashore Lots at Long Beach

ON SATURDAY, JULY 29th, at two o'clock in the afternoon, will be sold at auction some lots of seashore land at the easterly end of Brier Neck, so called, in Gloucester, Massachusetts. These lots are among the most desirable on the North Shore, having a high elevation and being situated on Long Beach, one of the most attractive and best beaches in the state. Splendid bathing and boating facilities. Within one minute's walk of the electric cars, and a few minutes of the famous Bass Rocks colony.

Mrs. Samuel Allen was hostess at a party held at her summer home on Bridgewater street, Annisquam, on Thursday of last week. Guests were from various suburbs of Boston and the day was one of great pleasure.

Col. Ira B. MacNutt of Bethlehem, Pa., is the guest of his son, Barry MacNutt, at his summer residence in the Hermit Ledge colony, Annisquam.

Among the guests at the Rockholm Tea House, Annisquam, this last week there was a motor party from Brockton. Others were Mrs. John Schafer, the Misses Schafer, and friends. Mrs. F. Dana Sears and daughter, Helen, of Philadelphia, are making a visit at the Tea House with Misses Whitcomb. The members of the Golf club are finding the Tea House a delightful place for rest and refreshment. From the spacious verandas the guests viewed the Annisquam Yacht Club races on Saturday.

The members of the Pigeon Cove Village Improvement society with invited guests, held a grand reunion on Thursday evening of last week in the new vestry of the Congregational church, Pigeon Cove. A fine fish chowder supper, prepared by Mrs. Charles T. Hale, was served and following the repast, brief talks and suggestions by various members of the Improvement society were made. Several summer residents interested in the society were present.

The seashore property of Long Beach in Gloucester will be sold at public auction on Saturday, July twenty-ninth. It is on a point of land between the town of Rockport and the city of Gloucester with a view unsurpassed by any property on the North Shore. The land is very high, overlooking Massachusetts Bay and is bounded by Long Beach on one side and is within one minute of Little Good Harbor Beach on the other. It is safe to assume that in the course of a very few years this property will be as valuable as that of Bass Rocks. It is expected that a large number of people will attend the auction as there are but few lots and the interest seems to be great.

THE sensation of the races of the Beverly Yacht club at Marion, Buzzard's Bay, last Saturday was produced by R. H. Hoyt's new 21-footer, Makaboro II, which flashed to the front at the start of the race of the special Buzzard's Bay class and romped home a winner by nearly a mile. Added to the feat of the Makaboro II in defeating the Deccoan, which for the past three years has been considered invincible, the surprising part of her achievement is that she had just arrived from a hard trip across Massachusetts Bay from Manchester and went into the race without overhauling. The Makaboro II left Manchester last Thursday afternoon in a heavy fog and crept her way along the coast, running into bad weather on the way. She arrived at Buzzard's Bay at four o'clock Saturday morning.

The Makaboro II was built by Walter B. Calderwood of Manchester from the plans of William Gardner & Co. New York, designers of the Vanite and the Monumental. The boat is 40 feet overall on a 21-foot waterline. She is finished in mahogany above the waterline. The extreme sweep of her lines is seen in the accompanying illustrations.

The complete superiority of the Makaboro to the other boats of her class, as demonstrated at the first tryout, is a matter of pride to her builder, whose first season in business for himself has been a marked success. Mr. Calderwood was manager of the Fenton Company boatyard for a number of years until this summer, when he took over the business for himself. He is the youngest builder along the North Shore and the fact that he has turned out several splendidly built boats this season, while other yards in this vicinity have done little or no building, is a testimonial to his skill as a builder.

Following the news of the easy victory of the Makaboro II came the word this week of the whirlwind clean-up of Lake Erie races by the Pam, which was built by Mr. Calderwood for Commodore H. A. Parsons of the Cleveland Yacht club. The craft was designed by John G. Alden of Boston and was a perfect type of the Class R yacht. She was shipped from Manchester by rail and the last word about her was received a few weeks ago to the effect that she was partially wrecked in unloading at Cleveland. Now comes the news that the damage was less than supposed and that the Pam had beaten everything in her class in three races and annexed the club cup.

GLOUCESTER'S TAX-RATE for the present year will be $22 on each $1000 of valuation, an increase of 40 cents per thousand from last year, when the rate was $21.60. The rate is based on a total valuation of $26,529,152 ($5,815,237, personal; $20,713,915, real estate).

Magnolia, with 160 assessed polls, out of a total of 7371, is taxed on $1,086,200 of the $26,529,152 total. In other words, while the average tax-payer of the City of Gloucester is assessed on $3599, the Magnolia tax-payer is assessed $6788 on the average.

And, further, it might be added, that if Magnolia pays almost double its proportion of the taxes into the city treasury, it ought to receive at least an equal share of the improvements and municipal "plums," and instead of the assessors coming here and making a whole lot of fuss about the few stores that come here for the summer—thus making Magnolia what it is—they ought to do all they can to help these enterprises, for were the facts known these stores would do a mighty small business if they depended wholly upon the summer residents of Magnolia or Gloucester. The patrons come by the hundred from Beverly, Manchester, Hamilton, Marblehead and Swampscott, Ipswich and from farther along the coast. Why do anything to drive these shoppers away? Would that there were more such attractions! Manchester is holding out a wide hand to these stores to make their summer headquarters in its midst because it means business all along the line. A movement is already on foot, we understand, to erect a Casino in Manchester, to house a dozen or more summer shops, and if Dame Rumor be true, a number of the Magnolia shops are already preparing to change their abode next season.

THERE IS NO CONNECTION between the rainy wet seasons and the terrific cannonadings going on in Europe, but it is not surprising that amateur physicists have sought to explain the weather in their way. When in doubt blame it on to the war.

THE BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD has not shown the North Shore the consideration which it deserves in their new summer schedule. For years Portsmouth and Salem have been recognized stopping places for all or nearly all Portland trains running to and from Boston. But this season the management have omitted Salem as a stopping place for all but one of the express trains. Salem has always been recognized as a steam and railroad centre. Besides the Gloucester branch, which serves our North Shore, there are five other roads which centre at Salem; also numerous trolley lines. The travelling public of this section of Massachusetts have come to know it is a centre where you can connect with all trains going in all directions.

A Manchester summer resident, who wanted to go to Maine a day or two ago on the 10 p. m. out of Boston had to go to the trouble of having Smith's express start his trunks in the middle of the afternoon for Beverly. At Beverly the trunks were put aboard the 6.33 train for Portsmouth. At Portsmouth they were taken off to wait and be put aboard the Portland train about 11 p. m. In the meantime our North Shore guest went to Boston to take the train, because he thought that would be surer than flagging his train at Lynn (which curiously the railroad management has provided, when Lynn is not a railroad centre in any sense of the word).

The North Shore as a whole is the largest summer resort in New England. We have no travelling statistics at hand, but with its 70-odd hotels, there must be a good many of our summer residents having similar experience and annoyance to that of the Manchester guest which we have related.

After spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in the magazines and newspapers of the country to entice people to visit the New England states, the Boston & Maine has made a bad blunder in thus ignoring the convenience of one of the most important groups of all. The growing importance of the North Shore demands that all Portland trains should stop at Salem—going as well as coming. We recommend to Mr. C. M. Burt, the general passenger agent, that this be done.

IT IS NOW BEING REALIZED that the mobilization of all of the state troops was practically unnecessary and many of the recruits who in good faith responded to the nation's call to the colors are somewhat irritated and feel as if they have been "deceived." However that may be it is evident that every man responded to the call of duty and is just as much to be honored as though an issue of war was really involved and active service was absolutely necessary. The honor is merited. The men heard the call and responded with a will and with promptness. That there is not a war on now is no reason why there may not be one in the not distant future. It is not difficult to look back now to see that war was very narrowly avoided and the very mobilization had its effect upon the negotiations. The troops must feel restless under the restraints of peace, but they must remember that their patriotic response has already borne its fruit and we are enjoying peace.

DESPITE THE INCLEMENCY of the weather the two hundredth anniversary of the Manchester Congregational church was a great success, Sunday. The program was carefully planned and equally well executed and it was a credit to those having the plans for the anniversary in hand. It is difficult to compute the values of an institution such as the church in a community. Its influence is not always apparent, but it does its work none the less efficiently. A growing tree does not show many signs of growth in the span of a day. A child that returns from school at night does not seem to reveal many signs of development, but give the tree a decade and the child a few years and the steady every day work counts up unerringly and effectually. The head of the Church, Christ, called the work of the Gospel a leaven hidden in the meal. The ministrations and influence of the old church have been at work in the community and countless lives have been helped and souls strengthened by its ministration. The future presents a challenge as great as the past and it is not too early to forecast that as the years go by the institution will exert a still broader and effectual influence in the community.

JOHN SHERMAN USED TO SAY in defence of his partisan activities that "he made it a rule always to act with his party, on great matters from principles, and on small matters from policy." This makes an admirable partisan slogan, but progress within a party can only be attained where the minority speaks out its mind and insists that the general policy and principles of the party square with the greater moral and ethical issues. For a partisan to surrender his convictions on even smaller matters for the sake of partisan unity in the end must mean death to the party demanding the acquiescence. The party may gain by wholesome opposition within the ranks upon issues of ethical worth and vital principle.

THE LAST TWO SEASONS upon the North Shore have been unusual both as to heat and the rainfall. Anyone who has lived upon the Shore the last two seasons does not know the delights of the district. The rainy days of last year are repeated this year. Last August was a depressingly wet month taking all the pleasure out of shore life and the snap of summer business interests. The future, however, looks promising. As far as the weather bureau can tell us the coming days will be good. They will be welcome. A delightful August and a glorious September will redeem the cold days of June and the rain of July.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE DEUTCHLAND and the arrival of the Bremen have been the interests of three continents and many millions of people. The future effects of the successful operation of an under the sea line between America and Germany cannot now be foreseen, but two nations are now battling; every effort will be made to prevent either or both boats from effectually carrying out their mission. Whatever else may be the issues involved the two under-sea ships present "thrillers" of the first magnitude. No one need to look to fiction for stirring narratives.

THE "AUTO FESTIVAL" at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, on Friday evening was a delightful affair. The inclement weather, however, kept many away, who had made reservations for dinner, but which later had to be cancelled. A number were there for the festivities and the excellent dinner which was served. Dancing was enjoyed to the music of the unsurpassed singing orchestra. The silver cup, given to the lucky automobile registration number drawn, was awarded Miss Helen Bell of Philadelphia. The cup is a beauty and is marked "North Shore Grill Club, Magnolia." Mr. Delmonte, the resident manager is planning a cycle of these pleasant evenings which ought to be good news. Noticed among the dancers and diners were: Mrs. L. P. Haxton, Miss Ruth McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Bettman, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Polak, Chester and Winthrop Lockwood, Miss Eleonora Sears, R. L. Steinert, I. F. Mann, R. H. Black, Miss Helen Bell.

Miss Christine Miller, the famous grand opera singer of Pittsburg, who has been a guest of the Oceanside, Magnolia, for the past month, entertained the patrons of the North Shore Grill Friday evening with several vocal selections in her delightful manner. Miss Miller possesses a rich contralto voice of extensive range, and her solos on "Annie Laurie" and "Old Black Joe" were an unusual treat.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Livingston of New York, who are occupying the Brinley cottage on Hesperus avenue, Magnolia, motored to Newport Wednesday for a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillispie at their palatial residence on Bellevue avenue. Mrs. Gillispie was formerly Miss Irene Sherman of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Livingston motored in their new Chevrolet which Mrs. Livingston drives.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay K. Secor and family of Toledo, Ohio, who are occupying the Morrell cottage on Hesperus avenue, Magnolia, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. John Willys of Toledo, who have a summer home at Glen Cove, L. I. Mr. and Mrs. Secor and children left during the week for Bar Harbor on board the Willys yacht where they will make a short visit.

Miss Marion Maher of Roanoke, Va., who with her parents are living at the Chick cottage on Norman avenue, Magnolia, this season, is entertaining Miss Dorothy Buckner of Roanoke and Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. Horace Maher is an expected visitor at the Maher summer home on Norman avenue, Magnolia. Mr. Maher is well known at the Magnolia colony having visited here last season where the family spent the summer at the Oceanside. Mr. Maher is arranging for a horse show for the last week of September at Roanoke which will be a notable society event, and will be attended by lovers of horses as well as by the fashionable smart set.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Schmidt of Summer street, Magnolia, are entertaining as their house-guest Mrs. Schmidt's sister, Miss Cecelia Payan of Providence, R. I.

Jones, Peterson & Newhall Co. of Temple place, Boston, will hold their customary August sale of fine footwear for men, women and children, beginning next week. Only two sales are held during the year by this firm, who will hold their summer sale in face of the increasing prices of shoes. In view of the leather scarcity this special sale will mean a great saving to the buyers of high-grade footwear. All summer shoes in stock will be included in the sale.

*Fashion and Household Suggestions*FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY*The Hat*

WERE it not for the fact that it might never be solved, the problem of woman's attitude toward her hats might be recommended for the student of feminine psychology. He would have plenty of material, for every woman has a definite attitude toward her hats and, many times, a different attitude toward each one of her hats. There are only two types of women who are sincere in their lack of interest in headgear, the one is very young, too beautiful to care, the other is not so young the "blue-stocking" type, too happily busy to care: all other women "adore" hats. In a woman's wardrobe there is always the hat which holds an enviable position indeed, and it is about the hat that Judy will talk this week.

The pioneer hats are already breaking the fall trail and there are so many among them worthy the foremost position in the feminine wardrobe, that a selection is harder now than ever before. There are hats with no brims, hats with little brims and hats with huge brims. There are hats of every shade from all white down the scale through pinks, blues, greens and lavenders, to deep purple and all black.

One small white hat is three-cornered and made of one breast. The only trimming consists of two feather knobs on the right side. It is very chic and an excellent example of its type. Another is made up of a white crown, a pale pink brim and burnt goose feathers, the last, in abundance. The height increases toward the back, giving a smart and becoming line.

For "Alys of the sea-blue eyes" (and for her only) is a tiny hat of which the narrow, rolling brim and half the crown are of a beautiful old blue silk and the top of the crown is dark straw. Bright flowers, bunched on the brim, pull it down saucily over one eye.

Beaver hats are being favored, especially as we are finding that beaver is hard to get. It is the war! These come in some very attractive shades of which green seems to be the leader, although this supremacy is hotly contested by purple. The beaver hats are large, droopy, and trimmed for the most part with simple bands and bows of grosgrain ribbon. Hatter's plush is also being used to some extent, and hats of felt are in high feather. Rose and blue shades are well liked in the floppy shades, sometimes embroidered with woolen in startling designs.

Quite the smartest hat of the season is a brimless, little affair quite high on one side. It is made and trimmed wholly of purple hackel feathers and is most becoming because of its good lines, color and texture.

What Do You Like Best to Eat.

BEING A TRUE ACCOUNT OF
WHAT OTHER PEOPLE SAID.

IF you were hungry (not starving, you understand, just hungry) and someone said to you, "Choose whatever you like best to eat in the world," what would you select? I asked a Frivolous Lady that and she said, "You mean, if I were just awfully hungry and not stranded on a desert island where it would be my duty to prefer something substantial? Well, I think a dessert I once ate in Chicago (!). They called it fairy trifles, but it was no trifle, I assure you. If you can find the recipe for it you will do better than I, for I have searched for it for three years."

Judy did find it and she hopes the Frivolous Lady will read this column in the BREEZE this week. Here it is:

Dissolve $\frac{1}{2}$ box gelatine in 1 cup cold water; allow to soak for half an hour and then stir in $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups boiling water, add 1 cup of sugar and put aside to cool. When it begins to set, add the beaten whites of 4 eggs, beating constantly. Flavor with lemon and put in red and green cherries, strawberries and orange triangles, or candied fruit, and mold in cups. Serve with heavy, unbeaten cream.

The Busy Man said, "I? What do I really like best to eat? Let me tell you that if anyone asked me just now, and I am mighty hungry this minute, I'd choose a dish of old-fashioned succotash." So Judy has hunted up a rule for making succotash—and it is guaranteed to be old-fashioned.

Boil very slowly one quart of kernels of corn until they are tender and at the same time and in the same way, one pint of shell beans. Put together and boil 15 minutes. Drain, add cream, scald (stirring constantly) and season with salt, pepper and paprika and serve piping hot.

I asked a Boarding School Girl and she, true to tradition, answered, "Why, pickles, of course, and cake with much frosting and nuts." This sounded easy, but proved to be more difficult than was at first apparent. The following cake rule seemed to come as near as possible to her ideal—One cup sugar and one-half cup butter, creamed, stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs, one-half cup milk, in which dissolve one-half teaspoon soda, add two cups flour, sifted with one teaspoon cream of tartar. Add the whites of the two eggs, stiffly beaten, and bake in two sheets.

The caramel is made of two cups sugar, boiled and stirred until thick with two-thirds cup milk and large piece butter, one cup walnuts cut in small pieces, and vanilla flavoring. The caramel is spread thickly between the layers and on the top of the cake.

I asked the office boy and he said, "Aw, gee! I'd choose a fried egg sandwich." Of the modus operandi, only this much could I gather. The bread is cut quite thick, and the egg in question is fried a delectable brown in butter, seasoned, and placed between the buttered slices. An epicure will prefer thin, thin slices of onion placed at judicious intervals on the egg. And there you have it!

Ralston Seavy and Ernest Tobin, Salem men in the employ of the Hood dairy company, had a miraculous escape from death early last Saturday morning when the heavily loaded auto truck in which they were riding plunged over an embankment near the overhead bridge on the road between Manchester and Gloucester. Seavy, who was driving the truck was pinned underneath the heavy load when it toppled, was seriously hurt. He sustained a fractured leg and severe cuts upon his body and arms. Tobin was thrown clear of the truck when it overturned and landed nearly 20 feet away practically unhurt. The accident occurred at 2.30 o'clock in the morning and it was some time before sufficient aid could be summoned to remove the heavy truck from Seavy's body. When it was finally accomplished he was removed to the relief room where Dr. Blaisdell rendered first aid. The man was later taken to the Beverly hospital where he is reported to be resting comfortably.

Manchester Church Observes Bi-Centennial

Orthodox Congregational Church Organized in 1716—Present Church Home Built in 1809—Impressive and Interesting Services Held Last Sunday

RALPH P. YOUNG

ON that day back in the early part of the 17th century when tradition says the few settlers of "Jeffrey's Creeke" gathered beneath a tree on "Gale's Point," under the leadership of a minister whose name is unknown, and held services of worship the church history of Manchester began. Through the hardships of early colonial days the little congregation struggled, survived and grew until just two hundred years ago the first church organization in Manchester was established. In commemoration of its founding an all-day Bi-centennial celebration was held last Sunday at the Orthodox Congregational church, Manchester. In spite of inclement weather large congregations gathered at the three services in the beautiful colonial church which has occupied the site of three predecessors for over a century.

A splendid program was arranged by the pastor, the Rev. Charles A. Hatch, was assisted by the suggestions of the Bi-centennial committee, composed of the members of the standing committee of the church, Joseph A. Torrey, Oliver T. Roberts, Edward A. Lane, Frank P. Knight, George W. Jewett, Albert Cunningham, Mrs. Hattie B. Kitfield, Mrs. Emma E. Stanley, Rev. Mr. Hatch and Miss Annie L. Lane.

At the morning service the Rev. Dr. John H. Quint, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Chelsea, preached the commemorative sermon. His text was taken from the third chapter of Malachi, the sixth verse, reading, "I, Jehovah, have not changed, but ye sons of Jacob have not finished." Dr. Quint told an incident of the visit of Dr. Edward Steiner to Plymouth. "The famous Christianized Jew, who has done so much for the immigrant in America, was profoundly impressed upon his first visit to the landing place of the Pilgrims. Gazing about him for some time without comment he finally looked out over the water and said simply, 'The same sea,' and looking above, 'The same stars.' This same thought applied to the natural world is lifted up and exalted in the words associated with men as they grew old. They are inclined to live in retrospect. They live over the past and boast of the achievements of their youth. There is a like corporate psychology which applies to churches as well. The church lives in the past and tells of the glorious men and women who lived and worked in it and often mingles fiction with fact in idealizing its history. A church should have the psychology of youth; it should think in terms of the future. The church is not declining. Although in some localities there may be evidences of decay, I have no patience with that pessimism which can see only the failing strength of the church. Christianity has passed safely through a critical period during which the wonderful development of natural science has brought us out of ignorance into the light. Never has the church played so vital a part in the world as today. Never was such great charity displayed as in the present; never was there such unity of spirit in the Christian church as there is today. The church is by no means ideal; it never was and never will be until a perfect human nature understands the will of God. In these dark days of world war I hear men exclaim, 'Christianity has failed.' Why! Christianity has not been tried.

Congregational Church, Manchester, built in 1809 of the text. Mankind is in a state of evolution, but God is unchanging.

"Perhaps I cannot enter into the spirit of this anniversary as can you to whom it signifies so much. However, I am reverent as I view the past. This occasion does mean much to me, for here in this church my wife received her Christian training and before this very pulpit took her Christian vows. The voice of the past breathes of strength and not of weakness. It bids us labor on until our work is done.

"There is an individual psychology

"When the Church burns with a great love for its fellow men there is no fear of the future. For this grand old church, celebrating its 200th anniversary, if it maintains its great love and loyalty to its ideals of the past, there is nothing impossible. I bid you have Faith. An achieving church should remember that all its power comes from God.

"Many changes will have occurred before another hundred years will have come, but the same God who has been with this church since the beginning will watch over it then and forever. In the words of Goethe I bid you 'Go forward with God.'"

At the first service of the day an original hymn written by Joseph A. Torrey, senior deacon of the church, was sung by the congregation. The verses expressed a sentiment appropriate to the occasion and will undoubtedly live long after the memory of the celebration has faded. It follows:

Not alone by cloud and flame
Israel out of bondage came;
God alike in every age
Guards and guides man's pilgrimage.

Strange and dark to feeble sense
Seem the ways of Providence,
Yet Thy hand upholds and saves
Though it lead thro' Red Sea waves.

While the thunders of Thy law
Fill our trembling souls with awe,
By Thy bounty are we fed
Daily as with heavenly bread.

Here our fathers brave though few,
Builted better than they knew;
Here, by toil and suffering tried,
Saints through faith were sanctified.

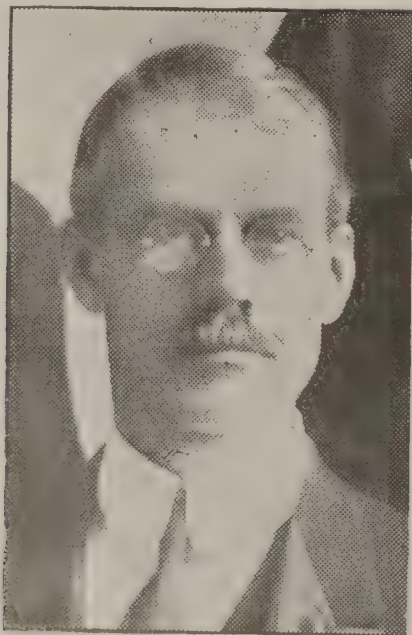

Lord, this day we would confess
Thy dear love and faithfulness Which hath led, through toil and tears,
This, Thy Church, these many years.

Thou who didst our fathers lead
As of old Thy Chosen seed,
Lead us by Thy loving hand
Till we reach the Promised Land.

The scripture lesson for the morning was taken from the eighth chapter of the second book of Kings, Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple, and was read by Rev. A. G. Warner.

AFTERNOON SERVICE.

At the afternoon service there was a violin solo, "Meditation," by Miss Katherine Newell. The scripture reading was by Rev. A. G. Warner and was followed by another violin selection, "Sarabande," by Miss Newell. The Rev. Clarence Strong Pond of the Beverly Farms Baptist church offered prayer.

Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton

Rev. Chas. A. Hatch

In introducing the representatives of nearby churches who brought greetings from their respective organizations Rev. Mr. Hatch likened the celebration to a golden wedding anniversary to which the friends of the celebrants are invited and come with felicitations. The Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton, pastor of the Village church at Magnolia, was the first to extend greetings to the pastor and the church.

"Two hundred years is a long time for a church to live," said Dr. Eaton. "The church with which it is my pleasure to serve has been in existence about a quarter of a century, but when we look back over the years it seems a long time ago that it was founded. Why should it seem a long time? Probably because so many other churches have died before arriving at their majority. You have toiled and sacrificed, you have lived long because of what you have done for others. You have given of the best blood of your church. You have sent forth splendid women to be help-mates to men who carried the gospel to foreign lands. You have reached your 200th anniversary and there are yet no evidences of death. Your vigor is typified by your young and vigorous minister. I congratulate you."

The Rev. Clarence Strong Pond brought the greetings of the Beverly Farms church. "When I discovered the condition of the weather this morning I was tempted to regret that this was the occasion of your Bi-cen-ennial celebration," he said. "But when I thought of this beautiful and comfortable structure in which we are gathered and viewed this beautifully executed and splendidly typed program of your anniversary celebration I regarded it a pleasure to be here. Two hundred years of history is hard to comprehend. We can remember only in fragments of generations. Let us think rather of the fundamentals of the growth of your church during the years,—worship, comfort and fellowship. Think of these years of ministering through your church to the needs of the community. The history of the town and of the church were parallel for years and the men who were leaders in the church led in the service of the town in the every day walks of life. This is as it should be. Your fellowship has been not only with one another, but with God. On this anniversary of the gathering together of your forbears in worship of God I bring you greetings."

Greetings from the Manchester Baptist church were brought by the Rev. A. G. Warner. In introducing Mr. Warner, Mr. Hatch spoke of the close unity spirit between the two Manchester churches and of the great change that had come in the last half century.

"It is a pleasure to bring the greetings of the Baptist church of Manchester to the pastor and congregation of the Congregational church," said Mr. Warner. "Today men are everywhere asking to know the best investment for the money, their time and in fact their lives. The answer I can give is that the best investment a man can find is Jesus Christ. He gave men a reason for living; He brought God into men's consciousness; He brought the human and the Divine together in a unity that cannot be dissolved. The Christian church is the only institution that has withstood the shock of changing kingdoms and empires throughout the years. Has its force spent itself? This Bi-centennial observance is the best testimonial that its force has not spent itself. The future must contend with the church. I congratulate you upon your 200 years of testimony to that effect."

Rev. Brewer Eddy

Who Delivered an Inspiring Address

Francis M. Stanwood, a trustee of Emmanuel Episcopal church of Manchester, said, "I extend the greetings of Emmanuel church trustees to an ancient and still thriving church. I am impressed with your age when I think that your church was in existence when Samuel Johnson, that master of English literature, was a school boy in Litchfield, England. It antedates the French wars and the American revolution. Your church and your town has been a power for good. You have influenced not only your own community, but those who have come from afar to spend their time among you. I feel a personal connection with this anniversary occasion. My aunt, Joan Tenney, was the wife of one of the former pastors of this church. In behalf of Emmanuel church it is interesting to note at this time that we also have an anniversary this day. It was just 34 years ago today, July 23, 1882, that the first service was held in Emmanuel chapel through the kindness of Maj. Russell Sturgis. We invite you to join with us when you will and to let us be of service to you if we can."

The Rev. Oliver H. Bronson, pastor-elect of the Tabernacle church, Salem, followed. Dr. Clark, retiring pastor of Tabernacle church was unable to be present owing to illness. "Dr. Clark sends his greetings and I bring those of the church I am soon to serve and my personal greetings," said Mr. Bronson. "There are temptations and limitations in a long history. We are tempted to be satisfied with the past. We should take example of those who have gone before rather than resting upon their records. We should adjust ourselves to the new needs. There is an opportunity to be bridge-builders. Our changing population offers this opportunity. There is an opportunity to touch the lives of your townsmen and the visitors to it. I wish you every joy and success."

REV. MR. EDDY'S ADDRESS.

"The World Chaos and Our Opportunity," was the subject of the address of the Rev. D. Brewer Eddy, secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Rev. Eddy's address was a forceful appeal for the support of missionary work.

"I feel slightly embarrassed to represent the 106-year old American Board in a company which represents and speaks of institutions 200, 275 and 276 years old. I feel that we have much in common in this anniversary celebration. Two young ladies from this church who organized your Sunday school, one of the first in New England, were among the first persons who sailed for the foreign missionary field under the auspices of the American Board about 105 years ago. Ann Haseltine Judson and Harriet Newell became famous as wives of two of the first five missionaries to go abroad.

"When we study the past we realize what a distance we have come. This hymnal which I have in my hand contains the name of John Newton who perhaps wrote more of our hymns than any one man whose name appears in the volume. He once wrote in his diary that he had just spent the hour communing with his Maker. That entry was made as he sat in the cabin of the vessel, of which he was a part owner, anchored off the West coast of Africa where he waited his next cargo of human slaves. What a distance we have come!

"When this very church was founded it had no conception of a mission. Our only reason for belief in the ultimate triumph of Christianity is found in the foreign field.

It certainly is not found in Massachusetts with its grand 'forward march on to victory' at the rate of one percent of increase. It is found in the 24 percent increases in Christians in China in the last year. Massachusetts does not even keep up with the birth rate or the increase in population. In India the gain has been 450 percent in the last decade. You say this has been made on the basis of a small beginning. Yes, but in the face of the fiercest opposition, the darkest ignorance and the deepest degradation.

Rev. John H. Quint

"The only ground for believing that there will be a church in Manchester one hundred years hence is not found in anything you are doing, but in what is being done in the foreign field. When heathen China in four years banishes the opium trade and stops the growth of the fatal poppy plant there is hope that in the next hundred years we may smash the whiskey ring in America. The dry rot has us in its grip in America. When two Chinese viceroys convicted of graft are taken out and shot for their crime there is hope that the time will come when we won't be compelled to pay for public buildings of solid marble built against the wishes of the people; there is hope that 'pork-barrel politics' and the building of magnificent court houses in the swamps of Louisiana to accommodate a population of 900 two days a year will be abolished. In China it took a century to get the first million converts. It took twelve years to get the second and three years to get the third. But America is not always going to be a by-word for greed, injustice and indifference. We are going to get the cinders shaken from our grate in the next few years and go somewhere.

There is hope, because men are thinking in these days of world chaos.

"Half of the world is bleeding to death. Human relations are being sacrificed for material gain. Let me tell you an incident of Europe of today. A friend of mine recently had an opportunity to visit Poland to study conditions. As the guest of a German officer he travelled miles and miles in the interior. Along the roads he saw fragments of human bones. He inquired of his guide what had become of the rest of the bones of the people who died along the roads. The officer shrugged his shoulders. 'We need phosphorus,' was his only answer.

"This very afternoon 300,000 Serbs are starving to death; a half-million Armenians are starving to death, and you sit here unmoved."

Mr. Eddy told of a man who has given half of his income to support the work of the American Board and of another man who had set aside the profits of his war munitions stock for a similar purpose. Speaking of the craze for investments for war profits, he continued:

"There is a greater opportunity for the churches than for the National City bank today. We are supporting the abandoned German missionaries in the foreign field. The greatest opportunity in the history of missions will be found in Turkey after the war. Today 80 percent of the Moslem population are opposed to the Turkish government. Eighty percent are opposed to the slaughter of the Armenians; over 100,000 Armenians are today being sheltered in Moslem homes.

"Within the next decade we will write, in the history of Turkey, a new Acts of the Apostles that will make the achievements of the canonized New Testament version look like a stagecoach compared with that hundred miles an hour motor race of a few days ago.

"If you do as little for the next hundred years as you have in the past you won't have an excuse to live. I am impelled to say to your minister and to you, 'Shake off your grave clothes.' How many mothers would I find here tonight who would let their daughters go out today as the wives of missionaries like the Ann Haseltines and Harriet Newells of old? How many women who are prominent in your sociables and strawberry festivals would let their sons go as missionaries, even to achieve the glory of a Judson?"

"The only interpretation of the saving of America from the great war is that she may be the means of serving God."

Mrs. Raymond C. Allen sang "My Ain Countrie" at the conclusion of Rev. Mr. Eddy's address.

THE EVENING SERVICE

The largest audience of the day attended the evening exercises, which began with a praise service. The feature of the evening celebration of the anniversary was the reading of a splendid paper sketching the history of the Congregational church in Manchester. It was written and read by Dr. R. T. Glendenning, who spent several months upon its preparation. Extracts from it are printed upon another page. An original poem was read by Deacon Joseph A. Torrey. Deacon Torrey explained that his inspiration for the poem was the legend of Pharaoh's Islands. A desert island in the midst of which stands a laurel tree, which draws a perpetual rain, he likened to the spiritual source of power in God.

"The Future of the Church" was the subject of a brief address as a conclusion to the day's celebration by Rev. Charles A. Hatch, pastor of the church.

"It is the duty of our church to maintain an efficient organization," said Mr. Hatch. "It must recognize conditions in the outside world and must take notice of conditions in Manchester which are not what they should be. The church should be organized on the principles of Jesus Christ. It should reach out and grip men with the spirit of Christ. It should touch the entire community. The future of the church will depend a great deal upon the method of holding up the ideal of Jesus employed by its organization."

The present pastor, who came to the Manchester church in 1913, is the eighteenth minister since the organization 200 years ago. The pastors and their periods of service are as follows:

REV. E. P. TENNEY.

Rev. Edward Payson Tenney, who was pastor of the Orthodox Congregational Church, Manchester, from 1863 to 1867, died at his home, 16 Greystone Park, Lynn, Monday morning. Dr. Tenney was widely known as a clergyman and author and is remembered by many older members of his parish in Manchester as a man of scholarly attainments. He was born in Concord, N. H., Sept. 29, 1835. He was educated at Pembroke Academy, Dartmouth College, Bangor Theological Seminary and Andover Theological Seminary. Later he took a course in topical studies at the Boston libraries and was for a short time connected with the editorial staff of the Congregational Review in Boston.

He was ordained a Congregational clergyman in 1862 and was given a charge at Braintree. From there he came to Manchester, where he served four years, later going to Topsfield. He also held the pastorate at Lebanon, Me. Dr. Tenney was the author of more than 20 books which were published, several being translations from foreign languages. Among his well known writings were "Agameticus," "Coronation," "The Triumphs of the Cross" and "Our Elder Brother."

His wife, who is in feeble health, survives him. Funeral services were held from his late home in Lynn, Wednesday afternoon. The body was brought over the road to Manchester and there was a brief service at the Memorial chapel at which the Rev. A. G. Warner officiated.

By JOSEPH A. TORREY

THE island of Fierro, one of the Canary group, is noted for its extreme dryness. Not a rivulet nor a spring can be found in it. There is a legend that on this island once upon a time, there grew a wonderful tree. Over this tree, so it is said, there gathered a cloud, and from this cloud a gentle rain was constantly falling. This precipitation was collected in cisterns, an ample supply. Sometimes there is more truth in fable than in fact, in legend than in history. In probing the fairy story for its moral I discovered a parable, a parable of the Church of Christ on earth as watered by divine grace.

YE who as Christians have a fair repute,
With whom men find no fault and God no fruit,
Content to live a life of low degree—
A barren life, (even as you and me,) .
List to the legend of Laurel tree!

A Laurel tree, mid desert sands,
Lifted its boughs like praying hands,
Though desert-born it knew no drouth;
From East and West and North and South
Came, borne upon the wind in crowds,
A troop of moisture-laden clouds
Which dropped their burdens lovingly
Upon the favored Laurel tree.

The fluttering leaves with grateful sighs
Received the largess of the skies
And on the glittering drops that fell
A rainbow arch was painted well.

Thus, shielded from the scorching ray,
It spread its leafy crown by day,
And nightly it distilled the dews
As manna fell to feed the Jews.

So fed the tree from topmost shoot
Through bough and trunk to deepest root,
And so its spreading branches made
At highest noon a cooling shade,
Though far away on either hand,
Stretched leagues on leagues of desert sand.

Thus for long years the tree has flourished
Miraculously fed and nourished.
The birds found covert in its boughs,
Beneath its shade the camels browse,
And the worn traveller gratefully
Breathed out a blessing on the tree.

Like to the tree in desert land,
The Church from age to age doth stand,
Nourished and fed by God's own hand.
In vain our toil, in vain our tears,
In vain our cares and hopes and fears,
In vain our efforts, all is vain
Without the Spirit's quickening rain.

Lord, by thy grace this church baptise,
From hearts renewed may prayers arise
To draw down blessings from the skies,
And 'neath the watering of Thy Love
Our hearts to all good actions move.
Here may the truth be lived and taught;
Here may the works of love be wrought;
Here be God's praise devoutly sung
In every heart, by every tongue.

Here in the morning of their days
May infant voices lisp Thy praise,
And infant feet discern the road
That leads to happiness and God.
Here manhood, in the noon of life,
Find strength for strain and stress of life;
And lingering age be cheered with light,
Like Lapland sunsets long and bright.

O thou, in whom we move and live
Thy Church would take what thou wouldst give;
So may we, Lord, from thee derive
The grace by which our souls may thrive;
So, like the heaven-fed Laurel tree
In desert waste, make us to be
A living plant of righteousness
Our little spot of earth to bless.
Grant us but Holiness and then
We shall have power with God and men
To draw down blessings from the skies
And make of earth a Paradise.

* Historical Sketch

Presented at Bi-centennial Celebration of the Orthodox Congregational Church, Manchester, July 23, 1916

By ROBERT T. GLENDENNING, M. D.

"The Puritan did not stop to think; he recognized God in his soul and acted."

OUR fore-fathers took their religion seriously. John Higginson in an election sermon preached May 27th, 1663, said—"My fathers and Brethren, this is never to be forgotten, that New England is originally a plantation of religion, not a plantation of trade."

At the first General Court held in the Massachusetts Bay Colony it was voted—"To the end the body of the Commons may be preserved of honest and good men," it was "ordered and agreed that for the time to come, no man shall be admitted to the freedom of this body politic, but such as are members of some of the Churches within the limits of the same."

In 1675 it was enacted that a meeting-house should be erected in every town in the colony. In those primitive times the meeting-house was the center around which the doings of the town revolved.

The position of the New England minister was one of great power and authority. The story is told of the Rev. Ezekiel Rogers of Rowley, that a stranger in town, meeting him enquired, "are you the man who serves here?" "No," he answered, "I am the man who rules here."

Very little is known about the early church history of Manchester. Services were held in the fields and in the houses of the settlers before a meeting-house could be built. In Dr. E. W. Leach's manuscript history of Manchester, you will find pasted on one of the leaves a scrap of paper. On this faded remnant, in the handwriting of the Rev. Ames Cheever, are the names of some thirteen ministers who preached in this town before 1716. The list is as follows "Jenners, Smith, Stow, Dunham, Hubbard, Emerson, Goodhue, Eveleth and Webster." No explanation accompanies this list and it is evidently incomplete for no mention is made of the name of Nathaniel Masterson, who without doubt was one of the early preachers.

A court record of 1651 goes to show that the Rev. Thomas Dunham was preaching in Manchester at that time and that there were some in the town that did not care for his preaching. The record says "Edmund Marshall of Manchester was presented in 1651 for absenting himself from the public ordinances three or four Sabbath days, and for reproaching Mr. Thomas Dunham in saying that he had preached blasphemy and was a common liar." In the same year "Wm. Allen, Pascoe Foot and John Sibley were presented to the Grand Jury for absence from public ordinances three or four Sabbaths."

In the town records of 1691—that of Jan. 18—is as follows: "Whereas our old meeting house being the most Considerable part of it Rotten and the sd house also being too small to Accomodate our people when Convened together for the Worship and service of god. It is therefore voted and fully agreed to have a new meeting house built of these Dimensions following: the Length to be thirty foot, the breadth thereof to be twenty five foot, the height between the sell and the plate to be sixteen foot, the form of the Ruff of the sd house to be in the same form of beverly or Wenham meeting hous with a—belvery on the top of the sd house suteable for a good Bell of about a hundred Waight or more and three galleries to be built, that is to say one on won side of the whole Length of sd house, and the other tow at each end the whole breadth of sd house. And it voted and agreed that the Committee are now chosen namely John Siblee, Robert Leach, Thomas West, Samuel Alen Senr. John Lee and William Alen or the major part of them Doe and are at this ad meeting fully Impowered by the town to Agree with a workman to build the sd house for and in behalf of the town at the sd towns Cost and Charge all to bee paid in mony at tow paiments to Witt the first paiment when the above sd house is Raised which is voted to be by or on the tenth Day of June next Insuing and the Last paiment to be made When the sd house is finished Which is to be don by the Lad day of October following, the sd house to be set near the old meeting house Where the above sd Committee or the Major part of them do appoint or Determine; and see that the sd house be every ways Completely finished with seats and all other decent and suteable Apartanances theiito Convieniant for the whole house both within and without as the sd Committee or the major part of them Doth order and the abov sd Committee or major part of them are to place the people in the seats of the sd house."

The church had a number of candidates after the departure of Mr. Eveleth, the Rev. Edward Thompson of Newbury being one for the town voted ten pounds for his moving expenses. For some reason he did not accept the call though he came to the town, and they called the Rev. John Emerson. At a town meeting held Oct. 19, 1696 it was voted "that the bell now procured by Mr. John Emerson shall be hanged in the meeting-house as soon as it can be with convenyance." On the 28th of the same month and year it was voted in town meeting "to give Ephram Hones one pound and four shillings per year to ring the bell and sweep the meeting house and to perform the office of sexton according to the order of the selectmen." Mr. Emerson resigned in 1698.

In 1698 Nicholas Webster assumed the duties of minister to the Manchester church. In 1700 he was asked to become permanent pastor. Although declining the offer he remained with the church till 1715. At a town meeting April 23, 1699, a committee was appointed "to build a new parsonage 42 ft. long, 18 feet wide and 14 ft. stud, to be located near the meeting house at the discretion of the committee." They voted 50 pounds toward the expense. The house was located on School street near the spot where the Capt. John Carter house now stands.

Although Manchester had been settled for nearly three-quarters of a century they had no church organization though they had their meeting house. It being necessary that they be members of some church to be freemen they communed with the Salem church till 1677 when they united with the Beverly Church. In 1715 they decided that the time had come to enter into a church state and the matter was taken up in town meeting.

"At a town meting legally warned and mett together on the 23 Day of July, 1716, mr. Robert Leach, moderator, it is Voted that our commete now extant shall have full power to agree with Mr. Ames Chevers to be our Setteld minester according to gospale order and to give him a call to settel with us in the ministry and accept of Ordination."

The Rev. Ames Cheever was the son of Rev. Samuel Cheever of Marblehead and grandson of the famous schoolmaster Exekiel Cheever of Boston. He was born in 1686. He graduated from Harvard in 1707. He was the husband of four wives and the father of fourteen children. He had the interests of his people at heart and was their faithful advisor in temporal as well as spiritual things. He took a great interest in agricultural matters and did much to help in the education of the children and youth of the town, teaching the school one year.

During Mr. Cheever's pastorate, on Oct. 29, 1727, the people were very much alarmed by an earthquake. In those times the people regarded such mysterious convulsions of nature as an evidence of the divine displeasure. In this case a lengthy revival followed and forty people joined the church. Mr. Cheever resigned his charge in 1743. He made Manchester his home for the rest of his life. He died in 1756 in the 70th year of his age.

The church was without a settled minister for some two years after Mr. Cheever gave up his charge, but they united in 1745 and gave a call to the Rev. Benjamin Tappan. It was a troublesome period in the colony during Mr. Tappan's stay in Manchester and the people were very poor and at times were not able to pay his salary. Through it all he was their faithful pastor and was much loved by his people.

After the death of Mr. Tappan the pulpit was supplied by the Rev. Mr. Blake and the Rev. Mr. Worcester till the latter part of 1791 when a committee of the church and parish gave an invitation to the Rev. Ariel Parish. He accepted. Mr. Parish did not long enjoy the relation of pastor to the Manchester church for he was cut off in May 1794 by an epidemic fever which prevailed in the town at that time—out of a population of 900 there were 95 deaths. However, in the two years he was in Manchester he came to occupy a large place in the hearts of his people.

For seven years after the death of Mr. Parish till 1801 the church was supplied by different ministers. The names of 17 of them have been preserved and may be found in the town history. In May 1801 Abraham Randall, the "40th Candidate," was called and ordained in September of the same year. He remained 7 years, being dismissed in 1808 at his own request. In 1803 the fourth parsonage was built. It was located on Union Street and is still standing though in a much altered condition.

In 1809, the year that Rev. James Thurston came to Manchester, the town decided to build a new meeting house. Its cost was $8,500. It still remains—a credit to those who built it.

In 1810 a Sunday school was organized. The origin of the school was due to two ladies, who afterwards went as missionaries to the East—Harriet Newell and Ann H. Judson. The school was one of the earliest formed in New England.

In 1821 the church united and called the Rev. Samuel Emerson. He was the son of Rev. John Emerson of Conway, Mass., was born Nov. 17, 1785; graduated from Williams College 1810.

In 1833 the church voted:—"Whereas, the use of ardent spirits has been the fruitful cause of numerous evil, which admit of no remedy but that of total abstinence, and as it is the incumbent duty of the churches to maintain a high standard of Christian morality, it will, from this time, be required of all persons presenting themselves as candidates for admission to this church to abstain from the use of ardent spirits in all its forms, except as a medicine."

Mr. Emerson was in very poor health for several years before he resigned as their minister. In January 1839 he wrote asking them to release him from his charge.

In 1839 a call was given to the Rev. Oliver A. Taylor. He accepted the call and was installed Sept. 18 of that year.

The Parish in 1837 became incorporated as the "First Parish of the Orthodox Congregational Church," and took the support of the minister out of the hands of the town. In 1844 the Parish voted to make some alterations in the church. A number of the proprietors objected so the parish proposed to purchase the meeting-house from the proprietors and the town. A committee from out of town was appointed to appraise the meeting-house. They assessed a value of $3000. An agreement was reached between the parties and a deed was drawn up and signed by each and every proprietor, and each was paid his share of the $3000.

Rev. Rufus Taylor succeeded his brother as pastor, being installed May 6, 1852.

The Rev. George L. Gleason was installed pastor of the church April 7, 1869, and held that position till 1881.

The church was fortunate that for the first 72 years after its organization the pulpit was filled by only two men. The good influence of these men lasted for many years after they had ceased to preach from this pulpit. A little later in its history the church was fortunate to have the wise guidance of Rev. Mr. Emerson for 18 years, and Rev. O. Taylor for twelve years. The pastorates of these four men occupied 102 years.

In old New England long pastorates were the rule, many ministers spending all their ministerial life in one place, in fact in some cases they were settled for life.

Many changes have taken place since God's altar was set up in this humble hamlet, and we have every reason to feel thankful to those who brought the sacred fire, and to their successors who so faithfully tended it, and kept it alive. They strived to obey the work of God both in the letter and in the spirit.

The history of this church proves that our forefathers were not only faithful, but zealous in the performance of their religious duties. Their view of life may have been narrow, but there was nothing of the coward in this constitution. The position of the church in the community has changed much in the past two centuries.

We have broadened out and the church has assumed more duties, but I am afraid that we have lost some of their reverence for sacred things, and the Bible—our fathers' guide—is a sealed book to many of us, sad to relate.

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN.

Rivalling in popularity and success the profitable stage production of "Under Cover" is the remarkable screen version of that same play which is to head the big Paramount program at the Strand Theatre, Lynn, the first three days of next week. On the same program will appear Edmund Breeze in a splendid production of "The Spell of the Yukon." This picture has "locations" in snowy

Alaska where many magnificent and enchanting winter scenes were secured by the camera men. On Sunday will be presented Mary Pickford in one of her most interesting character portrayals, that of "Esmeralda."

Rita Jolivet will make her Strand debut the last three days of the week in "An International Marriage." On the same program will be seen that greatest of all character interpreters for screen reproduction, William S.

Hart, in "The Apostle of Vengeance." Marie Doro in "Common Ground" comes Monday, Aug. 7th.

MORE LETTERS

MANCHESTER BOYS WRITE HOME FROM THE BORDER.

Private J. Irving Baker of Manchester, Co. A, 2nd Mass. Infantry, writes from Columbus, N. M.:

"They lined us up today and issued recruit toilet kits that had a lot of things in them—a shoe brush and polish, tooth brush, hair brush, whisk broom, soap, razor, shaving brush, comb and a housewife with needles, pins, scissors, thread and buttons. It comes in mighty handy. We were also issued new blankets. We had a slick dinner Sunday—beefsteak, potatoes with brown gravy, onions and apple pie. One of our cooks was a baker—knows how to make them. I am sitting at the window of the Y. M. C. A. and just across the road they are unloading the motor trucks to go to Pershing's army in Mexico. You ought to see the men when they come back; they are all covered with dust and dirt. It takes ten days for the round trip. They take two men from each company as guards, but I wasn't lucky enough to be drawn.

"There is not much doing just now, drill four hours in the morning and then nothing in the afternoon, but take a shower and clean your rifle. We had a ball game the other day with Co. M of the 1st New Mexico. I played center field. It was a pretty good game. We haven't gone on outpost again; some of the outfits are getting their turn, but "we should worry," we had the first crack at it the first day we were here. It is lots hotter here than where Harry (brother) is, according to the papers, but we don't mind it much now.

"The recruits came in the afternoon of the 16th. We had just put their tents up, when it began to rain and just poured. A good introduction to this climate. I went down as far as the border today, where we saw a number of dead horses they got in the raid. I got your package last night and it was great, if it was a little squashed, also the checkers the boys sent; two of the fellows in the tent are using it now. We were on guard at the bull pen all day yesterday. Took in five prisoners; one was a "spic." This was a new experience for most of us. We are to have another physical examination at 10.30."

Musician Harry D. Baker, Co. H, 8th Mass. Infantry, writes from Camp Cotton, El Paso, Texas:

"Sergt. Barnes and I went down to the border a little while ago and he took a picture of the adobe hut where there is a Mexican outpost, with a boundary monument in the foreground. One of the outposts was kind enough to go down with us, and we both had our automatics. Safety First!

"The Youth's Companion hasn't come yet; we certainly will use it when it does come. You spoke of a lady who had been down here, telling you how to keep cool nights. That is entirely unnecessary, as the nights are fine down in this section, and before morning you are glad of the old blanket and a little more.

"Speaking of staying at the beach to see the moon rise, I want you to know that we have some fine views down here when the moon rises over the Mexican hills. And talk about sunrises! They are beautiful. On the whole, this part of the country has its beauties as well as old New England. El Paso is quite a busy city as those pictures will show. There is also a very pretty residential section.

"Don't worry about the 'canteen,' because it is just like a department store, where you can buy anything from a wrist watch to a cake of soap. A funny thing happened to me the other day at musicians' school. We fell out for a short rest and when I sat down I almost sat on a horned toad. It probably would have hurt the toad more than me, but it startled me when it ran out of the way.

"Our outfit was issued, new rifles tonight, and the old ones were given to the 'rookies.' We are very nearly all equipped, as all have the new uniforms, shoes, underwear and stockings. It looks as though we would have to move out on border patrol, but we know absolutely nothing about the orders."

EQUAL SUFFRAGE, JUSTICE AND HEALTH

(THE PRESENT SITUATION)

The National Woman Suffrage association has issued a call for a general national convention, to be held the first week of September in Atlantic City. This will be an extremely important event for all the suffragists of this country, and a large delegation will go from Massachusetts. The early date of this annual convention (which usually comes in December) is owing to the fact that the presidential elections in this country come this autumn. Every day there is new evidence that woman suffrage will play a very important part in the presidential and congressional campaigns,—and that it is becoming more and more a national and less and less a local matter. (Even the Boston Transcript is calling attention to this fact!) The women are watching President Wilson with new interest, for he has just made the democrats put aside their "states' rights" argument and pass a federal child labor bill; and we wonder how he can, with any consistency, continue to use the states' rights argument against a federal amendment for equal suffrage. By the way, the Southern gentlemen who wanted to continue child labor in the Southern factories are the same men who most bitterly oppose woman suffrage. Southern chivalry again!

Now, in connection with the national situation, we note how large a share the women of the country have had in equipping and taking care of the militia,—the boys on the border—during this Mexican disturbance; and the fact has crept out that,—even with all this assistance—the authorities have in many instances not provided proper food for the military camps at the border. Have the women any control of these conditions? In return for their tremendous service, will they have any voice in the government that controls all national and international questions? Only in the Western states.

A certain doctor has recently stated that the terrible epidemic of infantile paralysis in New York is very largely due to unclean conditions in parts of that city; and yet many men still insist that women shall not interfere in municipal housekeeping and that they are not needed in government! New York suffragists are helping in the fight against infant paralysis, and at the same time are carrying forward their second state campaign,—probably their last! And, by the way, these wonderful New York suffragists combined a suffrage demonstration with graceful and practical attentions to the departing militia, which made a great hit with the "boys in khaki." But they and all suffragists are saying to the boys at the border and to American citizens in general,— "Give us, not 'chivalry,' but justice and health!"

BASEBALL TEAM DEFEATED QUEEN QUALITY NINE IN A FAST
GAME, 3 TO 0.

With the dash and speed that might characterize "big-leaguers" the Manchester team went after the crack Queen Quality outfit from Jamaica Plain at the Brook-st. diamond, Manchester, last Saturday afternoon and sewed up the game in the first three innings, 3 to 0. Heavy hitting and snappy fielding was responsible for Manchester's decisive victory. The local team secured seven clean hits from Murray's delivery and played practically an errorless game. The lone Manchester error was made by Grover, and although it added a base for the visitors, was not made at a dangerous stage of the game.

Drummond started the game with a single to Collins. Norton struck out. Mitchell drove the ball over the fence in right field after Drummond had been caught between first and second. Boles was out, Herron to Devlin.

Gourley as usual started the action for Manchester with a single to center field. A sacrifice bunt by O'Leary and a sacrifice grounder to second by Cody landed him on third. When Devlin made a two-bagger via right field fence, Gourley trotted home with the first run. Herron secured a pass and Conley sent the ball on a trip to center field. Devlin scored and Conley continued on his way to second uninterrupted, but got no farther. Collins knocked a fly to Boles.

In the second Grover walked White. Robertson's sacrifice bunt advanced the runner to second. Hagan lined one to Cody, who whipped the ball to Devlin. Devlin doubled to the plate in time to catch White attempting to score. Manchester was victim of a peculiar double play in its half of the inning. Grover got to first on an error. Perkins sent a grounder along the first base line. Murray played the ball to first and Hagan tagged Grover in his tracks, getting two put-outs on the double play.

Devlin, the first man up in the third, repeated his right-field fence performance, dropping the ball just over the wall. He scored from second, when Herron deposited the ball in the brook by a long drive to center. In the next five innings Manchester got only one hit, Perkins' bingle to left in the seventh.

In the seventh Mitchell sent an easy one to Cody, but just as the latter was about to field the ball it took a freakish bound and went over his head into center field, crediting the runner with an undeserved hit. In the ninth it looked, for a few minutes, as though the shoe team was about to tie the score. Mitchell struck out, but Boles walked. White popped out to Cody and Robertson singled. Hagan drew a pass to first and the bases were full. Joe Brickley, brother of the famous Harvard athlete, Charley Brickley, came to the bat intent on bringing in one or all of the men on the bags. Once it looked as if he would clear the bases. A long drive went to the stone wall in left field, but was several feet over the foul line. His next attempt was a smashing wallon to left which was nipped in the bud by Herron, and the game was over.

Gourley, who can be depended upon to come across with one or two hits each game, struck out for the first time since he has been with Manchester. In the fourth inning, his 30th time at bat without a strike-out, he fanned the air three times. Not satisfied he repeated with a strike-out in the seventh.

FRIENDS AT HOME.

The following self-explanatory letter has been received by B. L. Allen of the Allen Drug Store, Manchester, from William Gage Hamond, company clerk of Co. H, 8th Mass Inf., at Camp Cotton, El Paso, Tex.:

"El Paso, Texas, July 20, 1916.
"In view of making life here as pleasant and comfortable as possible for the enlisted men of this command we request your approval and co-operation with us in the following proposition:

"We desire that you place a box in your store marked with a suitable sign requesting the townspeople and friends of the boys to contribute the following articles for their comfort: Tobacco, cigarettes, tooth brushes, tooth paste, handkerchiefs, towels, soap, postage stamps, stationery.

"The above list covers the principal articles needed as we are issued all kinds of clothing. Of course any person desiring to send a package to any particular member of this company may do so by just marking the man's name plainly on the package and he will get it intact. Other contributions will be distributed among the men in the fairest possible way.

"We are asking the leading merchant in each town represented in our roster to help us in the same manner and as I know the condition of each individual member owing to my position, I feel sure that the pleasure and gratification derived by our men from such a gift will more than make up to the good people of Manchester the inconvenience caused by our request.

"Trusting you may see fit to grant our request and thanking you for the men, I am, etc."

Vicar (severely)—Ah, the old story, an unskilled man dodging the work he might get.

Irate Farmer—Do you think you own this road?

While the playground tennis courts are intended primarily for the use of the children, a great many grown-ups like to take advantage of the opportunity to play evenings. As a rule, however, just at the hour when older people wish to play is when they are most in demand by the youngsters. It has been suggested that another year an additional court be laid out at the playground or elsewhere for the exclusive use of adults. Judging by the present demand another court would be kept busy.

MERRILL—RYAN

Last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Masconomo House, Manchester, Miss Gertrude A. Ryan, formerly of Manchester, and a recent graduate nurse of the Lowell General Hospital, was married to Dr. Ernest S. Merrill, son of Mrs. Harriet Merrill of Lowell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Howe Cotton of the Unitarian Church, Danvers, in the presence of about 150 guests.

The ushers were Dr. Carroll Allen of Dedham, Dr. Norris Brown of Dorchester and Woodbury Bragdon of Danvers. The bridal party stood before a bank of palms and greenery, entering the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by an orchestra. The bridesmaids were Miss Dora May Marshall and Miss Grace Merrill of this town. The maid of honor was Miss Beatrice Long. Dr. John Merrill of Lowell, a brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was given in marriage by I. M. Marshall, a friend.

Following the wedding a reception was held and dancing was enjoyed. Dr. and Mrs. Merrill left by automobile for Tamworth, N. H., and New York.

MRS. ABBIE WALKER

Mrs. Abbie (Randlett) Walker, a former resident of Manchester for several years, passed away Tuesday at Haverhill, where she had been living with one of her sons. She was 65 years of age. Death was due to heart failure.

During her residence in Manchester Mrs. Walker gained the friendship of a large circle who will regret to hear of her death.

She is survived by a sister, Miss Jennie Randlett of Palmyra, Maine; a son, Arthur Walker of Manchester, and another married son, Clarence, of Haverhill.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon (Friday) at 3.30 at Haverhill.

HENRY E. PEARSON.

Henry E. Pearson died at his home in Byfield Saturday of last week. Mr. Pearson was a visitor to Manchester on frequent occasions in the past where he was entertained by his step-son Lyman W. Floyd. He was born March 30, 1842, and in his youth attended Dummer Academy, Putnam Free School and Phillips Andover Academy. Later he graduated from Eastman's College at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., teaching there for a time after graduation.

He conducted a general store in Byfield upon his return. His marriage to Mrs. Abbie C. Floyd of Byfield took place in 1886. He had considerable success as a manufacturer of cereals and conducted a store in Boston where one of the products, a brown bread mixture, met a big sale. Later he was interested in the development of Western oil and mining lands. He was one of the supporters of the Methodist church and had contributed a great deal to its maintenance and prosperity for many years.

For the last three years he had been in failing health. During his many visits to Manchester he has

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Williams of Oberlin, Ohio, were in the village the other day calling on old friends. For about a decade Dr. Williams was the pastor of the Trinity Congregational church, Gloucester, where he and his family are spending their vacation in their summer home.

Two hundred and fifty pounds! That is a large fish for one to catch with a pollock line and hook. But Captain Bickford recently did this on Spot Rocks off Magnolia and since then many another has tried to do likewise, but they have not had the same success as did he when he landed his large halibut which was an interesting sight to those who gathered about his boat upon his return to shore.

A "Novel Dance" will be given at the Men's club Saturday. Japanese fans will be presented to the women and colored caps to the men. Next Monday night a moving picture entertainment will be given at the club and on next Wednesday night a dance will be held at the same place for the benefit of the Sons of Veterans. Efforts are now being made to raise the debt of $12,000 on the club, the object being to put it on a self-supporting basis. Not only the manager and directors, but also other public-spirited people are greatly interested in this project which doubtless will succeed as it should for the good of the place.

MANCHESTERBOY SCOUTS OUTING.

The third annual outing of the Manchester troupe of Boy Scouts at the home of Miss Lila Lancashire was held last Saturday afternoon. As has been the case in the past it was a most enjoyable occasion. The 25 scouts gathered under the leadership of Scoutmaster Rev. A. G. Warner at 9.45 o'clock and marched to Miss Lancashire's home to the accompaniment of music by Revere Brooks, cornet, and Nelson Butler, drum. Arriving at "Graftonwood," they immediately went for a swim from the beach. Sports followed with the following results: 100 yard dash won by Abbott Foster; wheelbarrow race—Revere Brooks and of Allen Needham; handicap broad jump—Carl Needham. A bountiful lunch was served to the scouts on the beach. Water sports and boating followed. A ball game between teams captained by Abbott Foster and Revere Brooks was won by Foster's team 6 to 4.

The next attempt of the scouts was at pyramid building. The equipment race was won by Abbott Foster and the antelope race was won by the team he captained. Dress parade and the presentation of prizes followed. Following the call to the colors dainty refreshments of ice cream and cake were served on the terrace fronting the grounds. Through the thoughtfulness of Miss Lancashire the cakes were arranged with the colors and monogram of the boy scouts. Following refreshment there was a victrola concert and at the close the boys were taken home in automobiles.

"Well, I understand, your Honor, that if the jury is out considering a case during any regular meal time, the jury is taken out to a restaurant by the bailiff and he and the jury eat together. Now, you see Judge, that makes 13 sitting down at the same time at the same table, and I wouldn't want to do that for the world. So I guess you'd better let be off."

The judge guessed so, too.—Indianapolis News.

"WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN?"

That daring photo-play, "Where Are My Children?" enters upon its 2nd month at the Majestic Theatre in Boston, next Monday, July 31, and if the attendance during the past week is any criterion, the coming six days will see more records broken. The agitation against the showing of the film, which has increased daily since the opening performance, has not yet resulted in a denial of the privilege of showing it to the anxious public, and it is to be hoped that the crusade will not succeed, as the lesson taught by "Where Are My Children?" is a much needed one judging by the occurrence of the past weeks.

IN THE SEASON'S BEST STYLES

IN past seasons a Bathing Suit was a very simple matter to select. They were all made in the same style. Quite naturally, not all suits were alike—not made of the same material. This season, however, there is a most remarkable range of fashions in Bathing Suits—from the simple suit of mohair or brilliantine, to the pretty silk suit, all at reasonable prices.

Special instructions received from the executive offices at New York indicate that the American Express Company, together with connecting express companies, has thrown open its entire organization to the aid of the American Red Cross in getting military relief supplies to the Mexican border.

As the various chapters of the Red Cross organization collect and receive supplies, they will forward them to their concentrating depots which have been established at the railroad centers: New York city, Cincinnati, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver and San Francisco. There the supplies will be assorted, classified and repacked, if necessary, for further shipment to the distributing depots at Douglas, Arizona; El Paso and San Antonio, Texas. From these distributing depots final distribution will be made to the troops at the front.

The American Express Company is rendering further assistance by having its 10,000 offices all over the country give prominent display to the Red Cross placard soliciting contributions of supplies, and designating just what character of matter can be used to advantage.

KEITH'S THEATRE, BOSTON.

Laura Hope Crews, one of the cleverest actresses on the American stage, will make her vaudeville debut at B. F. Keith's Theatre, Boston, the week of July 31, in a new one-act comedy written especially for her, and entitled "Her Husband's Wife." Miss Crews has never before appeared in vaudeville in Boston, although she has been a feature of many big dramatic and comedy successes in the two-dollar field. Her new play is the story of a woman who offers to give up her husband to another woman whom he fancies,—but how she turns the tables on her hubby and makes him change his mind, is unfolded in a most amusing and entertaining playlet. Other features of the bill will be Ralph Riggs and Katherine Weaver in dainty dances and Billy

BOSTON THEATRE.

Irene Fenwick, the sensational star of the much-discussed drama, "The Song of Songs," which enjoyed a long run in Boston last winter, will appear for the first time in Boston exclusively at the Boston Theatre the week of July 31st in her very newest and most surprising production, "A Child of Destiny," in five great parts. Miss Fenwick is one of the most beautiful English actresses upon the stage.

North Shore folk will find a rather remarkable display of the popular Hand-decorated Metal, Wood and Glass in Daniel Low's Colonial Room.

Many different articles are shown and all of them are useful. Conspicuously noticeable in a number of instances, are unique departures from the conventional in shapes and colorings, yet every piece resplendent in those bright, snappy hues and daintily executed decorative schemes that reflect the very Spirit of Summer.

The substantial quality of the articles themselves and the careful hand-craftsmanship given them, have combined to form an array of truly attractive objects from which one may interestingly select suitable summer adjuncts to their table, rooms, porch, lawn or garden. For example:

Watering Pots of tin, "giraffe" spouts, $3.00 and $3.25.

Garden Sets of tin, wood and wicker: trowel, cultivator, pruning shears, twine. Gay sets for gay flowers, $3.25, $4.50 and $5.00.

Garden Hats of Japanese straw, diameter 19 in., colored silk tie ribbons. Very cool and comfortable, $1.00.

Flower Vases and Baskets of tin, wood fiber and glass, all shapes, and heights, $1.75 to $4.50.

Flower Pots with Saucers, earthenware, $1.75 to $3.75.

Flower Pot Covers of tin, perforated, $1.50 and $2.75.

Porch and Fern Cones of tin, $1.25 and $6.00; Hooks for hanging cones, bird figure ornamentation, $1.00 and $1.50.

Altogether an interesting display—one we urge you not to miss when you visit Salem and our Store.

Wall Flower Pockets of tin, wooden trellis, $6.50.

Book Ends of tin, to keep summer reading in order, $2.25.

Mail Boxes of tin, very effective colorings, $4.50.

Of glass: Cordial Set, Candlesticks, Carafe, Candy Jars, Fruit or Flower Baskets, Lavendar Jar, Night Set, Tobacco Jar, Georgian Urn, Mustard Jar, Boudoir Set, etc.

Miscellaneous: Cake, Candy and Cracker Boxes; Fruit Compotes; Cocktail Trays; Muffin Holders; Cake Covers; Newspaper Rests; Waste-baskets; Sconces; Match Box Holders; Cigarette Boxes; Lamp Screens; Buffet or Table Screens; Children's Trays, Slates and Scratch Tablets; Paste Jars; Telephone Memo Pads; Hearth Set—all of tin with pleasing floral or fruit decorations.

Reg. Trade Mark

OUR Table Linen department is always one of great interest to housekeepers and prospective housekeepers on account of the many beautiful and varied styles of designs shown. We display at our

New York Store over five hundred patterns, a great many of which are our own exclusive patterns and ideas.

Killarney (Arbutus) Design

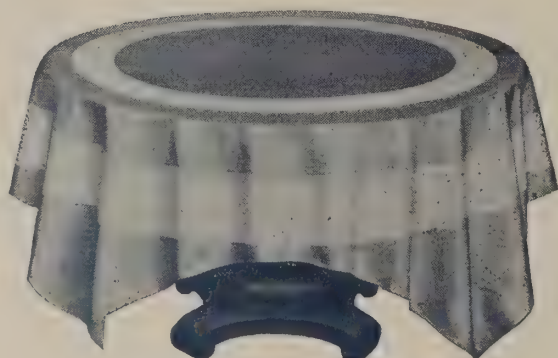

It would be unnecessary and impossible to carry our entire stock at our Magnolia branch in the Colonnade, but we have made a selection of some of the most popular designs, three of which are here illustrated.

Old English Willow Design

Killarney Arbutus is our own exclusive design made on a moderate weight hand made Damask, very choice quality.

Old English Willow. We think this is the first time this popular pattern has been woven in linen—a moderately priced Damask.

Plain Satin Band Round Design

Plain Satin Bands. (Round or Square.) We carry this in more than eight qualities.

Prices on these and all our Linen goods are much below the prevailing market prices, as many of these goods were purchased over a year ago.

Half-days in Marblehead

Old Houses

ANNE ACTON

*They cluster like wigwams up the hills
And down the lanes of the little town,
And some are stately and dignified,
While many are old and quaint and brown.*

IF THE ideas of the early inhabitants of Marblehead with regard to thoroughfares were not so original as they were restricted by the sturdy ledges of rock over and around which they were forced to take their way, in the matter of domiciles and their location, free rein was evidently given to that independence of which everyone must have had a goodly share.

As if scattered by the hand of a generous sower, the houses of Marblehead cover almost every inch of the rocky soil. Almost jostling each other, they climb the hilly lanes and crowd along the very edges of the narrow streets, while here and there a space proclaims a deserter from the ranks and a series of little flights of stairs marks the way to its retreat at the top of an unexpected hill.

And each of these odd, old houses is a story-book among whose age-yellowed pages runs the thread of many a romance and much adventure. There are stories historical, founded on fact, or merely traditional and colored by the vivid artistry of the imaginations of successive generations. Always they are interesting, for Marblehead is strangely conducive to dreaming and her fine old houses are filled with an air of yesterday and there is an echo of the past in every room.

We may convert them to our everyday use, modernize them and fill them with the conveniences of the present, but we cannot fill them with our modern atmosphere. Irrevocably they are dedicated, like the slate slabs of Old Burial Hill, to the memory of other days. The fires on their wide hearths will draw for us oddly clear pictures of the family circles that once gathered to a like gladdening warmth and there is an all-pervading sense of companionship in the quaint or stately rooms, as if the genial spirits before their departure had left something of their personalities—intangible, elusive, but of which we are never unconscious.

Not many of these old houses will open their doors to us, for within their sacred precincts other lives are living their short, inconsequent span and adding their own history to the time-blurred records of former occupants. But some, like memorials, are consecrated only to the past and serve the present merely to bring it into closer touch with the memories of other days. Not all the echoing feet of years of visitors have worn away the spell that lingers in the old rooms. Almost untouched, unvisited they seem, as if it were only yesterday, not a century ago, since the quiet, daily life of their owners filled them with light laughter, gentle speech and the soft rustle of silken garments.

Such a memorial is the Lee mansion, situated on Washington street, once the main highway of the little town. Humble, indeed, and quaint are its surroundings, and it has no immediate neighbors to match it in stateliness. Eloquently it bears testimony to the prosperity of Marblehead in the years preceding the Revolution.

It is almost one hundred and fifty years since it was built for Col. Jeremiah Lee in 1768. Every inch of its massive squareness was brought from over the seas and seven years of painstaking labor and an expenditure of over ten thousand pounds were necessary to make it the enduring monument to art and architecture that it is today.

In its own day, those colonial times of simplicity of design, of generosity of proportions and of building to endure, the home of Col. Lee outshone in its magnificence anything in the colony. Today, it is safe to say, our entire country boasts nothing like it. Tucked away at the foot of one of Marblehead's many hills, surrounded by the quaintly humble neighborhood, this glorious specimen of workmanship of that long-gone day has become a shrine to which, yearly, come architects from all over the country to wonder and worship and, if possible, to copy. Likewise, too, this one-time royalist mansion is a Mecca for lovers of things antique.

The promise of its generous exterior hardly prepares us for the wonderful proportions of the wide entrance hall that runs the length of the house and the great width of the mahogany stairway. The beauty of the mahogany wainscoting, the wonderful panelled wall-paper that has survived the use and disuse of almost one hundred and fifty years, and the exquisitely carved stair rails, each of a different design, prove a love of accomplishment that puts to shame the machine-aided efforts of our own time.

To the left of the hall is the banquet room, panelled from floor to ceiling. Originally it was in white and gold, but the passage of time claimed it for business purposes, and as the banking room of the Marblehead National bank it was stained a dark, workaday walnut. Its carved mantel is "a thing of beauty" and the wide fireplace and deep, recessed windows give to the huge room something of cosiness, despite its stately proportions and high-flung ceiling.

It was here in this room that a banquet was given in honor of Marquis de Lafayette, and upstairs among a collection of highly prized heirlooms is the damask table cloth upon which it was spread.

This carefully guarded relic did not come from the linen press of Mistress Lee, for when the table was to be laid it was found that the house did not contain a cloth large enough to cover it, and a friendly neighbor, well-known for her collection of fine linen, sent her little daughter with a cloth large enough and fine enough to do honor to the distinguished guest. In due time the cloth was returned and not until a few years ago was it sent again to the Lee mansion.

It happened that one afternoon the granddaughter of the little girl who had come on such eager feet that long-ago day with a cloth for the table of the great General Lafayette, was visiting the Lee mansion. The attendant who was showing her about brought her in here to the banquet hall and began to tell her of the entertainment of Lafayette. The visitor listened, smilingly, then finished the story by telling that she had the cloth that had been so honored. She told, too, what her grandmother had told her of the bustle and preparation of that night and of how, instead of going home, as she was bid, she had stayed to help in passing the dishes to the great table. When she was going the visitor offered the prized cloth of her great grandmother to the old house where its won its glory.

From the banquet hall we pass into the family dining room. It is smaller and its windows look out on the old-fashioned garden. At the right of its fireplace a panel slips out on invisible hinges and discloses the iron doors of a safe where, in case of danger, the family silver might be quickly hidden.

Across the hall, at the rear, is the kitchen. It bears no resemblance to the kitchenette of our acquaintance, but it is small in proportion with the size of the house, and its fireplace could hardly have served to cook for the family of eight children and the retinue of servants that constituted Col. Lee's household—to say nothing of the guests that his hospitality made welcome at all times. It is probable, therefore, that its purpose was to keep dishes warm for the family table and that the cook house was situated in the brick building at the left of the mansion, where the slaves were housed. Col. Lee kept as many as forty slaves, we are told, who worked at loading and unloading his merchant ships and served in various capacities about the great house.

A door at the right of the kitchen leads to the hall of the side entrance to the house. Across this narrow entry is the parlor or reception room, which opens also on the great front hall. Here, too, are deep window seats and a wide fireplace. The wainscoting, the beautifully carved frieze and the Corinthian columns that flank the fireplace are all in white. A charming room it must have been when Mistress Lee was hostess here. Many a sociable dish of tea was taken beside its glowing hearth when the long, shadowy fingers of twilight came to draw away the reluctant day, and many a nightly gathering, lighted by scores of candles, made of it a brilliant spectacle.

We have made the circle of the lower story and are once more in the wide entrance hall. The low-stepping staircase invites us to explore the upper part of the house, and thoughts of other days come crowding as we make the ascent. Reverently we touch the hand-rail and think of the many, long-still fingers that smoothed its polished surface in the countless, daily journeyings up and down; the stately Mistress Lee in her trailing silken gown, coming down to a dinner of state; the great-hearted Lafayette ascending to repair the damage to his toilet after his long ride to the banquet in his honor; the little Lee children, with small hands clutching the rail, making careful progress up or down; and, later, when Chief Justice Sewall owned the house, the slow procession of sad-hearted widows and fatherless children, the latter eager-eyed and curious, to whom he opened the great house when the terrific gale of 1846 had robbed them of the husbands and fathers who were their shields against the world.

Upstairs, on the second story, we find the same generous proportions that characterize the lower part of the mansion. Off the wide hall the bedrooms open; there, over the banquet hall, the state chamber and here a smaller one, over the parlor, while the bedroom that is supposed to have been used by Mistress Lee is over the dining room and has a small dressing room opening off it. The stairway to the third story runs from a small side hall, which connects the smaller front bedroom with the kitchen chamber. But this is not the only means of access to the upper part of the house. In the kitchen chamber what seems to be half of a double closet door opens on a narrow stairway. This is often referred to as the secret staircase, because at the top a painted area is said to mark the place where a secret panel gave entrance to a long, dark closet formed by double partitions between two rooms. But those of practical mind scout the idea and argue that there was no reason why Col. Jeremiah Lee should have had a secret stairway. They claim that it was a shorter way for taking the children up to bed, but the dreamers will have their way, and it is fascinating to think that the unsuspected, little flight of steep stairs offered a safe and quick retreat for those who wished to avoid capture.

Certain it is that there was need of just such hasty and unpretentious avenues of escape in those early days, and Col. Lee, himself, had an opportunity to experience that need. But not in his own house.

It was on the day before the battle of Lexington that the Province Committee of Safety and Supplies, of which Col. Lee was a member, met at Wetherby's Black Horse Tavern, between Cambridge and Lexington. The meeting was a lengthy one and it was almost nightfall before it was finally adjourned. Col. Lee and his companions, Elbridge Gerry and Azor Orne, also representing Marblehead, decided to remain at the tavern for the night, while others of the committee, including John Hancock and Samuel Adams, proceeded to Lexington. A little later, before it became quite dark, small companies of British soldiers were seen to pass the tavern, and word was sent by messenger to Hancock and Adams.

With no thought of danger to themselves, Col. Lee and his associates went to bed. They were awakened by the filing past the tavern of a company of British, but not until the front had passed on and halted and an officer and file of men had been dispatched by signal toward the house, did Col. Lee and his friends realize that they were in danger. Then would a secret stairway, with a quick and secure retreat to safety, have been appreciated. As it was, they were obliged to flee, half-clothed, to a field back of the tavern and to remain there for over an hour while the house was thoroughly searched for the "members of the Rebel Congress."

Although it was the middle of April, the night was cold and the men suffered from exposure. Col. Lee contracted a heavy cold from which a few days later a severe fever developed, and he died at his country home in Newburyport on the 10th of May, just three weeks after his unfortunate exposure. Never had his town and province needed him more and Marblehead was plunged into mourning. His body was brought here for burial and his tomb may be seen in the churchyard of the New Meeting House.

It was in 1909 that the Marblehead Historical Society came into possession of the Lee mansion. At that time it was a mere shell, its lower rooms pervaded by the atmosphere of business and sundry partitions and "improvements" diverting its original purposes. In the short space of seven years they have reclaimed it and the great rooms, appropriately furnished with gifts of rare, highly-prized heirlooms of the sons and daughters and friends of Marblehead, have all the charm and stateliness of their early days.

But it is when the Historical Society gives one of its

THE OLD HOMESTEAD ON THE "HALE FARM"

The present home of Robert Hale Bancroft and family on Hale Street, Beverly.

HALE FARM lies fair and serene in Beverly. The busy and pleasure loving motorists who pass its gate each hour during the summer season may not all be interested in the historic past for which the place stands.

The old house was built in 1694 by the Rev. John Hale, who was the grandfather of Col. Robert Hale of Beverly. It was the parsonage of the First Parish Church (Unitarian), which was gathered in 1656 and incorporated in 1667. The present church was built in 1770, and has a bell cast by Paul Revere.

The poem, "Mistress Hale of Beverly," by Lucy Larcom, fittingly tells the tale of the part played by that genuinely appreciated woman, and of how the accusation of her, who was the wife of the minister of the First Church in Beverly, broke the spell of delusion which had rested over the town in the "witchcraft year." Mr. Hale was active in all of the proceedings of this year. The poem tells of his good wife watching for his return from Salem-Side, and expostulating with him about the witchcraft delusions.

"God grant his dismal day be short! Except help soon arrive,

*To ruin these deluded ones will our fair country drive.
If I tomorrow were accused, what further could I plead
Than those who died, whom neither judge nor minister would heed?"*

*"I pray thee, husband, enter not their councils any more!
My heart aches with forebodings! Do not leave me I implore!"*

*Yet if to turn this curse aside my life might but avail,
In Christ's name would I yield it up," said gentle Mistress Hale.*

The minister promised her that he would go only one more time to the court-room at Salem-Side. While there he heard his own wife accused of witchcraft.

But, while the accuser writhed in wild contortions on the floor,

*One rose and said, "Let all withdraw! the court is closed!"
no more:*

For well the land knew Mistress Hale's rare loveliness and worth;

Her virtues bloomed like flowers of heaven along the paths of earth.

The minister of Beverly rode home fast and told his wife to shut herself into her room "the latch-string keep drawn in from all save me!" He guarded her well until a message came across the ferry saying that the judges had let all the accused ones go free.

In Salem Village there was peace; with witchcraft trials passed

The nightmare-terror from the vexed New England air at last.

Again in natural tones men dared to laugh aloud and speak;

From Naugus Head the fisher's shout rang back to Jeffrey's Creek;

The phantom-soldiery withdrew, that haunted Gloucester shore;

The teamster's voice through Wenham Woods broke into psalms once more.

*The minister of Beverly thereafter sorely grieved
That he had inquisition held with counsellors deceived.*

* * * * *

Errors are almost trespasses; rarely indeed we know How our mistakes hurt other hearts, until some random blow

Has well-nigh broken our own.

* * * * *

The minister's long fields are still with dew of summer wet;

The roof that sheltered Mistress Hale tradition points to yet.

*Green be her memory ever kept all over Cape-Ann-Side.
Where unobtrusive excellence awed back delusion's tide!*

The Rev. John Hale served his church many years. His grave-stone bears the following inscription. "Here lies the body of the Reverend Mr. John Hale, a pious and faithful minister of the gospel, and pastor of the first church of Christ in this town of Beverly, who rested from his labors on the 15th day of May, anno domini 1700, in the 64th year of his age." The illustrious Col. Hale of Beverly owned and occupied the parsonage that had belonged to both his father and grandfather, and which is now, after the passing of nine generations, still in the possession of family descendants.

The tombs of these early occupants are in a small section of the old cemetery near the farm. Originally the place was much larger and included land across the street, where the first little house stood in which the minister lived. The house now standing was built later on in his long ministry.

It is now in the possession of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft (Elise Milligan) of 249 Beacon st., Boston. The Bancrofts and their young daughter, Miss Eleanor Carroll Bancroft, spend a long season in this delightful and quaint nook of Beverly. The house has not been changed, but stands in its dignified simplicity of y^e olden time, showing low ceilings, curious old doors with huge fasteners, old fireplaces and quaint corner cupboards. And to make it still more interesting, it is said to have a haunted chamber. The house looks cosy and bright with its coat of yellow paint, and stands close to the roadside. A stone wall with lattice work on top surrounds the fine grounds, comprising about twelve acres of wooded lawns.

ROUND PLAIN FARM, the year-round home of Mrs. John Caswell at Beverly Farms, has something in the process of building, or at least putting the finishing touches to, that is not found any place else along the Shore. This is a "garden room," designed by Mrs. Caswell, who is making the decorations and planning every detail in this unique spot. She enclosed a piazza, made a sod floor; and with a wall fountain and pool in which little goldfish play, vines beginning to creep up the walls, and potted plants placed among the garden furniture, she has developed something unusual in the garden line. The lattice work over the walls and the conventional flower designs above the fountain were made by Mrs. Caswell's directions. The flower patterns were cut from Vogue, then sawed out of wood and painted by Mrs. Caswell, who excels in that line. A little tea table and electrical fixtures for making tea complete this little "garden room," half garden and half house. It opens near the large flower garden which is enclosed by thick and tall hedges. On one side is a hedge of tall pines which is particularly beautiful. Near the house and garden is one of the most Big maple and cedar trees are there, having their trunks completely covered with vines. Neat and trim gravel walks are a delight to walk upon under these trees.

A magnificent water view is seen in the rear, the place being close to the shore. Here is the little formal rose garden with its sun-dial, old-fashioned flowers near by, and the big tennis court. Near the tennis court is a most charming little summer house, looking like a doll house with its complete furnishings. Guarding the tennis court and little house are three little dogs, two like airy white powder puffs dancing over the grass, and the other a fat, friendly little thing. An inquisitive parrot also watches proceedings closely and makes his comment upon them.

Hale Farm has no doubt had many wedding festivities in its life time. Only this season it was the scene of a happy wedding reception, when the other daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hope Bancroft, became the bride of Alexander Winsor of Boston and Weston.

charming little nooks that any little girl or older girl ever had for a tea room. In this little square enclosed by heavy hedges of California privet is where the young daughter, Miss Elizabeth Caswell, entertains with delightful little tea parties. The tiny place has the tea table shaded by a huge umbrella. Interested visitors in these garden revels of Miss Elizabeth must be the pretty little West Highland terrier and the wolfish looking German police dog, so friendly and yet so shy of a caress.

A large hay field is close by the garden which is the kiddies' paradise in winter, for Mrs. Caswell has it flooded and gives it to the children of Beverly Farms for their skating rink. As one leaves this beautiful home,—the house with its charming hedges of barberry, sweet brier, trained apple and other shrubs; the unique "garden room" and little tea room; the gardens, both flower and vegetable, enclosed by hedges; the spacious grounds, with their long winding avenue,—the charm of the place lingers and one is glad to have had a peep into the summer life of the inmates, in one of the most typically restful and home-like places on the North Shore.

Great interest is being taken in the talk to be given at "Swiftmoor," Pride's Crossing, Sunday evening, Aug. 13, by E. Alexander Powell, the war correspondent, on "Fighting in France," followed by motion pictures loaned by the government of France. A more complete notice is given on another page.

Miss Rosamond Bradley of Pride's Crossing returned today from a two-weeks' visit to Mrs. Frank B. Bemis at Murray Bay, Canada. She is leaving tomorrow for the Children's Island Sanitarium to spend one month as a volunteer worker.

Driving About Old Cape Ann

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

THE first article on Driving About Old Cape Ann published in last week's issue of the BREEZE took us as far as the old Gloucester Town Hall, at the corner of Washington and Middle streets. It will be interesting for us to continue through historic and attractive Middle street, in the center of the city, thence to Pleasant and Main streets, thus making a circuit of the central section of Gloucester.

On entering Middle street, we pass two quaint old houses, the one on the right being the Whittemore house, erected in 1762 by Samuel Whittemore, the first school-master of the public schools in Gloucester. It is a large gambrel roof house containing about 20 rooms and the whole atmosphere of the dwelling is quaint. There is a fine old-fashioned garden on the estate. The property is now owned by the heirs of the late Deacon D. Elwell Woodbury, the latter a highly respected business man of the city. On the opposite corner is the old Sayward house, formerly the home of Parson Eli Forbes. It was erected about the year 1775.

On no one other street on the Cape do we find so many fine types of old houses in so close proximity, many of which were erected during the Revolutionary days. Middle street may also be truly called the street of churches, for there are five places of worship situated but short distances apart, two of them being of especial historic interest. The street running parallel with the Main or "Front street" as it was called by the early settlers, is connected with the latter by three short streets, Short street, on the right from Washington street, then Center and Hancock streets, the three being nearly equal distances apart.

After passing the Woodbury and Sayward houses, we view the St. John's Episcopal church and parish house on our left, and on the adjoining lot, a long avenue of elm trees with a walk leading beneath them to the old Universalist church, (Independent Christian church). This was the first Universalist church to be established in America and was dedicated by Rev. John Murray. The meeting house was erected in 1805. It contains many old relics, among which principally are the mahogany writing desk upon which the noted Murray wrote many of his sermons and the old organ which turns by a crank and rollers and which was taken from a British merchantman during the War of the Revolution, by a privateer commanded by one of its parishoners. The interior of the edifice is attractive, a balcony surrounding the auditorium. At the front is the pulpit with the choir loft above, in which now is a large, modern pipe organ. On the balcony at the rear of the church is an antique round clock surmounted by a gilded eagle with wide-spread wings. New memorial windows have been recently installed. In the tall colonial belfry, the bell which has assembled the communicants to worship for so many years and still continues to do so, was cast by Paul Revere. The exterior of the church is brown in color, though it has been generally agreed by a number of noted artists, that it would be more strikingly beautiful if painted white. This was proven to me to a great degree a few weeks ago, when my neighbor artist, Walter S. Fenn of East Gloucester, son of the late noted illustrator, Harry G. Fenn, of the Century Magazine Company, showed me a color sketch of the old church in white, offset with its charming walk of green elms.

Much could be said of the early history of this church. The seeds of this sect seemed to have been sown by an English sailor, who came to Cape Ann about 1770. Among the sailor's effects was a book written by James Rely of London, advocating the principles which are the corner stone of Universalism today. This treatise, read in households, resulted in many influential converts to the Relyan theology, who met quietly among themselves until 1774, when they invited Rev. John Murray, at the time much attacked by Boston divines for preaching Rely's doctrines, to labor among them. The Rev. Murray accepted the invitation and through many trials and adverse criticism, stood his ground and built up the faith.

The graceful lines and perfect proportions of the picturesque tower, surmounting the church, unfortunately cannot be fully appreciated at close range. One should view it from a distance, especially from the harbor to get the full charm of its loveliness, as it rises from the wealth of green foliage, against a background of azure blue or the sunset's afterglow.

Nearly across the street from the old Universalist church is an old house in which lived a fair maiden who tenderly cared for the graceful elms in this church yard, watering the young trees regularly.

The next old house on the right, now 51 Middle street, was erected in 1752 by Rev. Samuel Chandler, while its immediate neighbor is a house called the Revolutionary House, erected in 1775. The structure has been an object of great interest to thousands of summer tourists on Cape Ann. The late Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw, the owner for so many years, had a valuable collection of antiques (furniture, pictures and china), a small price of admission being charged. The finishings of this old house are considered the finest of any in the colonial houses of the city, with the exception of the Sawyer Free Library. The hand carved hall staircase and the wall work of the southwest room are truly beautiful works of art, as is also the interesting wall paper.

Nearly across the street from the Revolutionary House may be seen a pleasing type of Colonial structure. It is white with large windows, each window having twenty-four small panes of glass. The doorway is antique also having small panes of glass above its entrance. This house was erected in 1775 by Rev. John Rogers, later becoming the property of Capt. Warner, an old sea merchantman, prominent in the days of the Surinam trade. The house is now owned by Miss Sally Warner, a direct descendant of the old sea captain.

The church on the left is the Trinity Congregational church and passing along, at the right, between the Pattillo store and the Y. M. C. A. building, we see a house with tall, colonial pillars. On this site, the whipping post was located, last used in Gloucester in 1780. The lot on which the fine Y. M. C. A. building now stands was occupied by the Dale house, a splendid type of large colonial residence, moved away for the purpose of erecting the Y. M. C. A. building on the property.

Nearly across the street from the Pattillo store, is a quaint church, surrounded by beautiful grounds and shading elms. This is the First Unitarian church, the first meeting house in Gloucester, and was established in 1728. The present structure, however, is the result of remodeling in 1830. The church has a number of relics, including the old organ, the pulpit, two pictures of the old and new religious dispensation, a Paul Revere communion set and bowl, while in the vestibule there hangs the cannon ball fired by the British ship Falcon, which bombarded the town, August 8, 1775. The cannon ball lodged over the doorway of the original structure.

The next building on the left is the Sawyer Free Library. It was so named because of its donor, the late Samuel E. Sawyer, by whose will, it became the property of the city. The building erected in 1764, was formerly a private residence and its interior is well preserved and very beautiful. Here in this mansion, many gay functions took place in early times and many prominent sea captains and navy and army officers of repute, figured at its gaieties. At one time, Dr. Davidson, a prominent physician of Gloucester resided here. It was he who founded the Cape Ann Scientific and Literary association of this city. The carved staircase of the library attracts a great deal of attention. It is considered one of the finest pieces of wood carving in existence. The library has been extensively enlarged and remodeled recently, but the halls and the majority of the rooms with their lovely Colonial woodwork remain the same.

The next house, at the corner of Dale avenue and Middle street, is the McKenzie house which is 167 years old. Its interior is picturesque with low ceilings and beams and woodwork well preserved. The old fireplaces are especially fine.

Opposite the McKenzie house can be seen two old houses, one in which Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the Mother of Christian Science, once lived for a time.

PROMINENT on Grapevine road between Beverly Farms and Wenham Neck is the new house of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean, Jr. It will be ready for occupancy in a week or more.

The house has an interesting erection, drawing as it has from many sources, it shows what a wonderful creation can be made from historic bits of architecture, all combined to make one of the most unique houses of the Jacobian period found on the North Shore.

An old house on the place was moved to the new location, and has been added to considerably, the wing for the service quarters being entirely new. The entrance hall with its quaint staircase, tiny fireplace and queer old door with its heavy hinges excite curiosity upon entering. Under this stairway is a secret closet made around the chimney. A concealed door in the panelings is another feature of the olden time. This and another entrance lead into the large living room. The low ceiling with the brown beams crossing it, the two large old-time fireplaces, the five deep and low windows and the posts and paneling, which are representations of old houses in Salem and Haverhill, and the floor made to represent a ship's deck and having the boards fastened with wooden pins are among the distinguishing features of this, the principal room in the house. The peculiar old door in the hallway entrance to this room came from a house in Ipswich.

The floor of the hall is of brick from an old house in Danvers. In the library or "stone room" is another peculiar floor of old-time slate, the flags measuring about three by four feet. This room is all in white and has a fine old stairway of Colonial design, the mahogany balustrade coming from the old Lee mansion in Salem, the home of the grandfather of Mrs. McKean, who was Miss Elizabeth P. Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee of Beverly Farms. The panels in this room and a quaint corner cupboard were also brought from the Lee house. An old door of immense size opens on to the side terrace. Back of this "stone room" is the dining room and glass enclosed piazza above which is a sleeping porch.

The First Baptist church occupies the lot at the corner of Middle and Pleasant streets.

We are now on Pleasant street and a drive along it will find a few old houses. If we turn around the fountain at Prospect square, we will see the Prospect Street Methodist Episcopal church at our left and if we continue down Pleasant street, we will connect with Main street. The old Custom House and Postoffice is on the left corner. Before we turn to our right along Main street that leads to Washington street and Western avenue, where we started on our little trip, let us look straight ahead, directly across from the postoffice and we will see Duncan street which is a popular rendezvous for fishermen in port. This street is known somewhat in literature through Elizabeth Stuart Phelps-Ward, the author, who summered at East Gloucester for so many years and while here, wrote "The Singular Life," a story which has been widely read. This street is referred to by Mrs. Ward as "Angel Alley."

A short distance down on the left of the street is the Gloucester Fisherman's Institute, where the Gloucester fishermen are furnished with comfort and wholesome social life while in port. Just step out of your motor or carriage and meet Chaplain Parsons who will cheerfully show you about the place.

Next week in the BREEZE, this drive will be continued through one of the finest sections of Cape Ann.

The fireplace in the library is the original one in the old house.

Commodious chambers are on the second floor. Here also are seen panelings from the Lee house. The house was begun in November with Philip Richardson of Boston, the architect. White box boarding, old-fashioned green blinds with peculiar hinges, and the great chimney rising from the center of the house mark the exterior. The small window panes are also an attractive feature.

Perhaps a word in regard to Mr. McKean's pet hobby may not be out of place. This beautiful new house is on Willow Tree Poultry Farm, where Mr. McKean raises fancy white leghorns and Rhode Island Reds. His farm is a model plant and is known far and wide as the last word in poultrydom. An interesting record of these fancy chicks shows how many medals they have won for Mr. McKean. They ought to be all blue ribbon chicks, considering the care bestowed upon them from the time they are in the egg until they are ready to be sent to a show. Mrs. McKean is as interested in the welfare of the chicks as Mr. McKean is.

The Everlasting Humor of the North Shore Native in the Hands of a New Interpreter

RALPH HENRY BARBOUR

(Reprinted from Boston Evening Transcript, of July 15, 1916)

I SUPPOSE the old kind of New England wit and humor is dying out. Nowadays, in our town, when some of us get together on the porch of the Harbor House 'long toward five or half-past, and put our feet on the railing and our pipes in our mouths, about all the good stories that are told are old ones. If there's a new one it's dollars to doughnuts someone heard it up in the city at a vaudeville show; and somehow that style of humor doesn't suit us old stagers; sounds too—well, too machine-made. Seems as if modern inventions were dulling wits, doesn't it? Nowadays when the young fellows want a joke they go to the theatre or buy a funny paper. In the old days we didn't go to the theatres much and there weren't any funny papers; or, if there were, they didn't get to Old Neck. Our humor had to be home-made, most of it, and, like home-made things generally, it lasted! A lot of the jokes and stories we used to laugh over forty years ago are still doing service here, and blamed if they don't still get a laugh out of me quicker than the Smart-Aleck things we hear nowadays.

A Paradox—Gossip and Clams

We had some great characters in our town, though I don't suppose they were any brighter or quick-witteder than those in other New England villages. Still, we like to think they were. There was Jim Epps. Jim lived across the harbor on Hunter's Spit and dug clams. Most any day you'd see Jim ambling through the streets with his blue barrow shouting his wares: "Cla-ams! Cla-ams! Who wants a nice mess o' clams?" Our town wasn't very big then and a four-year-old boy could have walked through it in two hours, but Jim made a full day's job of it, mostly because he served about ten pecks of gossip with every peck of clams. Jim drank, however, and so there were days—not more than two a week, though—when he didn't appear. One time Jim's supply of liquor must have run out sooner than usual, for Jim appeared with his barrow and started on his route with wavering steps. He didn't stop anywhere, though. He kept right on going. And as he staggered along he proclaimed loudly: "Epps is too drunk to be over today, Epps is!"

Hasty Tour of the West

But that was unintentional humor. To show that Jim could produce the other kind let me tell you about when Kimball Billings went West. Going West in those days was something of a feat, for the West was popularly believed to be a howling wilderness of Indians, rattlers and wolves, with an occasional gold mine. Kimball had tried most every sort of thing at home and hadn't made good, and one day he announced that he was going West to dig gold. Kimball was the sort of man who can fail at everything and still make you believe in him, and so when he said he was going to make his fortune in the gold mines of Oregon we didn't doubt it. We didn't expect to see Kimball again for years and years, but we were pretty certain that when he did return it would be in his private car and that his pockets would be fat with money.

About everyone in town saw him off and wished him luck, and the young and adventurous ones made him promise to write right back and tell them as soon as he struck it rich.

Well, Kimball came back in just two weeks to a day. And there wasn't any private car and Kimball's pockets were as flat as a pancake. I think he got as far as Chicago. Anyhow, he said he didn't approve of the West, and after that the West took an awful slump in our estimation. Kimball went back to working for Stacey in his livery stable for six dollars a week. Between whiles he'd tell of his adventures, and they grew with every telling, too.

We were quite proud of Kimball. It was something to have a citizen who had travelled as he had. Well, one day Kimball met Jim Epps on Middle street, opposite the engine house. Jim was sober that day, or nearly sober. Kimball thought he'd have a joke with Jim, and so he said:

"Jim, did you see that flight o' clams go over a while back?"

Jim put down his barrow and nodded. "Yep," he answered, "they're going to Oregon, Kim. They'll be back in a fortnit. Cla-ams!"

The Half-Wit

Like most every town we had our half-witted humorist. His name was Jones Tuttle. Jones was about fifty years old, but had never really grown up; he never got to looking much past twenty-four or five up to the time he died. Jones lived at the edge of the village in a shanty he'd built himself. The boys used to like to go there of an evening and plague him. Finally Jones fixed a bar across the inside of the door and when the young fellows came and demanded to be let in Jones would put the bar up and get into bed. If they persisted too long in howling and banging at the door Jones would put his head out from under the bed-clothes and squeak:

"I ain't home, boys! Honest, I ain't home!"

One day Jones was cutting wood for Mrs. Watson, the widow, who lived about fifty yards from Andrews' mill. When there was a fire the engineer at the mill would throw a rope, tied at each end to a brick, over the whistle cord and let it hang there until all the steam was shrieked out of the boiler. By that time the fire was usually either under control or the house had burned down. This day the whistle across the street began to bellow and the Widow Watson came to her back door.

"Jones," she said, "do you know where the fire is?"

"No'm," replied Jones as he swung the ax up and down, "but I cal'late it's pretty nigh, the whistle's so loud."

A One-Track Mind

Jones was a great chap for reading. He'd read anything he could find that had printing on it. In those days not many papers came to town and what did come were handed around from house to house. In that way Jones used to get hold of a weekly paper pretty regularly. And he made it last until the next one came. He wasn't a rapid reader; had to spell out all the big words and most of the little ones; but he knew more about what was in the paper than anyone else in the village. He used to start right at the top of the left-hand column and read to the bottom, advertisements and everything else, and then go up to the top of the second column and read right through to the bottom of that, and so on to the last word on the last page. It didn't make any

MID-SUMMER engagements are becoming interesting for the North Shore. Last week the engagement of Miss Juliet Higginson to Frederic S. Goodwin was the topic of the week. This week Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas of Pride's Crossing have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Thomas, to William Tudor Gardiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner (Alice Bangs) of Boston. The wedding will take place sometime in September at "Netherfield," the Pride's Crossing home of the Thomases. Miss Thomas is the sister of Mrs. Samuel D. Warren (Helen Thomas). She is a member of the Chilton and Vincent clubs in Boston and of the Colony club in New York and is prominent in Red Cross and settlement work. Mr. Gardiner, Harvard '14, is a brother of R. H. Gardiner, Jr., and his sisters are Mrs. Livingston Davis of Pride's Crossing and Mrs. Roger F. Draper.

North Shore people will be out in large numbers tonight (Friday) for the supper-dance at the Essex County club, Manchester. It is the first of the season and it will be the smartest function of the kind this summer. Dinner will be served at 7.30. Among those who have engaged tables are Mrs. A. E. Little, Mrs. Harry L. Ayer, Mrs. Charles D. Sias, Mr. Dill, Mrs. Robert E. Livingston, W. H. Holbrook, John E. Lancaster, A. F. Goodwin, Mrs. J. F. Curtis, Mrs. Harahan, Dr. Hammer, Mrs. John N. Stevens, W. J. Chalmers, Mrs. E. R. Campbell. Dancing will be from 9.30 to 1. Supper will be served at 11 o'clock. Among those who have engaged tables for the supper are W. H. Holbrook, John G. Groves, C. P. Searle, Mrs. Isaac Mann, Mrs. Harahan, Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. Lester Leland, Miss Julia Meyer, Mrs. B. A. Beal, Mrs. Q. A. Shaw, 2d, Mrs. C. M. Amory, Mrs. H. L. Ayer, W. D. Denègre, Amory Eliot, John Wright, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, Mrs. C. D. Sias, Mrs. S. A. Culbertson, Mrs. C. F. Ayer, George A. Dill, Mrs. J. F. Curtis. Indications point to the affair as being the largest and most successful of years.

THE North Shore branch of the Surgical Dressings committee of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Brookline is having its fifth meeting this morning in the Masconomo Casino. Not much has been said of this branch in Manchester, which is in charge of Mrs. Phillip Dexter, but the work has been going on for the past month by summer residents who worked in it during the winter in Boston. From 26 to 40 are present each Friday, many of these also doing Red Cross and French wounded work on other days. This work is for the Allies, and Mrs. Dexter cordially invites any one desiring to assist to join in the work.

Dr. William L. Richardson of 225 Commonwealth ave., Boston, is at Manchester for his annual visit at "Stone Lea," the summer home of Miss Mary F. Bartlett.

Miss Frances Starr is spending ten days on the North Shore, a guest at "Graftonwood," the home of the J. H. Lancashires at Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Cutler and children of Charles River will come to Pride's Crossing, Aug. 14, and spend one month in the beautiful home of Mrs. Cutler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, who are at Bar Harbor for a month.

Mrs. John C. Phillips of Moraine Farm, North Beverly, has Miss Marsh of Boston as her house-guest.

Mrs. Howard Cushing of New York, who has spent six weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cochrane of Pride's Crossing, is now in Newport. She will return to the North Shore in September. The Cochranes have their two little grandchildren, Mary and Alexander, with them now. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Cochrane of Milton.

Mrs. Henry G. Nichols and daughter, Miss Elsie Nichols of Boston, and another daughter, Mrs. Giltin Ervin of Philadelphia, will spend August in the little cottage on Mrs. Robert de Wolfe Sampson's place at Manchester Cove.

Rev. James-DeNormandie, D.D., of the First Religious society (Unitarian), Roxbury, will preach Sunday at 10.45 at the Union Chapel, Magnolia.

Rev. Charles E. Park of First church, Boston, will preach Sunday, August 6, at the First Unitarian church, Masconomo st., Manchester-by-the-Sea, at eleven o'clock. Communion after the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Hutchins of Dedham have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt Amory of Pride's Crossing.

Miss Katharine Dorr, who has spent July at the Garland Camp School of Citizenship at Billerica, will spend August at her home on Smith's Point, Manchester. She is the daughter of Joseph Dorr. In September she will accompany Miss Frances Lippitt, daughter of Senator H. F. Lippitt of Beverly Farms, to Paris, where they will do special work for the blind soldiers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Withers of Philadelphia, Miss Jessie Norman and Mrs. Ramsey Furness of St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. J. B. Kirkman, Mrs. Charles A. Leale and two daughters of New York, James A. Preston of St. Louis and Mrs. H. M. Ennis of Philadelphia are recent arrivals at the Masconomo House, Manchester.

To the Editor of the North Shore Breeze:

At this time when our admiration and gratitude are directed toward France in supreme measure I feel that there must be more Americans even than usual anxious to study the language and literature of this wonderful people. Madame B. J. Romero, now living at Juniper Point in Salem, is admirably fitted, as I know from the experience of many years, to teach, not only beginners, but those who want really to read French with an understanding heart. Madame Romero is also an excellent Spanish scholar.

I should be glad to recommend her most highly to anyone.

MRS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND is endeavoring to form a chapter of the Woman's American Supply League upon the North Shore. Upon a recent trip to New York she attended the opening of the work rooms of the order of which she is the president. The enterprise is uppermost with Mrs. Hammond at this time and she reports with enthusiasm the progress made in New York and elsewhere. The Polyclinic hospital gave the league ambulances, nurses and doctors for their use in the city or anywhere needed. From the city and from regiments and individuals came many forms of donations for the opening. This league or "Woman's Militia of Mercy" as it is sometimes called will share in the proceeds of next week's entertainment of "The Stampede" which will take place at Sheepshead Bay Speedway, in which New York society will aid relief work for the soldiers' families. Mrs. Hammond will be at the entertainment next Monday. She is planning to enlist the women of the country in the movement and is receiving the support of many federated clubs. Mrs. Hammond has always been interested in other women and their club work. She is the first vice-president of both the National Council of Women and of the World's Court League, and was the founder of the Women's Clinic. This spring when the Federated Clubs held their convention in New York, Mrs. Hammond was hostess for the city.

The Hammonds have a little "cliff dwelling" perched high upon the rocks overlooking the beautiful Gloucester harbor. From the cosy little place one can look down to the Natalia, the famous little boat of John Hays Hammond, Jr., whose laboratory is close by. In this cliff house is a very large round table at which Mr. Hammond is fond of writing and at which he usually does his summer's work. The little place is reached by a rocky pathway leading past pools of water falling in a most realistic way from high up among the rocks. In these half dozen or more pools on the rocky hillside are pretty water lilies, all forming an ideal water garden. Water basins and lilies seem to predominate on the beautiful grounds, adding much to the charm of the rocky, woodsy place known as "Lookout Hill," Gloucester.

House-guests at "Lookout Hill" for August are Miss Marion Cleveland, daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. Preston (Mrs. Grover Cleveland) of New York, and Miss Mary Hoyle, a niece from Washington.

Mrs. L. D. Hammond, Chicago; Albert D. Trenor, Mrs. E. C. Johnson, New York; Miss Louisa Roper, Kingston, Ga.; J. Harriman, Jr., Newport; Mrs. E. N. Lyman, Wilbraham; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Foster, Washington; Mrs. V. E. Pennoyer and sons, Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. U.-C. Hatch and children of Cleveland, are among season guests at Brookbank Inn, Gloucester.

THE HUNTING SET started their season Tuesday evening, when the first pony drag was held, starting from the George S. Mandells at "The Four Corners." Miss Emma Mandell is master of the hounds and her whip is Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Jr., (Hilda Rice) of Topsfield. The hounds used for the pony drags belong to the Mandells and are trained for the purpose, while those of the Myopia club are the fox hounds. The club extends the courtesy for the drags through its master, James W. Appleton. Never did the hounds follow the anise trail any better than on Tuesday, when the merry group of riders started at 5.30 and made a run of about five miles. The layer-out of the trails, James E. Dodge of Hamilton, rode on his horse, Baldy, formerly belonging to Mrs. Charles G. Rice. Following the trail, which led through the Mandell, Frick and Hugo Johnstone places, were James H. Proctor, Miss Polly Proctor, Miss Julia Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burrage, Jr., Miss Anna Agassiz, Childs Frick, Thomas W. Peirce, Mrs. George Burroughs, Charles F. Ayer, Mrs. C. G. Rice, Neil Rice, Miss Mary Curtis of Pride's Crossing and others from Beverly Farms. Missed from the riders this year were Tom Proctor, who does not return from the Plattsburg camp until Sunday, and Sam Mandell, the former whip, who is away at Buffalo in the interests of aviation. The start was enjoyed by an interested gallery of friends from along the Shore.

Much entertaining throughout this inland region has been in progress the past week. At the Myopia the pretty little clubhouse has had notable parties. Mrs. Paul Moore gave a tea on Sunday for eighteen; Lester Leland gave a luncheon on Saturday for seven; Miss Eleonora Sears entertained eight on Sunday night, among whom was Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the famous tennis player. Other parties were I. R. Thomas, five luncheon guests on Sunday; Thomas G. Frothingham, ten; Mrs. J. B. Moulton, six, and Reginald de Koven, five. Among others who have been entertaining in their homes and were of the entertained are Miss Mandell and her house-guests, Gordon Prince, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Tom Peirce of Topsfield, Neil and T. E. P. Rice, Robert Reece, Miss Julia Appleton, Richard Mortimer, Arthur Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burrage, Jr., and Miss Anna Agassiz.

In the hunts this year will be Miss Elizabeth Thomas, whose engagement to Van Duzer Burton of New York was recently announced. Isaac R. Thomas will also be of the hunters. Strings of horses have been brought to the club this week by Mr. Waller and Mr. Street of Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Leon and Miss Lena Harraden of Boston are occupying a cottage on Nashua avenue, Annisquam, for several weeks.

MRS. JAMES McMILLAN of "Eaglehead," Manchester, will have her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. McMillan of Detroit, with her for their usual August visit. They will arrive in Manchester next Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph F. Tucker and children of Manchester returned Monday from a visit at Lake Sunapee, N. H., with Mrs. Tucker's parents, Col. and Mrs. E. M. House, who spent last summer in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Culbertson of Manchester will have their elder son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Culbertson of Louisville, Ky., with them from Aug. 19th on till the end of the season.

"Boulderwood" at Manchester, is guarded by two of the handsomest "puppies" of mammoth size that perhaps are to be found in Manchester. These Scotch deer hounds, are interesting objects on the terraces, and although so tall and wild looking, are really friendly, gentle creatures which belong to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Dexter.

Dr. and Mrs. Z. Boylston Adams of Manchester left for New York on Tuesday for a week's visit. Mrs. Adams' aunt, Miss Lucy Brigham, of Clinton, will spend the last two weeks of August at the Adams cottage.

Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Campbell of Blossom Lane, Manchester, have Mlle. Cossini of New York with them for the summer. This week Arthur Bishop of Flint, Mich., has been their guest.

The Rev. Mr. Burleson, educational secretary of the Board of Missions, will take the service at Emmanuel Church, Masconomo street, Manchester, Sunday. Celebration of the Holy Communion and sermon at half-past ten o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Warren of Blossom Lane, Manchester, have returned from a two weeks' trip by auto to Islesboro, Me., and the Berkshires. Their beautiful place "Singingdune" has one of the finest displays of roses in Manchester. Roses are over the barn, over a long arbor near the big tennis court, and the rose garden wall is weighted with the heavy clusters of ramblers. The garden was four years in the making, and is unique in the large grass space in the center with its white seats and sun-dial, all of which is walled in with the roses climbing over lattice work. Blossom Lane fittingly seems to end at this rose garden.

THE NORTH SHORE GRILL CLUB was the scene of much brilliancy last Saturday evening when a large number of the North Shore summer residents came in for a bit to eat and to enjoy the dancing. A number of reservations had been made, but tables were filled all too soon. The management set up tables in every available space to accommodate the guests. Dancing was the favorite attraction, many couples dancing upon the veranda of the clubhouse. The music, as usual, was very good with all the syncopation necessary to stir the dancers to action. Noted among those who entertained were Mrs. Alice Moore Richard, who entertained a party of six; G. A. Ridgeway, a party of ten; Mrs. T. F. Curtis, a party of twelve; Fred Rhodes, a party of nine; Mr. Williamson, five; Eben Freeman, a party of three; Mrs. John Lancaster, eight; Mr. Curtin, four; H. F. Warner, four; Strafford Riggs, two; Mr. Densmore, nine, and R. L. Steinert, twelve.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. MacArthur of Lexington avenue, Magnolia, are entertaining as their house-guests Mrs. Nicholas de Teresa of Chicago, Mrs. Joel C. Moore of New York and Mrs. Charles Cox of New York. Mr. and Mrs. MacArthur are expecting the arrival, in the very near future, of Dr. and Mrs. Foster Kennedy of New York. Dr. Kennedy is a distinguished member of the medical fraternity of the metropolis.

"ITALIAN MUSIC," the subject of Miss Virginia Wainwright's musicale at Mrs. George Lee's on Monday afternoon, had a peculiarly fitting environment in "Villa al mare," the beautiful Italian villa of the Lees at Beverly Farms. Miss Wainwright gave an interesting talk on Italian opera, telling much of its origin and of the origin of some of the Italian musical instruments. She was dressed in pink chiffon and wore a cerise hat. Her talk was illustrated by Miss Frieda Gerhard, the pianist. Miss Gerhard wore lavender and a large white hat. Mrs. Lee was dressed in white and purple chiffon. Miss Florence Lee, who distributed the programs, wore an attractive flesh-colored chiffon with blue and white bead trimming. One of the numbers, "L'heure Exquise," by Celani, had been dedicated to Mrs. Lee.

Miss Wainwright gives these musicales each year on the North Shore in the various resorts, where she has a host of admirers. Her patronesses at Mrs. Lee's included Mmes. L. M. Sargent, Oliver Ames, H. F. Sears, S. P. Blake, W. L. Putnam, Charles Dalton, W. S. Fitz, Alex. Cochrane, Bayard Warren, Franklin Dexter, F. E. Peabody, Philip Dexter, F. E. Dixon, W. H. Moore, W. H. Appleton, J. F. Woods, W. H. Johnson, Marshall Field, J. G. Beals, D. L. Pickman, G. L. Cabot, J. L. Saltonstall, H. J. Coolidge, R. H. Fitz, J. D. Phillips, E. P. Gavit, G. G. Whitney, T. K. Lothrop, Marshall Fabian, L. D. Ahl, John Markle, J. H. Proctor, A. P. Wichfeld, H. C. Perkins, George Burroughs, H. P. King, R. McM. Colfelt, R. de W. Sampson, Mrs. Baroll and the Misses Loring, Marian Blake, Sarah L. Guild, Susan C. Amory, Gertrude White, Harriet Dexter, Amy Peabody and Elizabeth W. Perkins. Miss Perkins brought her guest, Miss Townsend.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lee of Beverly Farms gave a dinner of eighteen covers Monday night at their home in honor of their house-guest, Mrs. T. Handasyd Cabot of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini of Boston and Nahant. Mr. Orlandini is returning to Italy to join the army. Additional friends came in after dinner and dancing was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Umberto M. Coletti (Helen Lancashire) of New York will spend the week-end with the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire of "Graftonwood," Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Eugene Dixon (Eleanor Elkins Widener) of Elkins Park, Pa., have Dr. and Mrs. Edward Bell Krumbhaer (Helen T. Dixon) of Chestnut Hill, Pa., with them for the summer at Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Krumbhaer is Mr. Dixon's sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster of Boston are among the new families in Manchester this season. Formerly they have spent summers along the Shore, but the past few seasons have been spent on the South Shore. Their daughter, Miss Mabel Webster, has returned this week from a visit at North Hadley.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison K. Caner of Dana's Beach, Manchester, will entertain Miss S. Uytendale Baird, the fiancée of their son, Harrison K. Caner, Jr. She will come to Manchester about August 15, when Mr. Caner is here on his vacation. Miss Baird is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Baird of Philadelphia and was presented last winter.

Puritan Tea house at Montserrat has had among its guests Mrs. C. D. Keyes of E. Saugus, six; Mrs. F. B. Wheeler of Boston, three; Mrs. J. C. B. Smith of Salem, four; Homestead Golf club, a supper of thirteen. Supper parties have been numerous lately.

MRS. T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, JR., of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, opened her home for a sale by the Boston Society of Decorative Art last Thursday and Friday. The sale was held in the beautiful loggia and among the workers were Miss Frances Sturgis, Mrs. Boylston A. Beal, Mrs. Langdon Warner and Mrs. Roger Warner. Others interested were Mrs. E. R. Warren, Mrs. Henry Vaughn, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Henry Bigelow, president, and Boylston Beal, treasurer. The work was beautiful and unique and showed old racial stitches and designs made by the Italian, Armenian, Syrian and Greek women. It represented supplies made in the Boston workrooms, ordered work done at the homes, work sent in by women from various places, and handicrafts from the Denison House in Boston. The latter were in charge of Miss Miner and Miss Lane. Some heavy purchasing was indulged in by Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. William B. Walker, Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell, Mrs. Walter Mitchell, Mrs. William Loring, Mrs. Coolidge and many others. The Denison House is this week opening a shop in Wenham in the house formerly occupied by the tea house. All of the old embroideries and other work made by the foreign women at this settlement house may be seen. It will be open until October 1. Mrs. J. R. Goldthwait of Marblehead is chairman of the Folk Handicrafts Council.

A new and delightfully attractive store that is winning instant and wide recognition among North Shore shoppers in Salem is the Ivy Corset Shop. The refinement of its surroundings is mirrored in the charming personality of its proprietor, Mrs. Albert H. Spence. Needless to say, the goods are high class and represent the latest ideas.

The August sale of fine footwear for men, women and children is now under way at the Temple place store of Jones, Peterson and Newhall Co. of Boston. The sale is meeting with unusual success, due to the number of people who are taking advantage of the reduced prices of summer goods at a time when leather is soaring in price. Only two sales are held during the course of a year by this well known firm, one in mid-winter and the customary August sale. In view of the leather scarcity and high prices incident thereto the action of the Jones, Peterson and Newhall Co. in carrying on the usual sale spells opportunity to buyers of footwear. Many North Shore people are taking advantage of the fine weather to motor to Boston during the progress of the sale to shop at this most opportune period.

WORDS are inadequate to express the beauties of the necklace and pendant which I saw yesterday at Dreicer's shop at Magnolia. It was of diamonds and pearls with a drop of Old Chinese jade, dating back to the Sixteenth Century in its cutting. The pendant was joined to the chain by bands of platinum in which were set sapphires.

Then I was introduced to the very latest thing in neck velvets, whose ends lose themselves in the ornaments, in several designs set with diamonds, which act as clasps also, as well as making the pretty fashion of throat velvets bewitching by the unbroken line.

I just revelled in the pearl necklaces and earrings. They are wonderful as to matching and color. Dreicer's pearls express the richness for which their jewels are famous.

As to wrist watches, well, you just can't be smart and be without one! Dreicer's watches are beautiful, with a complete selection of all shapes. The latest oblongs, ovals, octagons are here, set with diamonds and onyx, all with sapphires in stem, and all on black ribbons.

AT the Bridge tournament to be held at Mrs. Robert S. Bradley's, Pride's Crossing, on Friday afternoon, September 1, for the benefit of the Children's Island Sanitarium there will be a sale of articles made by the children. Last year the sale was held at different street corners through Marblehead and Swampscott, each booth hoping to bring in the largest returns. The customers were the good natured motorists who were glad to help the eager children dispose of the articles they had made. A fairly good sum was taken this year to help the cause and increase the total, in addition to the children's articles.

Bridge tables suitable for summer houses, for the nursery and a light weight folding table covered with linen to carry in an automobile will be for sale.

Tea will be served at 4.30 to which all are welcome. Those not taking part in the tournament are cordially invited to come in to the tea. The patronesses are Mmes. Louis Bacon, Thomas P. Beal, F. B. Crowninshield, Robert D. Evans, W. Scott Fitz, Charles G. Mixter, Thomas Motley, Jr., Dudley L. Pickman, James E. Proctor, John L. Saltonstall, Harrison Tweed and Edwin S. Webster.

An interesting article telling of the children's life at the sanitarium during the summer may be found in the BREEZE of July 28.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL MAGNOLIA

Mr. and Mrs. Elias M. Johnson of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., who are spending the month of August at the Oceanside entertained a party of seven at dinner at the hotel on Thursday evening. The table was beautifully decorated with carnations and sweet peas forming a centerpiece with greenery. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Costello C. Converse of Magnolia, Mrs. Emery Lyon of Providence, mother of Mrs. Johnson and Miss Shoens of Providence.

Mrs. John Davidson and son, Newcomb Davidson, of Elizabeth, N. J., recently arrived at the Oceanside for the month of August.

Miss Dorothy Stetson of Boston came on Wednesday and will spend the month of August with her grandmother Mrs. M. B. Conway, who is a season guest at the Oceanside.

Notable arrivals at the Oceanside for the August days are Mrs. G. S. Orme with daughters, the Misses May, Abby and Isabel, from their Louisiana home at New Orleans. The Ormes have been coming to the Oceanside each summer for several years and are warmly welcomed by their many friends at Magnolia. The daughters are very attractive and popular and are a pleasing addition to the younger set. Mr. D. Markle of Hazelton, Pa., accompanied the Ormes on their trip north and will spend a few weeks at the hotel.

A motor party made up of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Scott and Miss I. B. Hassack of Pasadena and J. W. Scott of Cleveland spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. McIntosh of Cleveland spent the week-end with Mr. McIntosh's brother, H. P. McIntosh, who is a season guest.

Mrs. J. M. Mitchell, a season guest at the Oceanside, is entertaining Kate M. Vorhees of Cincinnati for a few weeks' stay.

Mrs. C. D. Callery and maid of Pittsburg arrived at the Oceanside on Wednesday to spend the month of August, joining her son, who came to Magnolia on Monday.

A VERY industrious and sincere worker at the Surgical Dressings meetings at Magnolia is Miss Mary E. Kimball of 483 Beacon street, Boston, who is a season guest at the Oceanside. Miss Kimball is in attendance at nearly all of the meetings and works with great earnestness. Because of her constant application to the work she has become very proficient in the making of the dressings, which must be done with the greatest accuracy, requiring no little patience.

Another diligent and forceful worker is Miss Emily L. Battles of Columbia road, Washington, a season guest also at the Oceanside. Miss Battles attends nearly all of the dressings meetings and takes a great amount of interest in the work. She has a very sweet personality, which makes itself understood among the workers, and her judgment is often sought after by the other ladies when a question of proficiency is needed.

Mrs. W. A. Bond and daughter, Miss Gladys, of St. Louis are notable arrivals at the Oceanside, to remain until the close of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sheble, Jr., of Rydal, Pa., compose a motor party which spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Mrs. Arthur W. Kennard, who is spending the summer at Cazenovia, N. Y., as usual, is at the Oceanside for a short stay, with her husband.

Mr. James H. Mairs of New York is at the Oceanside for a few days' visit with his sister, Mrs. C. S. Carscallen, who, with her son, John, are season guests at the hotel.

Charles Dupee of New York has come to the Oceanside to join his wife for a few days' visit.

MISS DONNA EASLEY, the young New York artist, who will sing at the concert at the Oceanside, Magnolia, on Sunday evening is a very talented young lady who has appeared to great advantage at many musicales in New York. Her ability is very well expressed by a few of the New York newspapers. "A singer of charm and magnetism who has a sweet fresh voice, who sings with taste and discretion, yet with feeling."—New York Tribune. "A voice of charming quality and a sensitive feeling for atmosphere and style."—New York Sun. "Temperamental, spontaneous, some of her work hauntingly lovely."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Miss Easley is a personal friend of Mrs. Edward Frothingham Wyman, who is a guest at the Oceanside, and whose guest Miss Easley will be during her stay at Magnolia.

Mrs. Lee McMillan of New Orleans, a season guest at the Oceanside entertained at a sewing party given in the Sun Parlor at the hotel on Friday afternoon. The parlor was a bower of beauty decorated with a profusion of pink sweet peas and pink rambler roses. Afternoon tea was served.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Orme of New Orleans are recent arrivals at the hotel, planning to remain through August. They will be later joined by their three daughters, who are members of a girls' camp in Maine.

Mrs. Chas. J. Edwards of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. W. K. Hill of Portsmouth, Miss Natalie Side of Park Hill, N. Y., and Mrs. L. A. Vosburg of New York comprised a motor party which came to the Oceanside on Friday for a few days visit, en route for the northern coast of Maine.

Mrs. L. L. Tinker and maid of Augusta, Ga., arrived at the Oceanside on Friday to visit Mrs. Landon Thomas of Augusta, who with her two lovely daughters, the Misses Ellen and Emily, are August guests at the Oceanside.

Friday evening a motor party, consisting of a number of the young people at the Oceanside, motored over to Bass Rocks to attend the band concert at the Moorland Hotel and enjoy the dance in the Casino afterward. Among the group were Miss Georgie Solari, Miss Isabella Wadsworth, Miss Ruth McLean, Winthrop Lockwood and Jack Stevens.

MISS DONNA EASLEY, OF NEW YORK
Who will sing at the Oceanside Hotel, Sunday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bryan of Peoria, Ill., are recent arrivals at the Oceanside and are occupying apartments in the Annex for a three weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Johnson with daughters, Hope and Jane, and son, Emory L., of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., are making a visit to the Oceanside of two weeks' duration. Mr. Johnson is one of the high officials in the Standard Oil Co. of New York.

Miss C. H. Bovey and Mrs. Thomas S. Perkins, both of Minneapolis, who spent the early part of July at the Oceanside leaving for a trip by motor through the mountains, have returned to the hotel and will remain through August. They are domiciled in Perkins cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Scandrette and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. B. Johnson, all of Toronto, are recent arrivals and have taken rooms in the Annex for a three weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Morgan of Philadelphia, who are season guests at the Oceanside returned Saturday from a motor trip of a week through the White Mountains.

Dr. and Mrs. David Magie and son James of Princeton, N. J., motored to Magnolia and spent the week-end, leaving on Monday for a trip through the White Mountains and a visit to the Waumbek. They will return next season to Magnolia having made reservations. This was their first visit here.

Mrs. Fred Rhodes entertained a number of her friends at luncheon at the Oceanside on Thursday week. The table was elaborately decorated with a profusion of pink sweet peas and rambler roses of the same color tones. Covers were laid for nine. After luncheon the ladies departed for Highland cottage and enjoyed bridge. Among the guests were Mrs. D. B. Hussey, Mrs. E. H. Brainard, Mrs. W. S. Chick, Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, Mrs. George Nowett, Mrs. Lord, Mrs. George E. Willett and Mrs. Converse Gray.

A number of the young people at the Oceanside accompanied by chaperons motored to Longwood last Thursday to witness the tennis which was in progress there. The party consisted of Mrs. Lily Middleton, Mrs. A. D. Cook, Frances and Adelaide Brainard, Helen Middleton, Chester Lockwood, Bob Lancaster, and Jack Lancaster. The party returned to Magnolia late in the afternoon, after a very pleasant day.

THE distinction of the Thursday evening hop, a week ago, was the number of the younger children who danced and had a perfectly wonderful time frolicking to the time of the music, and showing their perfect mastery of the new steps, vying with their grown-up sisters and brothers as well as their parents in the intricacies of the dance.

Cards seem to have come to their own at the hotel, for the foyer on Thursday evening was devoted quite largely to card parties of one table or more. One table was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. S. Prentiss and Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey of St. Louis. Mrs. Hussey was gowned in an exquisite creation of black chiffon over black taffeta with sequins. Mrs. Prentiss' gown was a beautiful black tulle with black lace.

Mrs. Lee McMillan was seen at another table in a beautiful gown of black tulle over white taffeta with crystals and net.

Mrs. Carrie L. Potts played at the same table, wearing a creation of white lace and taffeta.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodworth, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodworth, Jr., of Rochester, N. Y., arrived on Tuesday at the Oceanside, where they will be domiciled for a few weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Giroux and daughter, Miss Lillian, and son, L. M. Giroux, of New York, motored to Magnolia on Monday, where they spent a few days before leaving for a trip through Maine and New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Muller of Baltimore are guests of the Oceanside for the month of August.

MISS HELEN L. COATES of Philadelphia, who is spending the summer at the Oceanside, entertained a few of her friends at a garden tea party in the pretty tea gardens at the North Shore Grill on Tuesday afternoon. The gardens were beautifully decorated with Japanese varicolored umbrellas, which made the scene very pretty. The tea table was arranged with a huge mound of greenery and cerise rambler roses forming the centerpiece. Miss Coates poured and was gowned in an exquisite afternoon dress of white lace and hat of white lace wreathed with white blossoms. Covers were laid for twelve. The setting amid the fine trees and hedges was truly ideal and the beautiful gowns of the ladies enhanced the picture.

Mrs. Wilshire Edward of San Francisco, with son and governess and sister, Miss Anna Wilshire of Pasadena, are at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay. Mrs. Edward's and Miss Wilshire's mother, Mrs. L. E. Miller, has been a guest at the hotel through July and will remain until the termination of her daughter's visit.

Mrs. Alice W. Chambers of New York is a recent arrival at the Oceanside for the month of August.

A motor party from Torrington, Conn., which was made up of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Chapin and W. W. Bierie, spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bandler of New York, en route to their summer home at Bar Harbor in their motor, stopped at Magnolia and spent Monday and Tuesday at the Oceanside.

Mrs. R. R. Appleton and daughter, Miss Louise, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are at the Oceanside for a few weeks.

Mrs. David L. Bartlett of Baltimore, with maid and chauffeur, is a recent arrival for the month of August. This is Mrs. Bartlett's first visit to Magnolia, and she is quite charmed with its attractions.

Miss Margaret E. Haass of Chicago has recently joined her mother, Mrs. C. A. Haass, who is a season guest. Miss Haass will remain for a short stay.

Mrs. George A. Dobyne entertained Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Brown of Boston over the week-end.

Mrs. Dorothy Potter had for a guest over the week-end, Benjamin C. Tower of Dover.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Vail of Rochester, N. Y., are domiciled in Highland cottage for a two weeks' stay.

Roger R. Hill of New York has lately arrived at the Oceanside for the remainder of the season. Mr. Hill is a yearly guest and is a very popular young man in all of the social doings at the hotel. His arrival is pleasant news.

Everett Bradley of Haverhill was a week-end guest of the Charles Wadsworths.

Mrs. Edward M. Johnson and maid and Master L. P. Johnson of Cincinnati are recently arrived for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Torst of Cincinnati are registered at the Oceanside for the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Barton, Jr., of Philadelphia have returned to the Oceanside for the month of August.

Rhodes Robertson of Cambridge was a guest over the week-end of A. W. Kennard.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wardell accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Lowe and Miss Lowe, all from Detroit, motored to Magnolia from Watch Hill on Wednesday and will spend a few days at the Oceanside.

Mrs. Francis Dercum of Philadelphia with her two pretty daughters, Elizabeth and Mary, are recent arrivals at the hotel for the month of August.

William Cary Sanger of Sangerfield, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Miss Sanger, who is a season guest at the hotel.

TUESDAY EVENING'S HOP at the Oceanside, Magnolia, was very pretty and quite informal, because,—well, Tuesday evening always suggests a good time, but doesn't always mean putting on one's latest and best frock, because Saturday night's dance is coming and then it will be very gala—and the beaux will be down for the week-end, and that counts a whole lot.

Miss Theodora Willard and Miss Janet Bryan have just the best time when they dance together, which was in several numbers Tuesday night. Miss Theodora leads very well and shows her athletic bearing when she dances. Both girls looked very pretty in dainty frocks. Miss Willard wore a shell pink frock of a shimmering material with white lace hat bedecked with a wreath of shell pink ostrich tips, while Miss Bryan was very dainty in a delicate blue organdie, very fluffy and airy.

Little Margaret Mitchell, daughter of Mrs. J. M. Mitchell, who is occupying apartments at Centre cottage, met with a painful accident on Monday afternoon. While playing on the rocks on the shore she fell and broke her arm. She is resting comfortably and her speedy recovery is hoped for.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Johnson danced quite a bit together and seemed to enjoy their frivolity. Mrs. Johnson wore an exquisite gown of black net and lace with bandings of jet which so enhanced her wonderfully pretty white hair.

Mrs. G. L. Cronkrite of Memphis, a very pretty and dainty little Southern lady, was very attractive Tuesday evening in an embroidered ecru crepe frock, which was very much flounced over pink taffeta, with touches of black velvet ribbons.

Mrs. J. Arthur Hull wore an exquisite gown of daybreak yellow tulle over same tone taffeta with tulle ties at shoulders and corsage of pink blossoms.

Mrs. Byron Hobart of Memphis, Tenn., is a notable arrival at the Oceanside for the month of August.

Mrs. John Davidson of Elizabeth, N. J., is recently arrived for a few weeks' visit at the Oceanside, renewing friendships.

Notable arrivals at the Oceanside are Mrs. J. O. Davis, accompanied by Miss Ann Sessions and maid of New York City. They have taken apartments in the Lawton cottage and will remain until the close of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Robbins and Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Boud and daughter, Miss Doris Boud, of Cleveland are guests at the Oceanside for a few days' stay en route for a visit to New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hatfield, Jr., and Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Baldwin of Louisville, Ky., are recent arrivals at the Oceanside, where they will remain for a few weeks' stay.

Among the newly arrived guests are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kittredge of Yonkers, N. Y.

A notable arrival is John B. Callery of Pittsburg, who spends part of each season at the Oceanside, where he is always popular with the younger set. Mr. Callery will be joined very shortly by his mother, Mrs. C. D. Callery, who will remain until the close of the season.

Among the recent arrivals are Mrs. E. D. Harlow of Boston, daughter, Miss Edith, and sons, Arthur and Edward, who are again domiciled at the Oceanside for the month of August. The Harlows have been regular summer guests at the hotel, for a number of years and have a host of friends at Magnolia who are welcoming their return.

Miss Martha Hollister of Grand Rapids, Michigan, has been the guest of Miss Isabella Wadsworth at the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth at Magnolia.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Pitman of Brookline were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Loring at the Oceanside.

Mrs. J. J. Weil of White Plains, N. Y., arrived on Wednesday at the hotel with her lovely daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and son, John Jay, for the month of August. The Weils have been coming to the Oceanside for a number of seasons and are very popular. They are being greeted on every side by their friends who are rejoicing at their return. Mr. Weil will join his family on Friday.

H. P. McIntosh is entertaining his daughter, Mrs. John Sherwin of White Plains and daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. P. McIntosh, Jr., who arrived at the Oceanside on Wednesday.

Mrs. John L. Newman of Albany, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Evelyn, and son, Clarence E., are late arrivals at the Oceanside for the month of August.

Mrs. G. T. Rowland of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., with daughter, Miss Frances, are occupying apartments in the Annex for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Carter of the Oceanside are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. A. Rex Flinn of Pittsburg. Mrs. Flinn was formerly Miss Eleanor Bradley, the daughter of Mrs. Carter and her marriage in Brookline last fall was a notable society event.

Professor A. J. Van Hecke of New York is registered at the Oceanside for August.

AT the Thursday evening hop, a week ago, Mrs. Dorothy Potter was very attractive in a dainty frock the skirt of which was of billowy layers of white tulle and bodice of Copenhagen blue satin with quaint sleeves of white tulle.

Miss Helen Semple was gowned in a creation of king blue taffeta veiled with same tone chiffon.

Miss Elvine Richard was striking in a black gown of georgette crepe with bandings of ermine, which showed to advantage her wonderful golden hair and fair coloring.

"Jimmy" Pollak and his sister, May Pollak, dance very well together, which was favorably commented on by many when they were partners in the one-step. Young Miss Pollak was very dainty in a natural-toned pongee with pink-striped collar and cuffs. Her pretty blonde hair was banded with pink ribbon.

Miss Agnes Ketcham, who is a newcomer at the hotel, is a very attractive girl with fluffy golden hair. Miss Ketcham, at the Thursday evening hop, was gowned in an empire creation of smoke gray chiffon over gray taffeta with a red rose at the bodice.

Miss Gwendolyn Smith, who has lately arrived at the hotel from her summer home, which is one of the show places at Sheffield, Mass., is a very stunning young lady with rich, dark coloring. Miss Smith was very charming Thursday evening in a rich white chiffon taffeta, a Lucile model.

Miss Elizabeth Sabin wore a dainty dancing frock of black tulle with girdle of pale blue satin.

Miss Grace Cable was gowned in a beautiful creation of turquoise chiffon taffeta with Spanish lace and pink rosebuds caught in the drapings of the overskirt.

Mrs. Robert L. DeNormandie of Boston is visiting her mother Mrs. Allerton T. Brown of Boston for a short stay. Mrs. Brown is a season guest at the Oceanside.

Maurice E. Pollak of Cincinnati is a recent arrival at the hotel and has joined the Pollak family in the Underbrush cottage.

SATURDAY EVENING'S HOP at the Oceanside was without doubt the most brilliant of the season, bringing to a close a week of gaiety and one-round of pleasure for the guests. Everyone was in gala attire, the gowns of the ladies outdoing all previous occasions at the hotel. And then, too, there were a number of young naval students from off the U. S. S. Ohio, which is in the harbor at Gloucester, who were invited in for the evening. The "middies" were in dress attire and looked very trig and trim in their uniforms of blue with brass buttons. The music was unusually good, Director Kanrich giving a very well-arranged and well-balanced program. The naval visitors were Midshipmen H. A. Rochester, L. P. Lovetti, E. J. Kidder, H. D. Little and Wisenbecker, who were the guests of Miss Ethel Morse.

A very pretty dancing frock was worn by Miss Dorothy Nicol, which was of sunrise yellow, tulle flounces over golden taffeta with bodice of gold lace.

Miss Adelaide Brainard was very stunning in a rose pink taffeta, the skirt of which was all puffy and quaint.

Mrs. J. L. Phillips was gowned in an exquisite creation of white tulle over white chiffon taffeta with bodice of iridescent sequins, which harmonized beautifully with her glorious golden hair.

Miss Frances Brainard was beautiful in a creation of rainbow pink chiffon taffeta with touches of gold lace in the bodice and quantities of fluffy tulle wound about her shoulders and neck.

An exquisite emerald green tulle empire gown with emerald sequins banding the endless layers of the tulle skirt, and emerald sequins on the bodice was worn by pretty Miss Ruth McLean.

Miss Jean Middleton was daintily gowned in a lovely frock of pale blue chiffon taffeta with silver lace appearing in touches on the bodice.

Miss Sichirich was very attractive in a pink chiffon satin with touches of royal blue chiffon.

Miss Helen Middleton was adorable in a dress of white net the skirt hooped with trimmings of pink rosebuds. A bolero of pink taffeta with touches of tulle and rosebuds made up this quaint frock.

Dainty Ethel Morse was lovely in a dancing frock of shell pink chiffon over taffeta, with gold lace forming the bodice.

Graceful Miss Elvine Richard was very stunning in a black chiffon taffeta embroidered in gold with panels of black tulle veiling the underdress and bodice.

Miss Doris Bryan wore a very becoming party frock of Nell rose taffeta with tulle of the same color making billows of airiness about her.

Miss Lila Lancashire of Manchester was among the dancers. She was gowned in an exquisite Lucile frock of mauve chiffon taffeta veiled with quantities of blue chiffon.

Mrs. Paul Rowland, who was formerly Dorothy Rowland, wore a beautiful creation of white satin.

Another beautiful shimmering white gown of chiffon satin was worn by pretty Mrs. Arthur D. Cook, which was made more soft and alluring by quantities of white tulle about the throat and shoulders.

Miss Gwendolyn Smith was very attractive in a shell pink taffeta dancing frock with touches of white lace and dark green velvet ribbon. Miss Smith dances very gracefully and was particularly noticeable in a waltz which she danced with George Robinson as her partner.

Miss Agnes Ketcham wore a beautiful frock of green and pink tulle in alternating layers over white taffeta with bodice showing touches of embroidery with the green and pink tones.

IPSWICH.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Wood of New York arrived at "Briar Hill" on Tuesday for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. James Howe Proctor are leaving for Plattsburg, where Mr. Proctor will enter camp. Their daughter, Miss Polly Proctor, will spend some time in August at the Profile House in New Hampshire. She has been interested in the Preparedness Cooking class in Ipswich of late. Mrs. Proctor treated her young folk and Miss Emma Mandell and her house-guests, among whom are Miss Ailene Fielding-Jones of Providence, R. I., to a picnic at Wingaersheek Beach last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle had Dr. and Mrs. Samuel McComb of Baltimore with them last week-end. Dr. McComb has been in charge of the Episcopal Church in Ipswich during July. They are leaving on a trip and will come to Manchester later. Mr. and Mrs. Searle have returned from a trip to Dixville.

Mrs. James Marsh Jackson and daughter, Miss Eleanor, of the Argilla road colony, are spending a few weeks at York Harbor, Me.

The workers for the French wounded at the home of Mrs. Herbert W. Mason listened to Madame Deslouis of Boston read letters from her son, who is in the French army. Between twenty and thirty are at these meetings.

Ye Rogers Manse is having an unusually busy season. It is the rendezvous for tourists, week-end parties and for parties wishing to give small dances. The guests were treated recently to a talk on Mexico by Thomas Peirce of Mexico, who is a cousin to Thomas Peirce of Topsfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins, who are staying at Ye Rogers Manse, gave a supper and dance for eighteen last Saturday. The guests of the house and the Bayard Tuckermans and the Wm. G. Thayers of Ipswich made up the party. Stephen Townsend gave several songs during the evening. Master Tudor Simpkins and his young friend, Raymand Perkins, have returned from the junior Plattsburg at Plum Island, Long Island.

Ye Burnham House, Ipswich, has had among the luncheon parties Mrs. R. Linden Pope of Bass Rocks, twelve; C. W. Lockwood, eight; Miss Ethel Morse, five; Clement Studebaker, 3d, of Rye Beach, five; Mrs. G. H. Proctor of Gloucester, five; Mrs. George E. Tener, five; Dr. and Mrs. Z. B. Adams, six; Mrs. Eugene Ong of Beach Bluff, ten. Others at the house have been Mrs. W. S. Semple, Miss Daisy Semple, the Misses Brainard, accompanied by Robert Lancaster and H. S. Stevens, and Miss Corinna Searle with her guest, Miss Doris Andrews of New York.

Mrs. Joseph P. Warner of the Argilla road colony has been instrumental in getting a tea room opened in the south side of Ipswich. The new place is at the home of Mrs. Robert Brown on County road and will be known as South Green tea room.

Arthur A. Shurtleff, the landscape architect of Argilla road, is in charge of the grounds of the new hospital in Ipswich. The hospital stands on rising ground and Mr. Shurtleff is planning an attractive scheme of gardening. The Shurtleff winter home is on Mt. Vernon st., Boston. His Ipswich home is noticeable with its picturesque old wooden windmill of true Dutch design.

Trustees of the Benjamin Stickney Cable Memorial hospital in Ipswich are James W. Appleton, Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, Dr. Frank W. Kyes, George E. Barnard, Mrs. Robert S. Kimball, Herbert W. Mason, Mrs. Francis B. Harrington, George A. Schofield, John A. Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., John S. Lawrence, Bayard Tuckerman, James H. Proctor and Rev. T. F. Waters.

WENHAM.—James Howe Proctor of Ipswich has given liberally this summer to the Boy Scouts of both Hamilton and Wenham. The Wenham boys have returned from their vacation and have shown the Hamilton boys how to get ready for theirs, which they are now taking at Choate Island, Essex.

At the Wenham tea house among the guests have been Mrs. Ernest Pentacost and her house-guest, Miss Moseley of Newburyport; Mrs. Conover Fitch with parties; Miss Florence Lee with Mrs. Oliver Turner and Mrs. Robert Jordan; Mrs. C. F. Berwind, eight guests from the Oceanside. Randolph Dodge, Mrs. W. H. Johnson, Mrs. Philip Johnson, Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge and Mrs. N. G. Horton were among others at this popular place.

Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Cutler are spending two weeks at Old Point Comfort. They will return August 13, when Mr. Cutler will go into camp at the fort defenses of Boston.

Patrons of the flower show at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy in Wenham next Wednesday, from 3 to 7, are George von L. Meyer, John L. Saltonstall, John Tuckerman, Philip Stockton, Bayard Warren, Samuel Warren, Jr., Frederick Winthrop, Fulton Cutting, Reginald Boardman, Gordon Abbott, Henry C. Clark, William C. Endicott, Francis L. Higginson, John S. Lawrence, Miss Olivia Ames and Miss Elaine Denégre. Miss Julia Meyer is selling tickets. The affair is a benefit for the American Ambulance hospital in France.

One should make allowance for youthful follies. The cat, the gravest of all animals, is the most frisky when young.—Indianapolis Star.

When you give free advice and it works you get no thanks, and if it doesn't work you get what's coming to you.—Exchange.

HAMILTON.—Hon. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer had as their week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Robbins of Washington. Mr. Robbins has been in the American embassy in Paris and in So. America. Mrs. Meyer left Wednesday to visit her daughter, Mrs. C. R. P. Rodgers, at Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell have returned from a ten days' visit in Maine with Mr. Sortwell's people.

Mrs. John A. Tuckerman has returned from a month at Dark Harbor, Me.

At the home of Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson, a guest of her son, Samuel Johnson, has been Mr. Hughes, the choirmaster of St. George's school.

A New England handbook, the first of its kind, has been published by Porter E. Sargent, 50 Congress street, Boston, as one of the excellent Sargent's Handbook Series. The work is not a "guide book" in the ordinary sense of the word, but contains all and a wealth more of information than is carried in the usual work of the sort. It is remarkably thorough in the matter it handles. While admirably suited to the needs of the automobilist and the visitor to New England, it contains much of interest to the New Englander himself. Interspersed with maps the pages are full of matter dealing with the history, industry and people of each city, town and hamlet in old New England. It is up-to-date in every sense of the word, yet accuracy has not been sacrificed in making it so.

Sea St., Manchester-by-the-Sea

MR. AND MRS. EMAN L. BECK of Mexico City, who are occupying "Arbor Vitae," in Manchester this season, have a little daughter Suzannah, who is much interested in the militia. Last week she brought to the Manchester Red Cross supply room a dainty box packed with coffee, chocolates and cigarettes on top of which was a little poem of her own composition.

TO THE MILITIA.
*Oh Militia, brave Militia,
Fighting for the flag,
Never let that flag be conquered, Never, never, never!*

Manchester sent four boxes of supplies to the Red Cross on Wednesday. Among the contributions were a great number of bath towels from Mrs. W. Scott Fitz; money and cigarettes from Mrs. Walter Mitchell; Jack Merrill, 500 cigars; Herbert W. Clark, the gardner at the Walter D. Denègre place, a contribution of over 1000 cigars, the money for which he and the men employed upon the place raised. They planned to send pipes, but could not get them in time for the shipment. The Manchester club sent reading matter. All boxes are now sent by express by the American Red Cross. This is done to get things to the border quickly.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, SWAMPSCOTT.—Four floors in the new $150,000 fire-proof annex to the New Ocean House were opened during the past week and the remaining suites in the three lower floors have now been completely furnished in order to accommodate the large August bookings at the hotel. The season at the New Ocean House is far in advance of any previous years, the suites made available by the opening of the new addition making it possible to accommodate a much larger number of guests than in previous years.

The Annex offers something decidedly different from the usual resort hotel, the rooms being luxuriously furnished and perfectly appointed to meet the demands of metropolitan guests. The hotel stands as one of the finest structures in the country, an architectural feat giving every room an ocean view. This factor has contributed in no small degree to the immense success with which the Annex has been opened.

In order to extend as much as possible the list of recreations available to guests, the management opened last Saturday an archery range on the parade in front of the main hotel. Shooting at forty to sixty yards for the lady and gentleman guests of the hotel was held and prizes awarded to those showing the greatest proficiency. The contest was under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Frentz, both of whom are members of the National Archery association. Nearly 100 guests of the hotel witnessed the contest from the veranda of the main hotel.

The second Children's party of the season, held last Wednesday afternoon in the main ball room of the New Ocean House, maintained its usual popularity with the younger set of the hotel and their little friends from along the North Shore. Mrs. Edward R. Grabow acted as hostess. For the entertainment of the little ones, Mrs.

Grabow assisted by Mr. J. Jefferson Richards, the Back Bay dancing master, had arranged a program of dances in which the young ones participated. The most interesting were the Chaplin Humoresque enacted by the Misses Rose Brophy, Elizabeth Walker and Pauline Hopkins, and the Doll Dance by Miss Virginia Shepard and Master Samuel Geisinger. The prizes for the afternoon were awarded to the Misses Virginia Fairleigh and Louise Brown and Masters Samuel Geisinger and Charles Hill.

Among the arrivals of the past week at the New Ocean House were the following: H. W. Burnett, Amherst, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. David Van Schaach, Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. J. W. Maynard, Oyster Bay, L. I.; Dr. and Mrs. W. K. Thorp, Miss Florence E. Thorp, John S. Goff, Miss Florence Martin, William Martin, Westchester, Pa.; C. D. Dudley, Haverhill; Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Hamilton, Hartford, Conn.; H. SWAMPSCOTT is very busy with its social activities, morning, afternoon and evening, and the entertaining upon the first week of August does not show the least diminishing from its social zenith. Everybody is bathing these fine mornings, and eleven o'clock each day finds the social contingent at the beach. The bathing frocks are quite the most elaborate ever seen on the North Shore and the wraps which envelope miladi on her way to the surf are gorgeous and beautiful.

No one enjoys the surf more than lovely Gretchen Sandmeyer, who with her mother, Mrs. Louise Sandmeyer and sister, Miss Hortense, are spending the summer at the New Ocean House. Miss Gretchen is of the petit type of beauty with a wealth of dark hair. She is quite the most popular girl at the hotel and her revels and frolics in the water during the bathing hour are quite marvelous. Naturalness is the chief attraction of this dainty miss, and she can throw a ball as well as any boy.

Mrs. Eugene H. Clapp threw open her beautiful home at Galloupe's Point on Tuesday afternoon for a "Current Events Talk" by Mrs. Alden Ward, which is one of the series which Mrs. Ward has been giving on the North Shore. The lecture was well attended by North Shore folk.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Haskell Dole and daughter, Miss Margaret of Jamaica Plain have been spending the past week at the Preston prior to leaving for their summer home at Ogunquit. Miss Margaret recently announced her engagement to Mr. McCall of Chicago. The marriage is planned to take place in late October.

Mrs. George F. Schrafft, who with Mr. Schrafft and family are occupying the Bond house on Puritan road, Swampscott, has been detained in her room for the past week because of a slight indisposition, but is now fully recovered and is able to be about.

The death last week of Mr. Bertrand Sampson of Jamaica Plain, which occurred at a private hospital at Boston, removes from the Swampscott summer colony one of the most beloved and admired residents. Mr. Sampson has been of the summer contingent for a number of years, occupying a house for several seasons and later making his home at the New Ocean House with his daughters, the Misses Maude and Agnes, of whom he was a constant companion. Mr. Sampson possessed a very distinguished bearing and strong personality which made a very delightful person to meet.

The field day, which was given at Phillips' Field on Saturday, July 29th, by the parish of St. John at Swampscott, was attended by nearly a thousand people. The chief attraction was a procession of the participants that passed through the streets of Swampscott, which was the opening feature. St. Mary's Cardinal Cadets of Charlestown gave an exhibition drill. The Rev. Fr. Francis J. Mahoney was chairman of the general committee, while Rev. James A. Donnelly was in charge of the cadets. A material sum was realized for the use of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Gale and family of Haverhill, who have been occupying their summer residence on Atlantic avenue, have taken up their residence at their beautiful new house, "Graystone Hall," which has a com-

The Wednesday morning surgical dressings meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter at Galloupe's Point, was very well attended by the ladies of Swampscott, Phillips Beach and Beach Bluff. These meetings are given over to the making of dressings which will be used by our own soldiers, if necessary, but in the event of no trouble at the Mexican border, the dressings will be sent to the Allies. Mrs. Mixter has been very generous in both donations for the purchase of material as well as given the use of her residence for the Wednesday morning meetings.

Mrs. I. A. Ratchesky of Puritan road, with daughters Misses Vera and Hetty, have gone on a motor trip through the White Mountains.

Miss Asenath Mitchell, the daughter of Mrs. W. A. Mitchell of Brookline, who is spending the summer at Beach Bluff, entertained a few of her girl friends at a luncheon at the Tedesco club on Wednesday, the occasion being her thirteenth birthday. The little girls in their pretty frocks made a handsome picture seated at a table beautiful with a profusion of cut flowers.

The Wednesday evening dinner-dance and band concert at the Tedesco club was the best of the season, so far progressed. The clubhouse was outlined with electric-lighted Japanese lanterns, giving a very festive air to the occasion. The rooms of the clubhouse were open en suite, and the tables were beautifully decorated with summer flowers and greenery. Among those who entertained at dinner were C. H. Conway, E. W. Ong, A. M. Creighton, P. E. Fitzgerald, A. B. Henly, F. G. Hall, F. R. Byers, E. L. Davis, A. M. Pinkham, H. B. Lewis, Ralph Hoagland, G. A. Dutton, N. Neath, E. B. Carlton, J. P. Parker, L. G. Atherton, J. C. At the afternoon bridge party at the Casino on Monday afternoon prizes were won by Mrs. A. B. Shaw, Mrs. G. O. North and Mrs. A. S. Jones. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Asher and Mrs. C. N. Young.

THE Cor-Nix Rubber Company, direct representatives of the U. S. Rubber Company in Lynn and Beverly, carrying a complete line of tennis shoes, rubber clothing, oil clothing, druggists' sundries, automobile tires and tubes, manufactured by the U. S. Rubber System, are among the popular stores in these cities. They carry a complete line of automobile accessories and are the only dealers who have handled a car-load of Mobiloils in this section. They have a grade of oil for each Type of Motor, and can give some good pointers on correct lubrication. These two stores are located at 127 Market st., Lynn and 261 Cabot st., Beverly, their stock is very attractive, and the service and attention one receives from this live concern is unsurpassed. They conduct a wholesale department and co-operate with their customers to the greatest extent. Their sporting stock is complete including fishing tackle and a visit to either of these stores will prove interesting, and the visitor will be welcomed.

"One of the attractive spots of the North Shore I found the other day when I stepped into the P. & M. Specialty Shop at 145 Broad st., Lynn," says Priscilla. "I found many things to interest me in the display of underwear, hosiery, waist and neckwear in materials of both cotton and silk. It is a shop very attractive, light and airy where one can enjoy shopping away from the crowded sections of the city during the warm weather."

MARBLEHEAD NECK'S smartest event of the week was the Monday evening dinner and concert at the Corinthian Yacht club. It was the largest party of the season. An excellent dinner was served and splendid concert given. The hosts at dinner were J. A. Gahn, Vaughn Jealous, E. P. Johnson, J. Brophy, W. B. Phinney, Dr. Crandon, D. B. Hallett, E. B. Thomas, H. C. Chapin, H. G. Chapin, H. Cotchin, C. C. Whitten, C. B. Wheelock, E. A. Flood, C. W. Cheney, E. W. Cobb, R. E. Hall, King Upton, J. Robson, G. L. Webb, W. I. Fearing, F. C. Paine and B. A. Smith.

Mr. S. B. Cantey of Fort Worth, Texas, has taken the Dr. O'Connor bungalow, Ocean avenue, Marblehead Neck, for the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hollingsworth gave a dance at "Driftwood," their summer home at Marblehead Neck, Saturday evening last.

Mrs. C. O. Baker entertained a tea party at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, Friday afternoon last with little Miss Lillian Shuman as the guest of honor.

The regular ladies' night at the Corinthian Yacht club last Friday evening was very well attended. The clubhouse was opened en suite and everybody had a good time. Many dinner parties were inaugurated, the greatest number so far this season. Among those who entertained were Messrs. Cheney, Percy, C. E. Adams, K. S. Billings, B. P. C. Clapp, D. B. Purbeck, W. P. Fearing, Charles Goodwin, W. F. Ulman, G. L. Hunter, W. L. Bernard, George Upton, C. B. Whitney, J. C. Johnson, H. Humphrey, R. C. Hutchinson, Richard Sanders, Robin Damon, S. C. Hutchinson, W. G. Bigelow, C. H. Conway, H. E. Hendry, H. Foster, Jr., A. L. Thorndike, J. H. Edwards, E. E. Richards, F. W. Merriman, B. Hollings, R. L. Wilbor, F. G. Macomber, G. B. Wheelock and A. E. Barr.

On Saturday evening the members of the Corinthian Yacht club enjoyed a smoker, which was combined with the presenting of a beautiful oil painting, by Charles S. Parker of the Neck, the work of his hand. It is a very fine painting of Marblehead Harbor, taking in a representative view of the town. Entertainers from Prof. Lansing's at Boston carried out a splendid program.

The Saturday evening hop at the Oceanside was well attended by the guests at the hotel and the cottagers at the Neck. Proprietor Lane is very busy with a full house and scores of motor parties for dinner each day. Among the recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Humphrey, Tonawanda, N. Y.; Mrs. R. H. Rudolph, Easton, Pa.; Dr. L. G. Nettleton, Boston; H. G. Foote, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Golden, Middletown, Conn.; Mrs. P. C. Spring, Braintree; Mrs. Albert Clift, Narberth, Pa.; Mrs. L. F. Hudson, Dayton, O.; Mrs. George E. Farley and Mrs. Daniel Safford, Ipswich; Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hughes, Montclair, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sellery, Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Miner G. Robinson, Mrs. H. A. Cutter and daughter and Mrs. Dexter Spaulding, Nashua; Gen. and Mrs. T. S. Peck and daughter, Burlington, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hickmott of Hartford, Conn., and daughter arrived during the past week at the Oceanside at the Neck for their seventh consecutive summer season. They will remain until September.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shuman, who have been summering with their little family at "Mollhurst," Marblehead Neck, are anticipating a short stay at Newport during the early part of August. This is their annual mid-summer outing at Newport, they being very fond of the many attractions this delightful resort affords.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw Langmaid of Salem are at the Leslie for the month of August. Mrs. Langmaid was formerly Miss Katherine Squires, who is well known on the North Shore.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT S. PEABODY of Peach's Point, Marblehead, very generously gave the use of their beautiful gardens on their estate on Wednesday for the entertainment given by the negro singers from Hampton Institute, Va., who on Monday last sailed into Marblehead harbor in their old Chesapeake barge and anchored in the harbor. The entertainment was very well attended and a real treat given the audience, who heard old negro and Indian songs and folklore. The performers were introduced by the principal of Hampton Institute, Dr. H. B. Frissell, who explained the purpose of the school to educate the negro to become a better citizen, economical and industrious and train them for better servants. He illustrated by pictures, lazy, shiftless boys who came to the school, and after training became good citizens, able to help themselves and others.

The second entertainment was given at "The Ram-parts," the home of Mrs. S. A. Raymond at East Gloucester, the performers proceeding to East Gloucester in their craft. Miss Harriet S. Curtis of Manchester had charge of the arrangements. A substantial sum was realized.

THE "MARKET DAY" festivities, which will begin on August 10th, are holding the attention of all the summer colonists in the Marblehead section, for it promises to eclipse anything before attempted for charitable purposes. When it comes to philanthropy the North Shore summer residents outshine all others, for they work together with a whole heart and will and open their purse-strings to aid a worthy cause. And such this is. The profits of the "Market Day" will be devoted to the Visiting Nurses association. The hour for marketing will begin at ten o'clock in the morning and grow in intensity until the closing hour of six.

In addition to the ladies mentioned in last week's issue, who will pilot the day to success, there will be Mrs. Herman Parker of the Neck, who, with a corps of young ladies from the Neck, will have charge of the ice cream tables. Mrs. W. R. Castle, Jr., will act as cashier of this section. Mrs. Chadwick will have charge of the sale of useful household articles. The cake table will be presided over by Mrs. Hervey Millett. The peanut and balloon stall will be in charge of Miss Helen Paine and Miss May Brown. Toys for children will be sold on the grounds by Mrs. Leon Collver and Mrs. Charles Hodges.

Mr. and Mrs. Y. Marcy Edwards of the Stoneholm at Brookline have taken apartments at the Sea Gull at Marblehead Neck for the month of August and are accompanied by their two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Maude.

Miss Evelina Dupont of "Lyndham" at Greenville, Del., has been later than usual coming down to her beautiful summer home at Peach's Point, but at last this charming lady has arrived, much to the pleasure of her many friends at the North Shore.

I WAS charmed yesterday upon a visit to the MARBLEHEAD MODEL TOY SHOP at 43 Pond street, Marblehead, to see the wonderful little boats which are being made there. Trig little sailboats, all hand-made of the Sonder design, some with painted hulls in black with stripes of green, others in red with green. They are perfectly balanced little crafts, of wafer weight, varying in length, the medium 25 inches overall, and, Oh my! how they do skim over the water. A perfect delight for son, with their sails all taut and trim.

Then, too, I saw the dearest little Colonial doll cradles for sister, from a pattern over a century and a half old, all painted black with the prettiest decorations of hand-painted flowers in all of the different brilliant colors.

ADJOINING the large natural Park of Salem, known as the "Great Pastures," the haunt of every nature-loving boy of Salem since it was founded nearly 300 years ago, is the area called Highland Pastures on both sides of Highland avenue, the main boulevard and highway to Lynn and Boston. It comprises hundreds of acres on a high plateau, dotted with numberless hills, wooded with pines, pointed cedars, elms and maples, or covered with the golden genista, blueberries, laurel, barberry and hundreds of wild flowers. From the hills you can see Salem and the harbor, Beverly, Marblehead, Manchester, Swampscott, Nahant, Lynn, Danvers, Peabody, and Massachusetts Bay.

These many acres were the property of a few families, being held as large farms, and only in the past year or so have come upon the market. Within five minutes of the heart of Salem, adjoining the land upon which the beautiful hospital of Salem is rising, a block from the High School, only a few blocks from Chestnut street, one of the stateliest in New England, it was decided that it should carry out the best traditions of old Salem in its development. Enough land has been secured for the protection of the idea and the plans, extending most of the way from the High School on both sides of Highland avenue to the country road, known as Danvers street, running from Highland avenue to Swampscott. It is laid out with roads that bend as the contour of the land lies and every natural charm is preserved. The main requirement is that the dwelling houses erected be homes of taste, planned by accredited architects and surrounded by ample space. It is not a money-making scheme, the lowest possible price being asked for the land consistent with the proper making of streets and roadways, accompanied with all modern conveniences and equipment.

It will be a suburban development in keeping with a new and greater Salem and will rival in beauty Roland Park of Baltimore and the far-famed suburban haunts of St. Louis and Philadelphia. It is hoped that the North Shore visitors from all over the United States and Europe may find here sites for summer homes of beauty.

A beautiful blue gray chiffon frock was worn by Miss Eleanor Dieter, who is a very pretty dancer and was strikingly so in a one-step with R. L. Steinert as her partner.

Mrs. E. H. Brown of Detroit wore a beautiful black taffeta and tulle which brought out the beauty of her wonderful red-gold hair.

Miss Georgie Solari was very beautiful and attractive in a gown of rose pink taffeta with silver lace and silver ribbons forming the empire bodice.

Mrs. E. Osmonde Powers of Babylon, N. Y., formerly Margaret Gummey a social favorite at the Oceanside, was seen among the dancers in a beautiful gown of blue taffeta with flounces of gray tulle forming the skirt and bodice of blue sequins extending in panels over the skirt. Mrs. Powers has been visiting Miss Marcia Taylor at Smith's Point, Manchester, and Mrs. J. C. Howe of West Manchester, returning to New York, Monday last.

Mrs. Fred Rhodes wore a beautiful and exquisite gown on Saturday evening of royal blue chiffon over taffeta with sequins on bodice.

Mrs. E. M. Binney was exquisitely gowned in a creation of smoked tulle embroidered in gold and sequins.

Miss Janet Bryan was very sweet and girlish in a black frock of chiffon and golden embroidery.

THE new memorial fountain on the South Common in Ipswich is being placed by Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton, in memory of their son, James Appleton, who passed away last fall. The fountain is a handsome structure of Tennessee marble and has been underway for the past five months in Cambridge. It is in two parts, one part being for horses and the other part, separated by a walk from the trough, will be a drinking fountain. The latter will contain a memorial tablet. Dedication exercises will be held when the work is completed.

Edward F. Stevens and Charles A. Coolidge of Boston are the architects of the new hospital, the latter being the consulting architect.

SUMMER RESIDENTS

CAPE ANN.—The season on Cape Ann is now in full swing and several thousand people, cottage residents and hotel guests, are now settled here for the health-giving atmosphere of this noted resort of the North Shore. The excessive heat that is sweeping over the big cities is causing people to rush to the seashore. August will be the biggest month in the history of the summer business on Cape Ann.

Arrangements for the annual Gloucester Day are progressing splendidly and something will be offered by the energetic committee that will surely please the public. The attractions will be held at Stage Fort Park as usual and favorable weather is about the only thing now hoped for to make the event a grand and complete success on the day scheduled, Wednesday, August 16.

EASTERN POINT.—All the hotels in this section are very nearly filled, but this coming week-end there will be many changes, for the July contingent is reluctantly making an exit to give room for the influx of August and September guests. The heat prevailing in the cities has caused a great many sojourners to regret that their applications for rooms did not cover a longer period of vacation in cool and attractive East Gloucester. One guest from Chicago remarked that he had not enjoyed a comfortable night's rest for three weeks and that he could not begin to describe his feeling of thankfulness for the sleep and relaxation that East Gloucester privileged him to enjoy.

Hawthorne Inn has a full house and life at this resort is at its fullest. Bridge parties, teas and dances are on the order of social pleasures. The Wednesday and Saturday night dances in the Casino, with the house orchestra furnishing the music, are very largely attended. Last Saturday night officers from the U. S. battleships Missouri and Ohio, visiting Cape Ann, were guests at the military ball held by the guests of the inn. Pleasing entertainments are being held during the week in the Casino. On Thursday evening there was a musical and the following evening the Ruth Fielding stock company of child actors, from Boston, entertained.

Gifford Beals, N. A., of Newburg, N. Y., accompanied by his wife, are guests at the Hawthorne Inn and while here are much entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Hayley Lever, the former the prominent artist of New York, who has a studio in East Gloucester. Mr. and Mrs. Beals are so pleased with this locality that they contemplate coming next season. Mr. Beals is one of the noted artists of this country.

Mr. and Mrs. William Steele Gray of New York city are entertaining Arthur Row, actor-writer, at their charming bungalow, "El Milo," at Eastern Point. Mr. Row has been acting in New York with Sir Herbert Tree.

Mrs. Alice (Fischer) Harcourt, the actress, wife of William K. Harcourt, who is also prominent in the theatrical world, will probably not come to Hawthorne Inn this summer as is her usual custom, owing to her engagement running in New York. Mr. Harcourt is located at the inn. Mrs. Harcourt will be missed in the social life of the hotel as she was a leader in the daily activities of the resort.

On Friday evening, August 11, a musical will be held at the Hawthorne Inn Casino, when George Elmer Stevens, a young baritone of New York, will render a group of English, French and German songs. An unique feature of the evening will be the interpretive dancing by Miss Melba Procter of the Eastern Point cottage colony. Miss Procter will dance to certain songs while they are being sung by Mr. Stevens.

Campbell Gollan, the Scotch actor, who usually spends his summers in East Gloucester, is this season stopping at the bungalow in East Gloucester of his brother-in-law, Carleton H. Parsons, Esq. Mr. Gollan some time ago left the legitimate stage for a fine position as director for the Kline Motion Picture Company of New York city, and he is pleased with the work.

A noted guest this season in East Gloucester is John K. Tener of Pittsburg, Pa., ex-governor of Pennsylvania and president of the National League of baseball clubs. Mr. Tener was for a time stopping at the Harbor View and is now the guest of his brother, George E. Tener, and family. The latter is having a beautiful new residence built at Eastern Point and when his family takes occupancy in a few weeks the ex-governor will be with them.

BASS ROCKS.—Things are lively at the Bass Rocks golf links and the tennis courts these days and every day there are crowds of players and spectators. Owing to the extreme heat on Monday, there were only a few players who ventured on the links. The bathing beach, however, was crowded with people, eager to get the coolness of the sea. The water had the best temperature of the season.

There was a large gallery of tennis enthusiasts at the Bass Rocks courts on Sunday afternoon, from 3 till 5 o'clock, when one of the finest gatherings marked the tennis season here and really "this gathering of experts of the country and enthusiasts has been rivalled only by Newport," remarked George Wright, the senior member of the prominent firm of Wright & Ditson and father of Beals Wright, who was present. Not only were there such players wielding the racquet as Molla Bjurstedt of Norway, the star national champion, who had for her partner W. S. McElroyd, the champion of Pittsburg, Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston, who played with Harry Johnson, the Massachusetts champion, the former two playing against the latter couple; but there were present, Edwin Sheafe, president of the Longwood Cricket club; George Church, who won the men's doubles at Longwood with Davis and is one of the first ten players in the United States; S. H. Mikami of Tokio, Japan, a player at Longwood; Charles Garland of Pittsburg, the Yale Interscholastic champion; George Wightman of Brookline, the Pacific coast champion in mixed doubles, San Francisco; William Johnston, the national champion, and stars of the Longwood courts, who are playing in the tournaments there, but came on to Bass Rocks to witness the exhibition games. In the contest, Miss Sears and her partner, Mr. Johnson, won the first and third sets, the scores being 6—3, 2—6, 6—4. Miss Bjurstedt began with her hard driving and Johnson smashed vigorously. set, Miss Bjurstedt was in best form and her drives to the sidelines took the honors in an impressive way. In the third and deciding game, Johnson and Miss Sears played admirably throughout. There was a match also in doubles between Charles Garland, the Yale interscholastic champion, and George Wightman of Boston, against S. H. Mikami, the Japanese expert, and W. S. McElroyd, Garland and Wightman winning, the score being 6-4, 7-5. The referee who gave excellent satisfaction, was George Church. Miss Bjurstedt and the other tennis players who came to the Bass Rocks courts, comprised a week-end house party, entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Pope at their summer home on Beach road. The players all spoke of the good courts here and enjoyed their stay here greatly. Miss Bjurstedt played at Bass Rocks once last season.

In the mixed foursome handicap tournament, played from Wednesday till Saturday of last week, James V. Meigs won 2 and 1 to go, playing finally against his brother, H. Meigs, at the Bass Rocks links, a most unusual occurrence, where two brothers came to the point of winning for the cup. It was a close match.

The putting contest last Saturday afternoon was of interest, witnessed by many people at the Bass Rocks golf links. The cup was won by Miss Mary Hart of Bass Rocks, her score being 9. Miss Lischtenheim came second.

Mrs. Wilson of the Hawthorne Inn gave a large tea to 35 guests at the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse on Monday afternoon. There were three tables of bridge.

A subscription dancing party has been arranged for Saturday night of next week at the Bass Rocks Golf clubhouse. Hoppe's orchestra of Boston will furnish the music. The committee in charge comprises: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Souther, Mrs. Joseph O. Procter, Jr., Mrs. Winthrop Sargent and Max Talbot, all of the Bass Rocks colony.

A very pretty birthday party was held at the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse on last Saturday afternoon, where a large number of the friends of young Miss Virginia Booth of Detroit, stopping at Hotel Thorwald, gathered in honor of Miss Virginia's eighth birthday. Automobiles escorted the guests from the hotel to the clubhouse and from 3.30 to 6 o'clock all made merry with games and a tempting lunch was served on the veranda. Miss Virginia not only received the hearty congratulations of her friends, but also many handsome gifts. The young hostess is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph K. Booth of Detroit, the former being an owner in a chain of prominent newspapers in the West.

It is not to be wondered at that people delight in participating in teas at the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse when one stands off at a distance, near the starting tee of the course, and looking at the clubhouse, beholds a magnificent wealth of Dorothy Perkins roses. All along the pergola and entirely over the spacious veranda, countless clusters of the pink roses decorate the place, with the green foliage. The blossoms are now at their loveliest and they are greatly admired by all who see them.

The Thorwald hotel is filled with guests and the management is having the most successful season since 1911. Among those recently registering at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks, are: Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Melson of Wilmington, Del.; Dr. and Mrs. LeRoy Debbles of Kansas City, Mo.; H. D. Johnson, wife and maid, Washington; Dr. and Mrs. George M. Phillip, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Children of Hotel Thorwald were made very happy on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when George Worden, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Worden of Detroit, Mich., observed his ninth birthday. A peep into the reception hall of the hotel showed that the youngsters were having a glorious time. Games were in order and at 6 o'clock a delicious repast of sandwiches, tea, ice-cream, cake and other good things was served. A pretty birthday cake made the eyes of the little ones dance with delight. During the afternoon, photographs were taken of the children in a group. Master George proved a genial host and not only did his playmates smile and feel happy because he had a birthday, but many attractive gifts were presented to him.

The Stewarts of Sewickly, Pa., are occupying their attractive colonial cottage on a site between Bass Rocks and Grape Vine Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Plimpton of Norwood, the former president of the Plimpton Press, are situated at Bass Rocks for the remainder of the season, in their attractive cottage on Atlantic road.

A program given by Quimby's band formerly the Eighth Regiment band of Lynn, at the Moorland hotel last Friday evening was enjoyed by a large gathering of people, guests of the house and friends from along the North Shore. The music was rendered on the brilliantly illuminated veranda and at 10 o'clock, dancing followed in the casino.

ANNISQUAM.—A large number of people came to Wonasquam Lodge, Annisquam, the first of the week. Frank H. Shute, the new proprietor of the house expects a big August. The hotel which was formerly the Grand View, has been enlarged and refilled into practically a new hostelry. New rooms and baths have been added and the decorative scheme of the lower rooms, including the dining room gives the Indian effect. The piazza on the river side of the Lodge has been widened and the view of the Annisquam river and the surrounding country for miles is wonderful at day or night. The hotel is located on a height and there are plenty of green trees and shrubbery to give an attractive setting. The fine menus every day at the hotel are printed on paper resembling birch bark. An orchestra renders music every evening at dinner. Permanent guests at Wonasquam Lodge are: Mrs. Charles McKenney, Mrs. E. F. Ripley, Mrs. M. J. H. Wyman, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Plumer and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dempsey, Miss N. P. Hough, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Green, Miss E. F. Farrell, all of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Troughton, Miss O. J. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. H. A fine musicale was given at Wonasquam Lodge on Thursday evening, by Madame Ary Trevarrou, contralto, and Pauline Keyte, pianist, of the New England Conservatory of Music.

Mrs. Slason Thompson has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hubbard of Evanston, Ill., at her cottage in the Hermit Ledge colony, Annisquam.

Mrs. Thomas B. Wishart of the Annisquam colony, who has been entertaining her niece, Miss Adelaide Cafferty of New York City, gave a party in honor of the latter one evening last week, previous to the departure of Miss Cafferty.

Miss L. C. Rulison of New York is occupying her pleasant cottage on Chester Square, Annisquam.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gregg of Albany, N. Y., are the guests of Miss Jennie C. Gregg at her cottage on Nashua avenue, Annisquam.

J. A. Kinkead and family of Montclair, N. J., are spending a week at Diamond Cove, Annisquam.

Pleasant By-Water Inn near the Annisquam water front, is entertaining many guests at the present time and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clark, who are managing this popular resort accommodating about 80 people, expect a big August. The Inn dining room, facing the river and bay, has been extensively enlarged and several new rooms and baths have been added to the house during the last spring. The cosiness and home-like atmosphere of the house is appealing to all visitors.

Mrs. Grace Ward and son Norman, of Dorchester, are stopping at By-Water Inn. Mrs. Ward is a daughter of Ennekin, the noted artist.

Christian Jorgenson, the prominent artist of Yosemite in the West, with his wife and daughter, who has been spending June and a part of July at By-Water Inn, Annisquam, has gone with his family to Center Harbor, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., for a stay, but will return to the Inn in September.

Guests stopping at the By-Water Inn for an extended sojourn are: Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Letchworth and family of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. G. Cullen Sullivan and child and the former's mother, Mrs. Charles C. Lanis of Anderson, N. C.; Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Howard of Williams town, Misses Martha, Blanche and Clara Peek, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rickert, Maud and Ruth Rickert, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Andrew C. Bradley, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Schofield and daughter, Ruth Schofield, Winter Hill; Mrs. W. S.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Woods, Misses Josephine and Helen Woods and Jack Howe Woods of Winchester are spending the season at the Brynmere, Annisquam.

The past week has been a busy one for the Cathedral Pines Tea Room, Goose Cove. The names in the Guest Book included two noted sculptors, Anna Vaughn Hyatt and Anna Colman Ladd, who entertained most charming parties. Mrs. Bill whose "Shop" is so well known along the North Shore motored up from Magnolia with Mr. Bill and several friends. Monday night a supper party of twelve came up from Magnolia, including Misses Doris and Janet Bryant of Brookline, Miss Ellen Thomas of Augusta, Ga., Mr. Middleton, Mr. Hugh and a number of others. After supper they strolled in the picturesque pine woods and wound up the evening with a merry dance by candle light in the studio tea room so well adapted for this purpose. The Cathedral Pines Tea Room is fast becoming popular. Secluded among the pines yet easily accessible by foot or motor its charm wins all who come—to come again!

ROCKPORT.—The townspeople and summer residents are glad, once again, of the arrival of two of Uncle Sam's best battleships, the Missouri and the Ohio, of the Atlantic reserve fleet, which steamed into Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge for a stay of a few days. The Ohio and the Missouri are battleships of the second line each equipped with 20 guns and 16,000 horsepower and both ships have visited Rockport and Gloucester on different occasions. The officers and crews, splendid looking men, have been entertained much during their stay on this occasion. The dance at the Rockport Country clubhouse on Saturday night was an especially brilliant and enjoyable affair, when the summer resident members attended largely and the officers of the two battleships were the invited guests.

The Rockport Country club is the center of social interest these days at Land's End and from now on, many pleasant affairs will be arranged. The beautifully appointed clubhouse, on a height overlooking the splendid golf links, is being enjoyed. The place is delightfully attractive inside and out. It matters not if the weather be stormy or pleasant, for there are the prettily furnished reception rooms and the grills and the broad piazzas overlooking the wonderful landscape. The Ladies' club of which Mrs. Charles Liffler, Jr., is chairman meets every Wednesday afternoon at the clubhouse. On the coming Saturday afternoon, August 5, a tea will be held at the clubhouse, from 3.30 to 5.30 o'clock and dancing will follow. On Wednesday evening of last week, an indoor "horse trot" was largely attended at the Rockport Country club. Racing by cutting ribbons made it a pretty affair and two cups were offered for prizes.

A gala occasion on Saturday last at Land's End was the third annual visit and outing of the John Boyle O'Reilly club of Boston. This club composed of prominent judges, lawyers, writers, professional and business men, numbering thirty, was really formed by two energetic gentlemen of high purpose and character, A. Shuman of Beverly and H. Staples Potter of Nahant, having behind it the spirit of brotherhood of John Boyle O'Reilly, the noted poet, and Ned Moseley of Newburyport, who came to Land's End to spend their summer vacations and delight in the wonderful scenery and health-giving atmosphere. The poet O'Reilly declared that the place added years to his life. In winter the club has its Saturday lunches, but from May till the middle of October is the vacation season, with the mid-summer outing of the members. On Saturday, the club visited Loblolly, the spot which the poet so loved, and partook of a fine fish dinner at the Haskell camp. At this locality, the club named after the illustrious poet, loves to honor his memory with telling anecdotes and incidents of his life. When the John Boyle O'Reilly club first came to Land's End, a visit was made at the attractive summer home of George F. Babbitt, "Pineledge," where refreshments were served. The party then proceeded to "The Rocks," the spacious summer home of James E. Cotter, situated on the shore near Cape Hedge. Mr. Babbitt is the well known writer of the Boston Globe and Mr. Cotter is a prominent Boston lawyer. At both homes the hospitality extended to the club members and friends was most highly appreciated. The next place of enjoyment was Loblolly Cove and then the Rockport Country clubhouse was the final point of pleasure before the party took leave for their homes. The members present were: Thomas B. Fitzpatrick of Beach Bluff, vice-president; H. Staples Potter of Nahant secretary and treasurer; George F. Babbitt, historian; Judge Keating, Judge Burke, Judge McLaughlin, Henry V. Cunningham, E. A. McLaughlin, C. E. Cotter, John H. Fahey, John R. Murphy, Joseph P. Manning, all of Boston; James Morgan of the Boston Globe; A. Shuman of Beverly; Charles W. Moseley, Newburyport. The guests were: Dr. Dowling of the Boston City Hospital, Dr. Francis J. Keanney of Brookline, Rev. Fr. Doherty of Rockport, Sidney E. Shuman of Boston, Horace Ridley of Brookline, I. A. Ratshesky and Alexander Steinert, both of Boston.

A golf tournament for three weeks, three finals each week, is now on at the Rockport Country club course.

Mrs. Fred L. Morgan is considered the finest player among the lady enthusiasts.

On Monday evening of next week a benefit concert will be given at Straitsmouth Inn, Land's End. There is a long list of patronesses from the Land's End and Marmion Way colonies. The proceeds will be for the benefit of St. Mary's Episcopal church of Rockport.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dutton and family are at their charming summer residence on Marmion Way, Rockport. Mr. Dutton is vice-president of the Houghton & Dutton department store of Boston. He is the president of the Rockport Country club.

Mischa Elman, the noted violinist, who is spending the summer at the Hale cottage, Marmion Way, Rockport, is enjoying the season very much in this quiet spot picturesque indeed in whatever direction one may look. Nearly every week-end, Prof. Elman has some symphony players down from Boston for practice and some fine music is heard in that vicinity.

John G. Moseley of Boston, who holds the distinction of building the first cottage on Marmion Way, Rockport, is at his summer home "Felsenheim," in company with his two daughters, Mrs. Francis A. Pierce and Miss Helen G. Moseley.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dillaway, Jr., their daughter Lillian and son Page, are at their cottage "Bythesea," Marmion Way, Rockport. The Dillaways have been at Rockport for 38 consecutive summers. Mr. Dillaway built the second cottage on Marmion Way two years after Mr. Moseley erected his house. Mr. Dillaway has always been an enthusiastic disciple of Isaac Walton and he takes pleasure in catching the gay and elusive tautog. He captured seven off Thatcher's Island a week ago, each weighing from 5 to 6 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morgan of Dorchester are on York avenue, Rockport, for the season.

Miss Maud Howard of Wakefield is the guest of Miss Lillian G. Dillaway on Marmion Way.

Miss Rosalie Hoer and Miss Hazel Miller, who have been managing the Lantern Shop during July for Mrs. E. R. Mosely, have made many friends during their stay. Miss Miller, who is a teacher in the High School of Commerce, Springfield, has left for her home in Westfield, Vt. Miss Hoer of Springfield is passing August in Needham.

Mrs. E. R. Mosely of Highhurst studio, Westfield, Miss Eleanor R. Mosely and Master Philip E. Mosely are occupying their bungalow on Green avenue, Pigeon Cove.

Next week, beginning Monday, the annual August sale and exhibit of the Lantern Shop, Pigeon Cove, will interest those who are seeking holiday novelties, baskets of rare design, silver and brass articles and pictures, besides a great variety of artistic things.

HAVE YOU SEEN the wonderful display of Old English Silver at the shop of A. Schmidt & Son at Magnolia? It is beautiful and well worth a visit with plenty of time to enjoy its merits. It consists of candlesticks, tankards, inkstands, epergnes, cups, cruets, trays and tea sets, a revelation of the richness of the period of George II and III, which it represents, nearly a century and a half ago,—exquisite in design, each piece a work of art with no detail forgotten. To possess a bit, or part of this collection would be happiness, indeed. PRISCILLA.

Eben D. Jordan, head of the great dry goods firm of Jordan-Marsh Company of Boston, died at his summer estate, "The Rocks" at West Manchester, in the early evening of Tuesday of the past week. Mr. Jordan's death came after an illness of several days following a paralytic shock on July 22. Until a few days before his death his recovery was looked for, but a turn for the worse came and he sank rapidly. Mr. Jordan was born in Boston, Nov. 7, 1857. His father, whose name he bore, was the founder of the great business house which has made grand strides under the leadership of Mr. Jordan.

After an elementary education in the public schools of Boston Mr. Jordan entered Adams Academy, Quincy, from which he was graduated in 1876. For a time previous to his entering Harvard in the class of 1880, he traveled in Europe with a tutor. Trouble with his eyes made necessary a sea voyage to California before completion of the college course. Upon his return, much improved in health, Mr. Jordan entered the employ of the concern, which he later came to direct. He worked his way from the humble position of packer to head of the great concern, asking no favors and winning his way upon his merit. Two great monuments to Mr. Jordan's interest in the artistic life of Boston are the Boston Opera House and the New England Conservatory of Music.

Mr. Jordan was at one time regarded as the leading horse show man in America, but some years ago disposed of the larger part of his stable.

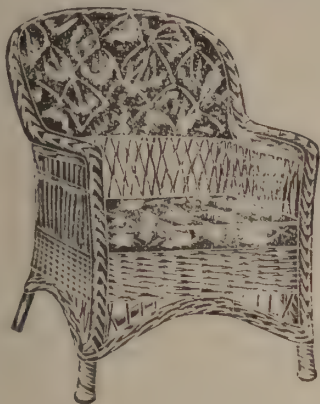

Besides Mrs. Jordan, his son, Robert Jordan, and daughter, Dorothy, whose marriage to Douglas Munroe Robinson of New York City took place this spring, survive him.

A progressive and successful business man, a thorough sportsman and a genuine philanthropist, Mr. Jordan will be greatly missed not only in the commercial life of Boston and in the social life of Boston and the North Shore, but all New England will feel his loss.

THE WEDDING of Miss Corinna Searle and Harold D. Walker will take place Saturday, September 30, at "Inglesby," the summer home in Ipswich, of Miss Searle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Boardman entertained at dinner last Friday evening at their West Manchester home. Covers were placed for fourteen.

Mrs. Edward H. Brainard of Pittsburg, who is summering at the Oceanside, Magnolia, entertained a party of twenty ladies at bridge and tea Wednesday afternoon at the Essex County club, Manchester.

The sale of fly traps, fly slappers and phinotas will be continued another week at Mrs. R. S. Bradley's stable, Pride's Crossing. The clean-up campaign exhibit was undertaken at a very opportune moment. Beverly Farms ahead of New York, where owing to the great scare from infantile paralysis, an "anti-litter league" has been started. Let Beverly Farms and surrounding neighborhood keep up the good work, realizing that health is wealth and it is money in the town treasury to be on the "white list" and not on the "black list." "The hall mark of good housekeeping is the back yard and not the front door."

Mrs. Maynard Ladd is holding her usual Sunday teas in her attractive studio on Smith's Point, Manchester. As formerly these are well attended by Shore people. Mrs. Ladd has just completed a portrait of Miss Grace Monks of Manchester, and is working upon one of Madame Grouitch of Serbia. Seventeen of her pieces were sent to Newport recently by invitation of the Newport Art association. Of interest in the studio this summer are her pieces called "Ocean and Sail" and the "Peace Group."

Young John K. Wallace, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wallace, who make their summer home with Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Kernard of St. Louis, at Fuller street, Magnolia, is a splendid swimmer, having mastered all of the strokes, and diving, in which he shows exceptional skill. Master Wallace is a very pleasing boy, who spends a great part of his time at the North Shore Swimming pool. Temperature doesn't daunt John and he goes in the pool nearly every day. Saturday morning he was reveling in the water with a temperature of 58.

Noted among those who were entertained at the pool during the past week were Miss M. O. Gray of Louisville and Bass Rocks, introduced by J. M. Green; Jack Gordon of St. Louis by John Wallace; S. L. Endicott, Dedham, by R. L. Steinert; Edward Hays, Brooklyn, by C. W. Smith; Edward Cottle, Boston, by R. L. Steinert; Mrs. B. F. Hobart, Jr., Memphis, and Mrs. J. H. Mallory, by Mrs. J. T. The Wednesday afternoon bridge parties at the North Shore Swimming Pool were not as many as usual, due perhaps to the beautiful weather which calls all to the out-of-doors, and to the fact too, that the tennis tournament which is taking place on the courts at the Pool are attracting many. Mrs. Harriet Johnston entertained a party of two tables; Mrs. E. P. Rowe, one; Mrs. R. E. Livingston, one, and Miss Alice Allyn, two tables.

Mrs. A. E. Warth of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been with the Manila Trading Company in this vicinity several years, will be at Ye Burnham House, Ipswich, the balance of this week, en route to Bar Harbor for the rest of the season.

EDITORIAL

CANDIDATE HUGHES' SPEECH of acceptance of the Republican nomination for President reveals his intention to cling to the party platform in his campaign. The evidence of concord between the candidate and the writers of the platform is significant. The attitude of Mr. Hughes toward the Administration and the Mexican problem is noticeably that of the great majority of Republicans and his conduct in making his campaign on real issues rather than upon himself as the political savior of the country will meet the approval of all who look for the restoration of the G. O. P. to place and power.

THE SEASON IS NOW at its height and it is possible now to judge its trend. Early in the season careful men were prophesying that the season would be one of the most successful in the history of the North Shore sea-shore summer industry. Those prophesies are now proving true. The hotels are well patronized, the owners of estates are in residence and all of the cottages for rent from year to year are also occupied. The European war has made the summer resorts of New England prosperous.

THE WET SEASON has made the gardeners' position very trying this year. The delayed warm weather and excessive moisture has made it almost impossible for the most skilful gardener to raise certain kinds of garden truck and all sorts of vegetables are late. It will be well for owners of estates to be patient with the caretakers and remember that they have causes to work against over which they have had no control.

THE SEVERE STORMS THAT RAGED in and about Boston the earlier part of the week avoided the North Shore and the towns along this coast were free from the devastations. This brings to mind the noticeable absence of thunder showers this summer. There has been plenty of rain, everyone knows, but there has been a fortunate absence of electric storms.

ONE OF THE MOST REFRESHING ITEMS that comes from the acceptance of the nomination of Mr. Hughes is the unfeigned and hearty pleasure that Theodore Roosevelt enjoys in view of the events. Theodore Roosevelt is a great power in American politics and the republican party may well be congratulated that the progressive leader has joined hands.

THE POLICY OF THE TOWN of Manchester in developing the park area along the water front is now becoming apparent. The money expended in the development of the waste land has been well spent and as the years go by Manchester will begin to appreciate how wise her policy has been for the interests of the growing town.

THE SETTLEMENT, OUT OF COURT, by the White Star line, of all the damages against it because of the sinking of the Titanic brings to mind the terror of that tragic event. The White Star line stands absolved of its pecuniary liability, but no one has yet been absolved of the criminal liabilities of that disaster.

DR. DE WITT S. CLARKE has finished his course and has answered the higher call. He has held for many years a commanding position in the religious leadership of the North Shore. Called to Salem while a young man he has virtually given his life to the interests of the Tabernacle Congregational Church and to the City of Salem. His long and successful pastorate accorded him a position among the ministers of the Shore that has been honorably earned. He was a faithful minister of Jesus Christ. He was an embodiment of the virtue and principles which he taught. He gave freely of his time, his best thought and counsel to individuals and to organized charitable enterprises in his city and in the state. The world has been the richer for his service and is the poorer for his loss.

IF ALL PLANS ARE DEVELOPED it is not unlikely that two wards of Beverly and the towns of Manchester and Essex will comprise a representative district to the General Court of Massachusetts. In this event the politicians in these places will have to rebuild their fences along new lines. The new allotment is not all that can be desired, but the best will have to be made of the situation. Manchester was never satisfied with being in the district with Gloucester. It will be more at home temperamentally, at least, with Beverly Farms and the shore section of Beverly. It would have fared better politically in a district comprised of Essex, Hamilton and Ipswich.

THE MANUFACTURE OF MUNITIONS and war supplies may have resulted in the making of many fortunes and the creating of work for many hands, but it has its marked disadvantages. The terrific explosions and the ensuing damages done in New York is but a single case in many. It is the more noticeable because so expensive in its devastations. But there have been innumerable other explosions of a lesser kind that have taken their toll in lives, property and treasure. America will repay for every dollar gained by the nefarious traffic. The gains may be legitimate and in keeping with a strict neutrality of nations, but it can hardly square with the finer ethical ideals of which we have boasted so much during the present generation.

THE BALL GAME AT MANCHESTER ON SATURDAY was well contested and brought out the best that was in both teams. The Manchester team had a foe worthy of its mettle in the United Shoe Mach. nine. There would be reasonable expectations of another strongly contested battle if the teams were to meet again. The score is now tied. A series with the United Shoe would create a lot of interest.

THE HAMPTON SINGERS are on the North Shore again for a singing tour. This magnificent school which has been doing so much for the Negroes of the South deserves the royal support which the North Shore residents have always given it. This Institution gave the world Booker T. Washington and this one contribution to the world's workers has been enough to mark it in the annals of the educational interests of America.

Vendors Law to be Enforced

Many Shops Along North Shore Will be Considered Itinerant

From Salem Chamber of Commerce

RETAIL merchants of the large cities like Boston and New York accustomed to opening shops for the season at seaside and summer resorts are now to be considered itinerant vendors and accordingly will come under the Mass. Itinerant Vendor law passed at the 1916 session of the legislature on the petition and backing of Arthur H. Palmer, Frank A. Neff, Harry P. Gifford, J. Clarke Brown, John H. Jenkins and Seth F. Low as the directors of the Mercantile Division of the Salem Chamber of Commerce who also secured the support of many other commercial organizations in various parts of the state.

This means that although merchants in large cities like Boston have already paid a state corporation tax for conducting their regular business they will under the new law be required to pay additional charges for temporary trade.

What this will cost is determined by individual consideration, only the extra tax to the state being fixed, which consists of a charge of $25 for the itinerant vendors license, and the deposit of a $500 bond, which is in each case returned 60 days after the merchant has closed his temporary shop. The license fee, in the particular locality where the shop is opened, is decided after consultation with the local authorities. The charge is based on the amount of stock carried and the duration of the stay together with a consideration of the local tax rate.

This new interpretation of the law is part of the campaign of the Mass. Commissioner of weights and measures to secure more rigorous enforcement. The commissioners' inspectors are in constant duty all over the state and hence are in excellent position to gather information relative to merchants setting up in temporary business in the various cities and towns. Although Massachusetts had a so-called itinerant vendor law for several years it was really a dead letter but with the changes and amendments secured at the last session of the legislature through the initial efforts of the Salem Chamber of Commerce such merchants as are in the habit or practice of opening such temporary shops may now expect to pay out more money for taxes.

Several of the larger merchants in Boston and New York, who in past years have conducted establishments along the North Shore have strenuously objected to the enforcement of the new Itinerant Vendor law, but in response to several inquiries the state sealer of weights and measures has decided to give publicity to the following letter, which clearly sets forth the situation and shows how, through the efforts of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, regularly established year-round merchants along the North Shore will not have as competitors for the business of the summer residents those dealers who only stay during the few months in the height of the summer season and have heretofore escaped paying their proportion of the community expenses through taxes, fees, etc., to the state and the city or town in which they locate.

The letter:

"You ask for an opinion upon the Itinerant Vendor Law in its application to certain Boston merchants and Massachusetts corporations who conduct stores at a seashore resort for the summer season, or, in some cases, only for a week or ten days. You state that in the case of the corporations the State has already collected its taxes and ask what right the towns have to tax these merchants who do business only during the summer, or part of the summer season.

"Fortunately, the Massachusetts Supreme Court has already construed this law in the cases of Commonwealth v. Crowell (156 Mass. 215), and Commonwealth v. Newhall (164 Mass. 338), so that, instead of giving my personal opinion, I am able to answer your queries definitely, having in mind the court decisions to which I have referred.

"In the Newhall case the defendants contended that the statute is a revenue statute and that the licenses were merely for revenue. The Court ruled that 'The statutes purport to be and are passed under the police power of the Commonwealth for the purpose of preventing and punishing fraud in sales by itinerant vendors, and an examination of the statutes makes it appear that such is their real design, and that the provisions for state and local licenses are merely incidental means of compensating the State and the localities in which the itinerant vendors ply their business for the expenses of necessary state and local supervision.'

"In the Crowell case, the Supreme Court rules that 'A party may be engaged in selling temporarily or transiently in one city or town while having a permanent place of business in another. So far as he is engaged in selling temporarily or transiently he comes within the prohibition of the statute, without any regard to the fact that he is also carrying on an established and permanent business elsewhere. Whether his whole business is selling temporarily or transiently, or whether he does it more or less frequently in connection with a permanent business at a fixed place or places, does not matter. He comes in either case within the statute.'

"In view of these decisions it appears that the temporary business conducted by parties at a seashore resort would come within the statute and it would be necessary for the persons conducting such temporary stores to secure state and local licenses.

"Several licenses have been issued by this department since the recent amendment of the law and I believe that in each case the local license fee has been fixed by agreement between the licensee and the local authorities, instead of requiring the payment of a fee equal to the value of the average amount of stock carried. As the licensee has the benefit of the local police, fire and other departments during his stay in the locality and more or less inspection is necessary to protect him from unlicensed competition, he cannot reasonably object to the payment of a moderate license fee.

"It is generally understood that a law of this nature must apply equally to Massachusetts firms, as well as to non-resident or foreign concerns, as it would otherwise be discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional.

"I trust that all merchants will co-operate in the enforcement of the law by informing this department whenever a temporary business is opened in their neighborhood, particularly when the sale is advertised as a 'fire,' 'bankrupt' or 'receiver's' sale, or other sales of that nature.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) THURE HANSON, Commissioner."

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY

What Shall You Wear On Your Vacation?

AREN'T you going to take a vacation this year? A real vacation, I mean, out in the open country. Where you will learn to walk again (you may not believe it, but you have probably forgotten how!), and to breathe again and to really live, perhaps, for the first time. In August, September and October there are going to be some beautiful weeks for just such an outing, and the attractions of the shore and country are greater than at any other time in the year.

For such a vacation you will need clothes a little different from those that suffice for ordinary wear. They must be sensible if you are going to get any real benefit from your rest and they must be attractive if you are to be happy with them.

The first consideration is shoes, for if these are not comfortable and suitable all is lost. In these days of flat heeled shoes there would seem to be little need for a word about this subject, but only too often flat heeled shoes have toes that are injuriously pointed. A straight, broad last is necessary for walking and should be worn even at the cost of a part of the style of one's shoes. Rubber soles are not desirable for warm weather as they are so heavy and heating to the foot. The flexibility of rubber soles may be found in elk; which is much lighter and quite as durable as the rubber. Canvas shoes are cooler than any others, although buckskin and undressed kid are more in vogue. In dark shoes, tan will be found softer and lighter than black and some very smart tan boots are now being shown for fall wear. Stockings, too, are an important point in the question of comfort. Don't try to wear silk or lisle hose on a long walk; wear cotton stockings because they are not only more durable but also softer and more comfortable.

A woolen sweater is quite a necessity for out-of-door life and it may be had in as pretty a shade as may the silk one. The rose colors are especially attractive this season, as are also the yellow. The newest sweater slips on over the head with a "V" neck that is open nearly to the waistline. This in white with white Angora collar and cuffs is pretty. The heavier sweaters for autumn will be made more as the tailored coats are. One in stripes is smartly made with collar and revers and large patch pockets. Another has a little fullness gathered into the belt in back and striped collar and cuffs. Another buttons from the shoulder to the hem and has a high, turnover collar.

For a hat almost any that is soft and substantial will do. Clever, becoming little hats may be made of linen tape sewed 'round and 'round. Soft felt hats, too, are popular with the smart, young vacationist as their colors are so pretty. Knitted caps in checkerboard effects are effective with sweaters and are surprisingly easy to make. If your vacation is to be a little gay, you may like a white hat, either small or large or a smart basket hat with a basket of fruit in front. One clever dark hat was of navy blue straw and its only trimming, a large bunch of flat, purple grapes sewed to the side of the crown. This, you might wear with suit, sweater or silk coat.

The new silk coats by the way are quite the best looking wraps of the season for wear at the summer resort. Of navy blue taffeta in chic models they satisfy every longing. They all have one characteristic—fullness which is sometimes confined by a belt. They are trimmed around the bottom, wrists and neck with three-inch ruffles, deeply picoted. Capes come on many and are quite becoming. By all means have one for evening wear on your vacation.

Fruits in Summer Diet

SO much has been said about the desirability of fruit in the summer diet that there is small need of emphasizing that side of the question here, and perhaps the ease with which fruit may be prepared for the summer meal has been sufficiently dwelt upon, but in many homes this latter point seems to have been lost sight of. Fruits may be made to serve so many purposes in the meal and with comparatively so little effort that it behooves the housewife to keep in touch with new and different methods of preparation. Simplicity should govern the whole summer schedule, particularly in eating, for even if the Colonel's Lady does nothing more in the preparation of the meals than to offer an occasional suggestion, she knows that a contented cook means a comfortable family, and if she is, perchance, her own maid—all the more reason for simplicity! Furthermore, the woman who serves upon her table the tempting fruits now in the market may depend upon the knowledge that nothing more palatable can be found and that nothing more suitable for her entire family can be had.

Fruit must be judged almost wholly by its appearance, as spotted or unripe fruit is never fit for use. Water-melons and cantaloup should be on ice for at least four hours before serving; in fact, all fruits will be found to be more refreshing if chilled.

Sliced Fruits furnish a dessert or a breakfast dish as simple and as delicious as any that one might desire. Pineapples in very thin slices, liberally sprinkled with powdered sugar and placed on the ice until ready to serve, are nice with any meal. Sliced peaches, too, are delicious. They must be peeled and sliced and placed in a dish with plenty of sugar for an hour or two and allowed to remain on ice until serving time. Serve with plain, heavy cream. Sliced oranges may be prepared in the same way, but served without the cream, of course. Another delicious way of serving sliced oranges is fittingly and temptingly nared.

Ambrosia.—A layer of the oranges is first placed in the bottom of the dish, then a sprinkling of powdered sugar, next a layer of grated coconut, then another of oranges and so on until the dish is filled.

Stewed Peaches are preferable to the uncooked fruit in the minds of many. Cut the peaches in halves, leaving the stone in one half. Of sugar and water make a syrup, into which drop the peaches. Allow the whole to simmer until the fruit is tender, then, remove the fruit and allow the syrup to thicken, meanwhile stoning the peaches. Pour the syrup over the fruit and serve warm or cold.

Baked Pears are a favorite New England dish, nearly as well liked and cooked in somewhat the same way as baked beans. Place the pears in a stone jar (a bean pot will do) with the skins still on. Cover with sugar, then another layer of pears, sugar, and so on until the jar is filled. Pour in as much water as there is space for, and bake for three hours.

to the salad family. Black cherries are washed and pitted and the hole filled with a small piece of almond. They are then piled on fresh young lettuce leaves and served with French dressing. A few white cherries used with the black add to the attractiveness of the salad.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT.

In accordance with the redistricting of the towns and cities of the state, Manchester will be taken from the 21st Essex District, which comprises a portion of Gloucester, and put within the 20th,—Wards 4 and 6 of Beverly, which is the section including Beverly Cove, Pride's Crossing and Beverly Farms, and also the town of Essex. The district will have about 2600 voters, divided as follows: Ward 4, 115; Ward 6, 378; Manchester, 661; Essex 489. One representative a year would be sent from the district.

MARK TWAIN-ING ON THE YANKEE COAST

difference to Jones if an article was cut short on page one and continued to page three; he read the rest of it when he got to it. Once in a long while Jones would take the train and go to Lyndon to see a cousin who lived there. He didn't go very often because it cost a heap of money, and Jones didn't make much at this odd-jobbing. One day Jones dressed himself up in his store clothes and set out for the station. Just as he got in sight of it the train pulled out. Jones started lickety-klip after the train. About a hundred yards east of the station was a trestle. When he reached it Jones tripped and somehow managed to fall into the cut. When the bridge tender got to him with a boathook and pulled his head out of the water, Jones was half-drowned but quite collected.

"Wh-when does the next train go?" he sputtered.

Explaining the Red Sea Drive

Talking of reading the papers reminds me of old Job Serviss. Job was a painter by trade and a Bible student by occupation. Mostly he didn't let his trade interfere with his occupation. However, he was a bachelor, and it didn't matter so much. He liked above all else to get some of the young fellows in his cottage on a Sunday afternoon and read and expound the Scriptures to them. One day he had been reading aloud about the miracles performed by Moses, and had had a hard time explaining them to the satisfaction of his audience. When he came to the passage of the Red Sea one of his hearers said:

"Well, Uncle Job, maybe I can understand about the plagues and all that, but I don't see how it was the waters of the Red Sea could be driven back like that to let those folks get through."

"Ye don't, eh?" said Uncle Job, getting a bit impatient at last, and peering over the top of his spectacles. "Well, it was done by the grace of God, damn ye! Can you understand that?"

Had a "Bird"

Then there was Deacon Hutchins. The deacon was a pillar of the church and a total abstainer at a time when a slight indulgence in liquor was thought no ill of. The deacon's closest crony was George Wade, and George was neither a pillar of the church nor an abstainer; no, sir; not by a jugful! The deacon kept a bottle of rum in his closet for purposes of hospitality only, and when George Wade called it was the deacon's custom to say after a while:

"George, I be goin' out to the kitchen for a drink o' water. In that closet there's a bottle of rum, but I forbid ye to tech it!"

Squire Cyrus Weldon, who lived over the line in Millville, was very fond of his glass, and made no bones of it. In fact, the squire, a genial, big-hearted man of sixty-odd, was wont to declare emphatically that a little liquor was necessary to the maintenance of health and morality. The squire's wife was well aware of his views, and, while not sharing them, treated them and his infrequent lapses from the straight and narrow path leniently. On one occasion the squire arrived home very late for supper, and being assisted from his buggy by his man, walked bravely, if unsteadily, into the house.

"Cy, where you been?" asked his wife.

"Shootin'."

"Shooting what, Cy?"

"Swallows."

The Squire's Sabbath

There's one story they tack to the Squire that I don't believe belongs there. I guess someone wanted to tell it and just credited it to the Squire to give it a sort of local interest. Anyway, here it is: The Squire, they say, was met by a neighbor one Saturday afternoon driving into Old Neck in his side-bar buggy. The neighbor pulled up and the Squire pulled up and they passed the time of day and talked about the hay crop, and finally the neighbor asked the Squire where he was going.

"Goin' to The Neck," answered the Squire. "Just discovered awhile ago that I was out of liquor, and to-morrow's the Sabbath. Got to have a little something in the house to observe the Sabbath on, you know."

"That's so, but tain't like you to be out o' liquor, Cy. How'd it happen?"

"Oh, I got a little back there; about a pint," replied the Squire hopefully. "Was you thinkin' of droppin' around?"

"No, I got to get back, Cy. But it seems like you could observe the Sabbath on a pint, Cy, don't it?"

The Squire studied a moment. "We-ell," he said finally and doubtfully, "I suppose I might, but—" disgustedly—"what kind of an observation would it be?"

Always a Favorite

There's one story, though, that I can vouch for. The incident happened not so very long ago, when the hotel over at the lake wanted a telephone put in, and the only way they could get it was by setting up poles in one of the Squire's meadows. The Squire didn't think much of telephones, anyway, and besides didn't want his meadow "strung full o' wires." So he refused his consent and the case went to the General Court. The court issued an order favorable to the telephone company, and the Squire learned of it. When the workmen appeared the Squire ordered a young bull turned into the field. An hour later the Squire wandered over that way. The workmen were seated in a tree and the bull was pawing and bellowing about underneath. The foreman of the gang pulled out a paper and waved it irately at the Squire.

"Hey, call off your bull!" he demanded. "I got an order here."

"What sort of an order?" asked the Squire politely.

"An order from the General Court of Massachusetts giving me permission to set up poles and string telephone wires across this land!"

"Well," drawled the Squire as he turned to walk away, "why don't you show it to the bull?"

Then there was old Henry Silas Sommers. Henry was our best carpenter and builder in those days. After his wife died he employed Mrs. Hattie Phillips to keep house for him. He was a tall, thin old chap and very precise and exact. One day a new workman came to him and announced:

"Mr. Sommers, we need another twelve-foot two-by-four to finish that job."

"Two by four what?" demanded the old gentleman. "Feet?"

"Why, no, sir, inches!"

"Then why don't you say so? What you want is a piece o' joisting two inches by four inches and twelve feet long. Go and fetch it."

Henry kept hens. Once one of his flock got broody, and to cure her Henry took her into his cellar and imprisoned her under a wooden wash tub. It happened that he had an unexpected call to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, and it wasn't until he had been there a day that he remembered the broody hen. So he sent a telegram home to the housekeeper. Mrs. Hat, as she was called, gave one look at the telegram and, without opening it, went off into hysterics. After she'd been brought around by most of the nearby neighbors someone thought to tear the envelope and read the message. It was like this:

Mrs. Hattie Phillips, Care Henry Silas Sommers, Old Neck, Massachusetts:

In the cellar is a tub. Under the tub is a hen. Let her go. Henry Silas Sommers.

Henry had a dry wit and was a good story teller. He had more yarns at the end of his tongue than any man in town. The one I remember best now is the one about Capt. Elias Herron. Here's the way Henry used to tell it:

The Perfect Commuter

"I mind a story they used to tell about Cap'n Elias Herron. You fellows remember Cap'n Elias, don't you? This was in the old days before the railroad came to the Neck an' we had to go over to Shepard's Falls to get the cars. 'Twas a three-mile drive an' like as not when you'd get there the train'd be gone and there'd be no other till afternoon. Well, it seems the Cap'n had to go to Newburyport one time, an' so he rowed over from the light, hired a buggy from Stacey an' set out for the Falls. He got there all right, but before he could get his horse put up an' leg it to the station the train was pullin' out. The Cap'n he waved an' shouted an' swore a little—an' you know Cap'n Elias could swear mighty well! But they didn't see him an' kept right on goin'. So the Cap'n he lit out after the train. He had pretty long legs, the Cap'n had, an' they say as long as they could see him from the station he was gainin' on the train at every leap! He cal'lated he might catch up with it at Saunder's mill, which was only half a mile away. In those days the train used to stop three or four minutes at a station; they wasn't in such an all-fired hurry as they are now.

"Well, when the Cap'n got to Saunder's there wasn't any train in sight. But the agent he was on the platform an' the Cap'n asks: 'Young feller, have you seen a train go by here?' The agent he stares and finally says: 'Yes, sir, the Newburyport train just went through.' 'How far ahead is she?' asks the Cap'n. 'Maybe half a mile by now,' says the agent. 'Sho,' says the Cap'n. 'Blamed if she ain't gainin' on me! An' off he set again down the track.

"Well, sir, he hadn't gone more'n a quarter of a mile further when he sees it. Seems they'd got a hot-box or carried away a tops'l or something, an' the Cap'n he walks up pretty well tuckered out an' climbs aboard. An' pretty soon the conductor comes through the train an' sees him sittin' there an' says: 'Why, Cap'n Herron, where'd you come from?' An' the Cap'n, bein' sort of het up and riled, says:

"'I come from Shepard's, consarn ye, an' I'd be in Newburyport now if your dod-gasted old train hadn't been in the way!'"

Colonial teas that the old Lee mansion seems to come into its own. Then it is that the treasured, attic-stored finery of grandmother's day is brought forth and the present-day daughters of Marblehead become the stately, dignified dames of long ago. The old mansion is a perfect setting. The very walls seem to rejoice and beam approval on the revival of the scenes they once knew. It is then no effort of the imagination to go back across the years. The present slips away of its own accord. It seems to have no place in such a scene, and we find ourselves transported to the delightful days of simplicity of life and living, of freedom from sham and pretense, of faith in God and our fellowmen.

THE SUMMER SOCIAL REGISTER, just issued, when compared with last year shows an increase of six percent in the number of inland summer residences, an increase of three percent in the total number of summer changes, and the effect wrought by the war in residential addresses of American families is still further indicated by a comparison with the last two years, for whereas in 1914 874 families gave foreign bankers for their summer address, last year there were only 208 and this year it has dwindled to 143. Notwithstanding this the foreign departures since the first of April are double those of last year.

The Summer Social Register comprises the summer addresses for the following cities covered by the Social Register where families are not to be found at their winter address appearing in the previous issues for the year: New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Providence, St. Louis, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, St. Paul, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Baltimore, Buffalo, New Orleans, Southern Cities, Seattle, Portland and Southern California.

There are noted: Inland residences, 6772; by the sea, 4009.

The figures show but slight variation from last year with the exception of such places as Bar Harbor, Newport, etc., and both shores of the sound, all of which indicate an increase of 10 percent; 63 families are summering on the Pacific coast as compared with 84 last year; 161 families are summering on their yachts and their addresses may be found care of the yacht club under which their yachts are recorded. In this connection there is noted a marked increase in the number of yachts in commission this year, there being 923 as compared with 748 last year. The name of the yacht, together with a cut describing it as a schooner, sloop or steamer, is placed opposite the name of its owner and at the back of the Summer Social Register all the yachts are arranged in alphabetical order opposite the names of their owners as a key for ready reference. There are also noted the marriages since April 1 of 783 persons as compared with 850 last year, and the deaths of 183 men and 177 women as compared with 220 men and 180 women during the same period last year.

A respectable cat may look at a king—if there isn't a mouse in sight.

AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE filled the beautiful library at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Warren of Pride's Crossing last Friday afternoon when a musicale was given which was in charge of Mrs. Hall McAllister of Boston. The artists were Mme. Marie Sundelius, who has sung in the Metropolitan Opera company, and Mr. Johan Van Bommel of the Hague opera house. Mrs. McAllister's daughter, Miss Louise, is always at the piano in these mid-summer musicales on the North Shore. She was attractively gowned in pale pink chiffon with taffeta trimmings. Mme. Sundelius wore a white embroidered mull dress and Mrs. McAllister was in purple with trimmings of black chiffon. The program closed with a duet from "Hamlet." In the audience were seen Mrs. John Hays Hammond, John Hays Hamond, Jr., Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. Edward J. Holmes, Mrs. M. G. Haughton, the Misses Edwards, Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Mrs. Edward S. Grew, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Mr. and Mrs. Amory Eliot, Mrs. John Denney, Mrs. James M. Newell, Miss Katherine Sigourney and Mrs. Wm. E. Littleton.

Manchester's new highway, recently completed, is meeting with the approval of motorists and others who have occasion to use it. It is regarded as one of the finest pieces of road work in the state. When the estimates of the State Highway Commission were made last fall on the probable cost of the work they were made on a basis of amount of material necessary to do the work at unit prices then prevailing. With those estimates as a basis the town appropriated money for the construction of the highway from the George A. Priest school to the Beverly line. By the time the contract was let the price of all materials had so increased that it appeared doubtful if it would be possible to build the road within the price of the appropriation. With the work completed and other road improvements also having been made from the funds appropriated it now appears the entire cost of reconstruction has been kept within the appropriation by at least $700. The final report of the Highway Commission engineers is expected in a few days.

Manchester failed to land a man in the finals of the Magnolia-Manchester tennis tournament. Dr. Willis was defeated Wednesday morning in two fast sets by Grover of Magnolia, 6-2 and 6-0. In the play-off between Cheney and Hunt of Magnolia, the latter won the place in the finals to compete against Grover.

It took two Manchester policemen to quell a disturbance on Pine street Sunday afternoon, when four Italians much under the influence of liquor, started a battle. The men were using pickaxes and axes for weapons, but the police arrived in time to prevent fatalities. In district court in Salem Tuesday one of the men was discharged as not guilty of the charge of fighting. The sentence of one was suspended and he was probated and two of the men were fined $25.

As an incident to the building of the new highway through the western part of Manchester this season, sidewalks were built at a new grade, flush with the curbing on Bridge street, some distance west from the junction of Central and Pine streets. The new sidewalks are built of "granolithic," a concrete mixture with smooth white finish and are a great improvement upon the old style of sidewalks in general use. It is said that the new sidewalk on Bridge street is the first of many others to be built of the same material in coming years.

Splendid weather favored the concert by the Salem Cadet band in Central sq. on Tuesday evening. The concert was postponed from the previous Thursday because of rain and as a result the attendance was not as great as at the regular concerts. However, several hundred people enjoyed an excellent program, including a cornet solo by Nelson Bernier which was heartily applauded. The next concert is scheduled for next Thursday evening, August 10.

They look for as good a game tomorrow with the heavy end of the score in the Manchester column.

"Busy" or "Don't Answer"?

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS THAT "THE LINE IS BUSY," it is because she has taken the time to test the line called for. It would be easier for her to complete the connection than to make such a report. If the operator did not test on every call, she might plug in on a busy line.

Furthermore, "Busy" means that the line (not necessarily the telephone number you have called) is in use. The subscriber on a four-party line may not be talking, but one of the three other subscribers may be, making the entire line closed to traffic, or some one of the party subscribers may have put in a toll call and the line is being held awaiting its completion. Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters often congest party lines and give cause for protests from other subscribers in common.

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS "THEY DON'T ANSWER," she has done all within her means to compel an answer to her summons. That summoning power is the ringing of a bell, a mechanical signal which says, "Someone desires to speak to you." It remains with the person called to be prompt in responding.

If a subscriber is slow in responding, the calling person may hang up the receiver, assuming that the former is inaccessible. Then there is an additional inconvenience to the called person when the operator reports, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it." The operator who makes that report usually is located at a different switchboard than the operator who rang the bell, and is unable to ascertain where the call originated.

YE ELDER BRETHREN

MANCHESTER'S UNIQUE ORGANIZATION HELD ITS 38TH ANNUAL OUTING.

GAY youngsters to the number of 110, ranging in age from 50 years old to 88 years young, gathered at Tuck's Point, Manchester, for the 38th annual picnic of the Elderly Brethren association yesterday afternoon. In point of numbers, favorable weather and enjoyment, the event was one of the most successful in years. The attendance exceeded last year's turnout by 14.

Not the least youthful in spirit in any degree were the octogenarians who enjoyed the picnic. Nehemiah C. Marshall, 88, was the oldest man present. Other men past 80 were John Rogers Allen, 86; Joseph A. Torrey, J. C. Elliot, both 85; Capt. J. K. Winn, 83; Julius F. Rabardy, 83; N. B. Goldsmith, 82; William Tyler, 82; Charles P. Goldsmith, 81; Charles H. Killam, 81, and Daron W. Morse, 81.

Answering the call of the youthful president of the association, Edwin P. Stanley, the men assembled at two long tables in the pavilion about one o'clock. Following the invocation by the Rev. Charles A. Hatch of the Manchester Congregational Church, the party made a vigorous onslaught upon the appetizing clam and fish chowders prepared by F. H. Crombie, assisted by J. F. Babcock. The manner in which the chowder disappeared would have brought joy to the hearts of the old sea captains of Manchester who were the nucleus of the now large association. Waiters were F. L. Floyd, Francis Bohaker, Manuel Benedict Miguel, Jr., E. Stanley Baker, Carlton Needham and Stanley Beaton, who were given a vote of thanks by the association.

Seated about the tables were many former residents of Manchester and surrounding towns, who came long distances to be present. The roster of those who were seated is as follows:

Following the dinner the company enjoyed a social hour, during which old friendships were renewed and new acquaintances made. A familiar figure at the gathering was Nehemiah S. Herron, 79, Beverly's veteran truant officer, who is serving his 46th year in the office which has brought him the endearing title of the "good Samaritan." During his years of service he has earned the gratitude of hundreds of men who, as unruly boys, came under his discipline and received his good advice. His constant companion during the day was John B. Goldsmith, another Beverly man prominent in Odd Fellowship and for more than 20 years a financial secretary of the order.

Another sturdy figure was that of John Rogers Allen, 87, of Manchester. Mr. Allen was one of the Forty-miners, who sailed from Beverly in the brig Metropolis, with Capt. John Bennett and made the trip "round the Horn."

Missing from the circle was William Johnson, 99, who is the oldest member of the association. He was too feeble to attend.

The report of the secretary, I. M. Marshall, at the business meeting contained the following names of members who have died during the past year: Col. Benjamin F. Cook of Gloucester, 82, on September 3, 1915; Robert Baker, 55, Manchester, September 20, 1915; Larkin W. Story, 76, Beverly, April 13, 1916; Charles O. Howe, 68, Manchester, April 17, 1916; Charles H. Rust, 80, Jenkintown, Pa., Apr. 26, 1916; Rev. E. P. Tenney, 80, Lynn, July 24, 1916; George W. Dew, Melrose, August 19, 1915; John F. Annable, Boston, November 24, 1915; Charles H. Day, Beverly Farms, November 24, 1915; Dev. DeWitt S. Clark, 74, Salem, July 27, 1916.

A deficit of about $25 for the year gave rise to the question of raising the price of the dinner or drawing upon the balance in the bank. It was decided not to advance the price, as it might have the effect of limiting the attendance.

The nominating committee, composed of A. M. Killam, F. W. Bell and D. T. Beaton, brought in the following list of officers for whom the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot: Edwin P. Stanley, president; L. W. Floyd, vice-president; I. M. Marshall, secretary-treasurer; Henry T. Bingham, T. C. Rowe, John G. Haskell, T. B. Stone, C. M. Dodge and F. M. Stanwood, executive committee.

Alfred S. Jewett delivered an encomium on the departed members of the association, making particular reference to Larkin W. Story, who was a valued member of the body. He compared the occasion to that of a roll-call he remembered in the days of campaigning in Louisiana, when after a charge upon a height the roll-call was taken, and he recalled the tense moment as the answer to each name was awaited. He spoke of the tendency to judge the success of a man by the amount of wealth he accumulated or position he attained and declared each man lived to some purpose however slight might be his place. He referred to Mr. Story as a man who had influenced the lives of the men about him by his kindly, jovial disposition.

George E. Willmonton responded to a request for a story with his usual readiness of wit and stock of anecdotes.

Rev. George H. Perkins of Beverly, retired, spoke touchingly of Larkin W. Story, who, he said, brought him to the association for the first time. "He was a fountain of kindness to all who knew him," he said.

"It is an honor to speak to men. There is a greater need today for men than ever before. When the Titanic was sinking Capt. Smith called to his crew, 'Be British, men, be British.' I say to you, be Americans, men, be Americans. You know what that means, you who are descended from the men who founded this country, who were never defeated in offensive or defensive struggle. You know the call of today for men. Never before was there such need of virtue, intelligence and patriotism that our republic might be saved. Those men who have departed from among us were veterans of war, of industry and of civil life and their example has been a worthy one. Our lives are not over. We should live them to the end. Our achievements should not end with our youth. Then when we are gone men will recall that we have lived."

The Rev. Dr. Rider of Essex spoke of the fellowship shown by the gathering. "It is great to feel this 'togetherness.' It is a sample of the spirit that will promote that great brotherhood which Burns prophesied. We can't have a good time without we get together. The world is an echo—give and the world gives back to you. We are glad to live when we are on this North Shore. It is not the scenery that gives us this joy of living, although it is the most wonderful you can find; it is the character of the men and women who have built up your community and whose influence we feel today. The world is better because they have lived. After all this terrible warfare is over it is just such fellowship as there is here today that is going to settle everything. It was so after the Civil war. What we need today is not an increase of armament, but an increase in the American spirit, and by that I mean not the spirit of combination, but of co-operation."

Julius F. Rabardy spoke of Col. Cook of Gloucester, who died the past year. He related an incident on the battlefield of Antietam, depicting the character of the late member of the association.

Horace H. Atherton, clerk of the Essex County Probate Court, declared that he was at a loss to understand why he had been selected to speak, as his only connection with Manchester was a railroad connection. He said that the judgment of a man's worth to the world as made in the probate office was based on an inventory of the estate he left, and that too often that was also the basis of judgment of the outside world. There should be double standards of judging a man's success in life, he declared. The success of the man who has lived well and been of service to others should also be recognized. Concluding, he said, "I am doing something which none of the ministers here dared do; I am taking a text and it is found in I Timothy, VI; 7—'For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can take nothing out.'"

Francis M. Stanwood spoke of the tendency of speakers to deviate from the purpose of an occasion to talk of matters foreign to it. He touched on the preparedness question, which he said was being heard on every occasion.

"From recent articles in magazines we might be led to believe that America is unprepared, that we are in a state of degeneracy, that the stamina of old had been lost. They tell us this because we have not followed the diplomacy of England, the genius of France, the science of Germany and the antiquity of Italy, which have led only to an armed conflict of 25 million men. It is all nonsense. They do not digest the American character. If that war, which they tell us will inevitably come, is thrust upon us, the American character will solidify itself to meet the strain upon it." He prophesied that in the event of such a struggle for the conquest of America the end would find the greatest army in the history of the world assembled here, just as the grandest army in history up to that time was found in America following the Civil war.

Julius F. Rabardy denounced the spirit of militarism which, he believed, threatened America.

The Rev. P. H. Cressy of Beverly spoke briefly regarding the spirit of the gathering.

The singing of old familiar songs between speeches was led by Rev. A. G. Warner. "Auld Lang Syne" was sung at the end.

FIRST DEFEAT.

U. S. M. TURNED TABLES ON MANCHESTER, SHUTTING OUT LOCALS, 6 TO 0.

After annexing eight straight victories, Manchester was interrupted in its forward march with a sudden jolt last Saturday. The stonewall which impeded the progress of the victorious ball team was discovered in the nine representing the United Shoe Machinery Company of Beverly. The person most vitally responsible for Manchester's 6-to-0 defeat was none other than the southpaw named Hart, whom Manchester knocked from the box in the game last Labor Day. Both Hart and the shoe team which Manchester trimmed on Memorial Day were eminently satisfied with the whitewashing given the local team on Saturday.

Although the responsibility for four of the shoe team's runs can be found in the Manchester error column, there is the undeniable fact that the above-mentioned Mr. Hart had "stuff" on the ball which baffled the Manchesterites. He had an ugly "spitter" and speed to burn. When he started in to put everything he had onto the ball it was freely predicted that he would last about four innings, but sad to relate, he grew stronger as the game progressed and was only once in danger of being scored upon. Two lonesome hits, secured in the seventh and eighth innings, were the sum total of Manchester's achievement in the hitting line.

Nothing of note happened in the opening innings except that Hart blanked the seaside boys in order. In the third inning the last three men in the batting order fanned in succession. In the first five innings just one man got to first and for six innings Manchester went hitless. On the other hand, Grover held the shoe sluggers well in hand until the fourth inning, when Shean caught the ball squarely for a two-bagger. Holcomb drove a hot grounder to O'Leary, who snapped the ball to Devlin for an out. Devlin, in his anxiety to get Shean at third for a double play, threw the ball over O'Leary's head into the crowd, and Shean scored. Devlin caught Twitchell's fly and Mulligan was caught napping off the bag by Grover. Mulligan got on first when his grounder to O'Leary took an uncertain bounce off the third corner and went for a hit. He took a good lead off first and then tried to steal second, when Grover whipped the ball to Devlin. He was an easy out for Herron.

In the fifth Grover struck out Peterson, Foster and Hart in order. Dowdall got to first in the sixth inning, when Herron juggled the ball. He advanced to second on Glenn's sacrifice bunt, which dropped two feet from the plate. Grover tried to field Shean's smash with one hand and let the runner get to first, Dowdall going to third. Both runners scored on Holcomb's single to Gourley.

In the first of the seventh Herron stopped Peterson's hit at the beginning of a long drive by going into the air and pulling down the ball with a beautiful one-hand catch. Hart was robbed of a hit in the same inning, when Herron scooped up his drive over second base. Manchester made its nearest approach to scoring in this inning. Cody got to first on balls and scored from the initial sack on Devlin's two-bagger. Under the ground rules he was called back to third as the hit was a few feet to the right of the flag in right field. With two men on the bases Herron and Conley struck out and Collins popped into Peterson's hands.

Dowdall singled to Conley in the eighth and was advanced on Glenn's single to center. Both scored on Shean's drive to right. Shean was out, Devlin to Herron, on Holcomb's grounder. Twitchell's single to Collins advanced Holcomb and bad throws by Perkins let in Holcomb. Thus ended the scoring. With perfect fielding the score might have been 2 to 0, but with the poor stick work of Manchester that is the best which might have befallen them.

BOY SCOUT FIELD DAY

A public exhibition of a scale not attempted in this locality before will be given in demonstration of the training of the Boy Scouts of the North Shore and vicinity at Tuck's Point, West Manchester, tomorrow. The demonstration, to which the public is invited, will take the form of a field day. If the plans go through about 100 scouts will take part, including troops from Wenham, Beverly, Salem, Gloucester and other nearby places.

The program as arranged by Scoutmaster A. G. Warner of Manchester, although subject to change, is substantially as follows:

10.45 a. m.—Assemble at railroad station, Manchester, escorted by Manchester troop, march to Tuck's Point.

11.15 a. m.—Water sports.

12 m.—Basket lunch (Manchester scouts furnish lemonade).

12.45 p. m.—Policing the grounds.

1.15 p. m.—Troops assemble under respective leaders.

1.45 p. m.—First call (Manchester bugler).

2 p. m.—Assembly call.

2.15 p. m.—Event No. 1, march in review. Event No. 2, opening exercises (attention, right dress, scout colors, pledge to the flag, etc.) Event No. 3, stunts (a. fire building, lighting and water boiling contest; b. fire lighting without matches; c. day in camp, pitch tent, make bed, strike tent and march away; d. special stunts, each troop furnishing its own specialty). Event No. 4, scout games. Event No. 5, tent pitching contest, first aid demonstration, roller bandage and stretcher making, fireman's lift. Event No. 6, signalling in international Morse code; pyramid building for signalling. Event No. 7, knot-tying contest. Event No. 8, 440-yard relay race. Event No. 9, special events chosen at grounds by respective troops.

The closing exercises will include a parade of the grounds, short addresses, the singing of "America," "retreat" and the lowering of the colors. Following "taps" the first call will be sounded, followed by "assembly." The troops will then march from the parade grounds.

An elm tree which was cut down on School st., Manchester, this week was about 60 years old. It was one of a row on the west side of the street near the Baptist church, which were set out together many years ago. It had rotted down from the top and was becoming a menace to traffic. All of the other trees along the street are still flourishing.

Last Sunday was observed to be a "yellow day" by those familiar with this phenomenon of the weather. A thick, smoky haze diffused the sun's rays in the upper strata of the atmosphere, while lower down rain clouds had a darkening effect. An unusual effect of this peculiarity of the atmosphere was observed by many on Monday evening. The sunset was particularly brilliant and the entire sky was illuminated by crimson clouds. When the electric street lights were first lighted they glowed with a pale phosphorescent green, which gradually became white as the effect of the sunset diminished.

Entries for the men's singles tennis tournament, which will start next week at the playground, are as follows: C. Smith, John Danforth, Dr.
 F. A. Willis, Sydney Marshall, R. P.
 Young, A. C. Needham, Archer Gibson, Donald Crafts, Gordon Crafts, William Francis, John Knox, Stanley Beaton, A. G. McKinnon, D. Gillis, C. W. Smith and Abbott Foster.
 Games will be arranged by the contestants between 5.30 a. m. and 7
 p. m., except on Saturdays. A junior tournament will begin on August 9 under the direction of Playground Director McCarthy.

The Board of Assessors have about completed their work of compiling a valuation on which to base a tax-rate and they will be prepared to announce the rate Saturday, in all probability.
 Contrary to general expectations that the rate would be in excess of last year's levy of $10, the rate this year will be about the same as last, if not less. This much was admitted by Chairman E. S. Knight yesterday.

 They claimed that they patrol the support. They have no settled headquarters, and while they are not guilty of fraud, their scheme is so obviously worthless that subscription to their

BEVERLY'S TAX RATE $15.60.

Beverly's tax rate for 1916 will be $15.60, a cut of 60 cents a thousand from the figures of last year. Announcement of the new rate was made Tuesday by the assessors.

Total valuation for 1916 is $48,072,480 of which $21,896,238 is personal property and $26,176,250 is real estate. This is a gain in total valuation of $3,423,656, covered by $1,856,281 in personal property and $1,567,375 in real estate.

There are 6,667 polls assessed this year, a falling off of 138 from the figures of last year. Ward One has the largest number of polls, 1,544, while Ward Four is second with 1,280 and Ward Five a close third with 1,253. Ward Four (Beverly Cove-Pride's) still maintains its reputation as the richest ward in the city with a valuation of $14,724,850 with Ward Six (Beverly Farms—Prides Crossing) second with $9,337,475. The non-resident total tax is $9,218,852.

A minstrel show will be given at the Women's club, August 17-18.

Frederick W. Eaton of Worcester spent the week-end visiting his parents at the parsonage.

Mrs. W. R. Boyd and daughter, Mary, spent the week-end at Lynn visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Ralph Bannon.

The usual services will be held at the Village Church next Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and at 8.15 p. m. Dr. Eaton, the pastor, will preach.

The Sunday school of the Village Church will hold its annual picnic at Salem Willows, Monday, August 21. Further notice will be given later.

The "Lend a Hand Club" went to Manchester Tuesday night to attend the band concert, a little outing which the busy women of the club richly deserved.

Rev. James DeNormandie, D. D., minister of the First Religious Society (Unitarian), Roxbury, will conduct the service at the Union Chapel, Sunday morning at 10.45 o'clock.

Lyman Butler, who has been working for Perkins & Corliss, Gloucester, has recently secured a much more lucrative position as chauffeur for a wealthy family on the North Shore.

Wilson B. Richardson of Western avenue has invented a grass-catcher, to be attached to edging shears that are used around drives, walks and flower-beds. This labor-saving tool is already in demand and doubtless it will find a ready sale when it is placed on the market. Mr. Richardson has applied for a patent, and as there is nothing like it in existence, the patent will doubtless be granted.

A number of the village boys met at the parsonage Tuesday night to form a troop of Boy Scouts. Among the boys who were present and interested are Layton Symonds, William Edmunds, Paul Foster, Victor Nelson, Ernest Lucas, Henry Sampson, Samuel Emerson, Ernest Emerson, Donald Story, Egnar Swanson. The pastor of the Village Church will act as scout master and Layton Symonds as assistant scout master. The boys were given some lessons to learn between now and the first of September, when they will meet again at the parsonage.

Col. C. H. French will give a series of four magnificently illustrated entertainments at the Village Church on the evenings of August 13, 14, 15, 16, the subjects being, "India," "The Grand Canyon of the Colorado River," "Japan," "Rome."

The Men's club is having an unusually successful season and just now special interest is taken in tennis, pool, checkers and bowling. August 12th is the date of the cabaret show, and dancing parties will be given August 5th and 9th.

Ernest Lucas has a position at P. S. Lycett's grocery store.

The annual Lawn Party in aid of St. Joseph's Parish will be held on the grounds of Mrs. John Chane, Thursday afternoon and evening of Aug. 10. Dancing will be in the large barn with special music, and the attractions, which have made this fete locally famous, will be augmented by several new ones which will be appreciated by young and old. If stormy, the affair will be held the following pleasant day.

"Of course," said Mrs. Twickembury, "he didn't derive much material benefit from his act, but think of the eclat that he won."

WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN?

With all New England stirred to its social depths over the controversy over the subject of Birth Control, as explained by the over-crowded mass-meeting held at the Majestic Theatre last Sunday evening, it is no wonder that the crowds continue to pack the Majestic Theatre to its capacity at four performances daily to see that daring photoplay, "Where are My Children?" which has just passed its 100th performance at that house. And still there is no falling off in the attendance.

Our 39 Years Experience, Your Benefit

Miss Alice F. Stevens of Rockland, Me., has spent the past week at Beverly Farms visiting friends.

"Was I rude this afternoon?" a little girl asked her mother. "I hope not, my dear," said the mother. Little Girl: "Well, our teacher was examining us in poetry—'Casabianca'—and she asked me why did the boy stand on the burning deck, and I said because it was too hot for him to sit down; and she made me stand in the corner."—Stray Stories.

Woodrow Wilson may have a one-track mind, but if the New Haven had his switching facilities it could handle a week's traffic through the South Station in a single afternoon. —Boston Transcript.

A distinguished lawyer from the East, chatting with Justice McFarland of the California Supreme Court, asked, in reference to a matter of legal procedure, "The Supreme Court is the highest tribunal in the state, is it not?" "Yes," assented the justice. "It is the court of ultimate conjecture."—Exchange.

BEVERLY FARMS

There will be a lawn party at the Beverly Farms playground next Wednesday, August 9, for the benefit of the Ward 6 playgrounds. There will be sports, gypsy fortune telling and other features in the afternoon. There will be music and dancing in the evening.

There will be another public dance in Neighbor's hall next Thursday evening under the auspices of the North Shore Cadets band. It will be the third of a series of entertainments by the band.

The many Beverly Farms friends of Mrs. Edward F. Gunnison of 46 Federal st., Beverly, extend to her their deep sympathy. Mrs. Gunnison's husband was killed in the B. & M. yards, Boston, where he was employed as a trackman. Mrs. Gunnison is a member of Preston Relief Corps. The corps visited Mr. and Mrs. Gunnison on the 10th of June when they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Lyons of Williamstown have been visiting friends here the past week.

William F. Eddy and family, who have been living in the Fanning house, High st., have leased the Hadley house, Hart st.

Commencing next Sunday a two weeks' mission will be conducted at St. Margaret's church under the direction of Rev. Fr. Tierney of the Redemptorist Order. The first week will be for women and the following week for men.

Joseph Tilson, who has been superintendent of "Edgewater," the Leiter estate, resigned his position last Tuesday and for the present will be employed by John L. Chapman, who recently went into a commercial nursery and gardening business.

At the Beverly Farms Baptist church the minister, Rev. Clarence Strong Pond, will preach next Sunday morning on "The Messages of James the Brother of Our Lord to the present generation; II, The Ministry of Christ and the Principles of Democracy." The Bible School will meet at noon. The Christian Endeavor meeting will be held at 6.45 p. m., lead by Miss Chiara. The church extension service will be held at 7.30, address by Rev. Edward C. Winslow, representing the Little Wanderers Home of Boston. The Christian Endeavor society will hold a lawn party on the Hadley estate on Tuesday afternoon and evening. There will be a doll's coaching party for children in the afternoon and in the evening there will be shadowgraphs and music. The Lothrop orchestra of Beverly will furnish the music. There will be a mid-week service on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. A special musical service will be given in the church on Sunday evening, August 13, under the direction of the choir. Master Clarence Knudson, violinist, will play. There will be orchestral selections and an organ recital by the organist. The choir will sing special selections.

LARCOM'S NEW ORGAN

Beverly will hereafter point with pride to the fact that it has one of the finest motion picture theatres in New England. Next week the magnificent new Austin pipe organ, which cost a small fortune, will be played at the Larcom Theatre for the first time. The N. H. Ware Company has also ordered a beautiful new stage setting, which will represent a rare Japanese garden, giving a wonderful background for the pictures. The changes at the Larcom will make it in every respect one of the best equipped of New England theatres.

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN

Summer residents of the North Shore, who have been accustomed to patronize the New York Strand or to attend regularly theatres exhibiting feature pictures released on the Paramount program, will be interested in the announcement of the Strand Theatre management at Lynn of the coming appearance, next week, of Mary Pickford in her latest release, "Hulda of Holland." Miss Pickford and a carefully selected company of screen stars spent several months in the preparation of this big feature and recent criticisms of its New York premiere praised it highly as a most creditable performance by that popular young artiste. The Pickford picture will head the program at the Strand for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. On the same program will appear Frank Keenan in a splendid production of "The Phantom." Mr. Keenan is noted for his wonderful character impersonations and in this production he is said to be at his best.

On Sunday afternoon and evening Joe Knowles, who startled the country by living like the primitive man in the wilds of the Maine woods for several months, will be seen in "The Nature Man," a novel play based on his thrilling exploits of those long days in Maine's tall timber.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the management will present Marie

JEWELRY REMODELING

Salem, Mass.

The stones from these old-fashioned pieces were reset in the artistic mountings shown below

The time has passed when a jewel is fashionable simply because it is a diamond-set ring, pendant or brooch. The styles in jewelry change just as surely as in gowns, and never before has there been a period when "Dame Fashion" has been so exacting in her demands that the jewelry shall possess true artistic merit as well as commercial value. The old style gold-set pieces, often with very little artistic merit, have given way to platinum-set jewelry, beautiful in design and workmanship.

Platinum is a pure white metal, extremely hard when combined with iridium, and when used as a mounting for diamonds holds them more securely and shows them to better advantage than gold. Many designs, lacy in appearance, can be fashioned in platinum because of its strength in a way that would be impossible in gold. Through the medium of our designer and workshop we can fashion the stones mounted in your old-fashioned pieces either alone or with others we may add, into an exquisite piece of platinum jewelry. By employing high-class workmen the result is a beautiful ring, brooch, bar pin or lavalliere rather than several smaller pieces having no particular merit. The new piece of jewelry will be correct in style and original in design, making it stand out in striking contrast to the ordinary "stock" pieces.

These exquisite pieces of platinum jewelry, both stylish and artistic in design, add the finishing touch to the costume of the most exacting person. All these pieces were fashioned at various times for our customers, from stones taken from just such relics as are pictured above. This cut shows photographs of the finished sketches submitted free of charge for your inspection, and which give as clear an idea as possible of the appearance of the finished article. Some show a few principle stones of the owner mounted together with small ones furnished by us to finish out the design. Others show only customers' stones.

We will gladly advise you concerning remodeling, furnishing original designs, or following some suggestion of your own. Giving as clear an idea as possible of what you wish when sending the stones, will save us expensive designs in which you are not interested and enable us to serve you more quickly and more satisfactorily.

IMPORTANT NOTICE. Last Fall an unexpected rise in the cost of platinum so increased the cost of resetting in this metal that many hesitated to place their orders. Since Christmas, however, the price has dropped somewhat owing to the small amount of manufacturing. We have fair warning, however, that the price of platinum will reach a point this Fall higher than ever dreamed of. For this reason, you cannot afford to neglect any remounting work you may have planned for this year. An immediate order will mean a distinct saving.

Driving About Old Cape Ann

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

III

WITHOUT doubt, the most beautiful drive filled with a variety of scenery and interest to be found anywhere on the North Shore, is that stretch of land, East Gloucester, lying to the east and south of Cape Ann, like a great promontory, the great surges of the Atlantic beating upon one side, the calm and peaceful harbor being located on the other.

It takes one who is thoroughly acquainted with this beautiful country, one who knows of its early history, its people, its every nook and cranny, delightfully picturesque and romantic, to give to the tourist a faithful pen picture and story of this famous resort.

Our last drive took us as far as the Gloucester custom house and postoffice. We proceed along the Main street turning to our left from the postoffice, until we reach Eastern avenue, where the trolley turns to go to Rockport. We keep to our right and here begins East Main street. A little way on our right we reach an open space where a fine view of the harbor can be had, giving us a good idea of the extent of wharfage and the number of fishing craft either at anchor or tied up along the sides of the wharves. The small island a short distance beyond is Five Pound Island, while farther out lies Ten Pound Island with Norman's Woe and the Magnolia shore in the distance. The islands derived their names from the fact that the government purchased the tracts of land from the Indians for five and ten pounds, respectively.

The first hill we ascend is "Point Hill," so named by the early settlers because it was really the entrance road to East Gloucester or "the point" which is the familiar name applied to the colony.

Several old houses may be seen along the road, but perhaps the most interesting is the old Sayward house, 175 years old, down over the other side of the hill. There are two ways to get a glimpse of this interesting landmark. One is secured by glancing down the little road to the right of the Wheeler engine place or garage and another is through the open space to the right, between the big garage and the Gorton Pew Fisheries plant. Through this open space we also get a beautiful view of the inner harbor.

The next object of interest on our way is the extensive Slade Gorton branch of the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company. Visitors are privileged to go over the entire establishment and a guide will show you how excellently the fish food is prepared for the trade, from the drying and cutting to the packing in cans, bottles and boxes. It is a most interesting process and to one who is especially interested in the chief industry of the city, the opportunity of inspecting the plant should not be allowed to pass.

Continuing our drive along East Main street, following the trolley car track, we are really skirting the edge of the harbor. We pass many residences and buildings with an occasional glimpse of the water front, but virtually back of them are the old wharves and fish houses where the fishing industry of Gloucester began so many years ago. It was from these Parsons, Wonson, Sayward, Haskell and Tarr firms that great fleets of vessels sailed with their sturdy crews, building up a valuable industry that made Gloucester famous as the biggest fishing port in the country and the second largest in the world. If a visitor chances to meet an "old salt" on one of these wharves, one who is familiar with the early fisheries, no doubt that visitor would arch his eyebrows high with surprise at the activities of the early years, related to him by the salt. Things have changed. "The larger amount of the business is now on the 'town' side," the old salt will say to you, and he will quickly add "its mostly summer boarders now."

As we continue along East Main street we come to the old ferry landing, a long pier, picturesque with its tall piling, the subject for many an artist's brush. In the background can be seen a beautiful view of the harbor and the city buildings and tall spires against the sky. It was in this locality of the ferry landing, that in 1713, Capt. Andrew Robinson, the New England boat designer gave a new type of craft to the world. A radical change was made in the accepted modes of rigging and such a novel departure attracted a great deal of attention. At the launching of this new craft, the vessel glided so smoothly over the water as she left the ways, that a spectator cried, "See how she scoons!" Capt. Robinson, alert for a name for the new model, immediately replied, "A schooner let her be" and this name has continued in use. It was this locality where the schooner got its name. There is no mention of the word "schooner" in any marine work previous to this event.

About a half century ago, the main road ended at this point near the ferry landing and there was but a foot path which led to Eastern Point and the lighthouse. In the early days, before the "omnibus" it was common to see people climbing a wall or passing through the old turnstile, on their way to "the point." Quite a change for now-a-days we see hundreds of the finest types of scurrying automobiles and trolley cars passing about every fifteen minutes, with a steam ferryboat to our right conveying passengers across the harbor every half hour, although it takes but seven minutes for the actual trip, when one is conveyed from the landing on the East side to the main street, of the city proper. There are several old houses in the vicinity of the ferry landing, across the street. They are the Douglass, Lunt, Brazier and Coas houses, all a century old with the exception of the latter.

As we pass the ferry landing, we view the extensive Reed and Gamage branch of the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company. The drying flakes (the racks on which the fish are dried) are of particular interest to sight-seers. As we draw near to the group of yellow buildings we note one of the pioneer fishing firms, that of John F. Wonson & Company, from which many fine fishing schooners sailed to the "Banks" and returned with splendid trips of cod and other fish.

Many picturesque scenes come to view as we pass along towards Rocky Neck. Perhaps you have heard of this place. East Gloucester, as you may already know, is the mecca for artists from everywhere. This season you can reckon on 300 painters, many being "artists" if you please. Before you reach Rocky Neck, the red studios begin to blaze out prominently, but on Rocky Neck, here and there in little buildings and big buildings with their weather-beaten shingles, situated on the edge of the water, where the tides swirl in liquid notes or located on pilings over the harbor waters, may be found painters of great prominence working on extraordinary canvases for the fall and winter exhibitions. One man tells me it is difficult sometimes to get the effect of the roofs of some of the quaint buildings, they are so heavily covered with classes of students, umbrellas red and green, hoisted in the blaze of the summer sun.

Rocky Neck, about a half century ago, was an island when the tide was high. It was also a sheep pasture sometime before that and the land could have been purchased for several hundred dollars. Now there are a very large number of houses, a chapel, two hotels, the Rockaway and Pilgrim House, besides business firms at the end of the avenue, the Gloucester Salt Fish Company, the Rocky Neck marine railways, an especially interesting place to visit, where vessels are hauled up for repairs, beside the Tarr and Wonson copper paint factory situated on the other side of the Neck. The trolley car line has been made possible, by the building of a peninsular road by the city years ago. Rocky Neck is picturesque in every quarter. The Gloucester Yacht clubhouse is situated at the end of the first street on the left, passing the causeway and near the Hotel Rockaway. After viewing Rocky Neck we will continue in our next article in the BREEZE, along the lovely summer colony roads and points of natural interest, so beloved by the summer residents and annual visitors to these shores—East Gloucester, the beautiful.

Dutch Garden at Hamilton

Spot of Rare Beauty and Exquisite Delight

The Dutch Garden of Alexander Cochrane at Hamilton

DISTANT, secluded and beautiful is the Dutch garden in Hamilton on the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cochrane, who also have a beautiful place in Pride's Crossing. Several Italian gardens, the one Sicilian garden on the North Shore (belonging to the Guy Normans of "Bee Rock," Beverly Cove), and the only Japanese garden (at "Uplands," the Manchester home of the Frank P. Fraziers), have been brought to special notice in the BREEZE. But tucked away in Hamilton is a surprisingly charming and unique garden, where Mr. Cochrane has gathered old flowers cherished in gardens of our grandmother's day, and many flowers typical of Holland. In the early spring the tulips of the Dutch hold forth, then iris, hollyhocks, and other old favorites in their time.

The little garden is entered by a small white gate in the pretty hedge fronting it. The cement wall is best seen from the gate. It surrounds three sides of the garden and is protected from the weather by a picturesque capping of shingles. The noticeable part of this wall is at the back of the garden, where, directly opposite the little front gate, is the shelter house, made in the wall. This cosy little place, filled with chairs and a garden table, has a thatched roof of oat straw, made in the exact way of the old country roofs. It was made by a native of Ireland. A thatched bird house is also seen perched high upon a pole in one corner. The garden is centered with a fountain. Goldfish dart among the lilies in the basin which is one of the attractive features of the place. A bird bath of dark composition is at one side. This was brought from England by Mr. Cochrane, and is found to draw more birds than those of white glaring material. Its large pebbly basin must look cool and inviting to Hamilton birds flying over the hot, dusty meadows of that section. A sundial, also brought from England, stands in the garden.

*I mark not the hours
Unless they be bright;
I count not the hours
Of darkness and night.
My promise is solely*

*To follow the sun
And point out the course
His chariot doth run.*

After reading the inscription and viewing the effective little garden as a whole, one can leave it by a back gate into the berry garden, or by the front gate, and pass by the house into the rose garden. The attractive, English looking house of stucco and brown shingles has a new sun-room which opens into the rose garden. These are recent features added to the place. Also the fruit house where grapes and nectarines are growing luxuriantly. The Dutch garden was made about two years ago. It has added much to the charm of the place, and the Cochranes make almost daily trips from their home in Pride's Crossing to this delightful country home in Hamilton.

Sydith Terrace at Beverly Farms

Fine Display of Roses, Phlox, Japanese Iris and Lilies

"SYDITH TERRACE" is in the midst of its lily season.

For about six weeks the pure white candidum lily reigns in the beautiful gardens at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson at Beverly Farms. The gardens show a fine display of roses, phlox and iris as their chief attraction in other flowers. The long and orderly beds are massed for color effects, and are bordered in English box of low growth. The roses, about fourteen varieties in all, ranging from the rich tea rose to the baby ramblers, fill bed after bed and run riot over archways near a great willow tree, standing at one end of the garden sentinel-like. The lilies are in four long beds, and their whiteness forms a striking contrast for their bright red and pink neighbors. Adjoining this flower garden and lying directly opposite the West Beach bathing pavilion is low swampy land flooded by both salt and fresh water. The Hutchinsons have had a force of men at work converting this into a natural garden. There are no trees on the spot, but trees are to be planted, wild flowers brought to it and with rocks and grass this will be made into a natural looking garden this summer and fall. The large vegetable garden of the Hutchinsons (see photograph) shows many attractive vegetable beds bordered with flowers used especially for cutting, and also some old-fashioned flowers are seen here. A visit to the green house shows luscious melons, tomatoes and long cucumbers. But "Sydith Terrace" must be remembered not for its vegetables and assortments of flowers, but for its Japanese iris, its lilies and roses, of which there are none more beautiful anywhere on the North Shore.

THE MID-SUMMER TENNIS TOURNAMENT which has attracted many at the North Shore Swimming Pool, Magnolia, for the past week, both in spectators and participants of the representative contingent of the Magnolia and East Gloucester colonies, played off its semi-finals Saturday afternoon with a deep glow of interest and enthusiasm. The splendid courts were lined, several deep with on-lookers, the feminine portion of which was gaily gownned in rainbow hues shown in sport clothes or sweaters and the like. One pretty debutante, who refused to divulge her name, was aglow in a sunburst glow of sport skirt of golden tints surmounted by a golden brown sweater, confined at the waist with a yellow ooze leather belt and a fetching "turned down all around" sport hat of yellow felt with brown band.

In the semi-finals of the ladies' singles Miss Frances Brainard defeated Adelaide Brainard with a score of 6-4, 6-3; Miss Brandon defeated Mrs. Godfrey with a score of 6-love, 6-2.

In the men's singles J. Gray beat W. B. Olmstead, 6-3, 6-4; Dr. Emerson beat Jack Denison, 6-3, 6-love.

In the ladies' doubles, semi-finals, Miss Brandon and Mrs. Ehrich easily defeated Mrs. Quackenbush and Miss Helbin, the score being 6-1, 6-love, and Miss Isabella Wadsworth with Miss Frances Brainard as her partner defeated Miss Josephine Stevens and Miss Carl with a score of 6-3, 6-love.

In the mixed doubles semi-finals, Miss Snucker and F. N. Olmstead defeated Miss Stevens and Mr. Penhallow, 8-10, 6-2, 6-4.

The famous detective gasped as he arrived at the scene of the crime. "Heavens," said he, as he looked at the window through which the thief had escaped, "this is more serious than I had expected!" It's broken on both sides!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Winchendon—the Nuremburg of America

Toys and Toymakers Abound at “Toy Town”

KATHERINE GAUSS

THE hackneyed phrase, “on account of the war,” as an excuse for almost every change in the business and mercantile world again comes to the fore in the discussion of toys, for it is primarily because of the let-up in foreign toy shipments that has given the American toymakers a chance to show what good material they not only can, but will, turn out for the youth of this country.

Despite the fact that last Christmas found “Made in Germany” toys in the markets, yet it was also very evident that the finished product of the American trade had received a decided advance in the favor of the toy shopper. This was due to the favorable contrast between the oftentimes grotesque and slipshod toys to which we have been accustomed, and the true and substantial articles “Made in America.”

Although there are large toy factories scattered all over the United States, the centre of toydom is at Winchendon, Massachusetts, which is often called the “Nuremburg of America,” meaning Toy Town. The Converse factory in this town is the largest of the toy factories and covers over six acres of land and employs more than 300 operatives.

“Morton E. Converse and Son” was the pioneer in toy manufacturing in this country. The enterprise was started in 1878 in Waterville, with twelve employes and the smallest possible space, under the firm name of Mason & Converse. Morton E. Converse superintended and manufactured from his own designs and patents. The business was a success from the very start and when the site of the factory was moved to its present location Mr. Converse bought out his partner's share, purchased the Monadnock mill and took his son into the business as an active manager.

For the young folk it would be disillusionment, for toy making in their eyes is an occupation carried on in a most marvelous way by Santa Claus, as is evidenced by the abundance of drums, engines and other toys, with which they are showered each Christmas. But for the older folk, who are wiser, if sadder, the trip through a toy factory is in itself a fairyland, for many and intricate are the processes of making the various toys.

The first place to be visited in this great Converse factory is the room which receives the rough boards straight from the mill. These are sorted, trimmed, smoothed and cut into variety of lengths, according to the department to which they are assigned. Many of the cuttings are shipped into a room filled with vats, which have a color and varnish mixture, which stains the boards a dark, glossy brown, while others are sent at once to this and that department all over the plant.

One of the most important products of this factory is the drum, and it is said that over sixty different styles are manufactured. In the season, the output for a day, on one single style, if placed one on top of the other, would reach a height equal to eleven times that of Bunker Hill monument. Little drums which are to found later, in the Five and Ten Cent stores all over the country, vie in importance with the more expensive boy scout drums, with their stained wooden sides and real sheepskin heads.

One entire room, most uncomfortably hot, is devoted to the steaming of thin strips of wood which are later rolled out to form a foundation for the expensive wooden drums, while still another room, filled with large presses, turns out sheets of metal with the three-color lithographic work which forms the sides of the small but gay tin drums.

Later when the lithographed tin sheets have been clamped together by machinery, girls stretch paper over them and they are strung with gay cords to make the paper head secure. The wooden drums are tacked very carefully by hand, varnished and stretched with sheepskin and beautifully strung with white cord and leather ornaments and packed in specially constructed shipping boxes. These last named drums are the best type of drum found anywhere.

The success of many of the toys of newer design depend on their perfectness of shape, size and cutting and so specially constructed machines are used to do the work. For instance the “Makatoy,” a new puzzle construction toy issued last year, depends on a machine which cuts accurately the flat metal parts and presses them out into the required shape and design. Then the parts are assembled and another machine clamps them together, while wooden sticks of a set length and thickness are the work of still another design of machine. These parts are then assembled by hand and packed into individual mailing tubes, ready for the market.

Have you ever wondered how a rocking horse was made, with his beautifully dappled coat of paint and his long, flowing mane and tail? When the visitor to Winchendon first arrives he becomes aware that this is the home town of the rocking horse, for at the railroad station a huge horse presides over the fortunes of the townspeople who frequent the station at train time. And second in importance is the department at the Converse factory devoted to these wonderful steeds. Let us go in.

In the beginning a machine starts off the work and one man handling three machines soon turns out, with the aid of sharp knives, a head, a body and a leg in a rough state, but perfect as far as they go. From then on the horse is brought to a state of completeness by many pairs of hands, each of which have their special duty to perform in the shaping of these marvelous animals.

The workman of the second department, having taken possession of the rough parts, with the aid of a file and narrow bladed knife, rounds out the eyes, nostrils and mouth, found on the head. Then the legs and head are nailed onto the body part and another workman with scraper and sand paper smooths off the rough edges and makes invisible the joining parts.

The foundation is now ready for the process of painting, the first of which is to dip the wood into glucose, which when dry receives a beautiful coat of shiny white paint. The dappling is done by a hand spraying machine which looks very much like a huge atomizer run by electricity. Lastly the hoofs are blackened and the animal left to dry.

Then comes the work of the girls. For the horse when next seen is the possessor of two glass eyes; and the mane and tail, made from the finest of calf's tails were already nailed on. The saddles of leather were stuffed, the stirrups added and the whole nailed onto the horse. Then came the mounting onto rockers which had received a coat of paint, by being run through the huge presses.

The Romantic Road

Incidents of Old Stage Coach and Tavern Days

HELENE SHERMAN

"The windows of the wayside inn Gleam red with fire light."

OUR forefathers, noted for their seriousness, possessed a trait which, added to their Puritanism, laid the foundation of society in the long ago. We refer to the human interest as indicated by the building of churches at an early date, where the sad-eyed and melancholy Puritans could meet with others as melancholy, and listen to long sermons on just how much they must suffer here and then die. But when taverns came, with their good cheer and sociability, they commenced to think less about dying and to pay very much attention about living. The beautiful North Shore appealed strongly to our ancestors. They saw it and believed in it.

There was a tavern at Beverly Ferry, known until 1819 as the "Old Ferry Tavern." Every town was expected to maintain a public house; if not, it could be fined by law in the General Court of Massachusetts. There was one qualification, however, that the tavern should be "reare ye meeting house." Everyone who has heard his grandfather talk about the old-fashioned meeting house can appreciate this point, for in winter the faithful ones became so cold that they were only too glad to have a tavern nearby for thawing out. It was alleged in some places that the church members partook too freely of the good cheer of the neighboring tavern, but I, for one, should not have blamed the congregation if it had risen as one man and completely succumbed to the "potent flip and toddy" of the tavern-keeper. In summer the meeting houses were insufferably hot and it was necessary to repair to the tavern again—this time, however, for something cool and refreshing. Time went on and it seemed that the tavern was likely to prove a better drawing card than the church until, finally, the General Court passed a law requiring all inn-keepers within a mile of any church to clear their houses "during the hours of exercise."

Many old-time taverns were kept by women, for widows abounded, since the men of that period were cut down in great numbers in middle life owing to hard work; wars and so on. In 1760 a Salem widow was granted a license as inn-keeper providing, however, that she employ a "godly man" to manage the business, but this lady had a turn for trade and her factotum remained usually in the background while she sold wine and playing cards "at reasonable rates" and did a flourishing business without any assistance from the "godly man."

The old Ellery tavern at Gloucester was used for town meetings. In 1744 there were five selectmen and their salary for transacting the town's business was five dollars apiece. The cost of their entertainment by the tavern was thirty pounds, old tenor. This did not sound well, and we learn that the following year the selectmen were voted a salary of five pounds apiece and to "find themselves." In 1749, nevertheless, Ellery tavern presented to the town of Gloucester the following bill: "Expenses for Selectmen and Licker, 3 pounds, 18 shillings." Meetings of good cheer continued for many years at this tavern.

There were many good reasons to explain the attendance of so many townspeople at the old-time taverns. For one thing, the only newspaper that came to town was often kept there and eagerly read by the erstwhile guests. It saw hard usage, for many were slow readers; in fact, some made only a pretence of it. In Newburyport, for instance, a man who could not read cried out to his friends excitedly, "Bad news! Terrible gale! Ships all upside down!" This was the information gleaned by our friend holding the paper wrong side up. The newspaper served another purpose, also, in those days, that of a spelling book. Over the mantel shelf in one tap room, the following notice was posted: "Gentlemen learning to spell are requested to use last week's paper." History leaves us in doubt as to just how "gentlemen learning to spell" were able to decipher this polite request.

Indian tramps, the last of the great tribes, gave a picturesque touch to tavern life in the old days. Many posed as fortune tellers, and the "counterfeit presentment" of Deb Saco may now be seen in the East Indian museum at Salem.

THE SUPPER-DANCE at the Essex County club last Friday evening was the most successful from the social standpoint in years. Covers were placed for 96 at dinner, and when supper was served at 11 o'clock there were 175 present. Dancing continued throughout the night. A dinner-dance is scheduled for Friday night of next week, the 18th. A band concert yesterday afternoon was a big drawing card, despite the inclement weather.

Tennis has been attracting many to the courts this week. A mixed doubles tournament started Monday and a ladies' handicap singles Tuesday. Because of the intense heat Monday and Tuesday and the bad weather Wednesday and Thursday, the progress has not been good. It is expected the finals in the singles will be reached Saturday afternoon, and in the doubles, Sunday. Miss Alice Thorndike beat Miss Eleonora Sears in the singles Thursday, which eliminates one of the strongest players.

A foursome tombstone tournament was the golfing feature yesterday. This was won by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore. Miss Eleonora Sears and Ector O. Munn were second.

An amateur dog show (16 classes) will be one of the interesting events of the latter part of August and something new for the North Shore. The show will be at the Essex County club on Thursday afternoon, August 24, at 3.30.

Mr. and Mrs. James Means are at Peterborough, N. H., for a six-weeks' stay, when they will return to their cottage in Manchester for the autumn. Lloyd B. Means is one of the North Shore young men at the border. He is a member of the Mass. First Field Artillery, Battery A, at El Paso, Texas.

Bathing Costumes of Dainty Frocks

Silk Sweaters and Silk Hose All on a Wager---We Surmise

ANNE ACTON

*Not fiction, but fact, is this prank that I tell of,
And witnessed, as well, with three or four more;
And it was not a scene to be played on the "screen,"
But was done just for fun on the Marblehead shore.*

WHO that has spent a summer anywhere along the North Shore, from rocky Nahant to shady Magnolia, has not more than once crossed the narrow causeway that connects Marblehead Neck with the mainland and circled the road that loops the Neck and that furnishes on one side an unparalleled view of Massachusetts Bay and on the other, glimpses of the gay, craft-crowded harbor of Marblehead and the quaint, clustering town with its houses rising tier on tier to the sky-line?

Somewhere along that circling road, between the end of the causeway where the loop begins and the end of the loop where you enter the causeway again, lies the scene of my story; but I must not describe too accurately, lest some of my readers may know the place or the people.

It happened some three or four years ago on a dull, gray day such as frequently come in September. The exodus of "summer visitors" had but just begun, and except for the dampening effect of overhead grayness, the Neck still had an air of summer festivity. An unending line of motors came and went, for a steady, two days' rain and a strong, on-shore breeze had whipped the bay into billows and white-caps and assured a full performance of the Churn. Likewise, a stream of pedestrians came to watch the restless waters seethe and boil in the deep, rocky cauldron and burst into spray high in the air. But as even the wonders of Niagara pale after a time, so the watchers of the Churn were soon satiated and rode or walked away, according as they were fortunate or unfortunate.

Our party was on foot, but not particularly unfortunate thereby, for we had planned a long jaunt with a prowl among the rocks, and a substantial tea, previously ordered, awaited us at the little tea house on the last lap of our journey home and was a wonderful incentive for the acquiring of a huge appetite.

So we climbed the rocks until they ended abruptly and a lonely, little, rocky beach began. Then progress became slow and painful, not to say precarious, for there was nothing pebbly about that beach; nor were the rocks of a size to provide a sure or comfortable footing. They turned and twisted or rolled under our weight and we speedily decided that if we reached the sandy portion farther on without bruises or dislocated joints, we might well congratulate one another.

It was while we rested and collected energy to proceed that we saw the tennis court and the players. Farther back the beach was pebbly, almost sandy. The tennis court was almost level with it, at the foot of a beautiful, formal garden that terraced down from the house above.

Four young people were playing a lively game, the girls in white linen, the men in flannels. From a rustic seat at one side, a middle-aged woman in an afternoon toilette of black and an elderly man in white flannels and dark coat, watched the players.

While we looked on with considerable interest and curiosity, a maid in cap and apron appeared at the top of the long flight of steps leading up to the house. She bore a tray and made the descent slowly and carefully to the court where she placed her burden on a rustic table and withdrew.

The game progressed for a few minutes more then one of the girls threw down her racket and drew her partner to the table. Each picked up what looked from our distance like a stein, and the girl leading, they came out on the beach. Her companion seemed reluctant, but gathering something from the contagion of her mood, he raced with her down the beach to the breastwork of stones piled up by the surf.

Her gestures still urged,—we could not hear their voices,—and in another second he had evidently accepted her challenge, for he laid aside his still untouched stein and slipped off his tennis shoes.

They were in the water before we could gasp and down the beach another frenzied pair were hurrying, not to be outdone. Steins were laid aside and tennis shoes removed and although the surf broke upon the beach with considerable force and the rocky floor yielded to the incoming mist and the really stormy waters were necessary conditions for an ideal swim.

It was a novel sight. Someone in our party suggested an initiation, but there was no evidence of anyone directing the proceeding.

Mentally, I reviewed the strange sights and the queer, improvised bathing regalia that daily made its appearance on "Back Beach," as the natives called Devereux, before the strict enforcement of the law governing bathing suits; little girls in abbreviated nighties and faded, outgrown dresses and women in wrappers, taking a dip in the surf or basking in the sun on the warm sand, but never had I been more astonished or amused. Never had I seen dainty frocks of linen, a silken sweater and silk hose treated to a voluntary ducking for no other reason than "just for fun."

The amazing sang-froid of the middle-aged woman in black, who came leisurely down the beach and stepped into the boiling surf without removing even her hat or the high-heeled shoes, left us speechless. She could swim, too, and although the hat tipped to an unbecoming angle when wet, it did not seem to be an impediment.

They were a merry party, and as merriment as well as wisdom loves company, the two young men ran dripping up the beach and the elderly man, who had been quietly smiling in the background, was hurried, struggling and protesting, to the water's edge and, unceremoniously, dumped in. He took only a dip, and while his tormentors made another excursion up the beach in pursuit of a girl in a dainty afternoon dress, who had just come down from the house, he demonstrated the thoroughness of his wetting by wringing the water from some paper money in one hand and ruefully regarded his ruined watch in the other.

The dainty little lady and her exquisite hat and dress were completely submerged and effectually ruined, but she was game and swam a little. We were anxious, for she seemed as frail as her gown, but presently they all came ashore. Maids appeared with wraps and robes, the contents of the steins was consumed and a dripping, bedraggled procession climbed the innumerable stairs and was lost to view.

We crossed the remainder of the beach with little thought for the rocky portion, and over our tea we marvelled and exclaimed: "What awful extravagance!" "Those beautiful gowns!" "What a day for a swim!" "Do you suppose they do it often, or did that girl start it with just a dare?"

Then someone remarked, "I think it was as novel to them as it was to us, and who wouldn't, if she could, do what she pleased, when she pleased! They just did not have to stop to think of the extravagance. A ruined gown or two meant nothing to those girls and replacing them makes business. If I could afford it, I'm afraid I'd never go to the trouble of getting in and out of a bathing suit. But it would be rather a big price for a swim if that man's watch was a $5000 one, like Thomas Lawson's."

Wall in Front of the Oliver Ames Residence, at Pride's Crossing, Showing Entrance and a Corner of the House

STRIKINGLY beautiful and ornamental is the new concrete wall built this season at the Oliver Ames home in Pride's Crossing. Its light brown and cream tones blend harmoniously with its sea-shore environment. The base and greater part of the structure of the posts is of the smooth brown, while the flat surfaces are of the light rough stucco. Looking within the main entrance an inner wall and gateway are seen near the house at the end of the short hedge-lined avenue leading to the house. The new wall fronts the place and extends part way along the sides.

Engagements and Weddings

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Col. and Mrs. John R. Williams of Beverly Farms and Washington of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Francise Williams, to John Balentine Pitney of Morristown, N. J. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pitney of Morristown. The wedding arrangements are not definitely planned yet. It will take place early in October and will be at Beverly Farms or in the Washington home. Miss Williams is a sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter (Juliette Williams) of "Edgewater House," Beverly Farms, and Washington and of Mrs. W. F. McCombs of Washington and Beverly Farms.

◆ ❖ ◆

The announcement last Friday by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Little of Beverly Farms of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Middleton Means, to Valentine Worthington of New York is of much interest. Miss Means is the daughter of the late Robert Lawrence Means and Mrs. Jessie Whitman Means, now Mrs. Arthur Little. Miss Means is a member of the Sewing Circle and of the Vincent club. Her brothers are William Gordon Means and Robert W. Means of Beverly Farms, and her sisters are Mrs. Andre Nicholas Reggio (Claire Means) and Miss Jessie K. Means, both of Beverly Farms. Mr. Worthington is a son of Mrs. M. G. Worthington of New York and a nephew of Miss M. Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr.

The week preceding the announcement of Miss Mean's engagement, the announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Margaret Thomas to William Tudor Gardiner. The wedding will take place on Saturday, September 16, at "Netherfield," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas at Pride's Crossing. Mr. Gardiner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner of Boston. Both have prominent North Shore connections.

◆ ❖ ◆

The engagement preceding this was that of Miss Juliet Higginson, daughter of F. L. Higginson of Pride's Crossing, to Frederic S. Goodwin of Boston. No definite plans are made for the wedding.

◆ ❖ ◆

The week before announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Katherine E. Turnbull of New York and Morristown, N. J., to Chalmers Wood, Jr., of New York and Ipswich. Miss Turnbull is now visiting at "Briar Hill," the summer home on "Appleton Farms" in Ipswich, where the Chalmers Wood family are spending the summer. She is being much entertained along the Shore.

◆ ❖ ◆

Preceding this engagement was the announcement of that of Miss Elizabeth Whitwell Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Rand Thomas of Hamilton, to Van Duzer Burton of New York. Mr. Burton is the son of Frank V. Burton of New York and Newburgh on the Hudson. This was announced at the Myopia Hunt club on July 4th at the dinner-dance.

◆ ❖ ◆

On October 2, Samuel Dacre Bush, formerly of the Hamilton colony, will be married to Miss Mary Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Williams of Dedham.

Suggestions for the Linen Chest

TROUSSEAU PIECES WHICH SHALL WIN THE FAVOR OF THE BRIDE-TO-BE

Skilfully wrought roses afford delightful interruption here and there to broad bands or lace-like drawn-work that border a sheet and pillow-cases of finest linen. A monogram of intricate design adds further ornamentation to the border.

Exquisite Filet lace surrounds a linen center finely decorated with embroidery of an unusual design. Doilies of two sizes complete the luncheon set.

An elaborate design results from the clever combination of drawn-work in linen and solid embroidery in drawn-work, which is here effectively used to decorate hemstitched sheets and pillow-cases of fine linen with elaborately worked monograms.

Zanana silk couch covers in colors to match rooms are marked with a diamond-shape monogram and add greatly to the attractiveness and comfort of the boudoir.

A fluffy white blanket is simply but attractively marked with a diamond-shaped monogram of the same color as the ribbon edge.

RAYMOND BROWN, RESIDENT-MANAGER

AN autumn wedding of great interest is that of Miss Corinna Searle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle, to Harold D. Walker. The engagement was announced in May. The wedding will take place at "Inglesby," the Ipswich home of the bride's parents, on Saturday, September 30, and will be followed by a breakfast and reception at the home.

♦ ♦ ♦

On September 19 "Homewood," in Farnham, will be the scene of an interesting wedding when Miss Marie Dallas Agassiz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodolphe L. Agassiz of Boston, will become the bride of Cornelius Conway Felton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Felton of Haverford, Pa.

♦ ♦ ♦

Miss S. Uytendale Baird of Philadelphia, the fiancée of Harrison K. Caner, Jr., of Manchester, will come to the Caner home next week for the remainder of August. The North Shore is much interested in this engagement.

♦ ♦ ♦

Donald Markle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Markle of Hazelton, Pa., and a nephew of John Markle of New York and West Manchester, is now at the Oceanside, Magnolia, where his fiancée, Miss Mary Orme, is spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon S. Orme. The Ormes are from New Orleans.

♦ ♦ ♦

Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour of Chicago arrived yesterday at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Charles W. Littlefield, Smith's Point, Manchester.

♦ ♦ ♦

Miss Sally Daggett has been entertaining a house party at her home on Blossom lane, Manchester, including Miss Mary Church and George Church of Great Barrington, Miss Marion Tuttle, Hartford; Foster Stafford, Fall River, and Roger Sturgis of Boston.

♦ ♦ ♦

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holbrook of Smith's Point, Manchester, will have their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holbrook, and little son, with them over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Small Moore and their children of Lake Forest, Ill., have been at "Rockmarge," Pride's Crossing, with Judge and Mrs. William H. Moore, for over a week. There will be no horse show at the Moore estate this year on account of the family being in mourning for Mr. Moore's brother, the late James Hobart Moore of Lake Geneva, Wis.

MMES. Louis Bacon, Thomas P. Beal, F. B. Crowninshield, Robert D. Evans, W. Scott Fitz, Charles G. Mixter, Thomas Motley, Jr., Dudley L. Pickman, James Howe Proctor, John L. Saltonstall, Harrison Tweed and Edwin S. Webster are patronesses for the bridge tournament for the benefit of the Children's Island Sanitarium, on Friday afternoon, September 1, at Mrs. R. S. Bradley's, Pride's Crossing. Some of the children's handiwork will be for sale including baskets, pillows and the many interesting little things made by the little folk. In addition to the children's articles which will be on sale, there will be bridge tables suitable for summer houses and for the nursery. A light weight folding table, covered with linen, suitable to carry in an automobile, will be for sale. This will be the closing important event of the season in the charitable affairs that have filled the summer. A trip to the island will convince any one of the importance of this charity. All that is possible is done there to alleviate the suffering of the poor little sick children from the crowded tenements in Boston. Think what the suffering of these little ones would have been if they had been there this week in the heat! The simple, healthful life of the island often makes a new body out of some poor little waif sent there.

At the Masconomo House, Manchester, a Chicago party composed of Mrs. E. W. Day, Miss Anna Marie Withers and W. B. Rood arrived this week for the rest of August.

Much concern was felt the first of the week for the safety of Norman Prince, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Prince of East Wenham, who is with the American Aviation Corps in France. He was reported missing Tuesday. The family cabled France with anxious inquiries and received a cable in reply yesterday saying that Mr. Prince had made a flight some days before and had to descend on account of engine trouble in the midst of a forest. He was not injured, but had to travel three days before getting where he could communicate with his friends. The glad news of his safety is quite a relief to his large family connection here, to say nothing of his hosts of admiring friends on this side of the water.

THE NORTH SHORE SWIMMING POOL, at Magnolia had the largest number of bathers on Tuesday morning of the season, and a great many on-lookers were seated upon the awning-covered balconies. The temperature was 60—very delightful for a swim, many availing themselves of the opportunity to get away from the extreme heat of the morning. Noted among the swimmers was Miss Elvine Richard, who swims and dives with a great amount of skill. Miss Richard wore a very smart bathing frock of black taffeta with sailor collar of white taffeta and Aunt Jemima cap of white rubber silk with green dots.

Another pretty bathing costume was worn by Miss "Billy" Sichirich, which was of royal blue taffeta with insets of white taffeta, and black satin bathing toque.

Many of the members of the pool are practising for the swimming events to be held in the pool in the near future.

Among the visitors who have been entertained at the pool this week were Mrs. George Upton, Miss Marian Upton and King Upton of Marblehead, by Henry G. Hall; Mr. and Mrs. A. Rex Flinn of Pittsburg, by Mrs. George E. Carter; Mrs. W. W. Bell, by Miss G. B. Solari; Miss Caroline Bache, Philadelphia, by Miss K. F. Gallaudet; Mr. Morosoff, Moscow, Russia, by Miss M. M. Harris of Manchester; Thomas Beal, Jr., by Miss Adelaide Brainard; Mrs. D. B. Merryman, Bass Rocks, Mrs. Arthur Brodgen and Miss Mary B. Adams, Bass Rocks, by B. R. Howard; A. C. Gratz, St. Louis, by N. T. Lane, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Converse and Miss Converse, Boston, by C. C. Converse; Mrs. Paul Wick, Warren, Ohio, by Mrs. Myron C. Wick of Manchester; Robert and S. P. Ficks, New York, by Miss Elvine Richard.

Quite the prettiest tea party of the season was given at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. J. J. Wiel entertained for her daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and eighteen of her friends. The tea table was artistically decorated with summer blossoms. Dancing was indulged in by the guests. At the party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Painter and Charles Painter, Jr.,

Helen Middleton, Elvine Richard, Mary Frick, Miss Ridgley, Georgie Solari, Frances and Adelaide Brainard, Miss Swift, Winthrop and Chester Lockwood, Walter Herron, Bob Steinert.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Farnum have been entertaining at their beautiful summer home, "The Sun Dial," at Magnolia, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Loring, Jr., of Locust Valley, L. I., as their house-guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay K. Secor and family of Toledo, who are occupying the Morrell cottage on Hesperus avenue, Magnolia, for the season, having recently returned to Magnolia from a few weeks' visit to Bar Harbor on the Cyprus, the chartered steam yacht of John North Willys of Toledo.

MRS. GEORGE LEE of Beverly Farms opened her summer home last Friday for a recital by Frances Nevin. Miss Nevin gave Madame Butterfly. She was assisted by Miss Marion Lina Tufts at the piano. Patronesses were Mmes. Larz Anderson, E. H. Alsop, Albert J. Beveridge, Andrew Carnegie, 2d, Allen Curtis, A. S. Dexter, R. D. Evans, Ezra C. Fitch, E. C. Fitch, Jr., W. Scott Fitz, Henry L. Higginson, John E. Lancaster, George Lee, Joseph Leiter, Oliver W. Mink, Walter J. Mitchell, John C. Phillips, James H. Proctor, L. M. Sargent, Alexander Steinert, Norton Wigglesworth, Miss Georgina Lowell and Miss F. P. Mason. All were pleased with the reading of the sad little story in such a charming manner by Miss Nevin.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, Jr. (Eleanor Fabyan), who are with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wright Fabyan at West Manchester are planning to spend the last two weeks of August with Mr. Frothingham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Frothingham at Islesboro, Me.

Mrs. Norton Wigglesworth returned Wednesday to Old Neck, Manchester, from a short visit with relatives on the South Shore. Mr. Wigglesworth is on the Mexican border and has lately been promoted to captain.

TO visit Dreicer's jewel shop at Magnolia is a rare delight. Here one finds precious stones in the most artistic settings of Dame Fashion's latest decrees, in the richest combinations of colorings.

Today I saw here a wonderful corsage pin of diamonds set in platinum of a rich Renaissance pattern, delightfully flexible and supple, a work of art without which no lady's jewel case can be complete.

Too, I was very much attracted by the ultra, single-string jewel bracelets,—single strings of diamonds, sapphires, emeralds, onyx set in platinum. The stones are square or calibre cut, finely matched. When two of these bracelets are combined, such as a diamond and emerald, or diamond and onyx, a very rich and artistic effect is obtained.

ON Sunday evening, August 6, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Miller entertained at dinner at their lovely new home in Beverly Cove, Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Hammer, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Steele Grey, Miss Evelyn Manley and Mr. Arthur Row of New York. Mrs. Grey, better known as Louise Grey, has just had published by the Goodyear Publishing Company, a little book called "Stepping Stones," which has caused something of a stir in New Thought Circles. A reviewer says: "As a clear, authoritative fundamental principle in New Thought it is exceedingly practicable and helpful. The language used is lucid, of real literary value and often great poetic beauty." The Greys summer at East Gloucester. Mr. Row, who is also in Gloucester at the present time, has been asked to give a recital before he returns to New York to rehearse with Sir Herbert Tree in Henry the VIII. Mr. Row recently gave a recital in New York at the Bandbox Theatre under the patronage of Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Atherton, Mrs. Fiske, Princess Troubetzkoy (Amelie Rives), Lady Bourinot, Mrs. Philip M. Lydig, Cecelia Beaux, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Edith Wynne Matthison, Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Ruth St. Denis, Marcia Van Dresser, Beverly Sitgreaves, Mrs. Humphrey Nichols, Mrs. David Rumsey, Mrs. Clough C. Overton, Dr. Louis K. Anspacher, Dr. Arnold Genthe, Charles Hanson Towne.

Mrs. George N. Towle of "The Anchorage," Mystery Island, entertained Miss Clara Currier and Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Corey at the Puritan Tea room, Montserrat, last week. Other guests have been Mrs. James L. Paine and John and Miss Margaret Paine of "Brookside," Beverly Cove. Other parties were Mrs. C. E. Ober, seven; Mrs. William J. Berry, twenty-eight; Mrs. L. H. Cole, four; Mrs. William P. Gove, six. The latter parties were from Salem and Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Brown of Beverly Cove have with them their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Painter, Jr., (Alice Brown) of Pittsburg, also Hill Burgwin and Walter Heron of Pittsburg. The latter accompanied the Misses Brainard of the Oceanside on a motor trip last week to York Harbor, where they were the guests of Miss Lillian Browne, daughter of the J. Stewart Brownes of Pittsburg.

Joseph Leiter has joined his family at "Edgewater House," Beverly Farms, one of the most noted and beautiful homes on the water front.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell of Hamilton entertained at their home last Sunday night for Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean, Jr., Miss Anna Agassiz and Gordon Prince.

Mrs. J. Warren Merrill of Smith's Point, Manchester, will leave next Tuesday for Great Barrington, where she will spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Nicholson in their beautiful home in the Berkshires, which has not been opened for some time. The Nicholsons were recent guests in Manchester, where they stayed at the Masconomo, coming directly here from London. Mr. Nicholson is prominent in English political life, and they expect to return in October.

THE NORTH SHORE GRILL, the mecca of the North Shore colony, outdid itself on Saturday evening when the greatest number of people of the season were entertained within its doors, and without its doors, too, for the numbers were so many that tables had to be placed on the veranda at the grill and set in the corridor garden, also. Among those who entertained were Messrs. James Wilkinson, Stevens, Gould, Morse, Pretty, Dieter, Butterick, Dr. Freeman, Lee, Markle, Mortimer, Hall, Hussey, Longley, Sullivan. Noted among the gathering were Mrs. E. H. Binney, Mrs. C. E. Longley, Mrs. S. E. Sternberger, Mrs. Haxton, Miss Helen Bell, Miss Helen Middleton, Miss Rosamond Lancaster, Howard MacDuffie, R. L. Steinert, C. E. Longley, S. E. Sternberger, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brainard and Misses Frances and Adelaide Brainard. Mrs. G. S. Orme and the Misses May, Abby and Isabelle Orme, were entertained at Mr. Markle's table.

Mrs. S. H. Fessenden and children of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, were among the week-end parties at Newport.

The Sydney E. Hutchinsons of Beverly Farms will return tomorrow from a week's cruise on their yacht.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker of Beverly Farms returned yesterday from a week's cruise to Newport on the Arcady.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles W. Weeks (Lois Frost), son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. P. Weeks of Beverly Cove, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son, July 31, at their home on the South Shore. Mr. Weeks of Beverly Cove and his brother-in-law, Paul Washburn of Boston, are on a two-weeks' cruise on the Weeks yacht, Atricilla.

Mr. and Mrs. John Markle of West Manchester will not return from the Virginia Hot Springs until September. Their nephew, E. Moore Robinson, has been on a trip to New York and will also join them at the Springs.

Recent visitors to the interesting shop at "Y^e Rose Tree," of the village of Ipswich, included Miss Tilton and party, and Mrs. Clipston Sturgis and party, Manchester; Madame Jeanne Loy (also Belgique, Bouxelles); Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davis and party, Magnolia; also Prof. and Mrs. Arthur W. Dow, Ipswich; Miss Lambert and Mrs. Cheney of Lambert Homestead, Rowley; Mrs. Ernest Pentacost of Topsfield, and others of that ilk, who appreciate the artistic value of the toys. It is rumored that several well known North Shore people are interesting themselves in the enlargement of the "Toy Shop." We expect to see some very unusual toys to delight North Shore children. The little shop is already doing "specialties" for Daniel Low and R. H. Stearns, to say nothing of several other favored "gift shops." It makes special toys on commissions from parents who wish to suit certain tendencies in their children. The tea-room is continued to furnish the needed refreshment after a drive.

Arrivals at Tunipoo Inn, Beverly Farms' popular hotel, during the week include the following: Mrs. W. J. O'Reiley and Mrs. E. T. Gallagar of Cambridge, Mrs. M. E. Serle, Mrs. H. Hess and Misses Dorothy and Phillis Hess of Philadelphia, Misses W. Piper and V. Piper of Westboro, M. E. Downey of Jamaica Plain, and Walter Coucklin of New York city.

THE WEDNESDAY "club night" at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, was the popular rendezvous of the North Shore smart set. The grill was filled to capacity, showing the favor which it enjoys with the notables of the North Shore. Some of the most fashionable gowns of the season were worn here on Wednesday evening and the evening wraps of the ladies were exquisite. A steady stream of automobiles deposited their occupants at the entrance of the grill from early in the evening until midnight. Dancing was enjoyed by all to the tuneful music of the Grill orchestra. Among those who entertained were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Finnigan, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Haxton, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Densmore, Henry Blossom, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Phalen, Newton James, Wallace Eddinger, and Mrs. John Lancaster.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL MAGNOLIA

THE OCEANSIDE, at Magnolia, is closing the second week of August with life at the hotel over-brimming with one round of pleasure. The engagement books are filled full and every day is taken up. The hotel has had a very big season with no signs of a lull until away into September. Folks are now-a-days beginning to realize the loveliness of September, which is shown by the number of reservations which have been made well into the month. Dame Gossip says, and perhaps she knows, that there will be several very interesting engagements announced before the close of the summer. She may be right, by observation of certain attractive young couples who are seen constantly together oblivious of all others.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hussey of St. Louis, with baby and nurse, recently arrived at the Oceanside to join Mr. Hussey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey, who are season guests with apartments in Highland cottage.

Mrs. Potter Adams of New York, accompanied by Miss F. E. Barker and Harold Lahey of New York are at the Oceanside for a sojourn.

Miss Anna Foulke of Philadelphia is at the Oceanside for a week's stay.

A motor party made up of Mr. and Mrs. Munson Havens, Mrs. W. R. Rose, Miss Dorothy Rose and Kenneth Sturgis, all of Cleveland, spent Wednesday and Thursday at the hotel en route for a trip through Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Davis of Delaware and Miss Wood of Virginia are at the hotel for a few weeks' stay.

Noted among the arrivals of Wednesday are Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Freeman of Philadelphia, who will remain for a few days.

THROUGH the kindness of Mr. Warren, manager of the Oceanside hotel, a large number of the guests enjoyed a splendid concert on Sunday evening with Miss Donna Easley of New York as the soprano. Miss Easley, who possesses a sweet and sympathetic soprano voice, was well received. Her first number, "Aria, Voi Che Sapete," from "The Marriage of Figaro," was delightful, showing the flexibility and purity of her voice. Her next number, "Im Kahne," by Grieg, was very fine, her interpretation of which was excellent. She responded to several encores. Mr. James A. Ecker assisted at the piano, displaying wonderful technique and colorature.

Winthrop Lockwood has just returned to the hotel after a week's visit to New Hampshire with Sugar Hill as the object point, and making a short stop at Lake Winnepesaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. E. Martin, with daughter, Miss Alice Martin, and son, Wells Martin, of Chicago, are domiciled in the hotel for the remainder of the season.

Miss Florence Glendenin and Joseph Glendenin of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., are recently arrived at the Oceanside, joining their parents who are occupying apartments in the Sea Crest cottage.

A motor party arrived at the Oceanside on Thursday to remain over the week-end. The party includes Farley Hopkins, K. Salisbury and J. C. Bournique of Chicago, B. S. Heard of Pittsburg and L. B. Filton of New York. The young men have a number of friends at the Oceanside and are anticipating a very jolly "over Sunday" at Magnolia.

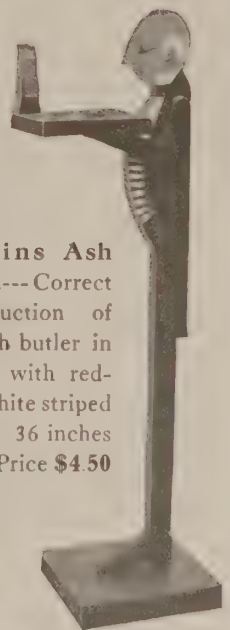

The Oceanside has had in its midst a very interesting and well-known gentleman in the person of Mr. Henry Blossom of New York. It was Mr. Blossom who gave to the world the very popular "Red Mill," also "Princess Pat," "Checkers" and the more recent "The Only Girl." Mr. Blossom left on Thursday by motor, accompanied by Wallace Eddinger, who is now starring in "The Boomerang," and Newton James for the Mount Washington Hotel at Bretton Woods for the week-end.

THE THURSDAY EVENING DANCE at the Oceanside, last week, was very pretty, the scintillating melodies from the hotel orchestra urging all to be happy and join the merry dancers. Mr. and Mrs. A. Rex Flinn (Eleanor Bradley) of Pittsburg were notable upon the floor as they danced during the evening. Mrs. Flinn was very attractive in an exquisite gown of royal blue chiffon taffeta veiled with the same shadings of tulle, with delicate shaded yellow roses caught in the drapings of the over dress and larger ones as a corsage, which touch of coloring was further carried out by gold ribbon on the bodice.

Miss Georgie Solari was very dainty and attractive in a black net over black silk with silver ribbon at the girdle.

Miss Stevens is a pretty and graceful dancer and was decidedly so as she glided through the one-step with Jack Stevens as her partner.

A notable week-end party at the Oceanside was made up of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ray, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Staples, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Nye and Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Heyward, all of Franklin, Mass., who came to Magnolia by motor.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Z. Conrad of Boston lunched at the Oceanside last Saturday. Dr. Conrad is one of Boston's most prominent divines, holding the position of pastor of the Park Street church.

Theodore A. Tack, Miss Adele G. Tack and Miss Julia M. Dooley of Philadelphia are spending the month of August at the Oceanside.

A party made up of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Dake and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Dake of Buffalo motored to Magnolia on Friday last and stayed overnight at the hotel.

A notable visitor at the Oceanside is Professor Philip Ogden of Portland, Dean of the University of Cincinnati at Cincinnati, Ohio. Professor Ogden will remain indefinitely.

A motor party coming to the Oceanside for a week's stay last Saturday was made up of Mrs. Andrew H. Gardner of Fall River, Mrs. W. R. MacAusland of Boston, and the Misses Margaret and Katherine Brayton of Fall River.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Kenny, accompanied by daughter, Marjorie, and son, Master James, and governess, from Worcester are spending the August days at the Oceanside. The Kennys are very delightful people and prominent in Worcester circles where Dr. Kenny ranks high in the medical fraternity.

C. B. Sherwood of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is a guest at the Oceanside for a short stay.

Mrs. Jonathan Peterson with daughter, Miss Peterson and son, J. Whitney Peterson, from Brooklyn, N. Y., are sojourning at the Oceanside for an indefinite period.

Mrs. Prentiss Selby of Oakland, Calif., is a guest at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Johnson, season guests at the Oceanside, are entertaining Miss Katherine Huling of Chicago for a visit of short duration.

Mrs. H. D. Newman, Mrs. S. E. Worms and Miss Virginia Newman and maid of New Orleans are guests of Mrs. Isadore Newman, who is spending the summer at the Oceanside.

J. N. Steele of New York, with Miss Margaret M. Steele and Miss Maude M. Haughton of Baltimore, are at the Oceanside for a two weeks' stay.

Mrs. Robert Patterson and Miss Patrice of Washington with valets, chauffeur and footman are spending the week at the Oceanside.

H. S. Homer of New York and E. G. Hastings of Oklahoma are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith at the Oceanside for a few days' visit.

A. S. Haxton of New York has come up to Magnolia for the remainder of the summer, joining Mrs. Haxton, who is a season guest at the Oceanside.

R. R. Riggs of New York has lately arrived at the hotel joining his mother, Mrs. W. P. Egelton, for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. Alfred Pancoast and maid of Philadelphia has returned to Magnolia to spend the remainder of August at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Hood entertained Mrs. Hood's nephew, H. H. Wilder and Mrs. Wilder at dinner on Saturday evening.

A number of dinner parties were given at the Oceanside Saturday evening, including Dr. and Mrs. W. R. P. Emerson, who had two dinner guests; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brainard, two guests; Dr. and Mrs. Wells P. Eagle-ton, two; W. F. Bryan, a party of two.

Mrs. B. B. Hunt of Memphis, Tenn., was very attractive on Saturday evening gowned in a rich black gown of silk and tulle with bandings of glistening jet, enhancing her delicate coloring and wealth of golden hair.

Dr. and Mrs. Angus McLean with daughters, Miss Ruth and Marion, who have been spending the summer at the Oceanside have gone to Sugar Hill, White Mountains, for a motor trip and will return to the hotel in a few weeks.

Miss Ethel Morse was hostess Saturday evening at the hotel at dinner to several of her young friends. The dinner table was beautiful amid a profusion of crimson phlox which decorated the centre of the table, while dainty sprays of the blossoms rested on the place cards at each plate. Covers were laid for eight.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lee with two daughters and governess from Rye, N. Y., have lately arrived at the Oceanside and are occupying apartments in the East Flume cottage for a two weeks' stay. The Lees were regular guests at the hotel for several seasons, but spent a portion of this summer at various resorts, coming up a bit later than usual.

Miss Helen Hussey, who has been spending some time at a girls' camp in Maine, has returned to the Oceanside to spend the remainder of the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey of St. Louis.

ECLIPSING all other hops of the season, the Saturday evening dance at the Oceanside was very well attended by the guests at the hotel as well as a great many of the cottagers of Magnolia, and a number of representative people along the North Shore. And the gowns worn by the ladies! they were exceedingly beautiful, and such a profusion of colors, it was truly delightful, the array of artistic blending of all of the rainbow hues. A great many of the young men of the North Shore's families, who spend the week in town, were down for the week-end, making the hop charmingly complete. All of the girls were lovely and it would be a difficult task, indeed, to say which was the prettiest.

Miss "Billy" Sichirich, was very lovely in a dancing frock of golden-hued taffeta figured in pastel tones, quaintly puffed at the skirt with tight bodice. The only trimmings were fetching festoons of narrow red ribbons confining the puffs and showing on the bodice.

Mrs. Edward Frothingham Wyman was very stunning in a gown of black tulle over black taffeta with shimmering appliques of emerald sequins on bodice and skirt.

Mrs. R. H. Stearns, the pretty young matron, was very attractive in a gown of magenta taffeta, delightfully puffed.

Appearing very dainty and sweet in a simple white frock of tulle with ribbons of Alice blue on bodice was pretty Miss Elizabeth Weil, who is a newly arrived regular summer visitor with her parents.

Miss Isabelle Orme, the Southern belle from New Orleans, a pretty girl of rich, dark coloring, was very lovely in a dancing frock of white tulle in fluffy fullness, with a girdle of pale blue satin.

Mrs. E. H. Brainard wore a beautiful gown of blue taffeta veiled with flounces of rich black lace.

Miss Ethel Morse was very dainty in a sweet pretty frock of shell pink embroidered taffeta with puffy skirt.

Miss Edna MacMartin wore a striking gown of crimson chiffon satin with shoes and stockings to match in hue, and a diaphanous scarf of royal purple tulle.

Miss Rosemonde Wyman was very attractive in a dancing frock of ecru and blue striped taffeta quaintly puffed over a petticoat of white satin and lace, with silver ribbons fashioned on the bodice.

Mrs. William J. Ehrich wore a beautiful creation of lavender chiffon over white taffeta.

A very striking and exquisite gown was worn by Mrs. Latham Bartlett—of magenta tulle in fluffy flounces over white satin with touches of royal blue velvet at the bodice.

Miss Sabine's gown was of pink embroidered satin with white lace and bands of fur outlining the skirt and puffed sleeves of lace.

Mrs. Weil was very charming in an exquisite gown of black satin with pailletes of shimmering black sequins and a beautiful rope of pearls at her throat.

Miss Elvine Richard wore a dainty dancing frock of sky blue tulle composing the skirt in fluffiness, while rainbow hued embroidery made up the bodice with touches of the tulle.

Miss Frances Brainard's frock was of white chiffon satin with corsage of red roses, and one rose at the shoulder.

Mrs. Spencer Kennard, whose brunette type of beauty is so attractive, was gowned Saturday evening in a stunning creation of shell pink tulle, the skirt of which was of wired flounces, tier fashion, with tight bodice and puffed sleeve caps. A festoon of pink blossoms was fashioned at the left shoulder gracefully falling to the skirt.

LAST SUNDAY a number of the young people at the Oceanside, Magnolia, motored to Portsmouth and enjoyed Sunday dinner at Ham's restaurant, returning to Beverly Cove to witness the moving picture performance of Geraldine Farrar in Carmen, given at "Stoneledge" the estate of the Alexander Steinerts. The Steinerts entertain with motion pictures each Sunday afternoon, and a goodly number is always present. In the motor party were Misses Frances and Adelaide Brainard, Rosamond Lancaster, Helen and Jean Middleton, Doris and Janet Bryan, Margaret Howard, Eleanor Dieter, Messrs. Chester and Winthrop Lockwood, Bob and Jack Lancaster, Renant Dieter.

Miss "Billy" Sichirich entertained a few of her friends at dinner on Saturday evening at the Oceanside hotel. The tables was beautifully decorated with vases of red roses of Dorothy Perkins variety. Covers were placed for sixteen. Among the guests were Misses Janet Bryan, Doris Bryan, Helen Middleton, Theodora Willard, Agnes Ketcham and Gwendolyn Smith, and John Carscallen, John Callery, Wendell Anderson, John Middleton, Alexander Steinert, George Secor, Clifford Smith, Strafford Riggs.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Holmes accompanied by sons, Christian R. and Julius S. Holmes, whose winter home is at Cincinnati, lately arrived at the Oceanside in their private car from their summer camp in eastern Canada. They will remain through August.

Mrs. Charles B. Alexander of Newport and New York, accompanied by Mrs. J. J. McCook, motored to Magnolia on Friday last and spent the night at the Oceanside. Mrs. Alexander has a home at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and was formerly Miss Harriet Crocker.

Walter W. Longstadt of Rosemont, Pa., was a week-end visitor at the Oceanside. Mr. Longstadt is a friend of the Stanley Smiths who are spending August at the hotel.

Miss A. Eugenia Levering of Baltimore has come to the Oceanside for an indefinite stay, joining her friend Miss Eleanor Dieter, who is a season guest.

General George Andrews of Washington lately joined his parents, General and Mrs. Geo. L. Andrews, who are season guests at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Dunn, accompanied by daughter, Miss Dorothy, and sons, Wadsworth and Henry E., Jr., and Miss Ward, all of Llewellyn Park, N. Y., are domiciled at the Oceanside for the remainder of August.

Mrs. John S. Gibbs, Jr., Miss Josephine Lee and Mrs. L. Proctor Brady, compose a motor party from Baltimore making a trip along the New England coast, which spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Watson and son, Master Curry, from New York are lately arrived at the Oceanside for the month of August.

A party made up of Wallace Eddinger, the prominent actor, Henry B. Sonom, Blair Frazier with valet and Newton James, all of New York are registered at the Oceanside for a week's stay. All four gentlemen are enthusiastic golfers and are spending a great portion of their time on the golf course.

TUESDAY EVENING'S HOP at the Oceanside was the best attended of any of the first-of-the-week dances of the season, and as the evening waxed on the number of dancers became more numerous. Tuesday evening is and always has been the night when the children have an unusually good time, and this was no exception, a great many of the sub-debutantes and their young partners having a wonderful time.

The Thomas sisters are very pretty and attractive girls from the Southland,—to be more exact, Augusta is their home, where they are very popular in the young social set. Miss Emily was exceedingly charming on Tuesday evening in a dancing frock of shimmering pink taffeta of the pannier order. Miss Ellen was quite alluring in a dainty frock of white, very bouffant and girlish.

Another sweet and charming girl is Miss Mabel Lithander, whose home is in far-away Stockholm, whither her mother recently went. Miss Lithander is under the chaperonage of Mrs. Edward Frothingham Wyman.

Mrs. George M. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Church and H. W. Church, all from Meriden, Conn., composed a motor party which lunched at the Oceanside on Monday.

Miss R. R. Stroup of Lexington, Mass., is a guest at the Oceanside for the remainder of August.

Clinton B. Sherwood, Harvard '18, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is a guest at the Oceanside until the close of the season.

Bob Lawrence of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lawrence, has just concluded a two-weeks' vacation at Magnolia. He was at the Oceanside more or less on "hop" nights as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Phillips, and his dancing was remarked upon on more than one occasion. Mr. Lawrence is a graduate of the Vernon Castle school and he was one of the finest men dancers on the Oceanside floor this season.

Mrs. H. H. Barton entertained a few of her friends at luncheon on Tuesday at the Oceanside hotel. The table was beautifully decorated with summer blossoms. Among the guests were Mrs. Jasper Nichols, Mrs. Wm. B. Campbell, Bass Rocks; Mrs. John Graham, Manchester; Miss C. H. Bovey, Miss Hope Johnson and Mrs. Johnson.

A motor party made up of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. J. Porter Brown from Wenham, and Miss Wescott of Gloucester dined at the Oceanside on Saturday evening and stayed for the hop.

A week-end party, motoring up from Baltimore en route for a few weeks in New Brunswick, was composed of Mrs. John S. Gibbs, Jr., Mrs. S. Proctor Brady and Miss Josephine Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McMurray, season guests at the Oceanside, entertained for the week-end Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Warren, Miss Warren, Master Warren and Mrs. Alma Finlay from Emporia, Kansas.

Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Lowry of Kansas City are at the Oceanside for the remainder of the summer.

Notable among the new arrivals at the Oceanside are Albert E. Merrill, accompanied by his sisters, Mrs. J. R. MacNeill and Miss C. M. Merrill of New York, who will remain for an indefinite stay.

Frank E. DeLong of Philadelphia is a new arrival at the hotel and has taken rooms in the Tennis cottage for the remainder of the season. Mr. DeLong has been coming to Magnolia for years and is welcomed by a large contingent of the hotel and cottage colony. He is fond of golf and plays on the Essex County club links during his stay here.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis A. Upson of Cleveland arrived at the Oceanside on Monday for a short stay.

IPSWICH is having some unusually interesting Sundays this month when the Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton-Smith of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C., is in charge of the Ascension Memorial Church. Dr. and Mrs. Smith have not been in Ipswich at "Cottonfield" for several years. Dr. Smith preached last Sunday and was assisted in the services by Dr. William G. Thayer, Master of St. Mark's school, who has also not been of the Ipswich colony for a number of years. On Aug. 13 the sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Julius W. Atwood, bishop of Arizona. Aug. 20, Rev. Wm. Lawrence Wood of Lenox, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Wood of "Briar Hill," Ipswich, will occupy the pulpit. Aug. 27 has not yet been filled, and may be taken by Dr. Smith.

At the impressive services of last Sunday a solo was given by Stephen Townsend of Boston and Ipswich. Dr. Smith discussed our spiritual life, comparing it to an arena; and in this arena of life are many forms of passion similar to animals. He showed plainly how the bear, the panther, and other animals are all represented within. Ruling these animals by Christian ideals; making love conquer so that peace can reign; the looking within and upon our inner life and shaping it after the life of Christ; and clinging to the spirit of youth, were modes suggested by Dr. Smith for bringing about this universal spiritual dream of love and peace within.

The new memorial fountain on the South Common in Ipswich was dedicated yesterday afternoon. It is placed in memory of James W. Appleton, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton of Appleton Farms.

Mrs. Norman R. Sturgis, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods, at Y^e Rogers Manse, returned to Medfield last Monday. Her children left several days before she did. The Sturgis family is building a new house in Medfield for a summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Wood of "Briar Hill" gave a dinner of fifteen covers last Saturday night in honor of their house-guest, Miss Katherine E. Turnbull of New York and Morristown, N. J. Miss Turnbull is the fiancée of their son, Chalmers Wood, Jr. The engagement was announced in July.

Miss Julia Appleton and Miss Sibyl Appleton, daughters of Randolph M. Appleton, whose handsome summer home, "Waldingfield," burned last winter, are spending the summer with Mrs. Daniel F. Appleton of "Appleton Farms."

Mrs. John S. Parker (Violet Otis Thayer), of the Nahant colony, is the guest of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. William G. Thayer, of "Holiday Hill," Ipswich.

Mrs. G. F. Flichtner and daughter, Miss Anna Flichtner of So. Orange, N. J., are guests of Mrs. H. N. Doughty in Ipswich.

The Boy Scouts of Ipswich are anticipating with much pleasure their outing, the last week of August at a camp in southern New Hampshire, where they will be taken by scoutmaster, Jerry Campbell, son of Hon. and Mrs. Charles A. Campbell of "Fairview." An exhibition is also being planned for September. Joseph W. Woods, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of Boston and Ipswich, is taking an active part in all of the affairs pertaining to scout life, and is in the drum corps of the Ipswich brigade.

Mrs. H. M. Berry and Mrs. Joseph B. Breed of the Charles Bohlen place in Ipswich were guests of Miss Susanne Brown of "Windmill Hill Farm" at a card party in Ipswich last week.

Y^e Rogers Manse is having between thirty and forty tea and luncheon guests from Magnolia and along the Shore each day. Never before has the Manse been so popular. Rye Beach parties are numerous. S. Fred Smith of Salem gave a luncheon for eight and James Goodman of Chicago and Annisquam entertained recently. Nathaniel S. Simpkins, a season guest, has returned from a trip to North East Harbor, Me.

Y^e Burnham House has had among recent guests Richard Henry Dana of Manchester, and also Mr. and Mrs. George Wigglesworth and Mr. and Mrs. Philip P. Chase. Mrs. C. C. Converse has been among the Magnolia guests. The delicious luncheons and dinners, served in private piazzas are ever the attractive features of the place.

HAMILTON will not have its customary horse show this August at "Green Meadows," the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Burroughs. So many of the men and boys usually taking part in this affair are away, either in camp or on the Mexican border, that it was thought best not to have the show. It will take place, however, next year, as usual. The show of last year, benefiting Welcome House in Boston, was one of the stellar events of the season. Mrs. Burroughs has kindly offered the use of the fine grounds for her friends during August on Sunday afternoons. These will be delightful private affairs in which all who enjoy a good jump can find no better place in Hamilton than on these grounds. The Burroughs estate is situated on the Topsfield road and has many natural advantages and points of beauty. Mrs. Burroughs is exceedingly fond of horses and is always among the riders in the Myopia hunts.

Henry C. Perkins joined his family last Sunday in their new home, "Green Court," Miles River road, Hamilton. This was formerly "Windacre," the S. Dacre Bush place, but the name has been changed by the Perkinses since they purchased it last fall. Mr. Perkins has been in Alaska for the past two months. Their son, Cleveland Perkins, Harvard '15, is with the American legation in Copenhagen, where he went last fall. Mrs. Boyd, widow of Capt. Boyd of the Army, has been down from Rye Beach for a short visit with Mrs. Perkins.

At the home of the Hon. George von L. Meyer in Hamilton last week a tea was given and the winning numbers were drawn for the loving cup and the diamond and onyx pin offered at the recent Italian Festa at their place. Mrs. Whitney Warren of New York won the beautiful cup, presented by her Royal Highness the Duchess of Aosta. Miss Marion Fenno won the pin, which Charlton & Co. of New York presented. Little Miss Elizabeth Hitt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Reynolds Hitt of Beverly Farms, drew the numbers from the bag.

The Hamilton-Wenham playground girls played schlaug ball last Saturday with the girls from the Mack park playground in Salem, resulting in favor of the Hamilton girls, 65-51. Tomorrow they are playing with the Beverly girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell of Hamilton returned from Maine, where they had been visiting Mr. Sortwell's people, in time for last Saturday's polo game at Myopia. Mrs. Sortwell's mother, Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard of Eastern Point, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Charles Clucas of New York, were guests that day and accompanied Mrs. Sortwell to the club. Interesting and attractive are the new homes in Hamilton of the Sortwells and Gerard Bements, the adjoining grounds of which are being laid out and planted in a most artistic manner. Both are old houses remodeled in keeping with their time by Mrs. John B. Moulton of Hamilton. The Sortwell house is quite large and sets somewhat back from the road, while the quaint little house of the Bements, dating back to 1721, is quite close to the much-traveled road leading past Myopia. Not far from these houses is "Brookfield," the Moulton estate, where a cottage on extensive lines and Burrage, Jr., who are now in the Safford house on the main road. Their new home will be ready for occupancy about October. The Burrages, the Sortwells and the Child Fricks are of the new additions to Hamilton who enjoy all of the advantages offered by nearness to the Myopia.

ABOVE THE CARNAGE AND CHOAS of the war one fact seems to loom with a clearness that cannot be gainsaid. Whoever wins this conflict, the Turkish power is doomed and the reign of fear that the reputed power religious influence gave the government, has passed. The value of a great holy war has been tried out and without disastrous exemplification of Turkish power. Whether the Allied Germanic powers or the Entente win the sway of the Turk has ended and in the denouement both sides will agree quickly to a great change in the care of Turkey. The sick man of Europe is dying!

WENHAM was the scene of a very interesting gladioli show Wednesday when the estate of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, "Cedar Acres," was opened as a benefit for the American Ambulance hospital at Neuilly, France. Patronesses of the affair included Mmes. George von L. Meyer, John L. Saltonstall, John Tuckerman, Philip Stockton, Bayard Warren, Samuel Warren, Jr., Frederick Winthrop, Fulton Cutting, Reginald Boardman, Gordon Abbott, Henry C. Clark, William C. Endicott, Francis L. Higginson, John S. Lawrence, Russell Codman, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., William Phillips, Miss Olivia Ames and Miss Elaine Denègre. Miss Julia Meyer sold tickets for the affair for several weeks and arranged the social details.

Mrs. Charles T. Parker of "Cotshabbie," Wenham Neck, will return next Thursday from West Port, N. Y., where she went on an auto trip a week ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce of "Witch Hill," Topsfield, spent the week-end on a motor trip to Newport. Their home in Topsfield is one of the most beautiful and sightly in that region.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

THE THIRD FORMAL BALL held last Saturday evening in the main ball room of the New Ocean House was one of the most brilliant social events of the season. With the opening of all the suites in the new $150,000 fire-proof annex, an increased number of guests were present to assist in making the party a success. In addition to the several hundred guests of the hotel, the assemblage included many members of the cottage colony along the North Shore.

The accommodations in the new addition have been most favorably received by the guests. As a hotel combining the luxury and comfort of a Metropolitan hostelry with the pleasant atmosphere of the summer sea resort, the annex of the New Ocean House is without a counterpart in this section of the country. Over the past week-end, practically every room in the new addition was occupied and reservations have been coming in at a rate which signifies capacity business for the remainder of the season.

The management is providing elaborately for the entertainment of the guests during the month of August. The Costume Party which has always been an important feature of the social program at the New Ocean House will be held this year on Saturday evening, August 19th.

The costume parties held in previous seasons at the New Ocean House have always been participated in by a large number of guests. This season, with the increased accommodations offered by the opening of the new addition, it is expected an even larger number of guests will assist in making the masquerade a success. Prizes will be awarded as usual to ladies and gentlemen wearing the most attractive costumes.

In addition to the costume party, the August program of entertainment will include a tennis tournament for the lady and gentleman guests and the customary Saturday afternoon archery contests. Trophies have been contributed for the highest point winners in both these sports.

The archery range located on the parada in front of the Main hotel is daily attracting scores of guests. The sport has become immensely popular, the ladies as well as the gentlemen finding considerable pleasure in this unique pastime.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Vaughan and Miss Emma W. Vaughan of Orange, New Jersey, have registered for the season at the New Ocean House.

James F. Bliss of Boston, a guest at the New Ocean House during the first part of the season, has returned for the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Dake and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Dake of Buffalo, N. Y., were week-end guests at the New Ocean House.

Among the tourists who spent the week-end at the New Ocean House were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Illingworth, Robert H. Illingworth, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Veghte, all of Newark, N. J. Other week-end tourists included Mr. and Mrs. F. H. McFarland of Fort Worth, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Baker of Toronto.

Madame L. Roso of Paris has registered for the month of August at the New Ocean House. Other registrations from abroad during the past week included K. Kent Pollack and William Legremare, both of Paris, and F. E. Gates of Liverpool.

F. G. Stewart of New York City was the guest over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Phelps at the New Ocean House.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dwelly entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the New Ocean House Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Swindell and Frederick H. Swindell, all of Rockville, Conn.

SWAMPSCOTT finds the mid-summer with its engagement book filled to the very brimming, and the incoming days of the second week in August none-the-less relenting with reservations on all sides for dinners, luncheons and card parties. The season of 1916, so far has eclipsed all others in the past for its round of social gaieties. The bathing-beaches each day are the popular gathering place for the cottagers and hotel folk with a wonderful and gorgeous display of pretty sea frocks and capes, the newest production from the wheel of fashion.

Mrs. John Donovan of St. Joseph, Mo., who is spending the summer at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, entertained her sister, Miss Helen Hart of Weymouth over the week-end.

Miss Jessica Carbee of Boston, who is spending the summer at Clarmont, N. H., has been visiting her father, Scott Clifton Carbee, the artist, who is occupying the Thorne cottage at Swampscott, where he has his summer studio.

DESPITE the inclement weather the mid-summer ball at the Tedesco club on Wednesday evening was a very brilliant and festive affair. The clubhouse was transformed into a veritable floral bower. Myriads of electric lights enhanced the beauty of the scene. The spacious verandas were enclosed with awnings and decorated with trellises over which twined floral vines. A pergola was erected from the west veranda and was covered with vines and potted plants. The immense lounging room was decorated with festoons of vines and red flowers in which were hidden electric bulbs. The reception and dining room decorations were carried out in pink and white. Dinner was served, beginning at 6.30 and continued until 8, when the tables were cleared away and dancing inaugurated. The Salem Cadet band, stationed PHILLIPS Beach folk are busy these days with such a quantity of social doings. And the week-end guests! Every incoming train of Friday of each week and Saturday, too, brings friends of the Phillips Beach colony for a week-end stay. The entering in upon the summer season of the third week of August finds the social activities abated not one whit. The continuous cycle of social affairs which have been the feature of the summer ever since the season began, are being kept up with unrelenting interest.

The Neighborhood club has arranged with Miss Gladys Lott, to present at the clubhouse on Friday evening, August 18th, "Songs and Sketches of Child Life," the entertainment beginning at 8.15. The performance will be very interesting and should prove a source of pleasure to all of the members of the club, old and young and between seasons. Miss Lott will be assisted at the piano by Miss Carolyn Rice.

Among the patronesses are: Mesdames W. A. Paine, W. W. Johnson, W. E. Plummer, C. E. Price, F. W. Kimball, C. B. Perkins, H. H. Holton, W. F. Spalding, W. S. Richardson, J. E. Chatman, A. W. Huguley, L. M. Atherton, E. H. Clapp, G. S. Burton, W. E. Terhune, E. B. Terhune, J. A. Heath, N. S. Dillingham, G. W. Foster, C. W. Conklin, C. H. Holloway, A. W. Estabrook, P. N. Jones, C. Irving Porter, E. M. Carpenter, W. M. Bunting, Gilbert Hodges, Jr., and F. H. Gage.

The Surgical Dressings meeting at the Neighborhood club on Friday morning last was a very busy one and largely attended by the women of Swampscott, Phillips Beach and Beach Bluff. To continue this noble work, it is necessary to have funds for the purchase of materials for the dressings. The ladies have been urged to contribute as generously as possible, and to send their contribution to Mrs. Stanley D. Forbes at 25 Palmer avenue, Phillips Beach. Among the ladies at the Friday morning meeting were Mrs. William A. Paine, Mrs. M. Whitney, Mrs. Frank H. Gage, Mrs. James T. Wetherald, Miss Hammond, Miss Tapley and Miss Chase.

A "Dutch Supper" was given at the Neighborhood club on Friday evening, last, in the pretty and quaint dining-room in the north east wing of the club-house. The table was beautifully decorated with a profusion of cut flowers. Among the guests noted were Mr. and Mrs. Frederic L. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Huguley and son, Arthur W. Huguley, Jr.

Charles Edmund Longley of New York, who with his wife is visiting at the summer home of his mother on Atlantic avenue, entertained at dinner at the Corinthian Yacht club on Friday evening. Among the guests were his mother, Mrs. C. E. Longley and his sister Mrs. S. E. Sternberger of Cincinnati, who was formerly Miss Rosalind Longley.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Sternberger of Cincinnati, who have been spending part of the summer with Mrs. Sternberger's mother, Mrs. C. E. Longley, on Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, left on Monday for their home in Ohio. Mrs. Sternberger was formerly Miss Rosalind Longley

David Palmer of Chicago, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival B. Palmer of Phillips Beach, arrived at the home of his parents on Monday for the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Prince on Phillips avenue have as their house-guests Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Arnold of Brooklyn, the Arnolds motoring to Swampscott in their automobile. They will remain until late in August.

Week-end guests at the Maurice J. Curran summer home on Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Joyce of Andover and New York.

Elisha Cobb entertained a week-end party of men friends at his camp at Tiuro over the week-end. The camp is an old-fashioned house, which Mr. Cobb has fitted up into a most luxurious camp and quite frequently entertains "simple life" parties at the camp. The trips are made more delightful and comfortable by the addition of a chef, who goes down from Boston, to minister to the wants of the inner person.

BEACH BLUFF summer colony attends, every day, with a great amount of punctuality, the bathing beach at the Bluff, and the sight is a pretty one, indeed, as the galaxy of pretty gowns appear at the appointed hour, eleven, for the daily dip in the briny surf. Not to go to the beach at the Bluff each day, whether one will venture into the water, or not, is quite unfashionable. The children are here in abundance, too, with their attendants, some to surf bathe, while others play and revel on the shining sands.

Stephen Paine, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paine of "The Farm," at Beach Bluff, has just returned from a visit to Camp Wildwood at Kineo, Maine, on the shores of Moosehead Lake. He was accompanied by Alec Mossman of Brookline, who is a house-guest at the Paine home. The young men made the trip both ways by motor and experienced very good roads all the way. Stephen, who is very much interested in motion pictures, possessing two fine machines which he operates himself, took a number of pictures while at the Camp which will, no doubt, be very interesting when thrown on the screen.

Friday evening a number of friends and invited guests enjoyed a fine "show" which was given by Stephen Paine on the grounds of "The Farm," many occupying seats on the lawn and verandas with the screen at a pleasing distance to afford a good view. The pictures shown were Mary Pickford in "The Foundling," and a series of Animated Cartoons.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kelsey of Sea View avenue, who have been spending the past few weeks visiting at the home of Mr. Kelsey's brother at Middletown, Ct., have returned to Beach Bluff, Mr. Kelsey returning to his duties at the Sub-Treasury at Boston.

Miss Mariette Nute of Brookline, who is teaching Folk Dancing at the Neighborhood club each week is domiciled at the Bellevue during her stay.

One of the most interested and earnest workers at the Friday morning meetings of the Phillips Beach Surgical Dressings Branch held in the Neighborhood club is Mrs. William A. Paine of Beach Bluff. Mrs. Paine is always in attendance and is early in arriving and always the last to leave. Her sympathetic and kindly nature keeps her active in the noble work, and she is always striving to do "something more" for the "boys at the front."

Mrs. Lamont G. Burnham of the Somerset, Boston, who has been spending the summer at the Preston at Beach Bluff left the first part of the week for Lake Winepesaukee by motor to visit Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hurlburt of Boston, who have a summer home there. Mrs. Burnham will spend the month of September at different places of interest in the White Mountains and will return to Boston on October 1st.

CLIFTON is gay these days of the mid-summer and all social happenings seem to be centered about the Clifton Heights casino, which takes care of nearly all of the social affairs.

The Tuesday afternoon whist party was the largest of the season, due no doubt to the fact that two of the most popular of the Heights ladies were the hostesses in the persons of Mrs. E. R. Ellis and Mrs. A. B. Shaw. The trophies of the party were awarded to Mrs. S. R. Ellis, Mrs. John Gordon and Mrs. E. R. Ellis. Among those who attended were Mrs. G. O. North, Mrs. G. A. Richards, Mrs. G. Nicholas Young, Mrs. A. F. Faden, Mrs. A. J. Merriam, Mrs. A. Asher, Mrs. H. S. Jones, Miss Gertrude Stevens, Mrs. A. F. Dyer, Mrs. Frank Lamson, Mrs. John Dyer, Miss Gertrude Allison and Mrs. R. L. Baker.

Prof. Hugo Munsterberg of Orchard Circle, Clifton, was visited on Saturday last by no other charming lady of the motion picture world than Miss Lillian Walker. She came down and talked with the professor, who seemed greatly to enjoy the novelty.

The Misses Katharine and Caroline Phelan have returned to their home at Clifton after a motor trip through the White Mountains as the guests of Mrs. Stanley E. Johnson of Bath, Me.

MARBLEHEAD NECK

The Corinthian Yacht club has been the centre of many pretty dinner parties during the season, but apparently the pinnacle of perfection was reached Sunday, when Judge and Mrs. Stearns of Brookline entertained at dinner fourteen of their friends. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Frothingham, Mr. and Mrs. John Appleton Burnham and Dr. and Mrs. Johnson.

Miss M. Corinne Dana of the Neck delightfully entertained on Friday last at a luncheon at the Corinthian Yacht club in honor of Miss Sally Guin. The table was artistically decorated with cut flowers. Among the guests were Mrs. Joseph Sullivan of Moorestown, Pa., Mrs. Camden and Mrs. Marian Higgins.

Mrs. Marian Higgins of the Neck is entertaining Miss Sally Guin of New York as her house-guest. Miss Guin will remain until September.

Very brilliant and gay was the regular band concert given at the Corinthian Yacht club on Monday evening, which proved to be the biggest band concert night of the season. Among those who entertained were H. C. Grafton, J. W. Knapp, H. Hildreth, W. M. Pratt, N. Fallon, G. E. Chapin, W. W. Weston, B. Owen, H. Sutcliffe, T. W. Merriman, H. W. Patterson, D. L. Furness, F. C. Bates, J. W. Santry, D. B. Hallett, C. W. Isaacs, V. F. West, F. A. Russell, S. E. Beggs, H. W. Munn, K. S. Billings, C. A. Kidd, W. S. Fearing, E. B. Thomas, L. V. Glover and W. B. Phinney.

One of the prettiest dinner parties at the Corinthian Yacht club during the season was given by Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Sutcliffe and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Chapin on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Wager of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Ross of Boston. Covers were laid for fourteen at a table beautifully decorated with a centrepiece of a large mound of pink and white LADIES' NIGHT was observed at the Corinthian Yacht club last Friday evening, which event was celebrated by a great many dinner parties. The popularity of the club for a point of entertainment is rapidly growing, and each week finds a greater number of hosts. Among those who entertained were E. G. Brown, W. C. Trefry, L. G. Humphrey, C. E. Longley, H. C. Berson, H. Humphrey, O. S. Bauer, R. J. Salter, S. L. Hunter, Dr. Percy, W. I. Fearing, C. H. Traiser, H. L. Coffin, F. H. Richards, Morton Adams, King Upton, C. B. Wheelock, K. S. Billings, H. Whitcomb, S. J. Connolly, C. W. Cheney, V. F. West, J. R. Pope, C. T. Dukelow.

A very pretty dinner party was given at the Eastern Yacht club last Friday evening in the quiet and serenity of the pretty clubhouse by Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stone of Brookline. The table was burdened with quantities of roses forming a centrepiece, the floral design delightfully carried out in the place cards. Fourteen guests enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. Stone's hospitality.

To introduce Mrs. Frederick C. Fletcher to the Neck colony, of which she has recently become a member, Mrs. Hernan Parker gave a pretty reception Saturday at "Whitegate," the Parker residence on Nanepashemet road. The artistic rooms of the pretty dwelling were a profusion of summer blossoms. Mrs. Parker received the guests, introducing them to Mrs. Fletcher. The Fletchers have quite recently come down from Brookline and are occupying their own house on Foster street, which has lately been remodeled.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hunnewell have been entertaining Mrs. Hunnewell's sisters, the Misses Caroline and Edith Slade Ticknor of Jamaica Plain at their pretty summer home at the Neck.

Mrs. Leverett B. Merrill, who has a pretty summer home at Goodwin's Landing, Marblehead, is entertaining the Rev. Temple Cutler of Brighton as her house-guest for the remainder of August.

The War Relief Committee of Marblehead, which consists of Mrs. William R. Castle, Jr., chairman, Miss Edith G. Fabens, Mrs. Herbert J. Hall, Mrs. Everett Paine, Mrs. Robert S. Peabody and Mrs. John R. Purdon, have urged all ladies interested in the war relief work to continue their efforts for the cause, as never can there be too many hospital supplies for the wounded soldiers. They also urge as generous contributions as possible which can be sent to Everett Paine at the National Grand Bank, Marblehead.

WINCHENDON—THE NUREMBURG OF

And the horse in all his grandeur stood boldly in the center of the workroom with the rest of his companions of the day's making.

The girl workers are mostly engaged in making the quantities of toy trunks and the many sets of dolls furniture, all of which are some day to gladden the heart of some little tot. They also assemble the tools which fill the miniature carpenters' chests, so handy for the boys.

An important part is again played by machinery in the making of the trunks. The sides and bottoms of proper thickness and length are assembled and nailed by machines. Papering machines, on which huge rolls of plain and colored paper are wound, facilitate the covering and lining of the exteriors and the trays. The tin edges, which reinforce the body and the lid, are also tacked on by machines. But here is where their work stops. For the hinges, handles, locks and slats are nailed by hand as this process requires a more individual treatment. From the wee trunks for the very smallest dolls' clothing to trunks of real leather which could almost hold a young child's wardrobe, are made by the trainload.

The girls as well as the men in this factory are proficient in the handling of the hammer. In the room filled with the toy furniture the girls wield the hammer just as effectively as the men and it is almost inconceivable that these beds, bureaus, chairs, etc., can be so quickly put up and made into the daintiest furniture that ever a child could possibly want. And not only is the furniture designed for beauty but it is also designed in a substantial manner, well fitted to withstand the strain of the wear and tear of childhood usages.

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good" and so the strife across the water has taught our own manufacturers confidence in the ability to not only make, but excel, in the construction of toys well worth marketing. And the end is not yet, for inventive genius is now hard at work on original designs for the coming Christmases, when the retail trade will look to the American made toy, as the model on which they will spend their money and spend well.

In those days every town had its Washington tavern. In 1812 in Salem the portrait of the Father of his Country swung from the sign board of an humble tavern, which was the scene of many interesting activities of old Salem life.

Many forms of diversions and amusements centered around the old inns. What must have been a spectacular and thrilling entertainment was the exhibition at the Black Horse tavern in Salem of "Monstrous Sights," as they were advertised. Discussion before the bar enumerated the peculiar makeup of one monster then restrained in the tavern barn. It had "a face like a mouse, ears like an ass, neck and back like a camel, hind parts like a horse, tail like a rabbit, feet like a heifer." We suppose that the creature grew even more fearsome with protracted sessions at the bar, until no one would have been able to recognize our native American moose!

Other forms of diversion were offered by the enterprising and friendly taverns and in the Essex Register of June in 1806 the following advertisement appeared:

SPORTSMEN ATTEND

The gentlemen sportsmen of this town and vicinity are informed that a Grand Combat will take place between the Urus Zebu and Spanish Bull on the Fourth of July if the weather be fair; if not on the next fair day, at the Half Way House on the Salem Turnpike.

After this there was to be a "Grand Fox Chase on the Marshes."

Old Baker's tavern at Beverly where "every accommodation could be afforded," was the scene of many turkey shoots, then considered a great sport and usually held around Thanksgiving Day.

While our predecessors, the Indians, always walked upon their travels upon land, it is interesting to note how quickly the colonists acquired horses. Before John Winthrop died Massachusetts had a cavalry corps. Horse flesh was plentiful then and I think the American characteristic of never walking a step when riding is possible dates from the days "when we lived under the King."

With the development of the roads came the bridges; and some beautiful and lasting structures of the bridge builders' art could be found along the North Shore. Newburyport has the honor of having the oldest chain, or suspension, bridge. Beautiful surroundings add to its charm and it makes a picture not to be forgotten. The old bridge at Ipswich dates from Colonial days. In 1787 came the fine Essex bridge at Salem. Toll bridges were everywhere and were generally resented by citizens and travellers.

With all these improvements in the highways, stage-coaches became the approved method of travel and horse-back riding was nearly done away with for long journeys. Stage-coaches were known by different names in different localities. In 1767 it was a "stage-chaise" that ran between Salem and Boston, while nothing short of a "stage-chariot" conveyed the good people of Marblehead upon a journey to Boston. "Flying Mail Stages" came later and vast rivalry existed between the dashing stage coach drivers of the good, old days. Little Jack Mendum, who drove the Salem mail coach, was wont to say, "When I drive this stage coach, I am the whole United States of America." He pointed out to strangers the "biggest ellum in the country" and also the "purtiest grove of birch on the road."

Much of the picturesqueness of travel disappeared with the laying of two parallel lines of shining steel and the coming of the iron horse. It is a far cry from the luxurious limousine and the Flying Fisherman of today to the sturdy stage coach of the old days. Local and express trains, specials, and private cars trailing along with any regular train, satisfy the demands of all who travel. The old taverns, too, are only a memory or if by chance still standing, a landmark of the generations gone before. Cozy tea rooms and imposing hotels dot the landscape and life becomes more luxurious and more complicated with each passing year.

But after all is said and done, the average Yankee still admires his "hoss" and knows its good points, too, and sometimes, sneakily, feels with that adorable coachman, Tony Weller, "I consider that the rail is unconstitutional and an inwader of privileges."

The new organ at the Larcom theatre, Beverly, is the same as played at the Strand in Lynn and New York.

Gloucester, Mass.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—The view of the on-coming tempest of Tuesday afternoon was truly wonderful from this section of the North Shore, situated as it is to the eastward and facing the storm. The black and copper-colored clouds rolling over the city of Gloucester, with incessant flashes of lightning reflecting on the waters of the harbor, the latter soon being a seething field of white caps in the high wind, was a picture long to be remembered. The hotel verandas were crowded with guests who enjoyed the spectacle, notwithstanding some feeling of fear. The yacht "Whim," anchored off Hawthorne Inn, was struck by the lightning and sunk. The boat of the 18-foot class was formerly owned by W. L. Dean, the late marine artist of Boston and East Gloucester. Eight beautiful, large trees on Eastern Point boulevard, in the locality of Niles Pond and the summer estate of Dr. J. H. Knowles, were blown down, after standing severe storms of many years, so it can be judged how terrifically the wind blew here, almost on the par with a tornado. The roots of the trees are above ground.

Mrs. John Clay of the Eastern Point cottage colony is the prime mover for the musicale to be held on August 18 at the Bass Rocks golf club, for the benefit of the permanent Blind War Relief Fund of the Allies, when Wilford Russel of London, England, will appear.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Lavers and Master Lavers of Montclair, N. J., have registered at the Harbor View for the season. Mr. Lavers is one of the best known tennis experts in the country.

O. H. Tybbott of Washington is visiting his mother, Mrs. E. F. Tybbott, at the Harbor View Hotel, Eastern Point road.

Mrs. Mabel Hall Hardy, reader, was highly appreciated in a recital at the Beachcroft hotel on Wednesday evening.

Bishop Reece, Episcopal bishop of the Georgia diocese, with Mrs. Reece, Mrs. E. B. Freyer, Master E. B. Freyer, Jr., and F. R. Freyer of Savannah, Ga., are enjoying the season at Hotel Rockaway, Rocky Neck.

A Savannah, Ga., party spending the eighth season at the Rockaway includes Wiley Johnson, Florence and Ellen Johnson.

The G. E. Stevens musical takes place this Friday evening at 8.15 o'clock in the Hawthorne Inn Casino.

BASS ROCKS.—The heat of Tuesday was surely "the limit" and even cool Bass Rocks sweltered in the wake of the humid temperature. There were but very few people who ventured on the golf links, so terrific were the sun's rays and but very little wind stirring. On the beach, however, there were hundreds of people and the sea had a large number of bathers. Strange to say, the water was the coldest of the season, registering 45 degrees. The big electrical storm which came up in the afternoon threw people in a panic, especially the hotel people, owing to the severity of the tempest. The lightning played around the roads and rocks and the summer home of C. F. Farnsworth, "Seaways," located on Atlantic road, near the beach, was struck by a bolt, with little damage resulting and fortunately no one injured.

At the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse, the center of social gaiety these days, arrangements are perfected for the dancing party to be held under the direction of the reception committee this Saturday night.

On Monday afternoon, Mrs. Ludlan of Hotel Moorland gave a bridge and tea party at the golf clubhouse. There were four tables at cards and 25 people enjoyed tea.

Mrs. Howard C. Turner of Boston and the Bass Rocks cottage colony gave a tea to eight guests at the golf clubhouse on Monday afternoon.

In the handicap mixed foursome match competition played from August 2d to the 5th, at the Bass Rocks golf links, the honors went to E. B. Chandler of San Antonio, Texas, and Miss Emily McGuckin of New York.

At the Hotel Thorwald, Bass Rocks, on Monday evening, Mrs. Mabel Hall Hardy gave a delightful reading before an audience which greatly appreciated the work of the artist. Mrs. Hardy gave a varied program of readings classical and in lighter mood in character, and every number pleased. Mrs. Hardy is a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory School of Expression and she has taken work at Harvard and other institutions, both in the United States and Canada. The last position she held was principal of the Toronto School of Physical Culture and Expression.

The Velie family of Kansas City, Mr. Velie being the noted automobile manufacturer, occupies the big Colonial cottage of George O. Stacy, so beautifully located on the point beyond the Moorland and at the bend of Atlantic road.

The R.E. Collins family of St. Louis are enjoying the season at Bass Rocks, at their cottage "Redwood," situated on Atlantic road.

The Norman Days of Baltimore, Md., have joined the Bass Rocks colony again this season, as has been their custom for several years and are located at the charming Smith cottage, Atlantic road, near the Seth Mendell cottage.

Charles H. C. Brown and family of Brookline are spending this season at the H. T. Hall estate in the vicinity of the Souther estate, Bass Rocks. Mr. Brown is treasurer of the S. S. Pierce Company, importers and grocers, of Boston.

A ringer competition is being held through August at the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse.

Last week at the golf clubhouse, Mrs. Alex. Nelson of Baltimore gave three tables of bridge and tea and Mrs. Field of Hotel Thorwald had two tables of bridge and eleven for tea. Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent of Ardmore and the Bass Rocks cottage colony entertained at tea, six tables being used.

The Bass Rocks and Cape Ann colony will be out in large numbers next Friday for an evening of Mirth and Melody at the Bass Rocks golf club. The function is in Raymond, Mrs. Edward Rotan, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. Charles Scott, Jr., Mrs. Henry Souther and Mrs. J. Harrington Walker.

ANNISQUAM.—The Saturday afternoon tea at the Annisquam Yacht clubhouse last week was a pleasant affair, largely attended. Mrs. George A. Wood and Mrs. William Haxworth presided at the tea table. Pretty garden flowers were used for decoration. The costume party held at the clubhouse in the evening was a great success, when many people of the colony turned out for the affair. The matrons were Mrs. W. Haxworth and Mrs. S. Henry Hooper.

The annual parish fair in aid of the Village church was held in Village hall, Annisquam, last Wednesday afternoon and it was a great success socially and financially. The color scheme for decoration was red, white and blue, flags and crepe paper festoons being used. The booths consisted of the Sewing Circle, Sewing Bee, Tuesday Club, grabs, summer table, candy, ice-cream and lemonade. The summer residents in charge of the summer table were: Miss Ella Klauser of New York, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Muzzey and Pauline Dillingham.

Mrs. Blanche M. Walton and two daughters of Hartsdale, N. Y., have arrived at Rocknest cottage on Adams Hill for the season.

Edward Mellen and family of Cambridge are the guests of Mrs. Christina Mellen at her summer home on Adams road.

Douglas Guiler, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. James Guiler of Newton Centre and Adams road, Annisquam, met with an accident, jamming his left hand severely at the Annisquam Yacht club float, with the result that the thumb was amputated at the joint.

Guests recently registered at the Overlook include: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stockder, Miss Marion Stockder, Miss Gertrude Stockder, H. L. Stockder, Meriden, Conn.; Dr. and Mrs. Louis F. Berry, Sidney L. Berry, Stamford, Conn.; Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich, Amherst;

ROCKPORT.—One of the most enjoyable parties of the season at the Rockport Country clubhouse took place Saturday evening of last week, when the officers and mid-shipmen were the guests of the club. The men greatly appreciated the courtesy of the club members and enjoyed the evening to the fullest extent.

The battleships Missouri and Ohio left Sandy Bay harbor on Monday forenoon, last week, and sailed for Provincetown. The large number of midshipmen and prospective midshipmen attracted attention and they appeared to far outnumber the jackies on shore leave. Some of these midshipmen had been but one year at the Annapolis Naval Academy and were having their first sea duty.

The active agitators for the completion of Sandy Bay breakwater are keeping up the good work toward the end of finishing what has been partially erected. The Committee of Review will come to Rockport on Wednesday, August 16, and it is hoped that Secretary Daniels will be able to come.

A series of four talks and lectures by Mrs. Virginia Yeoman Remnitz will be held at the Straitsmouth Inn, Rockport, on August 1, 8, 15 and 22. The lectures are on "Poets and Playwrights of Today." They will be given at 10 o'clock, a. m. Mrs. Remnitz is a reader and lecturer of rare ability and has appeared at many exclusive gatherings.

Mrs. Adelaide Hovey of Waltham is at her cottage, Land's End for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Evans of Boston are at their cottage on Sandaba avenue, for the season. Mr. Evans is an enthusiastic golf player and is the possessor of several cups that he has won in tournaments.

Dr. Eugene Kelly and family of Brookline are occupying the Griffin cottage, Marmion Way, Rockport. This is the family's first season in this section of the North Shore. Dr. Kelly is chairman of the State Board of Health.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Morgan of Brookline are occupying the Mills cottage on Marmion Way, Rockport, having occupied this house for nine consecutive seasons.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Brookline are spending their first season in Rockport and have the Addin cottage on Marmion Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Cutting of Newburyport are as usual comfortably settled at their cottage on Marmion Way, Rockport.

Edward H. Clarkson and family of Newburyport are at their Marmion Way cottage this season.

Guy S. Leavitt and family of Brookline are occupying one of the Harvey cottages on York avenue. Mr. Leavitt is an enthusiastic tautog fisherman and has made some fine catches this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Covey and family of Malden are occupying the Small cottage on York avenue, Land's End, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Pevear of Cambridge are spending their eighth consecutive season at Land's End, Rockport, and are located at the Sidney Poole cottage, Sandaba avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pevear of Winchester are at "Breezy Gables," Sandabar avenue, Land's End, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Leighton of Newtonville are on Marmion Way for the season. Mr. Leighton is managing clerk of the American Trust Company, Boston.

There was a fine audience at the "evening of mirth and melody," held at Straitsmouth Inn, Land's End Rockport, on Monday evening, when Wilford Russel, barytone farceur, of London, England, gave a unique and varied program. Mr. Russel, who has given his selections before many noted and fashionable audiences in private drawing rooms and in finest resorts in the north and south, was thoroughly appreciated on Monday evening.

AN affair of unusual interest is promised in the production of Omar Khayyam to be given at the Hawthorne Inn Casino, East Gloucester, on Friday, August 18th. The tableaux are to be arranged by the artists, and the proceeds are for the War Sufferers in Paris, to be distributed there by Miss Elizabeth Nourse, the American painter. Mr. Louis Kromberg, the well known painter, who specializes in the portrayal of stage subjects, is the chairman of the committee. Miss Anna Seaton-Schmidt of Washington (the writer on art topics), Miss Adeline Piper of Baltimore, Miss Mabel Vickery, also of Baltimore, Miss Jean Nutting Oliver, Miss Nina Stockton, are among those actively interested. Mr. Arthur Row of Sir Herbert Tree Company, Grace Filkins, the actress, with many artists and young people, make up the cast. Miss Melba Procter will give a Persian dance. The production will consist of a series of tableaux from Omar Khayyam with the lines of the great poem recited by Mr. Row, who will impersonate Omar. The costumes have been specially designed by Mrs. Theo. Bernstein of New York and Miss Ethel Paddock. The music is under the direction of Mrs. George L. Noyes (wife of the artist), who will play selections from compositions by Arthur Foote and Liza Lehmen. Mr. George E. Stevens will sing in the Persian garden.

WHERE HE GOT IT

He was a witness in a case in the police court.

"What is your name?" inquired Prosecutor Robinson.

"Mah name?" from the darky incredulously.

"I'm talking to you," snapped the Prosecutor.

"Well, suh, mah name is Hallowed Hopkins," answered the negro.

"Hallowed—Hallowed," gasped the Judge.

"Where did you get that name?"

"Frum mah maw," answered the negro. "It am from de Scriptures."

"From the Scriptures? What part of the Scriptures?"

"Doan you all r'membah, Judge, wheah it says, 'Hallowed by thy name?'"

The Judge recalled the passage.—Louisville Times.

ONE of the sturdiest looking little boys on Singing Beach is Tommy Gannett, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett of Blossom Lane, Manchester. Tommy has a delightful play yard with swings, slides, sand pile and other things dear to his heart in one of the sections into which the garden is divided by cement walls. Something else of which Tommy must be fond is the pretty baby brother about a year old, who takes his nap out in the garden by the big pool filled with water lilies. Such an ideal place for a baby to sleep! And then Tommy's little black Scotch terrier and Tommy himself must have fine times racing over the beautiful terraces and lawns around the new home. Nowhere else is seen quite such a place as the new Gannett house. It is of Gothic architecture, the house, stables and grounds all characteristic of the style. A noticeable feature is the large white wall enclosing it and also separating the lawn into various sections. Vines are planted on the outer part of the main wall and roses within. The wall is bordered with a wide bed of flowers and the corners are planted in shrubbery and trees. The terrace fronting the house is also planted effectively in shrubbery. Each section of the garden seems like a beautiful little room by itself, and all blend into such a perfect whole, and so different from the other sea-shore homes. Tommy and the baby brother certainly have an ideal home in which to grow up in Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Mrs. Wm. E. Littleton of "Lilac Lodge," Beverly Farms, has had her daughter, Mrs. George Cushing of Milton, with her for a short visit this week. Another daughter, Mrs. Frank T. Griswold of Radnor, Pa., who usually spends the summer with her mother, will not come this season. Mrs. Griswold hesitates about taking her children through New York at this time, so she is postponing her visit.

Mrs. Henry Alexander Murray, Jr. (Josephine Rantoul), gave a luncheon for eight of her friends yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul of Beverly Farms. Mrs. Murray will return to her home in New York early in September.

MRS. LESTER LELAND'S greenhouse at "Old Tree House," West Manchester, is one of the rare beauty spots on the North Shore. The office is almost papered with certificates of merit and cards showing prizes taken and others showing honorable mention in the many flower shows to which the products of her greenhouse have contributed. Rare plants are seen in the different sections, the begonias predominating. Their blossoms hang in great waxon clusters of red, white, yellow and orange colors. Some beautiful ones are in baskets and hang down like vines. The Mrs. Lester Leland geranium is also seen. The section given over to chrysanthemums will soon be the great attraction in the place. The part most noticeable to the casual visitor is the palm room. Here are immense tropical plants of great beauty. Among them are ferns, orchids and other small plants suggestive of the tropics. Other estates seem to have more extensive gardens and greenhouses suited to the garden; others have rare fruit houses; but the Leland home seems to excel in the richness and rarity of its hothouse plants.

Mrs. Harry Gustav Byng (Evelyn Curtis), who makes her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Curtis of Beverly Farms, has sailed to England for a short visit.

ANNISQUAM.—In spite of the stormy weather of the beginning of the week a number of parties motored up to the Cathedral Pines Tea Room, Goose Cove, where a log fire greeted them and tea was cosily served before its cheerful blaze. Among others enjoying tea at this fascinating little tea house in the woods were Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Hoppe of Cincinnati, and their guest, Miss Margaret Mitchell; Foster Damon, Miss Damon and Miss Nelles of Annisquam, and a number of others. Mrs. Wilshire, who is stopping at Land's End for a few weeks, gave a delightful luncheon of eight at the Cathedral Pines on Saturday. Mrs. Maynard Ladd and Miss Anna Hyatt were also guests of the tea room during the past week.

THE work of gathering and forwarding supplies to the National guardsmen on the Mexican border is meeting with better success in Manchester than a great many places. Another box of reading matter and supplies was packed by the ladies who are working at the Manchester headquarters in G. A. R. hall this week. While in many respects the condition of the men on the border has greatly improved in the past few weeks the vast amount of time during which the men are idle has furnished a great problem in keeping them occupied and incidently contented. A liberal supply of books and magazines would aid in filling the want. Commenting upon need of reading matter by the militiamen the Boston Herald says, "Here is an excellent opportunity for patriotic householders to go over their stock of literature and single out from it such volumes as can be easily spared. This kind of material has a habit of accumulating to excess, and every year at each new "cleaning up" a vast mass of it either goes up in a holocaust or finds its way to the rubbish heap. Stories we have read and forgotten, books of travel and adventure which we have assimilated, odd numbers of magazines for which we no longer have any use, all form suitable contributions that will be eagerly and gratefully received. In Europe regular agencies are engaged in thus serving the soldiers at the front. Why not do a little of such work on our own account for the men who are doing so much for us?"

THE ITALIAN AUTHORITIES have issued a statement reviewing the war from their viewpoint and it makes interesting reading. They justly claim that their timely attacks have spared the Russians and the French at strategic moments. The entrance of Italy into the struggle was a fortunate episode in the war for the Allies. That has been well recognized without the necessity of a publicity propaganda.

War Notes

XVIII.

If Peace is to be maintained it must be by brave men who have come up to the same heights as the Hero, namely, the will, not only to carry their life in their hand and stake it any instant for their principle; but who go one step beyond the Hero of War and will not take another man's life.

—EMERSON.

War is but retrogression; Self-control,
Peace and good will to men the aim and goal.

The time is coming when there will
Be banished war and every human ill,
When men will stand and rather die than kill.

Strange it doth seem to me,
Such union there can be
Of culture and brutality
So manifest in Germany.

I seek with earnest mind
A ruling Providence to find,
But falter when I see
The deeds and sufferings of our human kind!

Religion being sound
And Patriotism high,
(Both being one if viewed aright,)
Doubt not men will be found
Who will for Truth and Justice fight
And for their country's honor dare to die.

—JOSEPH A. TORREY.

WEDNESDAY afternoon's bridge party at the North Shore Swimming Pool at Magnolia was well attended, ten tables being occupied by the players. After the card game afternoon tea was served. Among the hostesses who entertained at cards were Mrs. O. W. Richardson, Mrs. Alice Moore Richard, Mrs. S. B. Allyn, Mrs. W. M. Copp and Mrs. R. E. Livingston. Due to the unpropitious weather some of the finals of the tennis tournament have not yet been played off.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clendenin of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Genevieve, and son, Master David, and family friend, Miss Roane Beltzhoover, with maids and chauffeur, have recently arrived at Magnolia and have taken apartments in the Sea Crest cottage for the remainder of the season.

EDITORIAL

THE INCREASING NUMBER of automobile accidents is appalling. It is of course not possible to condemn every person who is unfortunate enough to be caught in an accident, but it nevertheless remains true that despite the fact there are many accidents that precision and caution could not avoid, the most of the disasters that do occur could have been avoided by a little care. One careful student of automobile accidents is convinced that persons who are known to have a penchant for fast driving and reckless handling of a car should have their licences qualified by a clause providing that their motor shall have a governor regulating the speed of the car. This is one suggestion which is not likely to be tried. But why not have some form of speed regulation on all cars? The Commissioner of safety in the city of Boston recommends a governor on all large motor trucks. Why would it not be possible for such a governor to be placed by parents upon cars belonging to juveniles and the younger members of the family. There is quite a number of such cars upon the North Shore where the head of the family is determined to check the speed of the younger and perhaps faster drivers in the family. However, care, caution and safety prevention must be the slogans for the motorist.

GEORGE A. GARDNER, A BOSTONIAN, and well known upon the North Shore has answered the call and has passed on to higher life. His philanthropic interests in the City of Boston have been wide and the influences of his giving will be long felt. During the severe winters of 1913-14 and 1914-15, just following the break in the diplomatic relations abroad and when work in Boston was scarce he provided funds for the distinctive purpose of putting to work thousands of men who otherwise would have been idle and without employment and without bread. It was many months before the name of the mysterious and generous benefactor was known to the public. This activity of his was characteristic and there were countless other unknown acts of philanthropy of his that will long be remembered by individuals and institutions in and about Boston.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS have assigned a contract for the construction of the new bridge between Beverly and Salem. A commission is at work in Somerville to lay a plan for a boulevard connecting the Felsway entrance with a thoroughfare through Cambridge. Before very many years Salem will reconstruct Bridge street, laying some other materials than cobblestones. When these three much needed improvements are made motorists will be able to ride from the North Shore to Boston with three very uncomfortable stretches of road reconstructed. The sooner these renovations can be made the better it will be for the cities in which the improvements are planned and for motorists going through or to Boston.

THE WEATHER BUREAU PROMISED good weather early in this month and the promises have been proving true. July was far from being agreeable to the summer visitors in New England, but August has begun well and there is every reason now to hope that it will continue.

THE COMMISSION APPOINTED by Governor McCall for celebrating the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth has begun its work and has opened headquarters in Boston. Major Henry L. Higginson of Manchester and Boston is the leader in the commission and has taken a hold of the work with his characteristic enthusiasm. The plans call for much needed improvement along the water front at Plymouth and the construction of a permanent memorial hall to be used for Town meetings and for other civic purposes. Plans are being formulated for an exhibit to be held probably in or near Boston. These plans are still under discussion and no final scheme has been approved. The celebration of the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims will be worthily commemorated with the present commission in charge.

THE APPOINTMENT OF Professor F. W. Taussig upon the new tariff commission will be a strategic move for the President and it will place in a responsible position a man of insight, experience and judgment. The tariff question will not be taken out of politics, but that is the reason why politics should be kept out of the commission. The adjustment of the tariff question is an intricate scientific problem and there is not in America a man who is better able to serve the nation than Professor Taussig, who is the leader in his department in America.

THERE IS A GOOD DEAL of unrest among the troops along our border because of the three-year term and the three-year reserve clause. There is no doubting the enthusiasm and the patriotism of those who responded to the call to the colors, but one cannot but feel that there is much injustice in the situation. It was not a pleasant experience to retire upon a Sabbath evening to be awakened on Monday to discover one has the six-year term, minus the years already served, in the United States Federal employ.

THE RAILROAD SITUATION does not seem to clear. The strike ballots are being canvassed and the results of the balloting are to be announced. The wages already paid to the men who are complaining of their harsh conditions appear large to the investors who have been waiting patiently for their stock to pay a small dividend. The situation is acute and it is difficult to see the justice of the demands being made by the particular departments now making a protest. To the ordinary worker the salaries appear quite munificent.

IS IT LIKELY THAT THE BREMEN will advertise the port that she will seek to enter? The men who are controlling the interests of the new under-ocean submarine service are too shrewd to be caught that way. We may expect the Bremen to pop right up in Baltimore or dock in New York itself, but not in Boston.

THE WATER HAS ITS ATTRACTIONS these summer days. The bathing resorts at Magnolia and the beaches in Manchester and Beverly Farms are popular places. There is not a fairer stretch of shore in the whole world with the bathing facilities and water privileges unrivaled.

THE SALE OF THE DANISH WEST INDIES to the United States Government is progressing, but not without opposition both in America and in Denmark. In America the anti-imperialists are objecting as was to be expected and while there is apparently a majority in the Danish Rigsday, who would doubtlessly vote to cede the islands, an intense opposition is reported throughout the realm. Whether the influence of public opinion is strong enough to influence the members remains to be seen. The concession of all of our interests in Greenland is regarded as important and may save the issue. Most Americans have no vital interest in the purchase. If islands are purchased and if they become a part of the United States territorial possessions they will be an aid to the Naval department both in time of peace and in the event of war.

THE AIR-CRAFT ARE NOW SEEN in flight almost daily either from Marblehead or from the island station off the Beverly shore. These graceful birds made by man appear equally at home upon the water and in the air. They are the cynosure of all eyes. It makes a difference, however, whether such craft are bent upon friendly errands or whether they are hostile craft seeking an opportunity to drop fire and shells.

THE GOVERNOR HAS AT LAST cleared up the Boston Police Commission tangle by the appointment of a successor to the chairman recently resigned. It is now evident that the gentleman who has accepted the appointment is a man of parts and principles and, however one may feel about the policy the Governor has worked out, the last appointment is above criticism.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR THE PRESIDENCY of the United States is now on again. President Wilson and Candidate Hughes have announced their programs and the first guns have been fired. If the continuance of the campaign is as tame as its beginning the next three months will not be over-exciting.

THE COLLEGE BOYS OF BATTERY A have some sense of justice and a real spirit of democracy. According to the rulings of the department they are at liberty to return home in time to take up their studies in Boston. They have, however, unanimously agreed to stay by the colors. This action on their part is characteristic and while there are young men at the front with that spirit America may not entertain fears for the future. There is much to be said in favor of preparedness, but the vital spark of life is the loyal spirit of the young men who make up the ranks of our life. When patriotism exists a nation is secure.

THE MALDEN YOUTH who sought adventure at the very front has had all that he wishes of adventure, thrilling experience and fear. He is ready now to settle down and enjoy a life of peace. What a pity he could not have learned his lesson a little earlier in life! Military service always appears attractive in print, but the real life itself has but little attraction; it is one of the sad duties of life. Military service is a patriotic duty to perform; it is not an experience to be sought for its own sake.

THE BUSINESS COLLEGE of Boston University has been growing very rapidly during the last few years. It has already outgrown the limited quarters in the old building and is now to have the refitted Walker Building of the old Technology group in Boston. Boston has needed a school of advanced standing to give instruction in business. It is now evident that that need is being supplied and the rapid growth of Boston University is a testimony of the vision that the founders of the new school had.

THERE HAS BEEN A BUMPER HAY CROP, despite the inclemency of July's weather. If the summer weather now being enjoyed could only have blessed the land during the haying season there is every reason to believe that the crop would have been not only a bumper crop, but a record breaker.

A World-Wide League for Peace

Proposed by Correspondent, but no
New Method of Work Suggested

BEING a constant reader of your weekly paper, I take great pleasure in submitting this article entitled, "Let Us," for your approval and, if found worthy of your consideration, ask that it be given publicity.

Let us form a league throughout the world, the main object to be to prevent future wars like the present.

Let us interest the people of all nations to belong and honor membership in this society.

Let us co-operate with all classes, rich and poor alike, in eliminating the constant dread of war with its terrible suffering and plant a seed of lasting peace in the breast of mankind. The thousands upon thousands of cripples, the toll of the present struggle, would be very efficacious in inducing men to enlist in this new fighting army against war.

Let us fight war as we fight White Plague and just as cleanliness and fresh air kills the former destructive germ, so will the destructive germ of war be killed with the preventive methods used by this powerful organization.

Let us teach the members of this league the history of all wars from Caesar's time to the present, their cause, object and results to the government and the people.

Let us, each and every one of us, be an advocate of peace and cast our influence, whether big or small, for the cause of peace.

Let us not be frightened by imperialism and its coercive methods.

Let us expel militarism entirely out of the dictionary and let the monarchies of Europe, that hold their power at the front of bayonets, fall to pieces.

Upon the killing of his son what right had the Emperor of Austria to call upon his people and force them into a war that is going to leave nothing but remains of what was once a powerful nation? What possible excuse can he give before God and man for his wholesale murder of innocents? None!

Let us impress those Lords of War with the fact that God has given no claim upon the lives of his children and he who spills the blood of another must suffer and pay the penalty with his own blood.

Let us then never allow a man or body of men to have the power to call at his or their pleasure upon thousands of our children to destroy their and our lives in order to satisfy their aims for revenge upon other innocents.

Why is the Government of the United States arming and appropriating vast sums of money in preparedness? Because of the constant dread that every one has for war.

Let us remove this fear; but in order to accomplish this purpose we have to call upon men all over the world to join us in this great Crusade for individualism and the right to exist.

Let us rule the countries of the world for the benefit of its inhabitants.

Let us have government in power that will direct their energies for the prosperity and happiness of their countrymen.

Let us be governed by intellectuals and not by mollycoddles.

Let the intercourse of nations be directed by business men with their consular representatives in every city of the world ready to assist and offer suggestions as to the opportunities offered to their people in the country they represent.

Let the more brainy man reap the fruit of his labor.

Let jealousy and hate between nations be a thing of the past and let every nation teach their children to respect and honor their brothers across the seas.

Let us get together and by means of this league, which soon will reach the millions in membership preach and devote our lives to oppose with all our might any and every attempt made in any country to justify the righteousness of war.

Let us stamp out this destructive plague called war from civilization by opposing militarism with all our might, and devote the money voted yearly in maintaining the armies of the world, in supplying the peasants of Europe with a three years' forced education learning a trade in the government schools.

Let us accept no excuse of any individual of the future generations for not knowing how to read or write or to be unable to earn a living for the lack of proper knowledge.

Let us make those we trust with the government of our country be responsible for the education, health and prosperity of our children. They are promoted by us, paid by us, and upheld by us; consequently they must give us an account of their acts, so as to protect the future of those we love and wish to be happy.

Let the word "Politician" with its sad memories of falsehood and crookedness be forgotten, and instead let us call "Protectorist" those engaged with the care of finding good governments.

Let us as the spider spin our web slowly but surely, close the possible retreat of our adversaries and crush one by one all the elements of treachery, viciousness and self-conceit which the world for centuries has called Diplomacy.

Let us supplant this diplomacy by frankness, falsehood by truthfulness and wrong by righteousness.

—LANJOD METES,
From the Trenches.

"I wish some people I know were like swans."

"Why so?"

"Because they sing only once in their lives and die immediately after."

It is said a woman never knows a man until after she marries him; and then she begins to find him out nearly every night.

Quartet of Grand Old Men

GATHERED among a hundred other elderly men last week at the annual outing of the Elderly Brethren association of Manchester were 11 men who had passed their eightieth milestone.

Nehemiah C. Marshall, the oldest man in the gathering, passed his 88th birthday on March 2 of this year. Mr. Marshall enjoys excellent health and is as active as he was thirty years ago. He is a native of Marblehead, but has spent the most of his life in Manchester. For many years he was engaged in the furniture business in the days when the manufacture of fine furniture was the leading industry in Manchester. He has served on the board of selectmen, the board of fire engineers and in other town offices. He is a past Noble Grand of Magnolia Lodge, I. O. O. F.

John Rogers Allen, who will be 87 the last of this month, has an erect, rugged figure and the bearing of a man in his sixties. He reflects in his manner the sturdy character of the man, who in the days of '49 braved the dangers of a trip around the Horn and endured the hardships of early California.

Julius F. Rabardy, although a native of France, is a whole-hearted American. Coming to America in the troublesome days when the slavery and state's rights questions threatened to disrupt the Union, he cast his fortunes with the army of the land of freedom. He was wounded at the battle of Antietam, where one of his legs was shot away. Today Mr. Rabardy, although past his 83rd birthday, enjoys working in his little garden behind his home on the inner Manchester Harbor. And, on a sun-

One of the fine old men, who always attends the outings of the Elderlies, is Nehemiah S. Herron, Beverly's veteran truant officer, who is in his eightieth year—and still in the harness. He attends to the tasks of his office with the same regard for duty and the same kindly service for the wayfaring youth that years ago won him the title of the "Good Samaritan." He is rounding out his 46th year of service.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY

The College Wardrobe

THE girl, who is going away to college for the first time this year, will probably have many ideas in her pretty head about the clothes she "simply must have," and if she is the average girl her desires will be much more extravagant than they need be. The simplest of clothes are the best for college wear, for it is not by appearance but by accomplishment that the college girl is judged. And this is as it should be for, if higher education is to make finer, better women of our girls, the problem of personal adornment must be relegated to its proper place in the feminine scheme of life. By this I do not mean that the girls of coming years should be indifferent to their wardrobe, but that a safe and sane viewpoint must be attained on the dress question. Sometimes, indeed, this will mean more time and thought and, possibly, money spent upon the wardrobe, but with a great majority of young American women this will mean a pruning of ideas.

The greatest of care must be exercised in the choice of hats. The first requirement of a hat is that it be becoming. Every other point is subordinate to this; cost, color and even good taste are less important; the "blue serge" girl cannot wear the dainty creations that the Dresden doll type demands, nor can the latter wear a mannish sailor hat. The following points, if observed in the buying of a hat, are almost sure to insure a successful purchase; namely, becomingness in color, simplicity in line and smartness rather than profusion in trimming. The college girl will need a small, chic hat for travel, church and calls, a small felt hat for walking, riding, and general school wear and, if she likes, a large, more elaborate hat for afternoon and formal wear. The last is not by any means, necessary.

Of course, a tailored suit is a necessity. Blue will be the most becoming and will give the best service of all colors. The lines should be simple and the style, inconspicuous.

Of shoes, the college girl will need heavy, flat-heeled, broad toed shoes for walking and general wear, soft shoes for gymnasium wear and slippers for evening wear. If she wishes, she may have a pair of smart high-heeled boots for travel. Slippers may match her simple party frocks, or, if she is economizing, a pair of white and a pair of black slippers will fill all requirements. As for stockings, let them be of excellent quality cotton, except her "best" ones which may be silk. Silk stockings are not allowed in many college gymnasiums.

Blouses may be of cotton for school wear and of crepe de chine and washable satin for outside wear. They should be as simple as can be, depending upon good lines for their smartness. Underwear should be of cotton or linen; not silk. Negligees, too, should be of cotton, easily laundered.

For evening dresses, needs at college are quite simple. Summer frocks will do for dinner wear with, perhaps, a dark taffeta for special occasions. For college dances simple, light party frocks are needed. Two will carry the college student through the year very nicely. An evening coat in a practical color is desirable, but not essential, because the girl's heavy coat will suffice for this use.

The need of an extra coat is obvious. A new model this season is of blue serge of excellent quality and smartly cut. A small cape hangs to the waistline in back and buttons into the sleeves. It is lined with crepe de chine in the owner's favorite color and is a delightfully practical garment.

More Hints for Summer Luncheons

LUNCHEON has become a pleasant, restful part of the day's program; it has become an interesting, happy meal made up of clever, tempting dishes. Hot food is not as attractive as cold for the summer luncheons. Meat, particularly, should be eaten sparingly, if at all, except in sandwiches.

Sandwiches offer the clever housekeeper an almost endless variety for serving and are especially good for the summer luncheon. The bread is, of course, the most important item in the making of sandwiches, for if it is not fine and firm good results are impossible. Bread that is at least twenty-four hours old is best for sandwiches as it can be sliced to better advantage. The thinner the slices are the more appetizing the sandwich is! Butter should be "worked up" with a fork for easier spreading.

Cream cheese combined with pimentoes and chopped olives makes a favorite sandwich with either white or graham bread. Crusts should be cut off and the bread may be cut in attractive shapes if there are guests for luncheon. Cream cheese used alone with thinly sliced brown bread is excellent. About eight layers sliced crosswise makes a most attractive sandwich.

Ham is the choicest meat for sandwiches, either deviled or cold, boiled; and white bread is the best for this kind of sandwich. Special care must be taken in the selection of deviled ham.

Crisp young lettuce leaves with thick mayonnaise dressing between buttered slices of white bread are cool and refreshing. These should be made just before serving, as should any salad sandwich. Cucumbers, tomatoes, cherries or bananas used with lettuce and mayonnaise are delicious filling for sandwiches.

Custards, steamed, in attractive cups make an excellent dessert for summer luncheons, and are nourishing as well as appealing. This recipe is excellent for a rich, plain custard:

3 fresh eggs, 1 pint milk, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar.

Mix these well and steam in cups 15 or 20 minutes. Test with a silver knife, and when the custard has steamed long enough, the knife will come out clean.

A plain custard is easily made into a rich pudding by the addition of bread cubes and chopped dates. This may be served with or without cream.

Layer Cake is an ideal summer dessert for it may be simple or elaborate, as the housewife prefers. It should be eaten within twenty-four hours of cooking. Lemon jelly cake is one of the nicest of layer cakes when it is not put together until just before serving. Miss Parloa's rule can hardly be improved upon:

MAY SPEAK IN BEVERLY

Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President, may be heard in Beverly early next month. This was an interesting bit of news developed at the meeting of the Hughes club held Tuesday evening at the club suite in the Atlantic block, Beverly. Mr. Hughes is to speak at Portland on September 7, and is expected to spend the week end with Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the supreme court at his summer place at the Farms, and if this program is carried out it is hoped to induce the candidate to address a Beverly audience.

Some men are of more importance than a thermometer on a pleasant day.

Born on August 2 to Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Conlen of Pine street, a daughter, weighing eight pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kehoe are proud parents of a baby boy, born Monday, August 7, weighing seven pounds.

Mrs. Burton Howard, who has been the guest of Mrs. Alfred Rogers for the past month, has returned to her home in Woodhaven, L. I.

A tree near the home of Michael Kehoe, Summer street, was struck by lightning during the storm of Tuesday afternoon.

The Preparedness club will give another of its enjoyable parties in Town hall next Tuesday evening, August 15. A banjo orchestra will provide the music.

Mrs. Roy S. Giddings of Savannah, N. Y., arrived Tuesday evening for a few weeks' visit with her sister, Mrs. F. J. Merrill, Bridge street. Mr. Giddings and the two daughters, Misses Dorothy and Anna Giddings, may come on later by motor for a brief visit. The son is with New York cavalry on the Mexican border.

Michael Murphy and daughter of Allston have been spending part of the week in Manchester renewing acquaintances and enjoying the refreshing breezes at the seashore during the hot spell. Mr. Murphy was formerly in the horse business in Manchester and is now engaged in business in Boston. His stable on Chestnut st. is one of the largest in the city engaged in the sale of high class horses. True to his vocation Mr. Murphy made the trip over the road from Allston behind one of his choice equines.

Work has been started on the grading of the part of Masconomo Park recently filled. It is expected that by fall a large part of the new land will be ready to be laid out in the spring. Although few Manchester people seem to appreciate the fact, the park is growing each year in size and in beauty. The bit of land, which was once almost an eyesore, has been reclaimed until today visitors to Manchester exclaim at the beauty of the spot. The men, who have worked so hard to bring about the beautifying of the land, look forward to the day when the town will increase its appropriation for the park fund and make possible the reclaiming of a large portion of the adjacent land.

Harry E. Mueller, who has been spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. William Till, Coolidge Point, was called home to Lexington, Ky., on account of the serious illness of his father last Monday. Mr. Mueller was organist and choirmaster at St. John's Church, Beverly Farms. He will not return to the North Shore, as he had previously secured the position of teacher of the piano at Lexington Conservatory of Music, his duties commencing September 11.

Thomas Smith, Forest street, who is employed by George S. Sinnicks, had a miraculous escape during the storm Tuesday afternoon. Smith was working in the basement of a house in East Gloucester, when a bolt of lightning struck the ridge pole. The bolt followed an electrical conduit to the cellar and struck Smith, knocking him unconscious. A Gloucester physician worked over him an hour before he was restored to consciousness. When revived Smith was able to come to his home alone and returned to his work as usual Wednesday morning, none the worse for his experience, apparently.

A novel entertainment is to be given in Manchester Town hall next Monday evening, the 14th, under the direction of Miss Isabelle Lee. Special dancing features will be introduced, particular among which will be little Miss Elena L. Taylor of Beverly, only four years old, and said to be the youngest dancer in vaudeville. Another feature expected is a one-step exhibition by a Rockport artist. This will be an entertainment well worth attending, and general dancing will fill out the rest of the evening. Lee's ladies' orchestra will furnish the music. Tickets are only 25 cents.

WHISPERINGS of THE BREEZES

Tree Warden William Young of Manchester thinks he can explain why the beautiful tree on Union street, opposite the Manchester Public Library, is called a horse chestnut tree. Tuesday, while trimming the tree, removing dead branches and twigs, far up in the tree, some twenty-five feet from the ground, one of the men found a horse shoe, aged by exposure to the elements, reposed in the fork of a large branch. How it came there is somewhat of a mystery, but there it was, and that is why the tree is called a horse chestnut, says our friend, the tree warden.

Some idea of the heavy automobile travel now-a-days may be gained from the figures kept by one person Sunday afternoon. In the space of two hours 1100 cars passed through the square in Manchester, which, to use the vernacular, is some parade. Another person counted the cars he met in driving last Sunday afternoon between the Allen estate in Beverly Cove and the square in Manchester, and in the sixteen minutes that elapsed he counted 170 cars, all going in one direction.

The popularity of Singing Beach, Manchester, was attested last Sunday during the noon hour, when 75 cars were counted at one time, lined up along Beach street, adjoining the beach. The need of a policeman was never more apparent than last Sunday, when Officer Gilmore had his hands full regulating traffic at this congested spot. The beach was alive with people, several hundred enjoying the wonderful bathing on the clear white sand bottom. The capacity of the town bath-houses was taxed all day long—as it is very often, as many as four being forced to use the same apartment at one time. There is need of more accommodations. Thirty-two apartments are hardly sufficient to take care of the crowds that seek a chance to enjoy the free privileges of a bath at Singing Beach.

"No One on the Line"

When you answered your telephone did the operator say, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it"?

She was right—there was no one at that moment; but, unless she accidentally rang by mistake, there had been someone who asked for your number and at whose request the operator rang your bell.

The reason there was no one there may be any one of the following:

Perhaps you were up-stairs and you could not run down-stairs to the telephone quickly enough; or you thought some other member of the family might respond to the ringing bell; or you waited a few moments before you started to go to the telephone, or were delayed in so doing.

The result was that the person who called was unwilling to wait for you to respond and hung up the receiver; it may have been with the belief that you were inaccessible, or it may have been impatiently.

There is another possibility: The person who asked for your number may have been in error and have given the wrong number; then discovering the mistake, have hung up the receiver and proceeded to call the right number.

There is also the possibility of occasional human error, where an operator has misunderstood the number given or has made a mistake in her switchboard work.

The greatest satisfaction in the use of the telephone comes from clear enunciation in giving numbers and in speaking, and in a prompt response when called.

That $1.20 tax rate jump was a rude shock to those in Manchester who had figured that the rate would be about the same as last year. Extensive improvements to the highways are responsible for the increased rate. Which reminds us of the old saying, "You can't have your cake and eat it too."

BOY SCOUTS

HOLD FIELD DAY AT TUCK'S POINT, MANCHESTER, WITH BIG ATTENDANCE

Under the auspices of the Manchester troop of Boy Scouts, 75 scouts of neighboring troops gathered for the first annual field day of North Shore Boy Scouts at Tuck's Point, Manchester, last Saturday afternoon. The first attempt at a field day was so successful that it will be an annual event hereafter. The scouts arrived in the morning from Gloucester and Rockport, the "Sea Scouts" from the latter place making a fine appearance in their sailor costumes. The scouts from Salem and Beverly started at noon from Salem in a sail boat. The boat was becalmed in the bay and it was four o'clock before the delegation arrived. The water sports were held in the morning, according to the program, and after a basket lunch the scouts assembled for the field events. Owing to the lateness in arrival of the Salem and Beverly scouts some of the events were not contested, but exhibitions of the various work was given. In the fire-lighting and water-boiling contest Sidney Baker was first, cutting the wood, making a fireplace and boiling water in 7 minutes and 30 seconds. Dana Younger was second.

The antelope race was won by the team led by Edward Croteau; the crab race was won by Allen Needham, and Nelson Butler was second; the equipment race was won by Allen Needham, with Edward Peters second. The quarter-mile relay race was won by the team captained by Dana Lane. The tent-pitching contest was won by Dana Younger's team in 5 minutes 43 seconds. Revere Brooks' picked team won the baseball game, 6 to 4. Addresses were made by Charles S. Shaller, scoutmaster of Salem and Beverly troops, and by Rev. A. G. Warner, scoutmaster of the Manchester troop.

"WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN?"

The seventh week of that daring photo-play, "Where Are My Children?" begins next Monday (August 14) at the Majestic theatre, Boston. The simple announcement of this fact speaks volumes for the worth of the entertainment and for the interest it has excited in Boston. For there has been little falling off in the attendance, even during the scorching days of the latter part of July and the first week in August, when to attend any indoor place of entertainment involved a great sacrifice of comfort.

Four performances of this play are given daily: at 2 and 3.30 in the afternoon, and at 8 and 9.30 in the evening. Seats are reserved for the 2 o'clock and 8 o'clock performances.

REWARD OF SERVICE

Rev. Albert A. Madsen, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Congregational Church, Gloucester, preached at the Congregational Church in Manchester last Sunday evening in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Charles A. Hatch. Mr. Madsen declared that it was a law of the spiritual world that whatever a man deprived another of he in turn should be deprived of the enjoyment of it. The great demand of humanity is for happiness, rest from the troubles and sorrows of life, fellowship and the touch of the Eternal, he said. Just in the degree that a man deprived another of any of these four great needs, he would lose them himself. Mr. Madsen characterized this as supreme justice, but declared that there was escape for the violator of this spiritual law. Just as absolute justice brought punishment for depriving another of the benefits to which he was entitled that same justice rewarded him who conferred those benefits by service. Service, he declared, was the opposite of sin and was rewarded in the coin of human happiness, peace, fellowship and communion with the Eternal.

MANCHESTER BATTERS TOUCH UP
 ST. JOHN'S CLUB TWIRLERS FOR 14 HITS.

St. John's club of Cambridge, the only team which has defeated Marblehead A. A. this year, was humbled by an eight to four beating administered by the Manchester team in Manchester last Saturday afternoon. Fighting four innings in the face of a four run lead Manchester drove across its first run in the fourth inning. In the fifth the "wrecking crew"—Cody Devlin, Herron and Conley—got busy and when Conley "cleaned-up" the bases with a home run drive over the brook it was all over but the cheering, which took three innings to die down.

St. John's started off the game with a rush that threw a scare into the Manchester fans. Burke fanned, but O'Connor singled to center and O'Leary's error let Cote get to first. Devlin's wild heave let in O'Connor and McCarty got to first on an infield hit. Quinn cleared the bases with a three bagger to the brook. Quigley hit to Collins who muffed the ball, but nailed Quigley at second as the latter tried to stretch his hit for an extra base. Zwicker singled to center, scoring Quinn. The four runs cast a gloom over the Manchester camp which hung until Conley's beautiful drive turned the tide in the fifth.

Both sides hit the ball freely, but Manchester had the better of the stick work. The local team had a hit or two in every inning except the seventh. Singles in order by Conley, Collins and Grover brought in the first run, which Conley made in the fourth inning.

Cody drew a pass in the fifth and was advanced to second by Devlin. Herron's single moved the runners along a notch and Cody slid home when Cote dropped a throw. With Devlin on second and Herron at first Conley drove out the longest hit made on the local diamond this season. The ball soared high over the brook, landing a good 30 feet across.

Perkins led off the sixth with a single to the right field fence, but was out at second on Gourley's infield hit. O'Leary got a two bagger over the fence and Cody brought in Gourley. Devlin reached first in a hit which was played to get O'Leary at the plate. Herron was safe at first when Langley dropped the ball and Cody scored. Devlin was caught at home, McCarty throwing to second to get Herron and nailing Devlin at the plate on the return throw.

In the eighth Quinn got to first on Grover's error. As he passed over first base he stepped on Devlin's foot in a way that did not look entirely accidental. O'Keefe batting for Quigley was out on a fly to Herron. Zwicker hit to Grover and was out at first. Devlin doubled back to Perkins who nailed Quinn at the plate. As the runner approached the bag he jumped feet first at Perkins' arm making a nasty cut, but doing no serious injury.

Sullivan, who replaced Fitzgerald in the box in the sixth for St. John's club, was easy for Manchester, two runs being made in the two innings he pitched.

In the last of the eighth O'Leary was safe at first on an error by Cote. He stole second and came home on Cody's single.

One of Manchester's loyal rooters has obtained recognition by the press as the appended note from the Reading Chronicle will attest.

"NATURAL BALL PLAYER" SAYS
"CHRISTY" MATHEWSON OF MANCHESTER'S SHORT-STOP.

"That boy is a natural ball player, and you can quote me as saying that I will see to it personally that he will be sent to a minor league where I can watch him closely," said "Christy" Mathewson, after "Sandy" Herron had finished practice with the Cincinnati Nationals in Boston Monday.

The Beverly boy certainly looked good playing shortstop Monday in practice with Loudon on second base, "Heinie" Groh on third and "Hal" Chase, formerly of the New York Americans, playing the initial bag. Herron scooped up everything in sight and Chase was much pleased with the manner in which the Beverly chap sent the pill shooting across the greensward. At bat, with Schneider pitching, Herron banged out the ball in good style and "Matty" kept him at the plate for some time in order to get a line on him. A big crowd of fans went up from Beverly and gave Herron a splendid send off.

Salem ball fans are making a big effort to have the proposed Marblehead-Manchester series played in Beverly. The idea is not a bad one, for the location is about half way between both towns and easy access to Salem, Peabody, Lynn and Danvers as well. However, at the present state of the negotiations for the intertown series it is a flip-up whether the series will come off at all.

ALFRED S. JEWETT
 Veteran Town Clerk

Alfred S. Jewett, Manchester's veteran and respected Town clerk passed his 76th birthday Tuesday, enjoying the felicitations of a large circle of friends. Mr. Jewett will round out his 29th year as clerk of the Town of Manchester next spring and announces that he will then retire to private life. Mr. Jewett is a veteran of the Civil War, having endured three years of service in the Union army. He is patriotic instructor of Allen Post, G. A. R. of Manchester and is in demand as a speaker on frequent occasions.

As town clerk, Mr. Jewett has acquired a wealth of knowledge relative to the affairs of the office and his fund of information regarding the history of Manchester is unequalled. He has received a valuable legal training in the long years he has held office, following a natural bent and he is called upon continually for advice in legal matters and for information necessary in the settlement of estates. He will retire from office with a record for length of service and with the fullest appreciation of his fellow townsmen for the valuable service he has given. His will be a hard place to fill.

MANCHESTER

A merry party enjoyed the annual invitation dance given by Mrs. Edward Filby in Town hall, Manchester, on Wednesday evening. Decorations of deep purple and orange beautified the hall. Festoons were strung from the chandeliers, inverted parasols and toy balloons suspended from the ceiling and the stage was deeply banked with flowers and palms. Ice-cream and cake were served in the hall during intermission.

George S. Sinnicks has been awarded the sub-contract for the brick work and plastering on a number of buildings which are being constructed by Connolly Bros. of Beverly Farms at Warrenton, Va. G. Albert Sinnicks and George Phippen of Pleasant st. left on Monday for Warrenton where they will have charge of the work, which is being done for E. M. Weld. An old plantation is being restored and built up into a gentleman's estate—one of the finest in the country.

The severe electrical storm of last Tuesday afternoon had the effect of putting out of commission a large number of telephones in Manchester and vicinity. From the viewpoint of the telephone company it was the most disastrous of its kind in years. Everything is being done by the plant department to repair the damage as quickly as possible and every available man has been set to work with this end in view. Manager Rolfe states that it may be several days before the service becomes normal.

Manchester's opponents for the ball game tomorrow will be the General Electric nine of Lynn. Knapp, the G. E. twirler, is a former New England leaguer. He leads the batting order and the balance of the line-up follows: Agnew c, Kelley 1b, Cochran 2b, Waterhouse 3b, Flaherty ss, Murphy lf, Strong cf, Doherty rf. Flaherty, the short-stop, is also heralded as a former New England leaguer. The game will start promptly at 3 o'clock. The Lead Lined Iron Pipe nine of Wakefield will play in Manchester on August 19. There was a smaller attendance than usual at the annual outing of the Essex County Women's Relief corps at Tuck's Point Thursday afternoon. Stormy weather on Wednesday caused the postponement for one day and threatening weather in the morning kept the larger part of the outside delegations away yesterday. Among the speakers was Junior Vice-Commander of the Dept. of Mass. G. A. R. Edwin P. Stanley.

There will be a service for worship at the Beverly Farms Baptist Church on Sunday morning at 10.45. The Bible school will meet at 12; there are classes for all ages. Miss Florence Chapman will lead the Christian Endeavor meeting. There will be a special musical service at 7.30. The choir will be assisted by a violinist and an orchestra. The choir will sing two anthems and there will be two violin solos by Master Clarence Knudsen. The minister, Rev. Clarence Strong Pond, will preach upon "Harmony." The special collection taken last Sunday evening for the Home for Little Wanderers in Boston amounted to fifty dollars in cash and pledges. The Young People's Society lawn party was a success despite the rain on Tuesday. Rev. Oscar W. Johnson will address the next meeting for Scandinavians on Friday evening, August 25, at 8.30. The Italian classes in English meets twice a week, Tuesdays and Thursdays, under the care of Mr. Loreto Tessicinni. The service on Sunday evening, August 20, will be illustrated by the stereopticon. A grand Irish concert and dance in the Town hall at Manchester will attract many from here on Wednesday evening, August 30. The artists include the great Shaun Nolan & Co.; Rahilly Bros., champion exhibition step dancers, the greatest exponents of Irish step dancing, and Peter Rooney, the man with the McCormack voice. Also Miss Maude Howland Burns, contralto, and Miss Viola Eldredge, Peabody's child reader and solo dancer. There will be a fine array of local talent. Dancing will follow the concert.

Magnolia prides itself on having a splendid library which has been well patronized thus far this season. It now has over seven thousand volumes, the most of which are worth reading and some of which are very valuable.

Some of the summer people have made to it very generous contributions of money, books and time and among these are Miss Elizabeth G. Houghton, Mrs. Margaret Curry-Chaplin, Miss Elizabeth Thornton, Mrs. Frank Chick, Miss Mary Thornton, Miss L. A. Bigelow, Miss E. P. Hamlen and Otis Weld Richardson, its treasurer.

Among the recent accessions to the library are the following:

Miss Marion Cady of Boston was a recent guest of Mrs. Frank H. Davis.

The dates for the minstrel show at the Women's club are August 17 and 18 at 9 a. m.

George Brown of Lynn spent the week-end at the home of his uncle Henry W. Brown on Magnolia ave.

Mrs. F. F. Story has returned to her home on Western avenue after a visit of several weeks with friends in Winchester.

Rev. Phillips E. Osgood, Chapel of the Mediator of the Holy Apostles, Philadelphia, will conduct the services in the Union Chapel, Sunday at 10.45 a. m.

The annual meeting of the Magnolia Protection and Improvement society was held at the North Shore Swimming Pool Thursday evening.

Among the recent arrivals at the Magnolia Inn are, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Friez and daughters, Catherine and Margaret, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stanley, New Britain, Conn.; W. C. Cardon, Miss Alice B. Newell, Boston; Mrs. J. F. Collins, Miss Marion Walsh, Dorchester; Miss R. E. Lampson, Newtonville; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Glick and children, Julia, Gertrude and Wilfred, Richmond, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Brewer, Onida, N. Y.; and the Misses Adie and Ella Proctor, Gloucester.

The annual cabaret show will be given at the Men's club this Saturday evening, and as in other years it promises to be a great success. Owing to the lecture to be given at the Village church on Monday night, Aug. 14th, the moving picture entertainment at the club will be omitted.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. McCarty entertained over the week-end Captain and Mrs. W. Dow of Boston, who have recently arrived from Russia. On their way home the captain's vessel and all on board except the passengers were sent to the bottom of the ocean by a German submarine. The experiences of their rescue from death as related by the captain and his wife were most thrilling—another evidence that to sail the seas now is not safe.

Rev. Dr. Charles Wadsworth will preach in the Village church next Sunday morning at 10.45 o'clock. At 8 p. m., Col. C. H. French will give his great lecture on India, showing pictures of the famous monkey temples, the worship of the Ganges River, the magnificent foliage and flowers of the country, the holy men or devotees of India, the wonderful Taj Mahal, the great Himalaya Mountains and the grandest scenery of the oldest country in the world. A silver collection will be taken. Col. French will also lecture at the same place as follows: Monday, Aug. 14, Grand Canyon; Tuesday, Aug. 15, Japan; Wednesday, Aug. 16, Rome, the hour being at 8.30 p. m. Each lecture will be illustrated with a complete and expensive collection of pictures.

Did Magnolia ever experience a more terrific thunder-storm than that of Tuesday afternoon?

An interesting item on the Magnolia Library together with a list of books recently added, will be found on the preceding page (71).

Many from here plan to attend the entertainment and dance to be given in Manchester Town hall next Monday evening, when the beautiful young dancer, the 4-year-old Elena Taylor of Beverly, will dance. The affair is under the direction of Miss Isabelle Lee of Manchester and Miss Esther Lynch of Beverly.

The Furgerson house has been rented to Henry R. Danner, Indianapolis, and the "Sea Reaches" to Mrs. Wilshire Edwards, California. The business was done through Jonathan May, who reports that practically all the cottages on Magnolia Point are now occupied—something quite unusual even in good and prosperous seasons.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Palmer of Greenfield spent the past week visiting friends here.

The past week has been a record-breaker for the number of bathers at West Beach. The hot weather has driven many to the cool shelter of the pavilion piazzas.

The work of extending the West Beach pier 40 feet has been practically completed. The improvement gives a greater depth for boats and does away with the need of so many floats.

John W. Morgan, driver of the motor engine at the Beverly Farms fire station, starts on his annual two weeks' vacation, which he plans to spend at Ossipee, N. H., and at Templeton, tomorrow.

The price of labor along the North Shore was given another boost this week. Men employed by contractors have been receiving $2.25 per day and demanded $2.50. Their demands were granted and hereafter contractors will charge $3.00 per day for laborers.

Harry E. Mueller, for the past four years organist and choirmaster at St. John's Episcopal Church, has accepted the position of instructor in piano at the Lexington, Ky., Conservatory of Music. He planned to leave here August 29, after the choir boys' annual camping trip, but owing to the serious illness of his father he was obliged to leave last Monday, much to the regret of the boys and his many friends at the Farms. Mr. Mueller was born in Louisville and was the youngest organist to hold a responsible position in the city, being organist at the Church of the Advent when 14 years of age and organist at the Fourth avenue Methodist Church at 16. He studied four years in the New England Conservatory of Music, graduating with honors in piano in 1915. He then studied the pipe organ under Wallace Goodrich and completed his course in 1916. In 1913 he received a diploma from the school of G. Edward Stubbs, M. A., New York, for the training of boys' voices. Mr. Mueller has the best wishes of his friends here for his continued success.

James W. Wright is substituting as spare driver at the Washington Hose house in the city proper.

Because of the weather the field day of the Beverly Farms playground was held yesterday instead of Wednesday. Athletic sports were held in the afternoon and there was dancing in the evening.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Baptist Church held a social in the church Tuesday evening. Plans were made for an elaborate lawn fete, but the sudden rainstorm changed the program to the church building. The entertainment consisted of a doll coach parade, in which prizes were given for the prettiest outfit; music and shadowgraphs. Tables were as follows: Candy, Molly Davis; ice cream, Sewell Day; lighting, Albert Simms; vegetables and flowers, George R. Day; grab (well-sweep), Elizabeth McKinnon and Mildred Gerrish; punch, Margaret Lee; 5 and 10-cent table, Florence Chapman; lunch, Alice Chapman; cake, Evelyn Davis; door keeper, George S. Day. Beverly public schools will open for the fall term on Wednesday, Sept. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Crawford of Troy, N. Y., spent the past week at Beverly Farms visiting friends.

Michael G. Dennigan was called to Warren, Pa., on account of the death of his mother the early part of this week.

The North Shore Cadets Band gave another open air concert in Central sq. Wednesday evening. They rendered a fine program which was appreciated by a large audience. There will be no concert next week, but they will be resumed the week after.

Many from here plan to attend the entertainment and dance to be given in Manchester Town hall next Monday evening, when the beautiful young dancer, the 4-year-old Elena Taylor of Beverly, will dance. The affair is under the direction of Miss Isabelle Lee of Manchester and Miss Esther Lynch of Beverly.

Fire and Burglars

If you have your valuables and papers stored in one of our safe deposit boxes fire or burglars will have no terror for you. A safe deposit box in our vault can be had from $2.50 a year up. It's worth many times the price for contentment of mind alone. Let us show you our fire and burglar proof vaults.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Linehan spent the past week on an automobile trip through White Mountain resorts.

Rev. N. P. Carey, W. J. Pierce and W. B. Publicover enjoyed a two days' auto trip to Bore's Lake, N. H., the first of the week.

Because of the mission in progress at St. Margaret's church the dances scheduled for this week and next have been postponed.

Miss Christine Murray, a popular Pride's Crossing young lady, has entered the Carney Hospital, Boston, for three years of training as a nurse.

Miss Abbie Williams and Miss Mollie Crowley, who are employed in Beverly offices have been enjoying their annual vacation at Lake Winnetoesaukee, N. H.

John Cannon and daughter, Miss Mary Cannon, former residents of Beverly Farms, were here for a visit this week. They now reside in Jersey City Heights, N. J. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cannon, Haskell st.

A company of people were waiting in a railroad station, and fell to relating at how early an age each had chosen his vocation. A farmer had been stimulated at twelve, by a plot of ground given to him to cultivate. A preacher said that at the age of seven, in church, one day, he had resolved to enter the ministry. Thus several men spoke; but a sign-painter, present, antedated them all by remarking: "I started in my business before any of you. Why, before I could talk I made signs."—Exchange.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be passed on you?" asked the judge. "Not a word. I made speeches the last three times and they didn't seem to do me any good," replied the prisoner.—Detroit Free Press.

Senator William E. Mason of Illinois proved himself a successful fisherman. His favorite ground was off a ledge on the Maine coast, where he captured perch and sunfish. One day he sat patiently waiting for a bite. Suddenly he felt something on his hook, and, pulling it in with a vigorous hand, was rewarded by a poor little tin can covered with rust and seaweed. As he took it from the hook, he said, "Humph, I could have done far better in the Chicago River!"—Exchange.

County Justice—Ten dollars.

Motorist—I've only a twenty. Can you change it?

Justice—No, but I can change the fine. I'll make it twenty.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"VERY GOOD, EDDIE"

Monday night next, August 14th, Y^e Wilbur theatre, Boston, opens its regular season, when Elizabeth Marbury and F. Ray Comstock will present the smart and bright musical comedy, "Very Good Eddie." This musical comedy is now in its tenth month of an exceptionally successful run in New York, and society in Boston, Newport, the North Shore and elsewhere will be specially interested in it, as Elizabeth Marbury, one of the producers, and Elsie DeWolfe, who designs the scenery and costumes, are favorite amusement purveyors among the smart set.

The book of "Very Good Eddie" is by Philip Bartholomae and Guy Bolton, and the sory is founded on the farce, "Over-Night," which delighted Boston audiences when it played there a few seasons ago. The lyrics are by Schuyler Greene and the music by Jerome Kern.

"Very Good Eddie" is said to be a companion piece to "Nobody Home," which opened the season at this house just about a year ago, and ran for three months in Boston, possessing all of its charm, although entirely different in theme. It is said even to surpass its predecessor in the luxury of the 14 sparkling and tuneful musical numbers.

Of Interest to Lovers of Antique Jewelry

A collection of Antique Jewelry, one that a leading New York collector has been assembling for a number of years, is now on exhibition in our Store in Salem.

The collection is a very interesting one as it contains many examples of the choice work of the craftsmen of olden days.

Cameos and Mosaics from Italy.

Odd pieces of Old Spanish, English and Norman Jewelry.

Hand-painted Ivories and Porcelains of the Louis XVI Period.

Beautiful Persian and Etruscan work.

This jewelry takes the forms of Brooches, Necklaces, Ear Drops, Fobs, etc.

While the display is primarily one for exhibition, any of the pieces may be purchased.

We cordially invite you to view this collection.

Oft-told Tales of Marblehead

Old Burial Hill

ANNE ACTON

*"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth, e'er gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour;—
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."*

FAR away in old England dreams were spun of a vast country beyond the sea, where land and liberty waited only to be claimed and beckoned on by the elusive finger of promise, the dreamers came.

They found the vast country. Land there was in plenty, although not so much that the savage native yielded it easily, and long and weary was the struggle before he was dispossessed. Of liberty there was little. Narrow and circumscribed were the limits of the settlements and to go beyond them was to enter the trackless forest where the Indian was supreme and death invariably waited; and not a whit broader than these restricted confines was the spirit of custom that ruled as rigorously in the new world as in the old.

And yet they stayed, these disillusioned dreamers, and laid the foundation of a dream that should come true.

Numerous and interesting are the evidences of their sojourn in Marblehead and here on old Burial Hill mounds and hollows give testimony of their passing. Many a glorious legend has written its last lines on the slate slabs of this old hill; many a tale of love and adventure; of heartbreak and loneliness; of courage and patience might these old gravestones tell. And they carry us back in memory to the birth of Marblehead, even as they mark the death of its first settlers and establish, without dispute, the antiquity of the little town.

Almost three centuries have rolled over Marblehead; years of changes, of passing generations; centuries of storms, of summer's heat and winter's cold; yet these frail-looking, slate slabs stand almost as when they first stood to mark the newly-made graves of the dreamers who dared to search for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The older mounds have slipped into hollows and the stones are buried inches deep in the withered grass of years back, but they still tell their story and not all the beating rains of all those years have been able to obliterate the words and dates, carved by hands for whom a like task has long since been done.

As you climb the flight of stairs that scale the rocky side of old Burial Hill you marvel that the early settlers chose such a place for their grave-yard; but here stood their first meeting-house, a rude, barn-like structure: and here, in comforting nearness, after the manner of their forefathers, they brought their precious dead for burial. Moreover, because of its height, this rocky ledge furnished safety from the Indians not to be had on the lower levels. Here it was fortified against the attacks of the capricious, restless savage and no safer repository for departed loved ones could be had.

It was in 1639, ten years after Marblehead had been settled, that this first church was built and it is more than likely that the churchyard had its first green mound very shortly after, if not, indeed, before, for many a stout heart must have failed in ten such trying years. But these earliest graves are unmarked. Perhaps the years have been more successful in destroying all trace of them, or, what is more likely, the infrequent arrival of ships from England made it difficult and expensive to procure stones.

And so we will point out to you what is said to be the oldest gravestone still standing on old Burial Hill. It is at the foot of the hill near Red's Pond, and must have been some distance from the sheltering shadow of the first church. It bears the date of 1681 and marks the grave of Mary Latimer, born in 1632. Another, close by, bears the date of 1690 and the name of Christopher Latimer, her husband, born in 1620. Almost three hundred years since they came and lived their lives and departed! What was their story? Did they come hand in hand and heart to heart to seek together their fortunes in the new world? Or, did he who was the elder by twelve years come first, and was she one of the sweet, dauntless maids following a loved one even to the ends of the earth? Perchance, she came, orphaned and lonely, to seek friends in this far-away settlement and here fate awaiting her, the new romance and the new world grew together. Whom did they leave to posterity? To someone, somewhere, these stones mark the resting place of kin and establish a claim to real Americanism second only to the native Indians.

More communicative as regards descendants is the curious stone which reads:

Here lyes ye body of Mrs. Miriam Grose who decd in the 81st year of her age and left 180 children grand-children and great-grand-children

But it neglects to state either the date of the birth or death of the venerable great-grandmother. Doubtless, in the recording of such a staggering fact, the unimportant details of her own arrival and departure were overlooked. What a long procession of mourners must have marched up this hill on that unknown day when she was laid to rest!

Often it is asserted that the early Marbleheaders were not a religious people, that they were a law unto themselves and had small regard for the rules and customs of their stern Puritan neighbors. But it is a matter of record that they "maintained the ordinances on Sundays" and supported a religious teacher and there is much evidence to sustain the belief, however lacking in externals, the early settlers of the rugged, little town had themselves and gave to their descendants a fine sense of loyalty to God, to a just cause and to each other.

You will find that this old hill is eloquent of the respect and veneration in which they held the ministers of the gospel who labored among them and those who gave their lives that right might be established. Here a sombre, dignified row of stones, standing like soldiers, shoulder to shoulder, marks the graves of the earnest workers for God in the first church of Marblehead, Rev. Samuel Cheever, Rev. John Barnard, Rev. William Whitwell and Rev. Eben Hubbard. If Latin is one of your accomplishments you will be interested to translate the ponderous, lengthy inscriptions. If not, you will probably content yourself to imagine that they mean quite the same as the one which marks the grave of the Rev. Eben Hubbard and which states that it was erected "by an affectionate and grateful people."

".....has never forgotten 'Jem' Mugford."

This stately company includes, too, the wives of Rev. John Barnard and Rev. William Whitwell. Surely there was no lack of lofty sentiment in the marking of Mistress Barnard's gravestone, no suggestion of irreligion, for it refers to her as the "worthy and exemplary consort of the late venerable and revered John Barnard, who for many years was the faithful pastor of the First Church of Christ in Marblehead," and concludes with the following tribute:

*"In all the virtues of a life of faith and holiness
She shone below respected and beloved,
Until matured for higher spheres,
She fell to earth revered and lamented
But rose upon the horizon of perfect, endless day
On the 24 of August, 1774."*

So much for their veneration of God's anointed. Another, and perhaps a larger part of their religion was the worship of bravery. And here, on an immense, natural foundation of solid rock, is the shaft of marble dedicated to the memory of the gallant Captain James Mugford, who in the Franklin of sixty tons and four four-pounders, on Friday, May 17, 1776, captured and brought into Boston the British "Powder Ship" Hope of three hundred tons and six guns.

This monument was erected on the one hundredth anniversary of the brave deed and commemorates also the death of the heroic Captain who on the Sunday following his arrival in Boston with his prize was killed while successfully defending his grounded vessel against the British fleet of thirteen ships, in the very neighborhood where two days before he had made the daring capture of the Hope.

Marblehead has never forgotten "Jem" Mugford. Over and over again is the story told of the dying hero, who with rare composure and presence of mind called to his men, "I am a dead man; don't give up the vessel; you will be able to beat them off." And every Memorial Day finds four small, star-spangled banners waving from the monument's square base while a floral anchor clasps the slender shaft.

From a higher elevation of this rocky hill still another tribute to heroism points its marble finger skyward. It is a monument erected in memory of the deceased members of the Marblehead Charitable Seaman's Society, fourteen of whom perished in the great gale of September 19, 1846, off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. Nowhere was courage in greater demand than on the perilous passage of those old schooners to and from the fishing grounds. This terrific gale struck the death blow to the industry in Marblehead. Ten of her vessels and sixty-five of her fathers and sons were lost. Forty-three wives, agonized but hopeful, waited for tidings of the fathers of one hundred and fifty children. They never came and it is said that these mothers of Marblehead became fathers, too, and provided well for their little broods.

It is a long way back to the days of the Revolution, but somehow, those stirring times seem very near when

Relics of Early Shoemaking

Old Time Wooden Shoe Patterns Found in Factory at Danvers

THE first shoemaking in America was done along the North Shore. The foundation of the industry was laid in Salem and Lynn and the center of the industry has never moved very far away. Today the greatest manufactory of machinery for the making of shoes is located in Beverly. The United Shoe Machinery Co. with its big factory in Beverly has its main offices in Boston and maintains there an unique museum containing samples of footwear of all lands and times. One of the recent additions to its collection of relics of the early days of shoemaking is a group of four wooden patterns for cutting out uppers and soles, used in the Putnam shoe factory at Danvers between 1798 and 1835.

The old Putnam factory, which is probably the most ancient shoe shop in existence, is still standing a few yards north of the Putnam mansion, near the junction of the Newburyport turnpike and Maple street, says Three Partners, the publication of the U. S. M. Athletic association. Its age is uncertain, but it is mentioned in the census of 1789 and was certainly considered an old house as long ago as 1835. The general architectural features of the building lead experts to assign to it a date not later than 1740.

Daniel Putnam, born in the old homestead near by, began business in the house soon after 1798 and continued there until 1835, being succeeded by his two sons, Daniel and Ahira, when the name of the firm became Daniel F. Putnam and Co. The father of George Peabody, the famous millionaire and philanthropist, for whom the town of Peabody was named, is said to have been an apprentice in the old shop during the management of Daniel the elder.

The patterns are in strange contrast to the thin metallic or cardboard patterns used today, varying as they do in thickness from a quarter to five-eighths of an inch, and being protected by a narrow strip of half round copper, a contrivance for which a patent was taken out at the time.

It is interesting to note in this connection that the shoemaking industry in Salem started in 1629, when

Thomas Beard came over from England with a stock of leather and a kit of shoemakers tools. Beard came under contract to make shoes for the colonists and was engaged in the work when Philip Kirtland, the first shoemaker located in Lynn. Kirtland began making shoes in Lynn about 1839. He received a grant of 10 acres of land as an inducement for locating in what is now "the shoe city." Another incident connected with the early days of shoemaking was the establishing of a tannery for leather by Francis Ingalls in Lynn about the time Kirtland opened his shop. Ingalls' tannery consisted of a few shallow vats placed in the ground beside a stream and today no trace of this early venture remains.

E. T. Slattery's beautiful shop at Magnolia held its fall opening on Tuesday with a complete and beautiful showing of Fall and Winter goods, which included a magnificent display of furs, fur coats and wraps, beautiful dresses of the latest modes, in serges and satin and serge, motor coats, and accessories for every occasion. A feature of the opening was the using of the splendid electric lighting fixtures, which have just been completed. The French toned gray of the indirect lighting globes with conventional designs in gold are most effective. Electric lights are used in all of the display cases, while at intervals about this fine French shop are pretty silver electric lamps with imported shades in French tones of gray.

Men who do things seldom moisten the cornerstone of an undertaking with portions of grog.

Driving About Old Cape Ann

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

IV

ON our last drive, we left Rocky Neck at the junction of Rocky Neck avenue and East Main street. Starting on at this point we will continue our trip down Eastern Point road where lies the main body of the summer colony, and thence turn into the magnificent shore route with the broad Atlantic constantly in view. This route marks one of the longest shore drives on the New England coast, surpassing in varied and picturesque beauty even the drives of Newport, or of any other section of the North Shore.

In the outset of the drive one is interested in the many little summer shops along the way displaying their various wares. The first shop in the severe red building on our left is that of Mrs. Clara L. Harrington of Boston. Mrs. Harrington was the first person to start an antique and novelty store in the East Gloucester colony. For over twenty years she has catered to the best people coming to the resort and her honest dealings and genial personality have made her establishment very popular. Mrs. Harrington purchased a large tract of property, containing four buildings besides the one she now occupies and they are all rented for artists' studios.

Across the street, on the right from the avenue, are the buildings owned by W. Jay Little, underneath which are photographic and novelty shops. One store with a broad veranda is called "the Treasure Chest" where an immense variety of novelties are on exhibition. Again on the left a little farther along, we see a shop in a quaint little cottage with ivy clinging to its porch. This is called "The Lobster Pot," and has been conducted for several years by Miss Mary Perry.

The first hotel we reach on our right as we proceed is the "Harbor View," so named because of its location on the side of the cove which commands a fine view of the stretch of harbor. The sunsets are wonderful from this point. When the horse cars were first introduced in Gloucester the line ended at the foot of "Patch's hill," but when the electric cars came into use the transit line swung off down Rocky Neck avenue instead.

Continuing on up the hill we pass another charming hotel, Merrill Hall, formerly Craig Cottage, one of the earliest summer boarding houses on the North Shore. Just here it will be interesting to say a word of the history of the summer hotel industry for which East Gloucester is so well known, and which is, in fact, the "Mother Resort" of the North Shore.

Previous to 1842, the Kidder family and friends of Lowell came to Eastern Point for a vacation, stopping at the lighthouse, where John Wonson was then keeper. The Kidders became so fond of the place as did the other guests of the family, that Fitzwilliam Wonson, son of the lightkeeper and Mary A. Wonson, his wife, decided to open their house to receive a few people for the summer months. The energetic couple met with splendid success, for people having heard rumors of its charm were most desirous of coming to East Gloucester for their vacations. It was but a short time before the Wonson's began to enlarge their accommodations, and from twelve to fifteen guests were received. Thus was laid the corner-stone of the summer hotel business in East Gloucester and during the years from 1842 to 1867, the "Fairview," the house of this ambitious couple, became a famous resort. Here writers and artists of note came as the seasons went by, charmed with the beauty of the spot. Many a famous story has been written within these old walls, the surroundings having been settings in notable stories and poems, as well as subjects for the brush of many famous artists. Louisa Alcott spent a number of seasons here at "Fairview," and Rudyard Kipling with his family has been a guest at the house. While here he secured his material for his "Captains Courageous." Ellen Dale Hale, daughter of Edward Everett Hale, became an admirer of the quaint resort, besides Gertrude Clement, Maxfield Parrish and many other painters. When guests in the early days wished to dance, it is related, they secured the permission of the management of the house to take up the parlor carpet and then the room was cleared for Terpsichore.

Mrs. Thomas Renton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzwilliam Wonson, continued the hotel business at "Fairview" upon the retirement of her parents and it has been in the family ever since, the Misses Renton, daughters of Mrs. Thomas Renton, having the management of the hotel at the present time. Just beyond the head of Hawthorne Lane on the left, it will be seen in the midst of an old orchard and field, commanding a fine view of the moors and the outer harbor.

Then there is the story of Hawthorne Inn, which began its career as a hostelry several years after the starting of the "Fairview," when Mrs. Judith Wonson, a sister-in-law of the "Fairview" Wonsons, began with her house, now called the "Old Home," an annex of the present Hawthorne Inn. This house the present proprietor respects nearly as much as he would his own grandmother. Hawthorne Inn is a resort today accommodating nearly 500 people and under the management of Proprietor Stacy, a Gloucester man who has "done things" to build up the summer industry on Cape Ann.

After the step taken by Mrs. Judith Wonson, another relative, Mrs. Dann, founded the "Delphine House," after which came in order Craig cottage, managed by Mrs. Merrill, another cousin, the "Harbor View" under the management of Mrs. Benjamin Brazier, the "Mailman House," under the management of Mrs. John Mailman; the "Beachcroft," on the Niles property; the "Rockaway," "Pilgrim House," until at Bass Rocks two fine hotels the "Moorland" and "Thorwald," bring hotel construction in Gloucester up to date.

Now after going down Hawthorne Lane to see the Inn and cottages let us continue on our drive past the Mailman House, through the Gate Lodge entrance. Once inside the granite posts of the ivy-thatched Lodge with the Beachcroft on the left, we see a lovely stretch of land ahead of us while on the right is a fine beach and the harbor itself. As we continue along the boulevard, we see many fine houses and the area of blue water at our left, we soon reach, is Niles Pond. It is fresh water, but if we gaze across on the other side, the broad expanse of blue there observed is the pulsing sea. Only a narrow strip of land over which we will soon pass, separates the fresh from the salt water.

As we pass a second gate lodge, let us glance at the two cement cottages at the right. These are the cottage and studio of Cecilia Beaux, the noted portrait painter, who claims Gloucester as her home. Here she spends the greater part of the year, busy with important canvasses. Miss Beaux has a charming place and she takes great pride in keeping its shrubbery and flowers at their best.

A little farther along, the road branches in two directions. It is better to keep to the right and follow this road as it leads to the lighthouse and "Mother Ann," both of interest to the tourist. Before we reach the lighthouse we see on our left fronting the ocean a large dark house with stone towers. This is the "Ramparts," the valuable estate of the Raymonds of Cleveland, O., formerly the property of the late railroad magnate, Henry C. Rouse of Cleveland and New York. The house was erected within the banks of the old Civil War fort and Mr. Rouse had the turf banks restored. There are a great many acres of natural beauty surrounding the house, a part of the estate. The charming place to the right, on the point, before we reach the lighthouse, is "Finisterre," the summer estate of John Clay, the cattle magnate of Chicago. The Clays have been coming to Gloucester for years.

Visitors are permitted to go up into the lighthouse and from the top we can get an interesting view of the long Dog Bar Breakwater at the entrance of Gloucester harbor.

At the left of the lighthouse, as we stand in the road, the natural wonder of "Mother Ann," so-called, is seen. It resembles the contour of an old woman in a reclining posture. It is formed by the natural adjustment of large granite boulders and outlined against sea and sky. Her face is almost perfect, even to the eyelids and the jagged surface of the rocks makes her flesh appear wrinkled. Poets have sung of her steady and solemn gaze, the salt tears in her eyes, bemoaning the never-returning mariner and fisherman, but the optimist has spoken of her smile at the sun that shines through many a dark storm. However, its "the smile that won't come off," and in this she is like many a Gloucester mother that gives up her son to the uncertainty of the deep, but wears a smile filled with a wonderful optimism and the hope for a happy and safe return. "Old Mother Ann" was discovered in 1892 by Capt. William H. Thompson, a retired sea captain and a summer resident of East Gloucester.

Starting from "Mother Ann," we continue along the beautiful shore drive, through the lovely wild shrubbery of the moors; where the honeysuckle and pepper wood mingled with the bayberry, scents the air. The great rocks along the entire route are buff, pink and brown, touched with rich lavenders and greens. The surf at the base of these crags, lifting in white wooly masses out of the vivid blue, gives us a picture truly satisfying to the soul of a nature lover. The most wonderful rocks are Brace's rock and adjoining cliffs. They are beautifully colored through the magic touch of time and mother nature. Continuing along the road over the narrow belt of land, separating the Niles Pond and the ocean, we see Brace's Cove and stretch of beach. Ahead of us the country road lies a path of old gold, with its pale yellow earth, winding in and out of the green grass and shrubbery, until it disappears in a graceful curve at the other side of the shore. It invites us to continue on along the coast and soon we are passing through a part of the Eastern Point golf links. At length we reach Grape Vine Cove, where the large Jacob S. Loose mansion of old English architecture is being erected, and where stands high upon the cliffs the dignified mansion "Felsenmeer," the former property of ex-Congressman Sloat T. Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., now the estate of James C. Farrell of Albany, N. Y. Grape Vine Cove, named because of the wonderful growth of wild grapevine prevalent there—at one time, is one of the choicest and most picturesque spots along the coast. It is pleasing to note that Mr. Loose and ex-Congressman Fassett have preserved the natural beauty by purchasing many acres of lovely land surrounding their mansions.

We now proceed along the rocky shore, the sea's intone continually near, until we reach High Popples, where are located the fine estates of John Bowler and his brother Alexander Bowler. The former is called "High Cliff Lodge" and the latter "Twin Light Manor." Out ahead of us, lies Thatcher's Island with its twin lighthouses, the most noted beacons on the American sea-coast, built of solid granite.

We are soon at Bass Rocks, the first hotel seen being the "Moorland" and its cottages, and after following the picturesque road in a semi-circle, past the row of fine summer houses, we come at length to the bathing beach, Good Harbor Beach, one of the most beautiful and popular beaches on the North Shore. Here hundreds of bathers daily take their plunge in clean invigorating water of the deep sea. Brier Neck, Salt Island, Thatcher's and Milk Island lie beyond. If we drive up through a short road to the left of the bathhouse, we come to the Hotel Thorwald, the most exclusive hostelry hereabouts, behind which lies the noted Bass Rocks golf links, a fine 18-hole course. The club has a large membership of wealthy summer residents and the clubhouse, situated up along the next road, Beach avenue, is a mecca for tea parties, lovers of Terpsichore. Here, also, people wishing to watch the players on the links may sit in quiet enjoyment of both game and wonderful picture of moor and ocean beyond.

Concluding our drive at East Gloucester, we pass by the Hotel Thorwald straight down to the beginning of Atlantic road, and turning to the left we connect with Bass avenue. Here an attractive open country stretches to the right and left of us until we reach the big trolley car stable. Turning to the right at this point connects us with the road leading to the city proper, where we started on our drive to East Gloucester.

"FINISTERRE," the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs.

John Clay of Chicago and Eastern Point, Gloucester, is usually filled with house-guests at this time of the season. In honor of the house-party this week, Mrs. Clay gave a dinner Monday night of twenty covers. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. John Greenough, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Drake of the Gloucester colony; A. Shuman and Mrs. August Weil of Beverly Cove; Edward Nesbit, M. P., and four daughters of Woodstock, Canada; and the house-guests, Mrs. E. Brooks of Washington; John Forest of Dixon, Ill.; and Mrs. C. Robinson and Miss Muriel Paddon of Chicago. Mr. Nesbit and his daughters were touring and made a short visit with the Clays.

The grounds surrounding this home, on the tip of the Point, never looked more attractive than now. A wealth of August flowers are fringing the lawns and are growing among every possible cranny of the rocks which abound on the rocky point. Many brilliant clusters are noted here and there on the lawn and the piazza is still showing the remains of its pink rambler crop. The tennis court is an attractive feature of the place, and from it an exceptionally fine view of Gloucester harbor with its myriad fishing and pleasure craft can be seen. Not everybody on the Point owns a boat, but there is a goodly number belonging to many in the colony, that are seen spreading their white wings in the vicinity of the Clay home.

In order to come back, it is necessary for the average man to lighten his load of foolishness.

RAYMOND BROWN, RESIDENT-MANAGER

MRS. GODFREY L. CABOT of Beverly Farms gave her house for the last of Miss Virginia Wainwright's musical talks, Monday afternoon. Miss Wainwright is at Kittery Point, Me., and while in Beverly Farms was the over-night guest of Mrs. George Lee. She was dressed in lavender and wore a large picture hat. The talk was on "Franz Liszt, as Man and Composer," emphasizing his love affairs, innovations in music and his work as a pianist. The illustrations were played sympathetically by Mrs. Mary Pumphrey Tower, who wore white trimmed in bands of green satin. Miss Florence Lee took tickets at the door. Miss Wainwright played Wednesday in a charitable affair at Kittery Point. Her musicales are always delightful affairs and have many patronesses from all over the Shore.

Miss Jane Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Morgan of New York, has been upon the North Shore, visiting relatives among whom are Mrs. Henry S. Grew, her grandmother, and her aunts, Mrs. Boylston A. Beal and Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby of Manchester.

Mrs. Samuel C. Rowland of Baltimore, who is summing at the Oceanside, Magnolia, was hostess for a bridge and tea at the Essex County club, Manchester, Monday afternoon. There were five tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Askel P. C. Wichfeld of "Swiftmoor," Pride's Crossing, have with them Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mitchell and Mrs. Catherine Wiley of Washington, and Thomas Ryan. Last Sunday Visse. de Sibour of Nahant was an over-night guest.

Mrs. Gordon Bell of New York is spending the week with Mrs. Russell S. Codman at Smith's Point, Manchester. William K. Richardson of Nahant spent last week-end at the Codmans.

Rev. Sydney B. Snow of King's Chapel, Boston, will preach Sunday, August 20, at First Unitarian church, Masconomo st., Manchester. Service at 11 o'clock.

The Reverend Samuel McComb, D.D., Canon of the Cathedral, Baltimore, will take the service Sunday, Aug. 20, at Emmanuel Episcopal church, Masconomo st., Manchester. Celebration of the Holy Communion at half-past ten o'clock.

Rev. Samuel H. Dana of Phillips church, Exeter, N. H., will preach Sunday, Aug. 20, at Union Chapel, Magnolia. Service at 10.45 a. m.

MRS. LUCIUS M. SARGENT's home at Pride's Crossing was the scene of one of the largest gatherings of the season for a musicale event last Friday afternoon. The musicale was given in the large hall in the center of the house and was in charge of Mrs. Hall McAllister. The artists were Miss Marcia Van Dresser and Albert Stoessel. Miss Edna Stoessel and Miss Louise McAllister were at the piano. The former was in pale blue taffeta and Miss McAllister wore a cream embroidered dress. Miss Van Dresser was in white chiffon. In this large and appreciative audience were Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Miss Jane Morgan, Mrs. Boylston A. Beal, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. George Lee, Miss Florence Lee, Mrs. F. W. Fabyan, Miss Mary Hayden, Miss Alison Haughton, Miss M. L. Corlies, Mrs. M. G. Haughton, Mrs. G. L. Cabot, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Richard Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Mrs. Wm. E. Littleton, Miss Hunt and Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr. Mrs. Sargent has one of the most beautiful places on the water front. The great hall of the house, rich in its white and oaken finishings, is like a cross with a large room in each corner section, comprising the library, music-room, drawing-room and the dining-room. The piazza and terraces facing the water have a view unexcelled anywhere on the Shore. The place also has historic interest from the fact that it is built on the site of an old fort.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. D. Morgan (Mary E. Newbold), whose marriage took place early in the season, are spending the summer at Murray Bay, Canada. Mrs. Morgan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newbold, are now with Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge, at Coolidge's Point, Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer of Beverly Cove will return to Brookline the middle of September where they will live while alterations are being made upon their new house on Dartmouth street, Back Bay, which they recently purchased.

The Misses Emily and Ellen Thomas, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Thomas of Augusta, Ga., are spending most of their time, when away from the Oceanside, with the young people at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond of Gloucester, with whom they are taking in many of the functions on the Shore.

Hon. and Mrs. George H. Lyman of Beverly Farms have returned from a trip to Bar Harbor and its vicinity.

Sunset Land

O SUNSET land, East Gloucester!
Where we've roamed for many Summers,
Thy wooded lanes and grand old rocks
Daily allure new comers.

O sunset land! O land of rose! —
We sip much honey from thee,
And thy Summer months are all too short Alack! Alas! for me.

O sunset land of golden clouds!
Thy weeks seem but a day,
And on thy flowery carpets,
Must we soon cease our play.

O fairy land, East Gloucester!
From the lullaby song of thy surf,
In September we part with aching of heart
And a tear we drop on thy turf.

TABLES are readily selling for the bridge tournament, Friday afternoon, Sept. 1, at Mrs. Robert S. Bradley's Pride's Crossing. Committee in charge is composed of Miss Bradley, Mrs. George Denny, Miss Fitz, Mrs. Marshall Fabyan and Miss Mary Franks. Mrs. Vickery will run the affair. Tea will be served at 4.30 to which all are welcome. Those not taking part in the tournament are cordially invited to come in to the tea. A sale of the children's handiwork will be held. In addition there will be bridge tables and light weight folding tables on sale.

Miss Mary L. Painter of Pittsburg is visiting upon the North Shore at the home of Miss Helen C. Frick of Pride's Crossing. Many pleasant things are being done for Miss Painter and next week she will be the guest of Mrs. W. Harry Brown of Beverly Cove. She is a sister of Charles A. Painter, Jr., who with Mrs. Painter (Alice Brown), is spending August with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

Miss Katherine C. Blodgett of Pride's Crossing has entirely recovered from her serious accident of the early season. On Wednesday a luncheon was given at the Blodgett home for Miss Martha Hollister of Grand Rapids, Mich., the former home of the John W. Blodgetts. Covers were placed for twelve. An interesting guest of Miss Katherine last week was Miss Margaret van B. Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Grant Mason of New York and Tuxedo Park. Miss Mason will make her debut during the coming winter.

Miss Louie R. Stanwood has returned to Manchester from a visit to Walpole, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge and children of Pride's Crossing will return September 5 from Squam lake, New Hampshire, where they went the first of the month.

Frederick Ayer of Pride's Crossing and Mrs. Allen Curtis of Beverly Farms are sending some interesting boxes to hospitals in France. The Ayer box goes to the General Hospital British Expeditionary force, British War office, and Mrs. Curtis' box to the Hospital Militaire, Aix-Les-Bains, Savoie.

Mrs. William C. Supplee of Philadelphia has been a guest of Mrs. John E. Lancaster at Magnolia for the past ten days.

THE ESSEX COUNTY CLUB, at Manchester, will be the center of social life along the North Shore next week—more so than usual. Tennis tournaments and golf always draw many to the club, and next week the special invitation tournament for the Manchester cup on the last three days of the week will occasion a greater number of golfers than usual. There will also be special golfing features on Tuesday and Wednesday and Saturday—Tuesday, a ladies' foursome; Wednesday, the senior golf championship competition, and on Saturday the club championship competition.

Thursday will be a big day at the club, for in addition to the opening matches of the invitation tournament, there will be a concert by the First Corps Cadets band from 4 to 6, and at 3.30 on that same afternoon will be the Amateur Dog show. This is the first event of this kind ever held at the club and one of the first ever held on the North Shore, at least on such a scale. The manner in which the entries have been coming in for the sixteen classes would indicate unusual interest in the affair.

Another dinner-dance is announced for Friday evening, September 1.

The dinner-dance tonight will be a big affair. Great demand has been made for tables. Dinner will be served at 7.30, and dancing will begin at 9.30. Among those who have engaged tables are: Samuel Eliot, Mrs. J. A. Davis, Mrs. J. L. Loose, H. Chalifoux, W. H. Holbrook, A. T. Goodwin, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, J. E. Lancaster, James Green, E. Laurence White, Mrs. G. M. Safford, Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, Miss McMurray, Mrs. H. Stephens, Mrs. George S. Mandell, Mrs. W. H. Claflin, Mrs. R. Frothingham, E. H. Alsop, Mrs. G. F. Willett, Mrs. Butler Ames, George E. Barnard, I. T. Mann, Mrs. J. T. Harahan, Mrs. G. G. Snowden and Mrs. J. Callery.

The BREEZE was wrong in saying last week that Miss Rosamond Lancaster was of the party of young people from the Oceanside, Magnolia, that motored to Portsmouth for dinner and then returned to Beverly for a moving picture performance. Miss Lancaster was not in the party, we have been asked to state.

Sir John Harrington and Lady Harrington (Amy McMillan) are expected to arrive tomorrow from England for a visit at "Eaglehead," Manchester, with Lady Harrington's mother, Mrs. James McMillan.

THE SUMMER COLONY is making the most of these mid-summer days at West Beach, Beverly Farms. An interested gallery of bathers watched Miss Eleonora Sears do water stunts on the float yesterday. Another excellent performer, who drew many admirers, was Mrs. Charles McNeill of Manchester, who was with Mrs. Oliver Turner of the Farms. The noted Corsair of J. P. Morgan was in the harbor a few hours yesterday afternoon. Arthur Luke's yacht and racer are also in, having come in from New York in the last few days.

George F. Baker of New York and Tuxedo Park has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moore of "Rockmarge" this week. Mr. Baker came up from the South Shore in his yacht and from here will cruise along the Maine coast. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Morron of New York have also been guests at "Rockmarge."

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Livingston Hoyt of Beverly Cove will go to Staatsburg, N. Y., for the autumn.

Miss Helen Frick of Pride's Crossing is conducting a class in cooking along the lines of "preparedness cooking." The class is small and meets in the lodge on the Frick estate and has a competent instructor.

ANNUAL

SAM-SAM

of United Shoe Machinery
Co. Athletic Association

BEVERLY, SATURDAY, AUGUST 19 -- MIDWAY -- DANCING PAVILION -- SPORTS -- FIREWORKS

AMONG the distinguished visitors to the Shore this week have been Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and family, who came in yesterday on their handsome yacht Surf, and were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, at "Seawold," Manchester. They are departing today. Frank M. Carnegie of Pittsburg is also in Manchester, the guest of the George L. Carnegies of West Manchester. He came in on his yacht Sonsy.

Mrs. Robert D. Evans of Dawson Hall, Beverly Cove, entertained with one of the largest musicales of the season recently. She had with her as her house-guest Miss Vera Barstow, the noted violinist of New York, who played. Leo Ornstein was at the piano, and Hugh Allan, baritone, sang. That night Mrs. Evans entertained in honor of her several house-guests with a dinner of twelve covers. During the evening much of the modern futuristic music was played and discussed.

RYE BEACH will be the mecca for many motorists, Saturday, August 19, who will visit the Abenauqui club, where a Festa will be on during the afternoon and evening. It is the second annual Festa of the New Hampshire Coast association. Officers of the association are Col. George M. Studebaker, president; E. R. Champ- lin and F. E. Drake, vice presidents; O. L. Halsey, secretary; Mrs. R. A. Southworth, treasurer; Hon. A. T. Fuller, Col. N. A. Flood and Col. H. C. Taylor are on the executive committee. Tomorrow's festivities are in charge of Col. Ned Arden Flood, Nelson Studebaker, Riley and Ewing Hill, Jr.

Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Campbell motored to Bretton Woods the first of the week. Mrs. Campbell has since returned to Manchester, but Dr. Campbell is enjoying the delights of the White Mountain district.

Congressman and Mrs. Augustus Peabody Gardner are planning to open their country place, "Sagamore Farm," at Hamilton next week. Mrs. Gardner has postponed her plans for going abroad to visit her daughter, Mrs. Grafton W. Minot, whose husband is an attache of the American embassy at Berlin.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Spalding and their children, who have been at Matapedia for the past six weeks for the fishing and camping, have returned to their summer place, "Sunset Rock," at Pride's Crossing.

Julius Rosenwald, head of the Sears Roebuck great mail order house at Chicago, and L. R. Rosenthal, also of Chicago, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ratchesky at their summer place, "The Birches," at Beverly Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Arturo de Heeren of Beverly Farms and Mr. and Mrs. Askel P. C. Wichfeld of Pride's Crossing, are spending a few days at Newport at the tennis tournament.

"Y^e Rose Tree," season of 1916, Old Ipswich Village near the Rowley line, on the main motor road. A cool inland drive. Studio and toy shop. Color reproduction, etc. Handweaving and wooden toys. Tea room and rest room,—English buns, and muffins, tea, etc.—Sara Gannett Houghton, Bertha I. Barrett.

THE Wednesday afternoon bridge party at the North Shore Swimming pool was very well attended by the Manchester and Magnolia folk, fifteen tables being occupied by the players, a number coming in after the card game to enjoy tea. Among those who entertained were Mrs. C. A. Potter, who was hostess to three tables; Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens, four tables; Mrs. Pierpont Edwards Dutcher, two tables; Miss Alice P. Allyn, two tables, and Mrs. J. Frank Crouch, four tables.

The North Shore Grill was the scene of one of the smartest dinner parties of the season on Thursday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Oakes of Eastern Point road, East Gloucester, were hosts to a number of their friends. The table was beautifully decorated with a centrepiece of white phlox and pink dahlias. Covers were laid for fourteen.

Miss Rosamond Lancaster has had for her house-guests the past week, on Shore road, Magnolia, Miss Mary Brown Warburton and Barclay Warburton, Jr., of Philadelphia; Wynne Johnston and Edward McIlvaine of New York city. There has been much entertaining done in their honor by Miss Lancaster and friends at Pride's Crossing, and the young people have had a very merry time. Included in the parties were Miss Lancaster's brothers, Jack and Robert Lancaster.

Master Curry Watman of New York, who with his parents is an August guest at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia, entertained a few of his little friends on Thursday by a motor trip to Hamilton where, in a delightfully wooded spot, they had a real picnic party. The boys gathered wood and made a fire, over which they broiled steak and in the ashes roasted potatoes, which, with the luncheon they had brought from the hotel, afforded them a sumptuous repast. After the feast they departed in the motor for a long ride through the surrounding places, arriving at the hotel about six o'clock. Among the guests were Misses Virginia Newman, Suzanne Anderson, Helen Hussey and John Holmes. Miss Evangeline Beane chaperoned the youngsters.

Mrs. Lily Middleton, who with her daughters, the Misses Helen and Jean, and her son, John, are season guests at the Oceanside, Magnolia, is entertaining her elder daughter, Mrs. H. M. Wykes of Englewood, N. J., who arrived at the hotel on Thursday. Mrs. Middleton gave a dinner party Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. Wykes, who was very lovely in an exquisite gown of black tulle over taffeta, with paillettes of iridescent, and touches of pale blue satin on the bodice.

A mixed doubles lawn tennis tournament is scheduled at the Montserrat club, to start next Monday. Partners will be drawn by lot and entries will be received from members of the Montserrat, Myopia, Nahant and Essex County clubs. Entries will close at noon, Friday. Telephone Beverly 511. Ladies' singles to decide the club championship will also start next Monday. This tournament will, of course, be closed to members of the Montserrat club.

VISIT THE House of Seven Gables
SALEM

This ancient mansion, 1668, stands at foot of Turner St., facing Salem Harbor.

Thousands visit it every year.

The Hathaway House, 1683, is in the Garden.

"SWIFTMOOR," at Pride's Crossing, was opened by Mr. and Mrs. Askel P. C. Wichfeld last Sunday evening for an illutrated talk on "Fighting in France," by E. Alexander Powell, the noted war correspondent, who is spending the summer at Manchester. About three hundred people gathered in the beautiful tapestry room and halls of the house. The motion pictures shown were taken on the battlefields and in the trenches of the western front by military operators under the direction of the Great General Staff and loaned to Mr. Powell by the government of France. Music by Phillip's orchestra of Salem accompanied the pictures, which illustrated every phase of the campaign of the last two years, including the struggle for Verdun, the work of the hospitals and ambulances, and the warfare in the sky. An interesting one that took the audience by surprise was one of Norman Prince and Elliot Cowdin in their aviation work. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince, the parents of Norman Prince, were present.

Maj. Henry L. Higginson of West Manchester introduced Mr. Powell, who gave a short and interesting account of what he had seen of the war while in Europe as war correspondent of The New York World and other papers and magazines. He spoke of the war as the greatest of all tragedies, the most colossal of all miseries, and graphically pictured the life of the allied armies. The alertness of the French, their endurance in the trenches and their acitvies in the sky warfare were among the many points mentioned. The utter impersonality of the whole thing was shown. A vivid description of the battlefield of Champagne pictured the great stretch of desolate country pitted thickly with the remains of shells and other instruments of warfare, until it looked as if a hardware store had burned on the scene. Hastily all this region, 15 miles in length and five in width, was changed into a cemetery of little mounds and crosses.

Among those present were the Misses Loring, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., Mrs. Russell Codman, Wm. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Simpkins, Jr., Mrs. J. L. Thorndike, Miss Alice Thorndike, Rev. N. P. Carey, Miss Franks, the Italian Ambassador, Dudley L. Pickman, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Rice and sons, Mrs. E. Pentacost, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Herbert M. Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Murray, Jr., T. Dennie Boardman, Francis I. Amory, Mrs. George Lee, Miss Florence Lee, Mrs. Oliver Turner, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Denègre, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Walker, C. C. Walker, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Sen. Lippitt and sons, Miss Mary Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cotting, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Cabot, Mr. and Mrs. Arturo de Heeren, Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, and among those from the Brownland Cottages, where Mr. Powell lives, were Mrs. Rufus Greeley, Mr. and Mrs. Hazelton, Miss Beers, Miss White, the Misses Fabyan and A. S. White. Vsse de Sibour of Nahant was also present.

The girls acting as ushers were the Misses Frances Moore, Elaine Denègre, Julia Appleton, Francise Williams and Camilla Lippincott. Miss Lippincott is on from Washington, the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Frank Mitchell of Manchester.

All of the proceeds of the talk, aside from the actual expense, will be sent through the French Ambassador to be used for wounded soldiers.

THE SATURDAY EVENINGS at the North Shore Grill grow more and more popular, and if the grill were twice its capacity it could only have accommodated the fashionable gathering of people which congregated on Saturday, "gala" night. Never did Magnolia see quite so many of its smartest set all together at one time. Everyone who could possibly find a seat at a table was glad he was so fortunate, for the lights were bright and the party quite gay. Dancing was the most important thing, outside of a bite to eat, and all danced with a will. The music, so entrancing for the terpsichorean steps of the hour, just lured the dancers to their feet, and things went at a merry pace until midnight. Everybody is saying that the food is so good at the grill and the service so fine, which merits are due to the management of the Westminster at Boston, and ultimately to Mr. J. P. Delmonte, the resident manager. He is ever alert to make things more pleasant for the guest and is untiring in his efforts to satisfy the requisites of the discriminating patrons of the North Shore Grill.

Saturday morning six of the little girls of the Magnolia colony, Betty Walker, Miss Lovett, Virginia Secor, Helen Farnum, Katherine and Elizabeth Drake, each an accomplished rider, mounted upon their steeds, and accompanied by their riding master, Mr. Coulter, took a long ride to the Hermitage at Gloucester, where they chatted with the hermit and bought some of his wares. Each of the sub-debutantes is quite at home upon her horse, and the ride, although unusually long, was a perfect lark for them.

Miss Marion Maher, who has been with her parents at the Chick cottage on Norman avenue, Magnolia, departed during the past week for New York, there to join her father. Mr. Maher has been in the metropolis as a member of the Board of Labor Arbitration for the recent labor difficulties.

R. L. Livingston, who with his family is occupying the Morrell cottage on Hesperus avenue, Magnolia, this season, is spending a few weeks in New York on business.

The band concert given at the North Shore Swimming pool, Magnolia, on Monday evening brought out one of the most fashionable gatherings of the summer season at the North Shore. The building was beautifully illuminated with electric lights, while the beauties of the full moon and balmy evening made the scene more delightful. The First Corps Cadet band of Boston, stationed at the extreme of the western balcony, delighted the hearers with a fine concert, well chosen and diversified. The reception room in the clubhouse was divested of its fittings where the couples at their merry will danced a half-hour before midnight.

Thursday morning's meeting of the Magnolia Branch of the Surgical Dressings committee held last week in the west parlor of the Oceanside Annex was well attended and was in charge of Mrs. George L. Hamilton. The ladies of Magnolia have been working diligently in this worthy cause. As a matter of interest, the Magnolia Branch up to the first of August had made 13,071 dressings and 2576 packages, which were sent to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, where they were sterilized and distributed.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Barkhausen of New York and John Hammer of Stockholm are at the Oceanside for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford D. Sawyer of Boston, who are summering at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, entertaining very delightfully at dinner on Wednesday evening at the North Shore Grill at Magnolia for a party of fourteen people.

George L. Hamilton of Norman's Woe road at Magnolia, who has been in training at Plattsburg Military camp, returned to Magnolia the first part of the week. This is Mr. Hamilton's second season at the camp, and he is what is termed an "advanced rookie."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Livingston of Magnolia are among the frequenters of the Bluebird Tea room, Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Charles R. Avery of Brooklyn, N. Y., entertained a party of ten this week.

BEVERLY FARMS fair for the Parish house of St. John's church netted $1000 this year. Last year $720 was realized. The summer colony interested itself in the choir boys this year and provided liberally for their vacation at Bow lake, N. H., where they are now, under the care of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Publicover. The sexton, Robert Smith, is also with them. Rev. Neilson Poe Carey left Wednesday for the camp, but will return for the Sunday service, going back again for next week's outing. The camp is owned by Trinity church in Boston and Beverly Farms boys are allowed two weeks in it.

Justice William Caleb Loring and Mrs. Loring of Pride's Crossing are making their annual August visit at their estate on Bartlett's Island, Maine.

John Ballantine Pitney, the fiance of Miss Francise Williams of Beverly Farms, is now a guest in the Williams home. Mr. Pitney comes from a family prominent in the political, business and social life of New Jersey. He is a Princeton man, is much interested in military life and is to take the examination for a lieutenancy in the army. The wedding depends upon war plans to a certain extent. Early October is planned, however, for the event. Miss Williams is one of the most popular girls in Washington's society circles and is active in many of the prominent charitable functions of the winter season.

Master Hallowell Morgan is spending a few weeks in Beverly Farms with Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson. Mr. and Mrs. Hallowell V. Morgan (Cintra Hutchinson) are at Prout's Neck, Maine, as usual. The Hutchinsons returned last Saturday from a cruise along the Maine coast, with stops at Bar Harbor, where Mrs. Hutchinson's sister, Mrs. J. K. Mitchell, Jr., is summering.

Miss Margaret C. Carey of "The Rectory," Beverly Farms, returned Wednesday from a short visit at Wood's Hole.

MARIA MONACI GALLENGA, one of Italy's most distinguished artists is exhibiting a wonderful variety of hand-painted opera wraps and voilages for a limited time at the shop of J. M. Smith, No. 3, The Colonial, Magnolia. These exquisite mantels which won for Gallenga the award of the grand prix at the San Francisco exposition, are of liberty velvets, crepes and chiffons, hand-painted with a process which never effaces, the glints shading into nearly a dozen tones of gold, perfectly marvelous. The designs used, too, purely medieval, are taken from pictures of old masters as Pinturicchio and Beato Angelico.

One matinee which I delighted in was of a dainty sky blue crepe, painted in green and gold with the lotus flower as the design in true conventional, touches of gold outlined the neck and the edges of the dainty garment, while pretty Venetian bead balls weighted down the four ends.

Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw's Equal Franchise Committee, with its Associate members, are invited to meet at her Boston house, 151 Commonwealth ave., on August 31st, as a preliminary to the National Suffrage Convention at Atlantic City, September 6-10, and to the Bay State Festival and Bazaar in November. Mrs. Shaw expects to take quite a party to Atlantic City, where rooms have been reserved at the Marlborough-Blenheim, and many women well-known on the North Shore will be among the Mass. delegates, including Mrs. Quincy Shaw and Mrs. Graeme Haughton. At the Bazaar, which will be held at the Copley-Plaza on Nov. 14th, Mrs. Henry E. Russell will again have the flower table and the Equal Franchise Comm. will have a "Gift Table." Mrs. Wm. C. Sturgis is secretary. The entire Festival will be, as usual, in charge of Mrs. B. F. Pitman and the Ways and Means Committee.

THE WEEK'S ENGAGEMENT of interest to the North Shore is that of Miss Mary Wharton, daughter of Dr. Henry R. Wharton of Philadelphia, to Alanson H. Sturgis, Harvard '14. Mr. Sturgis is the second son of Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Codman Sturgis of Boston, and a grandson of Mrs. Russell Sturgis (Margaret McCulloch) of Manchester. His older brother, Norman R. Sturgis, married Miss Harriette A. Woods, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of Boston and Ipswich. Sisters are Miss Julia Sturgis and Mrs. John W. Suter, Jr., (Margaret Sturgis) of New York. No date is set for the wedding.

Mrs. Marshall Fabyan of Beverly Farms left Wednesday for New York where she will spend about two weeks.

Miss Mary Jewett is the guest of Mrs. Geo. D. Howe at "Cliffs," Manchester.

Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch of "Riverhouse," Manchester, is to give a small informal luncheon for Dr. and Mrs. Samuel McComb at the Essex County club next Wednesday. Dr. McComb, who is canon of the Cathedral at Baltimore, is to be on the North Shore several weeks, and will take the service at the Emmanuel Episcopal church at Manchester, next Sunday and the two following Sundays.

Paul Stanwood has returned to Manchester from a trip to Lake Champlain and Canada, and has brought with him for a visit his friend Warner MacLaughlin of New York City.

A NEW HOME in the picturesque Eastern Point region,—that portion haunted by the East Gloucester artists,—has been built by the Alonzo Wilder Pollards of Boston. The Pollards have long been summer residents of the Point and are prominently identified with its yachting life and other social activities.

The new house is the former home of Col. Sidney M. Hedges of Boston. Only the service quarters are a part of the old house. A large living-room, dining-room, den and halls, with a sun-room and wide piazza have been added to the lower part. This is of rough cobblestone, while the upper portion of the house is stucco, light in color and having green blinds at the windows. The large and airy living-room looks cool and dainty in its blue and white finish with furnishings to match. The curtain hangings in this room were brought from Japan last winter by Mr. and Mrs. Pollard. The dining-room is in blue and mauve with a gray tile floor. The long hallway is very attractive with copies of old English prints done on the walls. The hall is unusually light and summery looking.

The den or "ship room" is the most interesting part of the place. Placed near the center of the house and fashioned like the ship room in the New York Yacht club, the architect, Arthur Bowditch of Boston, has made it typify to a certain extent the interests of Mr. Pollard while at his summer home. The floor is of teak wood and fastened with wooden pins like a ship's deck. The walls are of chestnut wood and are curved with a low ceiling of the same. Still further boat features have been carried out in one end of the room which represents the stern in a very unique manner. At the opposite end are the wheel and compass, all boat features furnishing some utilitarian purpose of a comfortable room. Old lanterns from ships hang from the ceiling beams and a little fireplace adds to the cosiness of this realistic little "ship."

From the piazza on the water side of the house a fine view is seen looking across the lawn and field separating it from the harbor. Right here is the little clubhouse, the center of the Eastern Point yachting life. This section of the Point, quiet and exclusive, is generally conceded to be one of the beauty spots of the North Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard of Eastern Point, Gloucester, have with them Mr. and Mrs. E. B. White of Leesburg, Va., Mrs. C. Bissell and son, Thomas T. Bissell, of Albany, N. Y. Miss Harriet Root of Chicago has just returned to her home from a visit with the Leonards who are now entertaining at intervals, Miss Elizabeth Fuller of Chicago, who is an annual visitor to East Gloucester. Miss Lila Leonard is in Wyoming enjoying ranch life. Miss Dorothy Leonard and the Misses Pollard are among the enthusiastic players in the tennis tournament now on at the Point.

TO BE correctly and smartly clothed goes more than half-way to making the fair rider an accomplished and graceful horsewoman. These desirable qualities may be easily attained by a visit to the Bonwit & Teller shop at Magnolia, where riding clothes in all the correctness of English cut and smartness may be found in delightful and satisfying completeness. Daily are arriving new fall modes of coats and breeches of Fashion's most recent and approved dictates for the autumn equestrian, also a splendid variety of shoes, puttees, crops, hats and riding caps. Noted among the fine display which I saw today was a coat and breeches of the smartest black and white check, having the air of the "strictly English" and the perfume of the hunt for the vivid imagination.

Mrs. William H. Moore of Pride's Crossing has been one of the heaviest purchasers at the sale being carried on at Mrs. R. S. Bradley's stable. She recently bought five of the large fly traps used for outdoor purposes usually. With all of the fly traps and slappers that have been sold this summer, Beverly Farms and its surrounding neighborhood should be the cleanest on the map.

A recent dinner party, given at the Burnham House in Ipswich by Harold L. Chalifoux of Manchester, included among the guests, Miss Elizabeth A. Burrage, Miss Katharine M. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Coolidge, Jr., Frederic Gooding, Miss Barbara Gale, Mr. Abbott and Mrs. Russell Burrage.

IN view of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in New York and New Jersey unusually stringent preventative measures are being taken to stop the spread of the disease. People leaving the North Shore during the coming weeks are advised to secure a health certificate for their children from the local health officer in the town where they have summered. There is no expense attached to securing the certificate, and it will insure an uninterrupted trip through New York and New Jersey. The authorities in the vicinity of New York City are demanding health certificates from parents of children under sixteen.

ANNISQUAM.—The great tempest which came up one afternoon last week was severely felt at Annisquam, especially at the section facing Ipswich Bay, where the colony was exposed directly to the vicious elements. Mr. Clark, proprietor of By-Water Inn says that the storm was the worst since seven years ago, when the lightning struck in seven places at Annisquam. This time, the wind rain and lightning were terrifying and the summer people were generally very much frightened.

There was a narrow escape from a drowning fatality at Annisquam on last Saturday noon, when Miss Marguerite Haskell, who was a guest at Octagon cottage, the summer home of her uncle, Howard Haskell, at Diamond Cove, went beyond her depth at the bathing beach. Miss Haskell would have drowned but for the timely arrival of Miss Frye of the colony, who swam out to her and caught her after she had twice gone under the water. The victim was resuscitated after Dr. Rowley was summoned and the pulmotor was used.

Miss Isabel Hornibrooke, the writer of boys' stories, is the guest of Mrs. Marvin W. Taylor of Diamond Cove, Annisquam.

Mrs. Lewis I. Prouty, who is occupying the Jelly bungalow at Annisquam is an author of several books among them "Bobby, General Manager," and "The Fifth Wheel," a serial now appearing in the American Magazine.

Rev. Mr. Lippett, an Episcopal rector of Hartford, Conn., wife and son, are stopping at By-Water Inn, Annisquam.

Miss L. Michel of Cherbourg, France, is spending a season at By-Water Inn, Annisquam.

The Mooneys of Jamaica Plain are occupying the Munster cottage at Diamond Cove for a month. The Misses Charlotte and Carrie Munster have returned to Waltham after a brief visit at their summer home in Annisquam.

Mrs. Emma Byrd of Florida is the guest of Miss Augusta Burgess at Beach cottage, Annisquam. A tea was held in honor of Mrs. Byrd at the Barnacle, by Miss Flagg and a launch party followed. There were a great many yachts and launches at anchor in Little river over Sunday.

SUGGESTED TRIPS—Lake Winnepesaukee, Lake Sunapee, Poland Springs, Mt. Washington, Profile, Flume, Crawford Notch, Bar Harbor, Provincetown and all parts of Cape, Concord and Lexington, the Berkshires over the Mohawk Trail.

The Sunday evening orchestral and vocal concerts at Wonasqua Lodge, Annisquam are being much enjoyed by the guests. One of the most magnificent views at Annisquam is obtained from the veranda of the Wonasqua and the sunsets these days are sources of delight to the guests of the hostelry.

Guests registered at Wonasqua Lodge are: Mrs. Thurston Houk, Dayton, O.; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Minns, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Plumer, Beatrice and Dorothy Plumer, Miss Alice Weston, Newton; Mrs. H. St. Arnauld, Miss Marie St. Arnauld, Utica, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Matthews, Thomas Matthews, Springfield; Mrs. J. G. Haskell, Miss Mabel Haskell, Lawrence; Miss N. P. Hough, Boston; Mrs. William H. MacDonald, John H. MacDonald, Providence.

Mrs. Wilshire, who is stopping at Land's End, Rockport, gave a very attractive luncheon recently, at Cathedral Pines Tea Room, Annisquam. Covers were laid for eight.

Dr. W. S. Grant, wife and two sons, of Brooklyn are now at By-Water Inn, Annisquam, for a sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Van Wagenen and son, of Syracuse, N. Y., annual guests at By-Water Inn, came last Saturday to that resort, for the remainder of the season.

Late guests arriving at By-Water Inn include Mrs. Atkinson and two sons, and Mrs. Knox and daughter of Philadelphia; Miss Clara L. Mandeville of Minneapolis, Minn.

Prof. Leon R. Whipple, of the University of Virginia was the guest last week of Ralph T. Hale, Annisquam. Prof. Whipple is a well known writer of short stories.

The costume party held recently at the Annisquam Yacht clubhouse is being much talked about as a very jolly occasion. A large number of the people of the colony and friends, appeared in costumes, which were attractive and in a great many instances grotesque. Among those noticed were the following people and their costumes: Mrs. Samuel Gordan, Columbine; Miss Katherine Gordon, newspaper costume; Jack Gordon, French maid; Jack Hooper, Uncle Sam; Fred Hawkins, farmer; Linzee Hooper, red Columbine; Charles Jamison, officer of the militia; James Guyler, Mexican; Mrs. George Andrew, Columbine; Sumner Andrew, Domino; Mrs.

Walter Adams, night; Walter Adams, non-descript; Mrs. Bulkley, early 19th century; Joseph Damon, Indian; Cameron Guiler, Mephistopheles; Douglass Guiler, little girl; Dorothy Hooper and Mrs. Nichols, Yama Yama costume; Miss Nichols, Spanish costume; William H. Pear, Chinaman; Mrs. Pear, lady of 1850; Miss Mildred Green, old-fashioned girl; Mrs. Green, Puritan gown; Donald Merrill, Cavalier; Otis Nash, middy suit; the Misses Converse, Chinese costumes; Mrs. Damon, Japanese costume; Foster Damon, Spanish costume; Sally Damon, lady of the harem; Harry Duane, clown; Mrs.

Duane, little girl; Mrs. William Jelly, old-fashioned lady; Wesley Pear, Spanish costume; Miss Margaret Rice, Turkish costume; Katherine Rice, old-fashioned girl; Mrs. Julian Burdick, fancy dance dress; Mrs. Charles Connor, Columbine; Miss Margaret Royce, Folly; Mrs. John Schaefer, French Marquise; Louise Schaefer, Red Cross nurse; Sarah Schaefer, Turkish costume; Harry H. Wiggin, cap and gown; Gertrude Wiggin, fancy paper costume; Donald Jelly and Charles Norton, Jr., Chinamen; Jack Woods, little girl; Mr. Welder, Plattsburg suit; Oliver Williams, beetle.

The Paul Revere Pottery

"TRUTH and simplicity of life are not mere fads; they are something more than mere abstractions and private affairs, something more than social ornaments. They are things which, in their adoption or in their denial, search right through the tissue of public life. To live straight-forwardly by your own labor is to be at peace with the world." This from a book which was being read aloud to the Paul Revere Pottery painters as they sat at their work by the open windows.

Glancing from those same windows I saw a long slope of green, gleaming emerald and golden, jewelled with azure chicory. One hundred feet below and over five hundred feet distant the roofs of Brighton showed among the trees, and above and beyond all, the hills of Arlington, Newton Highlands and Chestnut Hill stood sharply defined against the unclouded blue of the sky.

A year ago, when the Paul Revere Pottery had a little shop at Manchester, I wrote about the ware and its makers. The shop in the Colonnade at Magnolia this year is a fascinating place, and the young woman in charge will certainly show you something you will know you have been wanting a long time. It is not about that shop I want to write, but about the Aladdin lamp the pottery has found and, by the way, I think the Oriental black and orange lamp now at the Magnolia shop is the original one being sold by mistake. Had I needed a palace I should have bought it, but being a wanderer—well—I could not use a palace if I had one.

The reason I am sure the pottery people had a rub on the lamp is because last year I found them in a cellar and the lower part of a brick house in the North End, Boston, with sun-baked pavements and a long line of coverless refuse barrels outside their windows. Today I found them on the top of Nottingham Hill, in a group of cement buildings which look as if they had migrated from an English country village a hundred-odd years ago.

A gravelled driveway, skirting a well-kept lawn, leads to an open courtyard surrounded on three sides by the pottery buildings. In the centre of the court is a famous cherry tree, next the buildings are hollyhocks and rambler roses. The main garden is beside the kiln house, where bachelors' buttons, poppies, nasturtiums, marigolds and pansies testify to the richness of soil and the skill of the gardeners. The rose garden behind the packing house has already yielded dozens of roses, one of the men proudly told me.

I have always understood that potteries jealously guard their secrets, but at the Paul Revere Pottery every door stood invitingly open, every window—and there are eighty of them—had its shade up, and every question I asked was freely answered.

From the exhibition shop one enters the paint and glaze room, where girls in their white aprons work in an unending yet very busy atmosphere; next in order came the wheel, plaster and packing rooms. The kiln house, with ample space for storage, is separated by a covered passageway from the other buildings. It was being "drawn" and an array of turquoise and rose colored ware, together with the sunny yellow which has made the pottery known in many distant places, made me doubly sure that here again the lamp had been rubbed to enable its possessors to produce such fascinating results.

It was my privilege to have luncheon with the workers in a large, cool room on the second floor. Flowers from the garden and the fields were everywhere. The big open fireplace, set with Paul Revere Pottery tiles, was filled with oak boughs, and I thought of the paragraph in the book and wished the writer might see his thought translated into a real human experience.

On the desk in this room I noticed one of the beautiful medals awarded by the Panama Pacific Exposition and was shown the certificate, which stated that the medal had been given for vases, flower bowls, lamps, tableware, pictorial tiles and other pottery.

The studio is the school room, where the various branches of pottery making are taught. Some day, when I shall still let the Paul Revere potter make my table-those old world wheels and learn to make my own dishes. I shall still let the Paul Revere potters make my tableware, but I shall make hundreds of dishes for flowers, tiny pink ones for the first flowers of spring, flaring green and yellow and brown bowls for the summer's wealth, and tall black and deep blue jars for asters, goldenrod and scarlet berries.

"There's plenty of room at the top," quoted the Parlor Philosopher.

"Yes, but most of us prefer the companionship of our friends," added the Mere Man.—Judge.

The young man who never listens to advice need only gaze in the mirror to behold the reason why his pay check never increases.

Mrs. William A. Whitcomb of Dedham has joined her sister and brother, Miss C. M. Merrill and A. E. Merrill, for a short sojourn.

Mrs. G. C. Orme and her daughters, the Misses Mary, Abby and Isabelle, entertained on Monday at luncheon Miss Margaret Montgomery, Miss Flores Howard and Miss Adele Flower, all of New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lyon of Baltimore, accompanied by Sydney S. Zell, also of Baltimore, are registered at the Oceanside for a short stay.

A very smart luncheon was given Friday at the Boston Tea Party on Lexington avenue by Mrs. J. W. Tillinghast, who is spending the summer at the Oceanside, and who entertained for a few of her friends. The table was very artistically arranged with decorations of pond lilies. Covers were laid for six.

Noted among the dancers on Saturday evening was Mrs. Henry McRee, who was formerly Miss Gladys Scudder and a very popular debutante before her marriage several years ago. Mrs. McRee was very charmingly gowned in a creation of lavender tulle and taffeta in billowy flounces.

An exhibition by the noted craftsman, Frank Gardner Hale of Boston, will be held at Cathedral Pines Tea Room, Goose Cove, Annisquam, the latter half of next week. Mr. Hale's jewelry is attracting a great deal of attention in the art world and his work is known to many. Cards and announcements will be sent out specifying the days of the exhibition. adv.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL MAGNOLIA

THE OCEANSIDE children, and there are a great many of them this season, are having a very jolly time this summer at the hotel. With swims at the Pool, games of tennis on the splendid courts at the hotels, and then dancing in the evening of hop nights until intermission, at least, the summer days are speeding merrily on for them. A Children's Party is being planned for the youngsters' special pleasure, by Miss Evangeline Beane, the teacher of dancing at the hotel and social hostess, which will occur in the very near future.

John J. Keenan and D. F. J. Schoemburgh, both of New York are at the Oceanside for a few days' stay.

Mrs. W. E. Woodbury and Miss Woodbury of Rochester, N. Y., are guests at the Oceanside for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. David Loring entertained Mrs. C. H. Johnson of Boston as their guest on Wednesday at the Oceanside.

Porter Hughes of New York has lately joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Culbert, who are season guests at the Oceanside.

With always a pleasant word and a cheery smile Mrs. J. J. Weil of White Plains, N. Y., is quite the most popular woman at the hotel, while her reputation as a splendid horsewoman has long been established, which eminence she still enjoys, her visits to Magnolia numbering back for several seasons. Mrs. Weil drives tandem with skill and style, and it is a usual and pretty sight of pleasant afternoons to observe her as she drives tandem along the shore between Manchester and Magnolia. Mrs. Weil enjoys riding, too, and takes many early morning canters through Magnolia.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. E. Martin of Chicago with daughter, Miss Avice, and son, Wells Martin, who are guests at the Oceanside for the season have gone to the White Mountains on a motor trip for a week with Bretton Woods as their destination. They are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McLoughlin, also guests at the hotel. They will return the latter part of next week to remain at the Oceanside until the close of the season.

Wednesday arrivals at the hotel were Mrs. Mary T. Donovan of New York accompanied by her son, Walter J. M. Donovan also of New York. They will remain at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay.

Notable among the Wednesday arrivals was Mr. Kenneth Carpenter of Evanston, Ill., who will remain until the close of the season.

Among the Wednesday arrivals were Isaac Guggenheim and valet of New York and Dr. Robert Kunitzer, also of New York. They will remain indefinitely.

Rhodes Robertson of Cambridge, was an overnight guest on Wednesday.

Mrs. George A. Dobyne, a season guest at the Oceanside, entertained Miss Lydia Lee of St. Louis at luncheon at the hotel on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter, Jr., of Washington, Armistead Peter, 3rd, and Bromley Seeley also of Washington, are registered at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay. They are occupying apartments in the Centre cottage.

W. J. Ehrich of New York spent the week-end with Mrs. Ehrich, who is a season guest at the hotel. Walter Duren of New York is registered at the hotel for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. E. Martin, who are sojourning at the Oceanside, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McLoughlin of New York for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gordon, Mrs. C. S. Cook and Mr. C. L. Williams, all of Rochester, N. Y., composed a motor party which registered at the Oceanside on Tuesday for a few days' visit.

THE OCEANSIDE was not without its victories at the Water Sports which took place at the North Shore Swimming Pool, at Magnolia, Saturday afternoon last, to a very fashionable and interesting gathering. One of the sixteen beautiful cups which were given as prizes was won by Mr. Chester Lockwood of Washington, who with his mother and brother Winthrop are season guests at the hotel. By his famous somersault in the air his was an easy triumph.

Mrs. Lucy W. Whittemore of Boston and Mrs. George N. Carleton of St. Petersburg, Fla., were luncheon guests at the Oceanside on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Cady and maid of Moline, Ill., are recent arrivals at the Oceanside hotel. They have taken apartments in the Highland cottage. They will remain for a two weeks' sojourn.

OPEN UNTIL SEPTEMBER 20TH

DANCING reigned supreme at the Oceanside on Saturday evening, which was plainly manifested by the great, great many dancers and number of happy on-lookers. It was without doubt the biggest gathering of the season, and there was not the slightest sign of "let-up" till the last strains of the entrancing music of the hotel orchestra had died away. Everybody seemingly had a perfectly fine time, and from observance, not to have a good time at any of these hops one must find a reason within oneself.

A word about the gowns of the ladies—they were beautiful, with no two shades quite alike, and a superabundance of beautiful black gowns, which were a delightful contrast to the rainbow colorings. Very attractive was Miss Abby Orme in a very dainty frock of white tulle over white lace with bodice of glistening crystals and a girdle of blue ribbon.

Miss Ellen Thomas wore a pretty dancing frock of pink taffeta over a white lace petticoat, the overskirt looped and trimmed with blue ribbons. Miss Doris Bryan was very pretty in a dancing frock of fluffy red tulle.

Mrs. Alice Moore Richard wore a beautiful gown of changeable taffeta of the mauve tones, trimmed with silver embroidery, touches of lavender tulle forming a throat and arm scarf.

Mrs. W. J. Ehrich was noticed among the dancers gowned in a pretty lavender creation of tulle and taffeta.

Mrs. Lowry's gown was an exquisite creation of apricot satin with quantities of cream toned lace and girdle of blue ribbon. An aigrette worn in her hair completed this pretty costume.

Miss Hope Johnson entertained a few of her friends at dinner Saturday evening, the largest of many dinner parties given at the hotel. The table was festive with summer blossoms. Covers were spread for nine. Among the guests were Miss Mary Kittredge, Miss Katherine Huling, Jacob Cox, Arthur Harlow, B. Hammond Tracy and Mr. Holbrook.

Another dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Ransom George, who entertained for a party of four. Clifford Putnam was host to six at dinner on Saturday evening.

Mrs. F. S. Rhodes, who has been spending the summer at the Oceanside, left during the past week with her two young daughters, Helen and Priscilla, for a month's stay at Ranch Eaton, Wolf, Wyoming.

Among the coterie of young men who spent the week-end at the hotel were Frank E. West, Jr., of Brooklyn and John D. Cable of New York city, remaining until the middle of the week.

THE OCEANSIDE's gaiety still holds sway, and the passing of the third week of August finds everybody enjoying to the utmost the many attractions at the beautiful hotel. The grand ball, which will soon be announced, and the children's party, which is scheduled for the near future, will bring to a climax "the gayest and most successful season that the hotel has ever enjoyed. Reservations are still being made, which shows the tendency of the guest to wish to remain at Magnolia for "just a little while longer," which will pleasantly bring the summer season away into the September month, which is wonderfully beautiful at the shore.

A. W. Kennard entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening to several of his friends at the Oceanside. Covers were laid for four.

Mrs. Frank Warner was hostess on Tuesday noon at a luncheon party given at the Oceanside for several of her friends. The table was prettily decorated with roses. Covers were laid for five.

Another pretty luncheon was given on Friday by Miss Mary Gray at the Oceanside. Summer blossoms graced the table. Covers were five.

Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Farrington of St. Paul motored to the Oceanside on Monday and spent the night.

William L. Shaw of Dallas, Texas, who is spending the season with his parents at the Griswold, New London, is a visitor at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay.

Miss Eugenia Levering, who is a guest of the Dieters at the Oceanside, was very dainty and girlish on Tuesday evening in a frock of white satin and tulle.

A very graceful dancer and attractive girl, too, is Miss Mary Carroll Frick of Baltimore, who was noted among the dancers Tuesday evening. Miss Frick was beautifully gowned in a frock of black net over taffeta with diaphanous layers of the skirt weighted with bandings of jet with touches of the trimmings at the bodice.

From Philadelphia comes Miss Mary O'Brien, with very beautiful red-gold hair. Miss O'Brien was gowned in a pretty creation of black chiffon and taffeta and white fox fur at her throat, at the Tuesday night dance.

Miss Kirk was very stunning in a gown of white chiffon over satin with paillettes of iridescent embroiders at the bodice.

A very striking and pretty gown was worn by Mrs. C. R. Holmes, which was a creation of lavender tulle over shell pink taffeta with girdle of pink and lavender ribbon and pink corsage.

Mrs. Theodore Pietsch and Miss Yokel of Baltimore are registered at the Oceanside for a short stay.

Mrs. Edward Grace of Chicago and Miss M. G. Healy of Boston are sojourning at the Oceanside for a stay indefinite.

From Castleton-on-the-Hudson by motor car come a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cheney, Miss Van Vecthen and Miss F. Wein for a short stay. They are domiciled in Breakers cottage.

Miss Mary E. O'Brien and Miss Cecile O'Brien of Philadelphia are at the Oceanside for a week's stay. Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Potter, Mrs. L. Holman and Miss L. K. Holman of Philadelphia were week-enders at the Oceanside, coming to Magnolia by motor. Motoring up from the Marlborough-Blenheim for the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hastings and daughter, Miss Hastings, of Montclair, N. J.

Memphis is very well represented at the Oceanside this season, there being several people of social and business prominence registered from that city. This Southern contingent has lately been added to by the coming to the hotel of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Austin, who are here for a stay indefinite.

TUESDAY evening's dance at the Oceanside was enjoyed by a large number of the guests and a host of the summer cottage colony. True to the Tuesday evening tradition, the children held sway during many of the numbers. The gowns of the ladies were beautiful, showing all the hues of the rainbow.

Mrs. E. P. Emerson was very attractive in a gown of black net with gold embroidery and touches of black net.

Miss Avis Martin and her brother, Wells Martin, who with their parents are August guests at the hotel, were noted dancing during a number of the dances of the evening. Miss Martin is a pretty girl and was very sweet in a frock of gray taffeta with alternating layers of white chiffon. A pretty hat with black velvet ribbons completed the costume.

Mrs. Freeman H. Hibben was noted among the dancers, with the doctor as her partner, gowned in a dainty gown of white embroidered mouseline with girdle of blue taffeta.

Pretty Frances Rowland was very attractive in a dancing frock of sunburst yellow in combination of taffeta and chiffon.

Mrs. Maurice Josephs of Cincinnati, whose petit, brunette type of beauty is so attractive, was very lovely Tuesday evening at the dance in a fetching frock of pale blue taffeta with flutings. A dainty hat of leghorn with band of rich embroidery and black velvet ribbons completed the pretty costume.

Pretty Helen Middleton wore a lovely dancing frock of dark blue chiffon over white chiffon satin. Little yellow blossoms held the folds in place on the skirt with touches of jet at the bodice.

Mrs. D. B. Hussey wore an exquisite gown of black chiffon over black taffeta with trimmings of glistening jet.

Noted among the arrivals of Saturday at the hotel was Daniel Comstock of Boston, who is a member of the faculty at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mr. Comstock will remain at the hotel for a several days.

C. Munroe Smith and Mrs. E. V. Dollin, both of New York, are registered at the Oceanside for a few weeks' visit.

General Nelson A. Miles of Washington, D. C., motored to Magnolia on Sunday and took dinner at the Oceanside, accompanied by J. B. Newburgh of Cincinnati.

J. Oakley Radway and Beverly A. Norris, both of New York city, are registered at the hotel for a week's sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leslie of Pelham, N. Y., accompanied by Miss Semple and A. N. White of New York city, are at the Oceanside for a few days' stay.

A motor party made up of Mrs. Farnham Lyon of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Alvin C. Burt and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Burlin of Locust Valley, L. I., arrived at the hotel on Saturday last for a few days' sojourn.

George H. Robinson of Cambridge is registered at the Oceanside for the remainder of the season. Mr. Robinson is a pleasing addition to the circle of young people.

Miss Annie M. Sessions of Natchez, Miss., is registered at the Oceanside for the remainder of the summer.

THE DANCING AT THE OCEANSIDE on Thursday evening of last week attracted a larger number of the guests and cottagers than is usual on Thursday evenings. The floor was very well filled throughout the whole evening and many beautiful gowns were seen, each and every one a creation of beauty. The younger people had a very good time, as was evidenced by the number of young gallants who danced with their fair young partners on their arms. One particularly attractive young couple were Curry Watman and Miss Virginia Newman, who danced very gracefully together with an unusual display of rhythm. Miss Virginia is a very pretty young girl with quantities of flaxen hair, which she wears over her shoulders. Thursday evening her frock was of delicate pink chiffon. Miss Frances Brainard was exceedingly charming Thursday evening in a black dancing frock of chiffon with paillettes of glistening jet.

Miss Dorothy Dunn wore a pretty gown of apricot toned chiffon over the same colored satin with appliques of princess lace.

Mrs. Robert E. Hussey, an attractive young matron from St. Louis, was very attractive last Thursday evening gowned in a Quaker gray frock of taffeta and chiffon in combination, and hat of gray tones with trimmings of pink roses.

A. Whitney Rhodes, Richard Warner and Edward Hussey have returned to the Oceanside to join their parents after a sojourn at a training camp at Fort Terry, Long Island, which is a junior Plattsburg for boys. They report a very exciting time and appear in very good health.

Donald Markle of Hazelton, Pa., who has been a guest at the hotel for the past week, has gone back to Pennsylvania on a business trip. He is expected to return before the close of the season.

Miss Mary Kittredge wore a very pretty and girlish frock of crimson tulle over white on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Edgar M. Johnson was very stunning on last Thursday evening in a gown of black tulle embroidered in gold with a corsage of pink roses as the only touch of color. Gold slippers completed this pretty costume.

Miss Betty Walker and Master Reginald White made a charming couple Thursday evening, when they danced together in the one-step. Miss Betty wore a pretty frock of blue and white taffeta with knots of black velvet ribbon.

A motor party made up of Dr. and Mrs. C. N. Smith, L. V. Smith, Mrs. F. O. Paddock and Mrs. J. H. Paddock, all of Toledo, were guests at the Oceanside Thursday and Friday en route for a visit to Bar Harbor.

Among the Saturday arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. George C. Miller, Miss Marion Miller and governess, Miss Lillian Brown, all of Buffalo, who are occupying apartments in the Sea Crest cottage for the remainder of the season. The Millers have been regular season guests at the hotel each year, but were late in arriving this season due to a bereavement.

George Rowland of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has arrived at the Oceanside to join Mrs. Rowland and daughter for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Read and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Cooper, all of New York, motored to the Oceanside on Friday and spent the week-end.

Mrs. B. K. McMichen of Pittsburg has come to Magnolia and is registered at the Oceanside for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mendell and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Irwin from New York city made up another motor party which spent the week-end at the hotel.

Mrs. Hazeltine J. Besson of Hoboken, N. J., and Miss Margaret T. Kirk of Baltimore are sojourning at the Oceanside for a week's stay.

IPSWICH has been the mecca of two interesting excursions of the Garden club, a newly organized society of Little Boar's Head, N. H., of which the George Barnards of Ipswich and the Willard Emerys of Topsfield are honorary members. The first trip was taken to "River Bend Farm," when about thirty of the club visited the beautiful gardens of the Barnards. Mrs. Barnard served tea in the garden. Among the guests were Mrs. Edgar Champlin, Mrs. Castleman, Mrs. George Studebaker and Mrs. Charles Allen of Rye Beach. Last week the club visited "Castle Hill," the R. T. Crane, Jr., estate on Argilla road. After an inspection of the garden tea was taken in Ipswich at the new tea room run by Mrs. Brown.

Miss Corinna Searle of Ipswich has been entertaining Miss Lois Page of New York and Miss Elizabeth Gunn of New York and Beverly Farms.

Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno and her daughters of Rowley are spending a few weeks at Falmouth, on the South Shore.

Richard T. Crane, Jr., has returned from a two-weeks' sojourn at Jefferson, N. H. Mr. Crane has offered to contribute $25,000 to a fund to fight infantile paralysis in New York.

Mrs. George E. Barnard of Ipswich has her nephews, Russell and Henry Stearns, with her this week. Tonight they are among her guests at the Essex County club dinner-dance. They have come up from Newport, where they were with a party on the Vanderbilt yacht. Russell has recently completed a course at Plattsburg.

Miss Gertrude Hunnewell of Wellesley has been the guest of Mrs. Robert Haydock (Ruth Harrington), who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. F. B. Harrington, in their summer home on Argilla road. The Haydocks are of the young bridal couples of the season who are living on the North Shore this summer.

At the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. George L. De Blois in Ipswich, a guest of their daughter, Miss Betty, is Miss Carolyn Ranlet, daughter of Mrs. Charles Ranlet of W. Cedar street, Boston. Miss Marian Read of Cambridge has just returned from a visit at the De Blois home.

New members of the Preparedness Cooking class in Ipswich are Miss Florence Fenno, Miss Betty De Blois and Miss Anna Flichtner. Much interest is being shown by the young cooks and they are turning out some useful and excellent productions.

Mrs. Herbert Mason's sun-parlor at the beautiful Ipswich home on "Candlewood Farm" is a busy place every Tuesday and Friday, when about twenty-five workers gather to make supplies for the French wounded. Among them are Mmes. Roger Warner, Langdon Warner, A. N. Rantoul, A. A. Shurtleff, Jerry Campbell, E. W. Taylor, H. N. Doughty, Bayard Tuckerman, C. S. Tuckerman, J. D. Barney, J. L. Goodale, E. R. Dick, Jr., Robert Haydock and the Misses Susanne Brown, Julia and Sybil Appleton.

Mrs. Wilson Shannon Dunn of New York arrived Monday at "Windmill Hill Farm" to spend the late season with her sister, Miss C. B. Dobson.

Ye Rogers Manse has had among its guests the past week Mrs. H. S. McVicker of New York and Miss Gertrude Hart of Chicago. They were friends of Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins, who is spending the summer at the Manse. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Chandler of Bass Rocks have been among those entertaining at luncheon. They had a party of seven guests from their home, San Antonio, Texas. The Manse is becoming more popular than ever with East Gloucester and Magnolia colonies, who are ever seeking just such an attractive old place

Mrs. Charles Dyer of Topsfield road entertained at bridge last Friday for over twenty guests.

Y^e Burnham House guests are many. Some noted there recently have been Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe, Mrs. George E. Tener with a party of East Gloucester folk, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Spencer Kennard, Mr. and Mrs. William L. White with guests from the Oceanside, among whom was Miss Jennie Norman of St. Joseph, Mo. Among Bass Rocks people have been Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. McNeal and visiting relatives from Philadelphia. Mrs. Clement Studebaker of Rye Beach was down with a party of seven.

James W. Appleton has returned to "Appleton Farms" from a course at Plattsburg.

HAMILTON.—At "Foxcroft," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Seavey, S. Z. Foster of Toledo, O., the father of Mrs. Seavey, is making an extended visit. Her brother, C. M. Foster, also of Toledo, left this week after a visit of ten days. The young daughter, Miss Eleanor Seavey, is frequently seen on Hamilton roads riding her handsome new horse. Miss Seavey is fond of riding, but has not yet entered the regular drags and hunts.

Much entertaining is being done at "Homewood," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rodolphe L. Agassiz, where the wedding of their daughter, Miss Marie Dallas Agassiz, and Cornelius Conway Felton, will take place in the home

Samuel P. Mandell, who is spending two months in the aviation school at Utica, N. Y., was a recent Sunday guest at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Mandell of "Four Corners." Mr. Mandell is very much interested in the work and reports having risen as high as 2000 feet.

Another little grandchild has been added to the George von L. Meyer family this summer. This little one is named Virginia and was born about two weeks ago at Newport in the family of Lt. C. Raymond P. Rodgers and Mrs. Rodgers (Alys Appleton Meyer) of Washington.

Mrs. George von L. Meyer has returned from Newport, where she was visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. R. P. Rodgers. Miss Julia Meyer left Tuesday for Newport, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Perry Belmont and Mrs. Colville Barclay, formerly of the Manchester colony.

Miss Julia A. Meyer, always the enthusiastic promoter and zealous worker in whatever she undertakes, is to be congratulated upon her success in the gladioli show held last Thursday at "Cedar Acres," the gladioli farm of B. Hammond Tracey in Wenham. It was a benefit for the American Ambulance hospital at Neuilly, France, and $500 was realized. Miss Meyer had charge of the ticket sale and 1000 tickets would bring in the result obtained.

Mrs. Jonathan Brown, Jr., of "Red Top Farm" is entertaining Mrs. Churchill Mehard of Pittsburg.

PHILLIPS BEACH.—The second week's festivities at Phillips Beach were brought to a fitting and brilliant close Saturday evening by a very pretty supper dance given at "The Arches" by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston in honor of their son-in-law, Eugene W. Ong, whose birthday it was. About forty people were present, all dressed in sailor costume. Dancing was enjoyed by the guests on the spacious verandas to the music of a stringed orchestra, the full moon furnishing its light for the merry dancers, a wonderful night long to be remembered. At midnight a delicious supper was served. Before the dance a birthday dinner was given at the Ong home for the immediate family.

Mrs. Andrew W. Preston entertained at luncheon on Monday in honor of Mrs. William F. Peters and daughter, Miss Grace Peters of New York, who are guests at the Preston Hotel at Beach Bluff.

Mrs. C. S. Tilden and Mrs. Frederic L. Woods and children have gone to Maine for a month's trip.

Mrs. Edward T. Brown of Phillips Beach left during the first part of the week for a month's trip through the Middle West, expecting to return about the middle of September.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Brown and daughters, Mary and Louise, of Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, who have been spending several weeks at Mount Washington, Bretton Woods, have left the White Mountains and are motor-ing through Canada making Montreal their objective point. From Montreal they will go to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, returning sometime in the early days of September.

When a man loses his head he should hold his tongue.

If undecided, it is better to back up. In any event don't stand still.

BEACH BLUFF is all enwrapped in the doings of this very pretty and exclusive settlement, and it is doubted if anywhere along the shore the cottagers have such a delightful time, each day full of something interesting and amusing, as do the dwellers at this lovely summer colony. One of the smartest dinners of the week was given at the Neighborhood club Wednesday evening of last week by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Foster of Beach Bluff avenue, Beach Bluff. The table was beautifully decorated with roses in gay profusion. Covers were laid for fourteen. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Squire, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Dyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Slade Dillingham of Mostyn avenue, Beach Bluff, entertained at one of the prettiest dinner parties of the season at the Tedesco club on Wednesday evening. Covers were laid for twelve at a beautifully appointed table, decorated with clusters of red roses.

L. E. Johnson of Virginia, who is a summer guest with his family at the Preston, Beach Bluff, has been entertaining Isaac F. Mann, T. T. Dunlop and Reeve Lewis of Washington and Edwin Mann of Bluefield, W. Va., as his guests.

GODDARD BROS.' store in Lynn, to which North Shore shoppers turn when seeking goods of quality, makes a specialty of its delivery service to Swampscott, Clifton, Nahant, Marblehead and nearby points. Oftentimes the shopper dislikes the quest of a necessary article when the personal visitation and inspection seem unavoidable. Especially is this true on rainy or extremely hot days. At Goddard's the same careful attention is given telephone or mail orders that is accorded personal orders. Auto delivery daily means promptness.

New Ocean House, Swampscott.

AUGUST BOOKINGS HAVE practically filled the main hotel and the new Annex of the New Ocean House and demands for accommodations are still coming in with a consistency which indicates that the season will be prolonged well into the fall. In former years the New Ocean House has remained open only during the summer months, but with the addition of the new fire-proof annex and the increased facilities for providing for guests in the cooler months, the hotel will now remain open throughout the entire year. A winter resort hotel is a new departure along the North Shore, but still consistent with the demand for a hotel of metropolitan measures within striking distance of Boston. The Annex has been planned with every thought for the comfort and convenience of prospective guests desiring a quiet, home-like atmosphere. The suites are all luxuriously furnished in combinations of one to six rooms.

It is the purpose of the management to run the Annex on the inclusive rate plan. No charge will be made for the usual extras. Personal valet service will be included in the rate also. With the summer season now at its very height, reservations are already being made for accommodations during the fall in the Annex, and the favorable impression which has been made upon the winter guests who have already engaged suites, has been very gratifying to the management.

Social events for the month of August have already got well under way. The archery range and the tennis courts are daily attracting their full quota and the excellent bathing facilities have greatly increased the number of persons finding amusement on the beach and in the water. Drawings for the tennis tournament will take place this week and the first round in the singles and the doubles will start. A tournament will also be held for the younger set this season. As usual, the management will contribute a set of cups for all the events.

The fourth formal ball and children's party were held during the past week, more than 400 guests of the hotel being present at the Saturday evening affair. At the children's party Mrs. Edward Grabow was hostess to nearly 100 members of the younger set and their friends from along the Shore. The prizes awarded to Misses Emily Evatt and Edith Mitton of Boston and the Masters Walter and William Candy of St. Louis were contributed by Mrs. George F. Baldwin of Chicago.

The date of the fancy dress ball has been set finally for Friday evening, September 1. Originally it had been planned to hold the affair on the Saturday evening following, but at the request of a number of guests, the date was moved one day ahead in order that the dancing might continue until a later hour than would otherwise be possible.

Vincent Astor and Charles Lawrence of New York City were luncheon guests at the New Ocean House last Friday, stopping at the hotel while motoring from Marblehead after the races. Charles S. Boyd and James B. Todd of New York, both of whom had yachts at Marblehead for Race Week also were luncheon guests on Friday.

Bishop M. F. Burke of St. Joseph, Mo., registered at the New Ocean House last Monday and will remain for the rest of the month as a guest of the hotel.

Among the arrivals of the past week have been the following: Miss Mary Agnew, Miss Katherine Agnew, Patterson, N. J.; Mrs. E. B. Judson, Mrs. J. D. Morgan, Montreal; M. B. Johnson, Cleveland, O.; Mr. and Mrs. P. C. K. Bartlett, St. Joseph, Mo.; J. S. Loose, Kansas City; Miss Edith Crosby, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Young, H. B. Young, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. SWAMPSCOTT is deep in the social affairs of the last of the third week and is entering upon the fourth week of August with a vim and determination to end the August season of 1916 with a blaze of glory eclipsing all other years. It has surely been a banner summer for the hotel folk and cottagers. Although many have been engaged in surgical dressings work and the like, still the summer has been taken up very delightfully. People who would otherwise have never been friends have become very intimate in a mutual cause, that of helping others, which is noble, indeed.

Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter of Galloupe's Point has each Wednesday morning held a meeting at her residence for the purpose of making surgical dressings for our own soldiers, if needed, a portion of the work to be used for the Allies. These meetings have been very popular and became known as "Mixter" mornings, and have been attended by women of Swampscott, Phillips Beach and Beach Bluff. At the Wednesday morning meeting of last week the ladies voted to send money to the chaplain of the Massachusetts regiment at Fort Bliss, Texas, for the purchase of a moving picture machine for the amusement of the boys at the border. This is only one of the many splendid things that these ladies have done to relieve the boys of the militia from the frightful ennui of the life on the Mexican lines. Among the ladies who attend these "Mixter" mornings and who have so generously contributed are Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter, Mrs. William A. Paine, Mrs. H. W. Forbes, Mrs. W. F. Watters, Mrs. E. H. Clapp, the Misses Bradlee, Mrs. J. Converse Wetherald. The ladies say that, if the moving picture machine proves a success, they will send money enough for the purchase of another.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Forbes of Tupelo road, Swampscott, entertained at dinner during the past week Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Denet of Marblehead Neck and Mrs. John Abbott of Chicago, who is a house-guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Denet.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bradt and daughter, Miss Joyce Bradt, of Schenectady, N. Y., who are making a week's stay at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, having motored down from York Harbor, Me., en route for their home in New York, were entertained at the North Shore Grill at dinner Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Malby of New York, who are spending the summer at Phillips Beach.

Mrs. John Donovan of St. Joseph, Mo., who is spending the summer at Swampscott, entertained over the week-end her mother, Mrs. M. L. Hart of Weymouth, and her aunts, Mrs. John W. Hart and Mrs. D. A. Hart, also of Weymouth.

Scott Clifton Carbee, the artist, who is occupying Thorne cottage at Swampscott for the summer, gave an exhibition of his pictures on Tuesday afternoon from 2 until 4. Another exhibition will be given Tuesday afternoon, August 22. This is an excellent opportunity for the public to view Mr. Carbee's fine portraits, a number of which are quite famous, such as "Mother," "The Lady in Blue," "Miss Audrey," "Apples" and "The Girl in Pink."

Mrs. Charles N. Brush was hostess on Tuesday afternoon at "Shingleside," her pretty summer home at Little's Point, Swampscott, when Mrs. May Alden Ward gave a very delightful talk on current events. A number of the ladies of the North Shore attended. Mrs. Brush will be hostess again on Tuesday afternoon, August 22. This is a series of talks which Mrs. Ward has given during the summer at the homes of several ladies of Swampscott and Beach Bluff and the affairs have proven to be very charming.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Gale of Graystone Hall, Little's Point, Swampscott, have been entertaining as their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Howes of Cohasset and New York, entertaining at dinner Saturday night in their honor. Included among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dill, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Watters and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cutler, who are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Watters.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Heseltine of Swampscott have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. William Eldred of Hartford, Ct., who were recently married at Andover.

Mrs. John Donovan of St. Joseph, Mo., who is a season guest at the New Ocean House entertained as her guests over the week-end, her mother, Mrs. M. L. Hart, and her aunts, Mrs. John W. Hart and Mrs. D. A. Hart, all of Weymouth.

Mrs. Charles N. Brush of Little's Point, was hostess on Tuesday afternoon to the ladies of Swampscott, Phillips Beach and Beach Bluff when Mrs. Mary Alden Ward of Boston entertained with a talk on Current Events. A notable gathering of ladies was present.

The weekly dinner-dance on Wednesday evening at the Tedesco club was a very pretty and merry affair, a great many entertaining notwithstanding the fact that the echoes of the mid-summer ball had hardly died away. The interior of the clubhouse presented a very pretty appearance with decorations of summer blossoms upon the dinner tables. Among those who entertained were E. W. Ong, P. F. Fitzpatrick, H. B. Lewis, F. C. Sharon, H. S. Hyde, M. N. Smith, J. P. Parker, T. R. Neath, E. P. Johnson, D. K. Kennedy, Edward LeCroix, W. G. Walton, E. Hollingsworth, E. L. Davis, F. E. Wright, Jr., F. N. hosts at a dinner at the clubhouse on Tuesday evening, which was a very pleasant affair, tendered to the public officials of Marblehead, Salem and Swampscott. It was appropriately termed "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream," a delicious dinner being served. The tables were decorated with vari-colored roses. A feature of the dinner was the attractive menu cards, which were of black and white, with hand drawing of a huge dinner bell amid rocks, symbolic of Marblehead. Notable among the gathering were Selectmen J. L. Litchman, J. M. Osborn, Thomas Labram, Jr., R. C. Bridge, J. M. Ward, Assessors F. H. Litchman, Thomas Swasey, H. E. Ballard, Treasurer E. E. Paine, Clerk W. T. Litchman, Com. of Highways S. Frank Chapman, Chief of Police F. W. Goodwin, all of Marblehead. From Salem came Mayor Henry P. son, City Engineer G. F. Ashton, City Clerk J. Clifford Entwistle. Swampscott was represented by Selectmen H. S. Baldwin, W. E. Carter, C. B. Humphrey, Assessors E. A. Maxfield, Peleg Gardner, O. G. Poor, Treasurer W. S. Bates, Clerk George T. Till, Highway Surveyor M. J. Ryan, Chief of Police N. M. Carson, Representative to General Court J. D. Bently. The Board of Governors of the Tedesco club are Elisha W. Cobb, Charles H. Conway, William H. Rothwell, E. H. Clapp, Frank H. Gage, Andrew W. Preston, Eugene W. Ong, Benjamin N. Johnson and Frank E. Peabody.

Noted among the players upon the golf course at the Tedesco club on Wednesday were Paymaster and Mrs. Jordan of the U. S. S. Birmingham. Mrs. Jordan was formerly Miss Terhune, the daughter of W. B. Terhune of Phillips Beach.

Mrs. Henry W. Forbes of Tupelo road, Swampscott, was the winner of the cup given Wednesday for the women's golf tournament at the Tedesco club.

PHILLIPS BEACH is basking betimes in the sunshine of a very busy month of August, but judging from the number of good times that are planned, the folk at this pretty summer place will not have much time to rest until away into September. The entering upon the fourth week of August apparently has no terrors for the Phillips Beach colony, for they are always ready to do their share to make North Shore functions grand successes.

The Friday morning Surgical Dressings meeting, held at the Neighborhood club, was well attended and a very busy one. Everyone was intent upon doing the greatest amount of work possible in the time specified for the meeting. Several weeks ago a large box of dressings was sent to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital to be sterilized preparatory to shipping to the war zone, and it will not be long before another box will be ready. Among the workers on Friday morning were Mrs. W. A. Paine, Miss Esther Paine, Mrs. Charles B. Price, Mrs. Charles W. Smith and Miss Helen Smith, Miss Guild, Miss Hammond, Mrs. G. A. Craig, Mrs. A. L. Robinson, Miss Grace Robinson, Miss Chase, Miss Tapley, Mrs. C. H. Holloway, Mrs. Charles Whipplesworth, Mrs. E. H. Clapp and Mrs. F. H. Gage.

NAHANT.—Vittorio Orlandini of the Nahant colony sailed last Saturday to join his regiment in Florence, Italy. He has been chairman of the executive committee of the New England War Relief fund, of which Prof. William Roscoe Thayer is president. Mrs. Orlandini (Mary F. Johnson) will remain at the Johnson cottage in Nahant the remainder of the season. They were extensively entertained before Mr. Orlandini's departure. Mrs. George Lee of Beverly Farms gave a dinner-dance at her home in their honor.

CLIFTON folk are very, very busy these mid-summer days of August and the engagement book is filled along into the middle days of September, although the summer cottagers do not leave these pretty shore places until the "melancholy days have come." Everybody in Clifton is interested in its Improvement society, which is represented by the most influential of its citizens. On Friday evening of last week the Clifton Improvement society met at "Dillcroft," the home of Mr. George A. Dill, to talk over the affairs of the town and especially the matter of good reads. It was a very successful and well attended meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore P. Gooding of Atlantic avenue, Clifton, entertained at the Tedesco club on Wednesday evening at a dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Alvord of Winsted, Conn., who have been their house-guests for the past few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Phelan and their two daughters, Miss Katherine and Miss Caroline, have just returned from a motor trip to Bridgton, Me., where they visited James J. Phelan, Jr., who is a member of the Kingswood camp for boys, this being his third season.

MARBLEHEAD NECK has been deep in the festivities of race week, the closing of which has not lessened the social affairs of the colony, and from a glance into the engagement book there will be no change until close on to the October days, which, as a rule see the end of the summer season. From the Neck comes the announcement of the engagement of pretty Miss Edith H. Foster, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. W. Foster of Foster street, Marblehead Neck and Charles River Village, to Mr. Albert D. Farwell of Chicago, Yale '09. Miss Foster is a member of the Vincent club. Her sisters are Mrs. Robert M. Tappan (Catherine Foster) of "Clay Brook Farm," Charles River Village, Miss Caroline Foster whose engagement was recently announced to Mr. Theodore Sizer of New York, Miss Hilda Foster and Miss Barbara Foster. Her brothers are Reginald C. Foster, Harvard '11 and Mr. Charles Orrin Foster of Fall River, who married Miss Marion Wentworth.

Among early weddings in the Neck colony will be that of Miss Rachel Marie Hofman Owen, the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Owen, to Harold Williams Wheeler, Harvard '16, which promises to be a notable and brilliant affair. Miss Owen is a popular member of the younger social set at the Neck. The wedding will take place at St. Michael's Episcopal Church at Marblehead, on Tuesday, August 29.

Among the recent arrivals at the Oceanside hotel at the Neck were Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lawton, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lampson, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Humphrey, all of Tonawanda, N. Y.; J. G. Thompson, Boston; Mrs. John H. MacLeod, Cleveland, Ohio; D. H. Bryant, Jamestown, N. Y.; J. H. Wright, Syracuse, N. Y.; Miss Marjorie Schenck, Weston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Lyon and Miss Katherine L. Lyon of Middleton, Conn.

The annual bal masque at the Oceanside this evening—August 18th—promises to be a very elaborate affair and will be well attended by the cottagers of the Neck as well as Marblehead.

The mid-summer ball, given at the Corinthian Yacht club on Friday evening, was without doubt the most brilliant affair of the season at the Neck. The clubhouse was decorated with myriads of electric lights outlining the verandas, while the inside of the clubhouse was a fairy scene of beauty. Dinner was served to over four hundred people at tables decorated with cut flowers of vari-color. Following dinner the tables were removed and dancing enjoyed until midnight. In the afternoon a band concert was given on the veranda of the clubhouse, which was also well attended. Noted among those entertaining were D. J. Kennedy, E. E. Richards, H. L. Bowden, U. T. Ullman, J. W. Dunlop, J. A. Galvin, J. M. Whittemore, George West, W. H. Joyce, C. W. Cheney, G. H. Russell, J. E. Wilcock, J. S. Walker, Commodore Wheelock, J. H. Blodgett, C. E. Goodwin, J. B. The fire which was discovered in the Dearborn cottage, one of the Corinthian club connections, on Tuesday afternoon, and which threatened to be a very stubborn one, was extinguished by the employes of the club after a brisk battle.

The Monday evening band concert and dinner-dance at the Corinthian was very well attended and a very pleasant evening spent. Gladioli in profusion were the decorative scheme employed to make the rooms of the clubhouse, which were thrown open, a very beautiful and charming scene. The gowns worn by the ladies were very elaborate and beautiful. Noted among the guests were Vaughn Jealous, H. L. Sutcliff, C. W. Cheney, F. W. Moore, Thomas Curtis, D. B. Hallett, E. B. Thomas, J. The beautiful and palatial yacht Cynthia III, belonging to Commodore Mills of New York, has been in the harbor at Marblehead during the past week, attracting much attention because of its size and beauty of design.

The Tuesday tea for the ladies at the Eastern yacht club was very well attended, many ladies enjoying light refreshments upon the beautiful and spacious northern veranda overlooking the harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McQuesten of "Questenmere" at the Neck, have returned from a few weeks' visit in Maine. Mrs. McQuesten's son, Chester Melville of Jamaica Plain, who has been visiting his mother, has returned to his city home.

MARBLEHEAD finds her days of middle August very full of events. The harbor is filled with pretty water craft which upon investigation show that they represent a great many different cities on the Atlantic coast. The Market Day, which because of inclement weather was postponed until Friday, the day following the scheduled date, was a tremendous success, a goodly sum being realized for the benefit of the Visiting Nurses' association. The ladies of Marblehead and the Neck who worked with untiring effort, were rewarded gloriously.

A charity bridge was given at the Rock-Mere hotel on Wednesday afternoon, the proceeds of which will be given to the Hospital for Crippled Children. It was a very successful affair and was under the direction of Mrs. Raymond O. Brackett of Gregory street, Marblehead.

Lieutenant S. K. Chen, a representative of the Chinese Navy, has been a guest at Glover Inn, coming to Marblehead for the purpose of negotiating with the aeroplane factory at Marblehead in the interests of his country.

One of the novel industries of the North Shore is the Lynn Cattery conducted by Mrs. Kate Sprague of 24 Estes street, Lynn. For more than 25 years Mrs. Sprague has devoted her time to the care and breeding of pedigreed Persians and her success has been little short of wonderful. The cats raised by Mrs. Sprague include scores of prize winners and noted animals which have gone to all parts of the world. To see the beautiful animals is worth a visit by anyone who loves the silky pets.

THE MEMORIAL FOUNTAIN, erected on the South Common in Ipswich, by Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton in memory of their son, James Appleton, was dedicated last Thursday afternoon. The impressive exercises were attended by members of the Appleton family, many of the summer residents, the board of selectmen and other officials, as well as a large number of townspeople. The fountain was unveiled by Charles L. and Francis R.
Appleton, Jr., brothers of James Appleton, and was presented to the town by Francis R. Appleton. Mr. Appleton referred to the fact that his son had spent all of his life in Ipswich, and was buried here, that he had dearly loved the place, and was devotedly attached to all that Ipswich signified, as all his fathers had been for many generations. In conclusion Mr. Appleton said that the fountain is to be accepted not only for what it is, a memorial fountain, but as an enduring symbol of the ties which bind, and have always bound, the members of the Appleton family to the town of Ipswich.

Dr. Frank W. Keyes, chairman of the board of selectmen, accepted the fountain on behalf of the Ipswich people.
Hon. Geo. A. Schofield of the town and the Rev. Roland Cotton-Smith of Washington, and one of the summer colony, made interesting addresses. Rev. Wm. G. Thayer of St. Mark's School, and also of the summer colony, pronounced the benediction.

The fountain is a handsome piece of work of Tennessee marble. It stands about twelve feet high. The tablet bears the following inscription:

"In memory of James Appleton, 1889-1915." Below this inscription there is a quotation, being the first verse of the poem entitled "Killed at the Ford," written by Longfellow. The wording is as follows:

"— the beautiful youth,
The heart of honor, the tongue of truth,

*He, the life and light of us all,
Whose voice was blithe as a bugle call,
Whom all eyes followed with one consent,
The cheer of whose laugh and whose pleasant word,
Hushed all murmurs of discontent."*

Beneath this tablet, a public drinking cup has been installed, and on the marble base, below this cup, appears the following lines, found on an old fountain at Shanklin, on the Isle of Wight:

*"Drink of this fountain,
Pure and sweet,
It flows for the rich and poor the same,
The cup of water
In His name."*

The memorial fountain has been placed in an appropriate location. Behind it is the cemetery in which James Appleton and other members of the Appleton family are buried. Still nearer to the fountain is the South Common the center of so much of the early life of Ipswich. In front of it is the South Congregational church, where the early members of the Appleton family worshipped. In front of it also is the cross roads, where the future stream of passing humanity may stop for a moment for a refreshing drink of water.

"Hello, old man, the last time I saw you was that day in a stock broker's office. In zinc, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"And what are you in now?"

"Bankruptcy."—Boston Transcript.

The White Fringed Orchis

M. A. WALTON (Hermit)

CAPE ANN is noted for its rugged, rock-bound coast, and for its wealth of rare and beautiful wild flowers. Magnolia swamp, which gave the name of Magnolia to the famous summer resort, is filled with wild plant life. There the beautiful White Fringed Orchis may be found in full bloom during the month of July. Modern botany has renamed this plant; it is now called "Habenaria blephariglottis" ("White Fringed Orchis").

Associated with this orchid is the little plant called "Drosera rotundifolia" ("Round Leaved Sundew"), made famous by Darwin's experiments in insectivorous plants.

Here, also, to the great surprise of the students in botany, is the northern station of Magnolia glauca.

How this southern shrub came so far north is yet a mystery. It is the only place in New England where it is found wild. The "Gloucester Hermit" claims that investigation, made by him, proves that the shrub was brought from Virginia over one hundred and twenty years ago.

Magnolia Swamp contains many seedling plants of the White Fringed Orchis, but the blooming fronds are somewhat rare. It is a beautiful pearly white when in bloom, and a hundred fronds arranged in a vase attracts more attention in the summer hotels than any other flowers, tame or wild.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—The season is now at its height here and everywhere tourists have taken up available accommodations. The Hawthorne Inn casino is the center of pleasure. The Wednesday and Saturday evening dances are always largely attended and on Sunday evenings, the orchestra assisted by vocal artists gives pleasing concerts. The casino contained a very large audience on last Friday evening when cottagers of the Eastern Point colony and Bass Rocks, besides the Inn guests, attended the concert given by Miss Melba L. Procter and George E. Stevens. Miss Procter gave a splendid exhibition of interpretive dancing and Mr. Stevens, baritone, sang groups of songs. Miss Laila Procter, pianist, and Miss Hannah Randall, violinist, assisted. The patronesses were Mrs. John Clay, Mrs. J. Murray Kay, Mrs. W. J. Little, Mrs. E. B. Chandler, Mrs. W. B. Olmstead, Mrs. A. S. Rowe, Mrs. John H. Procter and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard.

An interesting card party was held at the casino on Monday evening and the proceeds were given for a very worthy cause, to be divided among the bell boys to assist them in the expenses of their college courses. The prime mover of this affair, so much appreciated by the young men who serve the guests at the Inn, was Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Ridgely was chairman of the committee, assisted by Mrs. H. M. Denison, Mrs. C. C. Overton, Mrs. F. W. Crocker, Mrs. R. E. Hare, Mrs. A. L. Merriam, Mrs. E. M. Vickery, Mrs. J. Pyser, W. Scott O'Connor and C. A. Henriques.

On this Friday evening, at the Hawthorne Inn casino will be the production of Omar Khayyam with musical numbers and readings by Arthur Row of Sir Herbert Tree Company, who will impersonate Omar, and Grace Filkins, the actress. Many artists and young people will constitute the cast. The proceeds will be for the War Sufferers in Paris.

On next Friday evening a fine musicale will be held at the Inn casino, for the benefit of the Old Windmill Park fund of Gloucester. This site, to be purchased, is located where the Surfside hotel formerly stood. Proprietor Stacy of the Inn is one of the committee endeavoring to preserve the property, which is very sightly, for the benefit of the city as a recreation place on the water front. The artists to appear at the concert are Miss Lillia Snelling, mezzo soprano; Miss Margaret Whitaker, violinist; Herman Lohre, tenor; Miss Helen Whitaker, accompanist. Cards of admission ($1.00) may be obtained of Miss Charlotte Head Allen at Hawthorne Inn. The same program will be given as was presented recently at the home of Mrs. Marshall Fabyan at Beverly Farms for the French Wounded fund.

A pleasing entertainment will be given at the Hawthorne casino next Monday evening at 8.15 o'clock, when Miss Gladys Lott of Boston will give songs and sketches of child life. Miss Lott is a very clever artist. On Tuesday, August 22, at 3 o'clock, Miss Lott will appear in a children's program in the charming garden of Mrs. George W. Woodbury on Eastern Point road. Miss Caroline Price will preside at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Montgomery and daughter, Miss Margaret Montgomery, of New Orleans are guests at the Hawthorne Inn.

John Moffet, 3d, Yale '15, of Chicago, is a guest at the Hawthorne Inn.

Do You Know How To Arrange Flowers?

FULPER POTTERY MAKES IT EASY

A woman who can arrange flowers artistically is as much an artist as her friend who paints a picture.

In making flowers express their own loveliness, she expresses besides, her own individuality.

Such women, lovers of flowers, are always looking for the sort of vases and bowls that will help them produce new and charming effects.

And such vases and bowls are to be found in Fulper Pottery—bud vases, flower bowls, flower holders, bulb dishes, etc.

Fulper flower holders make artistic arrangement simple and easy, and make possible more charming effects than ever before.

Sometime you will say, "If I only had one more flower bowl!" Then why not come in today and see these beautiful pieces of Fulper Pottery. Come today!

BASS ROCKS.—The dress ball at the Bass Rocks Golf clubhouse on last Saturday evening was an attractive affair and was largely attended, friends of members being present from Magnolia and Manchester. Hoppe's famous orchestra of Boston, furnished the music. This Friday evening a musicale will be held at the clubhouse, in aid of the Permanent Blind War Relief Fund of the Allies, Mrs. John Clay of Eastern Point taking a leading active interest in the entertainment. Wilford Russel of London, will give an interesting and unique program.

Last Monday afternoon, Miss Emily McGuckin of New York and the cottage colony of Bass Rocks entertained a party of thirty at tea at the Bass Rocks club.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Frank Dana of the Hawthorne Inn, gave a large tea party to 35 people at the Bass Rocks club.

In the latest handicap match competition, Aug. 9 to 12, at the Bass Rocks golf links the handsome silver cup offered as a prize to the winner, was captured by Lewis E. Williams of the Moorland. Owing to the unpleasant weather, but three people qualified, Mr. Averill and Fred Holdsworth being the other two.

Among the attractive and popular ladies who are golf enthusiasts at the Bass Rocks club, are Mrs. Raymond S. Farr, Miss Lichenheim and Miss Elizabeth Humble. Mrs. Farr is a daughter of Waterman A. Taft, who has a fine residence at Eastern Point. Miss Lichenheim is a guest at the Hawthorne Inn and she is one of the players making the best scores at the club this season. Miss Humble is a fair Southerner and a member of the younger set. She is a daughter of W. T. Humble of Fort Worth, Texas, the family being annual guests at the Hotel Thorwald.

A ladies double tournament, open to members, will be held at the Bass Rocks tennis courts, beginning August 23 at 9.30 o'clock and continuing mornings till finished. Partners will be assigned by lots. Prizes to winners and runners-up. The committee to whom entries can be made comprises Mrs. E. B. Sargent, Miss Eleanora Carl, Ralph Pope and Laurence Brown.

An event of interest on Tuesday evening of last week was the presentation of "The Gypsy Trail," at the Moorland casino, for the benefit of the Addison Gilbert Hospital. The production of Kipling's, "The Gypsy Trail" was staged by Mrs. Edward D. Parsons, the dances were arranged by Miss M. R. Waterman of New York and the accompanist was Miss Dorothy Spencer. Children of Bass Rocks, from the cottages and the hotels, presented a most creditable production under the efficient training of Mrs. Parsons and Miss Waterman. The cast of characters included Susanne McFeeley, who was "Queen Zelaya," Queen of the Gypsies; Kate Gray as "Urania," a gypsy girl; Elizabeth Small as "Granny," the oldest gypsy of them all; Elinor Condit and Robert Gray as "Melia" and "Rudolph," the wicked gypsies with hearts of stone; William Macomber as "Roberto," a gypsy boy; Kennedy Ludlum, "Batiste," a gypsy boy; Jane Small as "Regina," sister to Batiste; Molly Cromwell as "Carlotta," mother of Batiste and Regina; Temple Gwanthney, "Fedello," a gypsy boy; John Turner, "Adonis," the mischievous gypsy; Frances Eaton, Alma Eaton, Caroline Walker and Ruth Walker as gypsy girls—"Luella," "Metra," "Viola" and "Sadella"; Dorothy Bosler as "Mlle. Felice," a French maid; Anne Small, the baby who was lost; Mrs. E. D. Parsons, the mother who lost her baby, and Daniel Long as "Mr. Hawkins," the peddler who found the baby. The incidental music included "The Gypsy Trail" by Tod B. Gollaway; "Dance of the Patteran" by Anna Skinner; "Underneath the Stars" by Herbert Spencer and "Sphinx Waltz" by Francis Pope.

On Tuesday evening, August 22, a program of exceptional merit will be given in the Moorland casino by Wilford Russel of England. The proceeds will be a continuance of the Permanent Blind War Relief Fund of the Allies.

The Winthrop P. Buttricks of Winchester have arrived at the old farmhouse cottage near the Bass Rocks golf clubhouse for the remainder of August and September. Mrs. Buttrick was Miss Catherine Souther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Souther of Bass Rocks.

FOR its summer entertainment this season, the Gloucester Smith College club has selected Miss Gladys Lott, who will present her unusual and interesting program of "Songs and Sketches of Child Life" at the Hawthorne Inn casino on Monday evening, August 21, and on the following afternoon at 3 o'clock will give a children's hour in Mrs. George Woodbury's garden at East Gloucester. Admission will be fifty cents and the proceeds of both performances will be added to the club's fund, which for several years has been used for loans to carefully selected graduates of the Gloucester high school. The club has previously presented many artists, since widely known,—among them Elvira Leveroni, the opera singer, and Lilla Ormond and Helen Reynolds, prominent in concert work.

ROCKPORT.—Congressman Ernest W. Roberts spent last week-end at his summer estate at Land's End, Rockport, joining his family there. The congressman was obliged to leave on Monday as he has important Congressional business to call him back to Washington. It was regretted that he would be unable to attend the Sandy Bay Breakwater inspection and hearing this week.

Mrs. Virginia Yeaman Remnitz, a writer of short stories and contributor to Harper's, The Century, Atlantic Monthly and other publications is giving a series of four literary talks on Tuesdays at Straitsmouth Inn. Two of the series have already been given, "Poets and Playwrights of Today" and "The Irish Literary Movement." Mrs. Remnitz comes from an old Kentucky family, her father, Hon. George H. Yeaman, was Ambassador from this country to Denmark at the time of her birth which occurred in Copenhagen. She has lived in New York since a small girl and was educated there.

Mrs. T. L. Knott and Miss Lilian M. Knott are the guests of Miss Laura A. Knott. The latter is Principal of Bradford Academy and several years ago she purchased the Judge Johnson cottage on Norwood avenue, Rockport, for a summer home.

PIGEON COVE.—This attractive section of Cape Ann is now awake with the full life of the summer season, and the hotels and smaller guest houses are in the full swing of an unusually prosperous season.

Hotel Edward, the leading hostelry of the Rockport shore, was filled to the last available room last Saturday and Sunday. Among the prominent guests at dinner on Sunday last was the famous violin virtuoso, Mischa Elman, who is summering at Rockport, and a party of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Buckman, Mr. A. Phillips and the Misses Phillips, all of New York City, have taken apartments at Hotel Edward for the balance of the season. General and Mrs. Pickle and Miss Pickle of Knoxville, Tenn., have registered for the remainder of the season.

The arrivals at The Edward for the week are: Andrew S. White, Fayettesville, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. O'Brien, Corning, N. Y.; Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Thomas, Painted Post, N. Y.; Mrs. Baird, Miss Bramer, A. E. Smith, and Miss Hinman, Lansing, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rankin, D. W. Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whitney, Mrs. George Stone, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. M. Hellman, Mrs. R. Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Hawkins, Mrs. E. B. Cragin, Misses M. Cragin and A. Cragin, Bradford Cragin, and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Grant, New York City; George Nyere, Aberdeen, Wash.; Esther Forsythe, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kelley and child, Fitchburg; Rev. and Mrs. J. M. McCaffey, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. William H. Earle, Sally S. J.; Parker Hill, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Messich, Sara, Ellen, John and Lester Messich, Hamilton, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Palmer, Fall River.

The Glen Acre arrivals during the past week were: Mrs. George B. Wood, Ruth Barnes Wood, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holliday, Syracuse, N. Y.; Mrs. Webb, R. Montague Webb, Kansas City; Mrs. H. B. Baker, Mrs. Sarah Glover, Miss Charlotte Glover, Boston.

Arrivals during the week at the Clifford House were: Mrs. J. E. Warren, Mabel G. Warren, Mrs. Clarence Brigham, Marlboro; A. L. Meigs, Boston; Mrs. Helen A. B. Morse, Worcester; Mrs. A. J. Chase, Lowell.

TURNING in along the little street leading to Hotel Edward recently, I came upon a youngish man in approved summer attire, wilting against a dooryard fence. When I inquired if his was a case of "first aid to the injured," he fixed me with a vacant eye and opened the palm of his right hand wherein a "buffalo" nickle floated in a pool of cold sweat.

"Was fifty, is five," he murmured sadly. "Cup-o'

tea at the 'Edward,' he added in a whisper. "Thirty-five cents for the tea and ten cents for the pretty girl that served it. And it's two fares into Gloucester," he groaned, "and allowance day two weeks away." And off the miserable one set on his first lap to the East Gloucester summer colony. "Five cents for the tea, and thirty cents for the 'Hotel Edward,'" I chortled as the Summer Boy feebly waggled his hand to me from the corner.

But it was worth the price, every cent of it, for I had a cup myself, yea three of them, a half hour later with the genial proprietor.

The tea was wonderful, of course—purest Ceylon with gold lights a-float at the bottom of the cup. The table appointments were without reproach, immaculate, delicate and in perfect taste; a blue-eyed beauty from the student ranks of the Salem Normal served us with deft and faultless touch, while between the artfully screened in loggia, where we sipped our tea and ate of boiled lobster, I looked out on a smiling, azure sea where snowy sails turned rose in the afterglow of sunset, and from within doors there drifted out in the quiet air the tender strains of a 'cello with piano accompaniment.

And delightful it was, chatting with mine host, hearing of the evolution at his hands of this hotel from a quaint very old New England ho-restead into a de luxe suburban hostelry, where every conceivable comfort for the guests crossing its threshold is considered. Before us rolled an emerald greensward, reclaimed from scraggle of bush and briar, and below I saw the top of a huge derrick where stone is being excavated at the water's edge to form a swimming pool. And following the sweep of his hand, I saw, too, where one day, with the co-operation of others interested he hopes to see a cement esplanade along the picturesque stretch of cliff to the left, skirting to a considerable distance this lovely shore.

But of all the talk over the teacups, I believe the thing I enjoyed most was the glimpse I had of the utterly kindly personality opposite me. Looking out at one time upon the velvet turf we saw a single robin hopping about.

"One of my little friends," remarked my host, whistling a few notes of greeting. "He's too busy getting his supper now to notice me," he added as his robin hopped on about his labors. "But at night he comes to a branch just outside my window and we have a great time chatting together. It seems an odd thing to say," added the "Edward's" proprietor with the shyness of a boy, "but I somehow feel that we each know what the other is talking about."

As I dropped a word of sympathetic understanding he went on with a gentle smile:

"I had that basin hewn out of the rock on the lawn yonder, and in it is turned fresh water every day,—so that the birds hereabouts are sure of a bath and a good drink whenever they want them," he added with a quiet chuckle.

A wonderful moon of palest pearl floated out of the rosy mist at the blue rim of the far horizon, as at length I arose to leave this host of the big, big, heart.

"Hands that are mindful of the birds of the air," I thought as I descended to the drive below, "are pretty good hands in which to entrust oneself for the summer!"

WHEN THE BOSTON & MAINE reorganization plan is completed, when the New Haven resumes its payments of dividends and when the Federal Board succeeds in conciliating the present labor difficulties, the railroad directors will breathe easier. The railroads have not been enjoying prosperity and ease the last few years. It is a long road that has no turning and eventually America will awaken to the fact that whatever cripples the prosperity and efficiency of the railroads of the nation strikes at the most vital spot in our economic development. The position of responsibility which the employers enjoy because of the importance of their work, ought to teach them that caution and fair play are worthy principles to govern their activities.

we stand before the tombs of General John Glover and Captain William Blackler here in Marblehead's old graveyard. History has told us of the battle of Trenton on the night of Dec. 25, 1776, and pen and brush have made our eyes familiar with Washington's hazardous crossing of the ice-filled Delaware, but here before the tomb of Captain Blackler, who commanded the boat which bore Washington safely to the Jersey side, the historic incident becomes real and we remember that it was the "amphibious regiment of Marblehead fishermen," skilled and experienced in battling with the elements, that made that perilous crossing possible.

Before the tomb of General Glover memory reviews what history has taught us of that bitterly fought, successfully closed struggle for freedom. Hero of many an engagement, witness of many a gallant deed, beloved by his men and a patriot through and through was General Glover. He was as tender, too, as he was brave and although he was a member of the court that sentenced to death the unfortunate Major André, we are told that his heart went out in sympathy and admiration to the brave young officer who was Arnold's cat's-paw.

Old Burial Hill furnishes many an object lesson in history. Dates and deeds that make but little impression in reading or study here take concrete form and meaning, because here before our eyes is the visible proof and the invisible dust of men who have made history.

Here is a hero of the memorable conflict between the Constitution and the Guerriere on the 19th of August, 1812. Only a small, slate slab, half buried in the springy turf, marks his resting place but the inscription will make real that incident which has before been merely historical. It reads:

In Memory of James Dennis Hammond

*He was one of the Heroes of the frigate Constitution and having been wounded in the capture of the Java he received a pension from his grateful country until his decease which happened
Oct. 24, 1840 at the age of 54 years 10 mos. & 14 days.*

Immortal honor to all those

*Who bled in Freedom's naval fights
And vanquished all their country's foes
To gain free trade and sailor's rights.*

And so on, down to the nearer days of the war of 1861, the silent grass-hidden stones point the lessons in history and more and more we realize how immeasurably beyond its size was Marblehead's service to country. And while we are considering its part in the struggle for the freedom of the black, you must see the little grave-stone, hardly two feet square, that tells of the days of slavery in Marblehead. It is all by itself in a tiny clearing and marks the grave of

Agnes negro woman servant to Samuel Russell who died in 1718 at the age of 45

Undoubtedly, she never dreamed of freedom. The agitation of the abolitionist began long after she had passed away, but could she have known that her grave was to be dignified by a stone such as only the well-to-do might have in those days, it is safe to guess that she would have bartered her freedom for such an honor. Probably nowhere else where slaves were owned will you find their faithfulness so rewarded.

Before you descend to the valley-like road that slips between Old Burial Hill and Fountain Park go into the little pavilion that crowns this rocky God's acre and that affords one of the widest and most glorious views along the coast of Massachusetts. To the left Peach's Point stretches a long green finger oceanward; beyond, the Beverly shore, in fringing curves, winds its green, glorious way along the blue sea's edge to far Cape Ann; in front, the islands, Brown's and Priest's in the foreground, the Miseries, Baker's with its twin white towers and Lowell with its group of buildings, floating nearer the horizon; to the right, old Fort Sewall, the craft-crowded harbor and the long arm of Marblehead Neck interposing a strong barrier between the haven and the ever-besieging sea. Then turn to the right and look off across the causeway that makes Marblehead Neck a peninsular, and that blur on the distant horizon is the South Shore. Complete the circle and you have a glimpse of Salem Harbor and an excellent view of the really wonderful progress made in the City of Peace since the devastating fire destroyed a third of its area.

If Old Burial Hill has served to convey to you an adequate idea of Marblehead you will understand and reverence this odd, little town whose glory has departed and whose business today has become for the most part entertainment of its summer colonies. But while the old hill marks the end of the legends, the old town abounds in living monuments of the past of Marblehead and the men who made it glorious.

EDITORIAL

IT IS A PLEASURE to know that the Gloucester Times, our thriving little daily paper neighbor, is so heartily in accord with us in prophesying that the historic old fishing town on Cape Ann will soon become one of the leading vacation spots of America. For years the Cape Ann section of the North Shore has been growing steadily in favor as a summering place. Perhaps it has not kept pace with more favored spots on the North Shore, but its backwardness in this respect, although noticeable only in the slightest degree, has not been due to any lack of natural attractions of scenery, healthfulness or tradition. In fact, as the BREEZE is pointing out in a series of articles at the present time, Cape Ann is a most desirable resort section. Perhaps the real reason why Gloucester and vicinity have not kept pace with more fortunate sections of the North Shore had best not be hinted.

The Times says editorially, "Gloucester is coming into its own: Magnolia, Fresh Water Cove, West Gloucester, East Gloucester, Bass Rocks, Brier Neck, Starknought Heights, Lanesville, Rockholm, Annisquam, Wheeler's Point, Riverview, Thurston's Point, Wolf Hill, the islands in the river and Wingaersheek Beach and Willoughby Park and Cole's Island, beyond, they will all be developed into beautiful and health-giving homes for the rich summer guest as well as for those of moderate means. Not one, but many diamonds has Gloucester in the circlet that encircles her brow. And when Gloucester comes into its own and becomes as she surely will the vacation ground for the whole country, she will not be at all jealous because any near neighbor of hers develops a reputation by reason of the excellence of its country club" (at Manchester).

We trust that when Gloucester comes into her own she will then have no reason to be jealous of her neighbors.

THE RECURRENCE OF THE WARM WEATHER and the oppression it causes naturally turns the minds of dwellers along the sea shore, who have the advantages of living away from the heat of the city, to the unfortunate children who are detained in the hot city. The suffering endured by these young folk is incalculable. While the heart is stirred to help these youngsters, the possibilities of doing the work satisfactorily as individuals are not satisfying, but these are accredited institutions doing this sort of social service work efficiently and sympathetic folk will be much more satisfied with the results accomplished by making direct contributions to these agencies. This is the scientific and efficient way of helping the largest number satisfactorily and economically. The good that is being done by these various fresh air enterprises cannot be estimated. They all need funds to extend their work.

THE DOWNWARD MOVEMENT in the price of gasoline has begun and when the pleasure season is about over one may expect it to drop still more. This is the irony of fate.

THE "SKEETERS" must go. The death knell has sounded.

The layman does not begin to appreciate the embarrassment caused newspapers and periodicals by the high prices of paper and supplies necessary in an up-to-date printing establishment. The United States bureau of agriculture has been making experiments with cotton stalks, corn products, broom corn and rice products. It has been known for a long while that such materials could be used advantageously for the manufacture of paper. The supreme economy, however, of wood pulp methods of making paper, has made the newer plans undesirable economically. The famine of paper for newspaper work has continued unabated and there are no prospects of any relief and the newspapers, forced in many cases to limit the supply of papers and to cut down their issues, have been quick to consider substitutes. The present prices will make it economically advantageous to manufacture paper from the products of corn, rice and cotton. It is now known that such paper can be made. All that is needed now is to make a practical industry of it and put the paper upon the market. Every man in the country is interested in the experiments and the future ought to reveal some very interesting scientific, as well as economic, developments in the trade paper industry.

SOME MONTHS HAVE NOW PASSED since the Colorado Industrial plan, suggested and carried out by John D. Rockefeller, was put into operation. He gave the labor question there his personal attention and by careful examination and humane instincts succeeded in clearing up a very serious misunderstanding that had arisen among the men. The plan has now been in operation for some months and has demonstrated its efficiency. Its success has been evident in the new spirit of goodwill which has existed among the employees. The time must come when all workmen must learn for the mutual benefit of all concerned to consider their work as part of a great whole, and when each man faithfully and loyally does his part, the whole corporation benefits. Unless there is a mutual co-operation existent with capital, along humane and equitable lines, there cannot be progress or profit. It is a noteworthy victory for the cause of justice and Mr. Rockefeller is to be complimented for his insight and the workmen praised for their good sense and spirit of co-operation.

THE TROUBLES of the Boston & Maine railroad do not seem to end. For several years the stockholders have passed through one crisis only to face another. With unusually promising balances it would appear that the present difficulty should be met in some way. Shrewd owners of the stock are holding on to await developments. From all outward appearances the real crises have passed and the future of the railroad and its interests for the next decade should be better than the last.

THE NEWSPAPERS of a southern city have agreed to reduce the size of their daily issues to offset the increased expense of paper. The necessity may impel a more careful scrutiny of the material printed. More than one paper would be the gainer by such a change in policy.

CANDIDATE HUGHES has begun his campaign with a demand for a revival of Americanism. This slogan is at once timely and popular. The large number of immigrants that have come with their varied ideals and interests have introduced customs and ideas other than those to which America has been accustomed. America has faced the serious problem of assimilating them satisfactorily, retaining the best that the old world can furnish and inspiring the newer citizens with the ideals of the new life in America. The war in Europe with its consequent discussions and race feelings in America, has made it evident to the most careless observer that American ideals must be asserted and that the animosities of the old world should die. America is the land where animosities die. So the cry has gone out, "America first." Such a slogan must be shallow if it refers to loyalty in arms alone. It must go deeper; it must refer not to the petty gains, made by mutual trading; it must seek the deeper things which make manhood and develop the stamina of the nation. American ideas, ideals, sense of righteousness, and principles of democracy must be forever in the fore. In seizing these principles Hughes is showing himself a keen observer of the times and a real prophet of the future. America must assert the principles for which the nation came into being or perish. On this continent was brought forth the new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the newer principles of social equality, opportunity and worth.

THE FLURRY THAT AROSE over Mexico aroused the administration to the serious question of finding mounts for the cavalry and draught horses for the other branches of the service. The war in Europe has made heavy demands upon the supply of horses in America and the nation is the poorer for the transportation of so many mounts for European use. Steps have not been taken any too early to conserve our resources and to provide suitable horses for our own military needs. One of the lesser calamities of the war has been the destruction of so many valuable animals. America was "penny wise and pound foolish" in not taking steps earlier to preserve the American horses.

THE PASSAGE OF THE CHILD LABOR bill, with only twelve dissenting votes registered against it in the Senate, shows at a glance that the United States is determined to give the children an opportunity. The bill will prohibit the product of any mine or quarry, in which children under sixteen years of age have been employed, as an article of interstate commerce. It will also exclude the products of all mills, canneries, factories and workshops in which children have been employed who are younger than fourteen, or where children between fourteen and sixteen have been employed for more than eight hours per day, before six o'clock in the morning and after seven o'clock at night. This will work justice for the factories and mines in states having strict child labor laws.

THE PLATTSBURG IDEA was given a thorough try-out last year and it turned out much more successful than its most sanguine promoters anticipated. This year the impetus given to it by the call of the military forces of the states of the Union to the colors in June has made the camp even more successful and popular. On August 15 the Naval Cruise planned along similar lines, but for the benefit of the Navy, will begin. This idea will be given a thorough trial this year and there is every reason to believe that it will prove as valuable an ally to the Navy as the Plattsburg experiment has proven for the Army.

THE NEWS OF THE VICTORY at Gorizia was very cheering to the Italian forces because it starts the wedge which the Italians have been seeking to thrust into the Austrian lines. This victory can only be interpreted as part of the general offensive movement planned by the Allies and which has been in operation now for nearly a month. With the English offensive pressing in along the Somme, the French holding the Verdun district with tenacity, and the Russians pressing forward with recurring victories, it would appear that the Central powers were severely harrassed, if not on the way to defeat. From the outside evidences it would almost appear that the German forces have spent their power. Even the offensive which the Germans assumed at Verdun has been constantly turned by the attacks by the French. However, many are now trying to play the role of prophet to determine the future. Wild and mild guesses are being made now as to the probable length of the war,—and there is but one answer,—no one knows, and no one can tell.

THE NORTH SHORE has never lost its interest in its humane work for the sufferers from the present war, but no cause has been more popular than the work for the wounded soldiers in France. Those who were fortunate enough to view the cinematograph pictures Sunday will never forget the impressions made by the film loaned by the French Government and skilfully presented by Alexander Powell, who is spending his summer in Manchester. This cause is appealing to and deserves the support which is being given by the residents of the North Shore.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE have made small fortunes out of the munitions industries, but there have been equally large fortunes made in the sale of foodstuffs. The demands of the armies for staple articles, such as wheat, corn and beans have been so great, that prices have been inflated and farmers and merchants have enjoyed an unusual degree of prosperity. But the high prices have resulted in hardships which have been borne by the purchasing public in America. America is paying a heavy price for the foreign war.

THE COMING YEAR is to be an interesting one in the annals of the higher institutions of learning in and near Boston and in New England. The Harvard Divinity School is to celebrate its anniversary by raising a much needed endowment fund. The Business department of Boston University is to find a new home in one of the Technology group of buildings. Technology will begin its year of academic work in the new buildings beyond the Charles, and the trustees are to inaugurate a new president at Dartmouth.

ONE OF THE PROMINENT political parties is to try the moving picture method of obtaining publicity for its candidates and already arrangements have been made with a string of theatres to present the thrillers devised. This will be a new epoch maker in the industry and if the films are carefully executed there is every reason to believe that they will surpass the spellbinders' and the political pamphleteers' methods.

THE BATTLE OF VERDUN will mark the high water mark of the Teuton offensive, while the Battle of Skagerrack will be the sea battle that tested Britain's strength and drove the German fleet back to safety. However destructive the fleet of Germany may have been, the fact remains that Great Britain commands the sea and the fleet turned back the German fleet effectively.

*Fashion and Household Suggestions*FOR THE COLONEL'S
LADY*Winter Furs in Summer*

BY far the best season of the year for fur buying is just now when the smart shops have new models, full stocks and low prices. The fine furriers are now exhibiting their choicest things and many clever shoppers are purchasing now in order to have some summer wear from the furs before the winter season comes.

Among the most popular furs for the coming season will be fox, taupe, white and pointed, squirrel, seal, beaver, mink and kolinsky. Combinations of furs will be much worn and the effects are unusually good. Small muffs and long scarfs will continue in vogue and fur cuffs and collars are even deeper and higher than last season. Fur coats are cut on the most graceful lines imaginable and are beautifully lined with gorgeous silks. The short plain waist with long, gathered skirt is popular for the coats of soft fur.

Wide, beaver bands make favorite trimmings. One particularly smart coat of seal had the typical short waist and full skirt of the season and a collar of beaver, very high at the back and finished in long points in front, points which could be brought up high about the throat and crossed in stormy or cold weather. This coat had cuffs and a wide band of beaver about the bottom. Just, above the knees, too, was a band of the beaver which could have been taken off if the owner wished. A coat entirely of seal comes in much the same pattern. Seal is also used with kolinsky to make beautiful coats. Kolinsky is, in fact, to be one of the most popular trimming furs of the season and is found on all garments as well as in muffs and collars.

There is to be a revival of squirrel for fur pieces and for coats. The latter are particularly noticeable for beauty and smartness, and come with or without contrasting trimming. Chic little muffs are seen with wrist ruffles and silk lining of brilliant colors.

Mink, too, is being shown quite a bit this year and makes up especially well in the coats of the season. The skins adapt themselves well for self trimming and one fashionable coat of mink had an effective border of the same.

Fox furs have lost no popularity in the passing of a season. Taupe, gray and blue fox are still made up in the smartest of fur sets and the white fox is attractively used with other furs and with broadcloth or satin wraps. Quite the most beautiful evening wrap among the early fall exhibitions is of black satin brocaded with gold baskets filled with vivid roses. The lining is of gold, soft silk veiled with rose chiffon and a huge collar of white fox serves well its purpose of making the wrap the loveliest to be found.

and even doughnuts are coming into their own again. Judy has collected a few old-fashioned recipes which are given below:

Old Colony Sugar Doughnuts—2 eggs, 1½ cups sugar, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 teaspoons cream of tartar, 1 teaspoonful soda, ½ teaspoonful salt, ½ teaspoonful nutmeg. Sufficient flour to make dough easy to handle, but not too stiff. Roll out to thickness of about half an inch. Fry in smoking hot fat and roll in sugar if desired. This is an old Maine recipe, very delicious.

The following rule for Mollasses Doughnuts is Southern and quite upholds the reputation of the Southland for delicious cooking:

1 cup molasses, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoonful cinnamon, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoonful soda. Flour to make dough easy to handle. Fry in hot fat.

Grandmother's Baked Indian Pudding has been the great attraction of many a Sunday dinner—in the eyes of the children at least. She made it this way: Bring 1 pint milk to the boiling point, and stir in gradually 1 cupful Indian meal. Cool a little, then add 3 well beaten eggs, 2 cups cold milk, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup molasses, 1 teaspoonful ginger, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon and a pinch of salt. Bake 1½ hours. Serve with whipped cream or hard sauce.

AFTER a long period of dining on frothy, Frenchy dishes, the American public is beginning to demand the homely, wholesome cookery of grandmother's day, just as it is beginning to search for pieces of plain, substantial furniture of the early period. family dinner is Cottage Pudding, which has the advantage of being inexpensive. The ingredients are: $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, 2 eggs, $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoonful cream of tartar, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful soda, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 2 cups flour. This is the method: Cream the butter and sugar and add the eggs, milk and flavoring. Sift the cream of tartar and soda with the flour and stir in gradually. Bake in a quick oven.

The following sauce is easy to make and as simple and inexpensive as cottage pudding itself. Make a batter of $\frac{1}{4}$ cup flour and enough cold water to make smooth. Add boiling water until the batter clears and is about the consistency of boiled starch. Cook a few moments, then add 1 cup sugar, 1 beaten egg, 1-3 cup butter. Boil together for a few moments, remove from the fire and add 1 teaspoonful vanilla.

In the old days much of the cooking was accomplished by steam, oven space being at a premium on baking days. Those who are familiar with the delicacy of the steamed food of our grandmothers' day would be very loathe to relinquish this method of cooking.

Steamed Bread Pudding has for many years been a standard dessert in New England families. Mix the following ingredients in the order given: 3 fresh eggs, 2 cups milk, 1 cup sugar, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups bread crumbs, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup raisins, a little salt and nutmeg. Steam gently 15 minutes in bowl. Serve piping hot or ice cold.

INTERESTING plans are being made for the second annual exhibit of Manchester "beach" children's handiwork and field day sports to be held on the Common the last week of August. The work was started last year by the Manchester Woman's club when they provided an instructor for the children at Singing Beach. The same instructor, Miss Jean Dallett of Philadelphia, has carried on the work for the past two months. Miss Dallett is a graduate of the Sargent school in Boston of the class of 1915. A day's program on the beach includes games which open at ten in the morning. After an hour of lively exercise the little ones settle down in the cool pavilion and do embroidery work, sewing cards, etc. Miss Dallett has the noon hour to herself and usually carries her luncheon to the beach. The children come back after their luncheon, many more coming as a rule in the afternoon, and games are again enjoyed until two, when they have their swim. From 2.30 to 3.30 occupational work is again in order. This is followed by folk dancing and games until 4.45. Rather a full day! Anyone can see that it pays if a visit to the beach is made and the interested children grouped around Miss Dallett are watched. Much of the occupational work consists of embroidery, sewing cards, paper folding, knitting, the construction of kites, bird houses, dressing dolls, and making shell pictures. The last is original with Miss Dallett, who tries to adapt all of the work to a sea-shore environment. The children gather tiny bits of shells and paste them on cards in figure construction.

The suggestion in the BREEZE regarding the need of additional bath houses at Singing Beach to accommodate the ever-increasing number of bathers in summer invited the criticism of a member of the Park Board of Manchester. There has long existed an issue between the board and others regarding the free use of the Manchester town bath houses by non-residents. The board contends, and it has taken legal counsel in the matter, that it is entitled to charge all non-resident bathers, who use the town bath houses, a small fee. On the other hand, the town has received other legal advice to the effect that it has no authority to make any such discrimination. The question has frequently been raised in town meetings, but never settled beyond the present stage of discussion. However, the fact still remains that more bath houses are needed to accommodate the crowds who daily flock to Singing Beach to enjoy the bathing.

The Town wharf in Manchester has been put to many uses. It has seen the unloading of fish in the old days, when Manchester men went down the "Banks"; it has seen the loading for shipment of the famous Manchester-made furniture in days gone by, and in more recent times has witnessed the coming and going of wonderful pleasure craft, but the past week the climax was reached when it was used for loading material for a hangar to be erected at Mystery Island for the housing of an aeroplane. The flying machine will be used by a unit of the Massachusetts Naval Militia.

"No One on the Line"

When you answered your telephone did the operator say, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it"?

She was right—there was no one at that moment; but, unless she accidentally rang by mistake, there had been someone who asked for your number and at whose request the operator rang your bell.

The reason there was no one there may be any one of the following:

Perhaps you were up-stairs and you could not run down-stairs to the telephone quickly enough; or you thought some other member of the family might respond to the ringing bell; or you waited a few moments before you started to go to the telephone, or were delayed in so doing.

The result was that the person who called was unwilling to wait for you to respond and hung up the receiver; it may have been with the belief that you were inaccessible, or it may have been impatiently.

There is another possibility: The person who asked for your number may have been in error and have given the wrong number; then discovering the mistake, have hung up the receiver and proceeded to call the right number.

There is also the possibility of occasional human error, where an operator has misunderstood the number given or has made a mistake in her switchboard work.

The greatest satisfaction in the use of the telephone comes from clear enunciation in giving numbers and in speaking, and in a prompt response when called.

WITH all the allurements of a great big county fair and a miniature Olympic rolled into one, and then a few more attractions added for good measure, the sixth annual Sam-Sam or Good Time day of the United Shoe Machinery Athletic association, to be given Saturday afternoon and evening on the acres of playfields of the association at McKay street, Beverly, promises to be a magnet strong enough to draw hundreds from all over this section of the county. Folks who go on Saturday will have the opportunity to see one of the latest type hydroplanes, to catch the thrill of a balloon exhibit and to watch some of the startling stunts performed by the daredevil performers in the great free exhibits on the midway. A specially constructed dancing pavilion will appeal to those who delight in the dance.

To accommodate those who come from out of town a special trolley and motor bus service has been arranged with every minute service from the Central car office in Beverly. Fireworks experts will set up the display for the night exhibition, and some wonderful effects in pyrotechnics are promised for the night.

AT the Myopia Hunt club on Monday, September 4, will be held the twenty-second horse show and gymkhana, with the usual ten classes on the card. The events will take place on the practice polo field, and the committee in charge is as follows: James W. Appleton, M. F. H.; Leonard D. Ahl, Frederick J. Alley, T. G. Frothingham, Q. A. Shaw McKean and Gordon C. Prince. The program of the gymkhana events has not been completed. For them there will be post entries and no entrance fee, with copper cups going to the winners. Entries for the regular events of the horse show will close on August 28. Four ribbons will be awarded in each class.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL, MAGNOLIA.—

The Thursday evening hop at the Oceanside, Magnolia, was very pretty and well attended by the hotel guests as well as a great many of the cottagers, who came in for the dancing. The music was exceptionally tuneful and thrilling. A number of the young people danced during the first numbers. Particularly noted was dainty Miss Phylis Hull, who swayed through the rhythm of the one-step with her father, A. J. Hull. Miss Phylis dances very gracefully and prettily, and was very lovely in a frock of white mousseline with pink satin sash and pink butterfly hair bow on her pretty, dark curls.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE LETTER

THE recent statement by Premier Asquith of England, in connection with the postponement of franchise reform, that any new franchise bill "must of necessity include the women," is one of the most significant things in the whole history of the Woman Movement. Mr. Asquith was the great enemy of woman suffrage in England until the great war broke out. Now he has thus, in word and act, admitted that the women are as important to Great Britain as her soldiers are. The woman's cause is practically won in England and in Canada also.

And in our own peaceful country the women have just had another great victory in that the Republican nominee for President, Mr. Hughes, has publicly declared himself in favor, not only of equal suffrage, but of a federal—or national—amendment to that end. No honest person questions the honesty of Mr. Hughes, and his many admirers among anti-suffragists are in an amusing quandary. They had joined the Women's League for Hughes before he thus came out! There is only one consistent and sensible thing left for them to do,—to follow their leader! The great meeting of women in New York which Mr. Hughes addressed, was presided over by Miss Alice Carpenter, who is well remembered in this region and who is now president of the Women's Roosevelt League for Hughes.

Whether Mr. Hughes or Mr. Wilson is elected this autumn, the suffragists will be equally able to rejoice and to go forward. In this connection Massachusetts suffragists are reminded to get ready for the Bay State Festival and Bazaar, to be held at the Copley-Plaza hotel, Boston, on Nov. 14 and 15. Also not to forget the national convention at Atlantic City on Sept. 6 to 10. Among the prominent persons who will be speakers at the convention are Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the Federal Child Welfare Bureau; Secretary of War Baker, and many others.

The Suffrage Committee for Patriotic Service has sent a quantity of magazines to the Massachusetts troops at the border, besides raising a good sum of money for the Volunteer Aid relief fund.

Another sweet child, who dances well, is little Margaret Brainard. Margaret is a lovable girl, bubbling full of life. She danced on Thursday evening with her daddy and sister, appearing very dainty in a frock of white embroidered batiste and pink ribbons.

Noted among the dancers on Thursday evening was Miss Dorothy Dunn, who was very charming in a dancing frock of sky-blue chiffon satin with rosebud festoons.

On Thursday evening Miss Doris Bryan was very attractive in a dancing frock of Nile green taffeta with self cordings in charming simplicity. The only other touches of color were given by rose garlands upon the shoulders.

Mrs. Ransom George was very stunning on Thursday evening in an exquisite gown of emerald green taffeta embroidered in silver with flounces of black lace.

WON CLOSE GAME

MANCHESTER DEFEATED GENERAL ELECTRIC NINE BY SCORE OF 3 TO 2.

A clean drive across the brook in center field gave O'Leary a home run,

"Sandy" Herron
Manchester's Star Short-stop

netted Manchester two runs and defeated the General Electrics of Lynn in the first inning of last Saturday's game in Manchester. A tally apiece later made the final score 3 to 2. Speedy fielding and good pitching kept the hitting and scoring down, but Manchester's superiority was demonstrated in better fielding and hitting. Grover struck out 10 of the electric men.

Strong, first up for Lynn, drove the ball into the brook. Under the ground rules he was allowed three bases. Corcoran walked to first. Flaherty bunted and Strong went home when Devlin muffed the ball.

Corcoran was out attempting to steal second. Flaherty was out at second when Cody fielded O'Donnell's hit. Agnew popped out to Collins.

For Manchester, Gourley secured a base on balls and then O'Leary drove the ball a good 10 feet over the brook. The one run lead switched to Manchester's favor when Gourley and O'Leary came home together. Cody walked, Devlin's fly was caught by Gregg and Cody stole second. Herron singled to right. Conley sent the ball into Waterhouse's hands killing off Cody's chances of scoring. With Collins at the bat, Herron and Conley started a double steal. Herron went to third and kept right on to the plate while Conley was being run down between first and second.

In the second Waterhouse smashed a hard one across second base and Herron made a beautiful running stop of the hit, scooping in the ball with one hand. In the seventh inning Herron heaved Flaherty's infield tap a yard over Devlin's head and the runner stopped at second. O'Donnell dropped the ball over right field fence, scoring Flaherty.

Manchester got a man around to third in the sixth and seventh innings, but failed to score.

WARD—NORTHURP

Miss Elsie Elizabeth Northrup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Northrup of Bridge street, Manchester, was married to Otis Abercrombie Ward, son of Dr. and Mrs. George O. Ward of Worcester, at St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms, on Monday afternoon. The double ring service was used, the Rev. Neilson Poe Carey officiating.

Mrs. William Wolff of Provincetown, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor, her dress being of pale gray taffeta and hat to match. Miss Esther Northrup, another sister of the bride, and Miss Dora May Marshall of Manchester were the bridesmaids, gowned alike in white organdie and lace hats, trimmed with pink roses. They carried bouquets of pink sweet peas.

The bride was in white georgette crepe, with conventional veil, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The bride's gift to each bridesmaid was a gold pin, to the matron of honor a gold pendant, to the groom a gold watch chain. The gift of the groom to the bride was a gold pendant and to his best man a gold stickpin.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Bridge street, Manchester.

After a trip Mr. and Mrs. Ward will reside in Brookline. The groom is an employe of the Old Colony Trust company and the bride for several years has been connected with the School for Crippled Children in Boston.

One afternoon a traveller was rambling along a country road, when he observed a small boy sitting on a bridge, watching a great red glow in the western sky. "Young man," said he, enthusiastically, "I am glad to see you so interested in beautiful scenery." "Yes, sir," assented the youngster. "There is nothing more beautiful at times than the setting sun," pursued the traveller. "Do you often come here to watch it?" Long before the Boston Tea Party or the Declaration of Independence were dreamed of, the old weathercock, which has surmounted the steeple of the Manchester Congregational church for nearly a century and three-quarters, was put in place. When first installed in his lofty position he was a gay young rooster, but the winds and rains of scores of years have battered some of the spirit out of him and of late he has appeared somewhat dilapidated. So the other day he was removed from his high station in life and will be given a fresh start. Incidentally, his weather beaten body will be freshened with a little gold paint. Being a church weathercock, this should be stimulant enough. As he was erected in 1750, he has now reached the ripe old age of 166, and with the renovating he is now receiving, will be ready for another century of service to coming generations in Manchester. The venerable weathercock was repaired during the painting of the church steeple, a difficult task on windy days. Scaffolding has been built around the belfry tower, and one of the cornice decorations, pointing to the north, which was blown down some time ago, has been replaced and painted.

FREE BATHING

CORRESPONDENT RAISES QUESTION OF RIGHTS OF NON-RESIDENTS.

Editor North Shore Breeze:

Your "Whisperings" in the BREEZE of the 11th inst. regarding the popularity of Singing Beach and the capacity of our public bathhouses calls attention to an important question. Grave questions arise and some of these issues will have to be answered sooner or later. As Singing Beach becomes more popular, what are the townspeople going to do about it? One of the problems is, has the town a right to grant private parties a permit to establish a private bathhouse and then take compensation for the lease of the same? If so, where, or how will we be able to find more space for public bathing houses?

I am convinced that the town has, from the first taking over of the beach, exceeded its right by granting such permits, and I see no way in the near future but to establish entirely public bathing houses and charge a fee for the use of the same. We are now being crowded, not by the rightful pleasure-seekers of the town, but by the whole of Essex county and its neighboring counties. Should the town of Manchester be the mecca for free bathing? What are we going to do about it?

ONE WHO IS INTERESTED.

SUMMER ST. MAGNOLIA

MAGNOLIA

Miss Esther Douglas of Lynn is visiting her aunt, Mrs. John Kehoe. Grand Irish concert and dance, Town hall, Manchester, Wednesday evening, August 30. adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Warr of Marblehead spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lucas.

The library has received recent contributions from Mrs. A. D. Cook and S. K. Howard, summer guests at the Oceanside.

Thursday Dr. Eaton was called to Ipswich to officiate at the funeral of John Davis, who was a long-time resident of that place.

The Village Church Sunday school will hold its annual picnic at Salem Willows, Monday, August 21. Automobiles will leave Stanley's corner at 7 a. m. sharp.

Rev. Samuel H. Dana, minister of the Phillips Congregational Church, Exeter, N. H., will conduct the services at the Union Chapel next Sunday at 10.45 a. m.

Mrs. E. A. Loud and daughter, Miss Lina of Revere, and James Toorrey of Boston motored to Magnolia last Friday and spent several hours at the parsonage.

Dr. Eaton, the pastor, will preach in the Village Church next Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and at 8.15 p. m. The Westminster Quartette of Boston will sing at the morning service. The evening service will be preceded by an organ recital by Prof. Brackett, whose music has been much enjoyed this summer.

The Massachusetts State Board of Education in co-operation with the Legislature has awarded a State Scholarship to Irving C. Eaton of Magnolia ave. Mr. Eaton will be a senior the coming year. This is in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 78, Resolves of 1911. There are eighty scholarships in all, some of which are divided among two students, so that more than one hundred students receive the advantage of them.

WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN?

Seven weeks of phenomenal business has been registered by "Where Are My Children?" that daring photoplay that has been filling the Majestic Theatre four times daily during that time; and still the interest is unabated; still the throngs fill the lobby of the theatre and there is always a line at the box-office.

Seven weeks, and four performances a day means a great many people, a great many thousand people who have witnessed this wonderful film play. And it means that the play has some strong attractive power, and heart interest. And the play has that heart interest, and it especially appeals to women, who constitute the larger part of the audiences.

Performances are given at 2 and 3.30; and 8 and 9.30 p. m. No children are admitted. Seats reserved for the 2 and 8 o'clock performances

No Matter How Low the Price, the Quality Must Be Dependable

The exceptional values in fresh merchandise at Webber's are exciting much comment. We emphasize the point that a value cannot be exceptional unless the quality of the article under consideration is worth while---dependable and desirable. No matter in how much of a hurry you are, when making purchases these Summer days, you can depend upon Webber quality. And Webber stocks are kept in such splendid condition that even August Clearance lots are comparatively new, fresh, desirable.

FRANCIS PROCTOR OF GLOUCESTER PASSED AWAY ON AUG. 5.

Francis Proctor, the oldest newspaperman in Gloucester, died Saturday, Aug. 5, at his residence, Proctor street, after an illness of several years. He had been confined to the house the past six months. He was a native of Gloucester and in his 84th year. In 1846 he and his brother, George H. Proctor, established a news and periodical business on Front, now
Main street, and in 1850 moved to the location known as the "Old Corner." In 1853 they began the publication of the Able Sheet, an advertising venture for gratuitous distribution, afterward continued as the *Gloucester
Advertiser*, later named the Cape

Ann Advertiser. June 16, 1888, they began the publication of the Daily Times. He and his brother were the editors of both these publications. A few years after the establishment of the Times the publication of the Advertiser was discontinued. Mr. Proctor served as alderman in the early days of the city government. He was also a member of the Press Association Board. He was a former president of the Massachusetts Press Association. He leaves a wife, two sons, Frank and William A., and a daughter, Mrs. George V. Fisher.

TWO SPECIAL SALES

"Daniel Low's" Summer Gift Sale

Begins Monday, August 21—Ends Thursday, August 24

(Store Closed Wednesday afternoon)

3½ Days of Wonderful Opportunities!

Each Summer, just previous to planning our Fall catalog, we hold this Sale to dispose of those things that are not to appear again in the catalog, or of which we have too many, and various odd and desirable articles from all departments which must go to make room for the large Fall stocks that are now arriving every day.

This Sale will be a "saving sale" in every sense of the term. You will save on those gifts for coming birthdays if you buy them now. You will save on not a few Christmas gifts, and gifts for other occasions, if you buy them now. Not to mention the savings on many personal and household needs that will be revealed at this Sale.

The tops of the counters will be fairly overflowing with Sale articles, thus making it easy for you to leisurely inspect them and at the same time to note the regular price and the Sale price, both of which will be plainly marked on each piece.

Liberal discounts will prevail—from 15 to 50 per cent.

We would lay special emphasis on the fact that everything in this Sale will be from our regular stock and marked down for these four days only. Friday morning, whatever remains goes back to former prices.

Remember the dates, please: Monday, August 21, at 8.30 a. m. to Thursday, August 24, at 6.00 p. m. Also that the Store will be closed Wednesday afternoon.

Without a doubt, first and second-day shoppers will get the best bargains—so plan to come early in the week and early in the day.

Please tell your friends about this Sale.

A Remarkable Sale of $100,000 Worth of Diamond Jewelry!

At from Thirty to Forty Per Cent Reduction!

One of New York's largest firms of diamond cutters and makers of fine diamond-mounted jewelry is closing out their entire stock of mounted jewelry in order to devote their time and energy to the sale of loose diamonds exclusively.

We have been extremely fortunate in securing more than $100,000 worth of this high-grade jewelry on such advantageous terms as to enable us to offer every piece of jewelry in the shipment at from 30 to 40 per cent discount.

There are Rings, Pendants, Pins, etc.,—all modern, well-made designs in platinum,—ranging in price from $60 to $3,000.

You are no doubt aware of the fact that diamond prices advanced materially after the beginning of the War, and that they are continuing to rise right along to what may eventually prove to be unprecedented heights. The price of platinum and platinum work has had a greater advance proportionately. In view of these present and future conditions there is no question of this being an unparalleled opportunity for you to obtain, at worth-while savings, some really excellent diamond jewelry either for personal adornment or in anticipation of coming gift occasions.

This Sale is now in effect and will continue until August 31st.

We cordially extend to you and your friends, an invitation to inspect this Jewelry even though you may have no intention of purchasing.

Beautiful Trousseaux

FOR fifty years Prospective Brides have come to "The Greatest Treasure House of Linens in America" to make purchases of 'nice things that will last', in Table Linen, Bed Linen, Towels and Lingerie. We know how to help them—very often the expert behind the counter who makes suggestions, sold trosseau linen to the young customer's own mother, twenty-odd years ago.

Table Linens—Exclusive designs by the score, nearly five hundred altogether—a range of patterns that eclipses anything else in America.

Fancy Table Linens—Every kind that anybody sells and some lovely things that nobody else carries.

Bed Linen and Towels—Every good kind.

Handkerchiefs—ad infinitum.

Lingerie—French, Madeira and Philippine hand embroidered, much of it made on American patterns which are frequently better fitting than the French. Also all the silk and knit underwears, both imported and domestic.

Hosiery and Neckwear—The newest and best.

For those who must consider expense with great care, we have a booklet with special lists properly balanced as to quantities in each line at total prices ranging from $100. to $5,000.

Note: We are displaying this week an interesting collection of small Table Covers and Scarfs, wonderfully hand embroidered in Oriental colorings, direct from the Vale of Cashmere.

"The Reef of Norman's Woe"

Visited by Hundreds of Tourists Along the North Shore

LILLIAN McCANN

BETWEEN Magnolia and Gloucester is the "Reef of Norman's Woe," "that poetic sorrow of the coast," visited every year by hundreds of tourists along the North Shore. The History of Gloucester, in speaking of the islands near the harbor says: "On the westerly side of the harbor is Norman's Oh, or Woe; a large rock, lying a few rods from the shore, and connected with it by a reef of rocks, which the sea leaves bare at low water. The tradition that a man named Norman was shipwrecked and lost there, has no other confirmation than that derived from the name itself. A William Norman was an early settler of Manchester; and a Richard Norman is shown, by the probate records of Essex County, to have sailed on a voyage from which he never returned home, sometime before 1682. The doleful name applied to this spot may commemorate a misfortune to one of those individuals."

The sea still lashes and moans upon these rocks. Other ships have been caught by this formidable reef. But the schooner "Hesperus" will always live since Longfellow has so pathetically immortalized it in his ballad. Nearly every one has wept and shivered over the little daughter that the skipper had taken "to bear him company" on the wintry sea voyage. They have all admired him when he laughed scornfully at the old sailor's plea to put into port, for he feared a hurricane. Also when he soothed the little girl's fright by saying: "I can weather the roughest gale that ever wind did blow." He then tenderly wrapped her in his coat and bound her to the mast. Her questioning about the fog-bells, the guns and the lights; the father's death; her prayer and her own death are dramatic lines known to every school child.

*And fast through the midnight dark and drear,
Through the whistling sleet and snow,
Like a sheeted ghost, the vessel swept Tow'rds the reef of Norman's Woe.*

*And ever the fitful gusts between
A sound came from the land;
It was the sound of the trampling surf
On the rocks and the hard sea-sand.*

*The breakers were right beneath her bows,
She drifted a dreary wreck,
And a whooping billow swept the crew
Like icicles from her deck.*

Rafe's Chasm (at the right)

*"The sea lashes and moans upon these rocks"
Can you see the "old man's" face?*

*She struck where the white and fleecy waves Looked soft as carded wool,
But the cruel rocks, they gored her side
Like the horns of an angry bull.*

* * * * *

*Such was the wreck of the Hesperus,
In the midnight and the snow!
Christ save us all from a death like this,
On the reef of Norman's Woe!*

In Longfellow's diary he speaks of writing the ballad. He had finished his work at night and sat by the fire smoking until twelve o'clock. Then it came into his mind to write the poem, which he did. Then he says he went to bed but could not sleep. "New thoughts were running in my mind, and I got up to add them to the ballad. It was three by the clock. I then went to bed and fell asleep. I feel pleased with the ballad. It hardly cost me an effort. It did not come into my mind by lines, but by stanzas."

In the Shore Land, not far from the reef is the chasm, known as Rafe's chasm. This, perhaps, is visited more thoroughly every day by curious summer folk than the reef. Of this the history of Gloucester (Babson's) says: "It is not only from a scenic or utilitarian point of view that the rocks of Cape Ann possess an interest: they afford a few natural curiosities, that amply repay the trouble and fatigue of a visit to their several localities. One of these, Rafe's Crack, which is said to have derived its name from a man named Ralph, who once resided in its vicinity, is a remarkable fissure in a ledge on the seacoast between Norman's Woe and Kettle Cove. Its length forms a right angle with the shore, from which it extends more than two hundred feet. Its width is irregular; but the greatest is about ten feet. The depth from the highest part of the rock, forming one of its sides to low-water mark, is computed at sixty feet. The ledge is one of the most remarkable on the Cape; being compact, of great size, and presenting, ocean-ward, an aspect of singular boldness and grandeur. The view of the spot, and the hollow, thundering noise of the sea, as it dashes back from the rocks at the upper end of the chasm, cause every visitor to feel the presence of a sublime and majestic influence."

About thirty acres of land front the water in the section of Norman's Woe and Rafe's Chasm. This land is a paradise for the Magnolia colonists who find its wooded roads and paths, its giant rocks dropped here and there, its terrifying and mysterious chasm and rocky shore ever a source of pleasure and enchantment. In just such places are the "wild roses of Cape Ann" found in every cranny of the rocks. Lucy Larcom, the sweet singer of the North Shore has said of these:

*A rose is sweet, no matter where it grows:
* * * * **

*But our wild roses, flavored by the sea,
And colored by the salt winds and much sun
To healthiest intensity of bloom—
We think the world has none more beautiful.*

Near this land is where "the white magnolia blossoms star the twilight of the pines." Unsurpassed is the view oceanward, stretching from Eastern Point across Gloucester harbor far to the south, where the blue hills of Milton are seen on good days. On sailing days a great panorama of moving pictures is seen, when the bevy of yachts, of every size and design, is seen passing between Gloucester and Marblehead. Nowhere else along the North Shore can a more ideal view of these white-winged racers be seen.

It is said that as civilization becomes more and more refined there is a tendency to be exclusive and want to build one's habitation far enough from his neighbor to gain this exclusiveness. The seashore estates and inland tracts of land surrounding many North Shore homes are evidences of this. Robert Grant, in his book on the North Shore says: "More and more do we realize that a residence at a summer watering place hotel is apt to leave soul, mind and body jaded, and that to bang about in the hot weather at fashionable beaches and promiscuous springs may amuse for a fortnight, but suggests by the close of a season the atmosphere of the corps de ballet or a circus. We are learning as a nation to rest in summer, instead of to gad, and those who have been the fortunate pioneers in the movement are indeed to be envied, for though the sands of the sea are said to be unnumbered, the coast of New England has its limitations. Beati possidentes!"

But here are thirty acres of shore land, the largest and most desirable tract left between Gloucester and Magnolia, that is for sale! This beautiful tract of land so fitted for a large and exclusive estate or for smaller ones, with a view not equalled anywhere in this section, and so similar in many ways to an English sea-shore, belongs to Mr. J. Warren Merrill of Smith's Point, Manchester, and his two sisters. Mr. Merrill's father, J. W. Merrill, bought it over forty years ago. He was one of the early summer residents in this section, and owned considerable property on Smith's Point. The old stage road between Manchester and Gloucester ran through the property, and a part yet remains. An old stone wall is seen near the road, which Mr. Merrill remembers hearing his father say was built by slave labor. One of the principal roads between Gloucester and Magnolia runs by this land.

One of the delightful woodland paths running through the property

Our Prettiest County?

Editorial Reprinted From Boston Herald

FOR every three Bostonians that know Hingham, Cohasset and Plymouth, is there one that knows Danvers, Rockport and Ipswich? We turn rightly to the Old Colony towns when seeking memorials of earlier days, but we rob ourselves of pleasure when we let the historic northeast corner of our state mean to us only Haverhill, Lawrence, Lynn. If Essex county were in California, it would be distributing for tourists in every station and hotel, from Red Bluff to San Diego, the pictured stories of its charm. Yet California, for all her range of wonders, has nothing with which to match the subtle beauties we ought to be enjoying a little north of Boston.

Of course, along the coast you know the points that all the public knows—Nahant and Marblehead, Salem, Beverly and Gloucester; perhaps you know the singing sands at Singing Beach, Manchester; the sweet bays at Magnolia, the sky-line of Pigeon hill at Rockport; but do you know Plum Island, too, and that group of five old towns in -bury—Amesbury, Salisbury, Newbury, West Newbury, Newburyport—where the wide Merrimac, with the last whirring spindle turned, slips lazily to the sea? Of course you know the criss-cross of quaint lanes in Marblehead; but have you found the colonial homesteads in Essex and Topsfield, the Georgian mansions in Hamilton and Danvers? You are interested in geology? Read what Prof. Shaler wrote about Cape Ann and see how long you can keep away. Your by-study is American literature? You need Essex county for your understanding of Hawthorne, Whittier and half a dozen other interpreters of New England. Or are you an artist? You will find your colleagues by twos and threes in every town, and colony-wise in Ipswich. You will know why they are there, so soon as you, too, know the sand dunes and granite headlands; the tidemills, shipyards and old wharves; the marshes, silvered with inlets from the sea; the rolling orchards of Newbury, the murmuring pines in the Essex woods, the still reaches of the Shawsheen. Did you ever lose your heart to Dorsetshire in old England? In Essex country you will find its new world counterpart.

Since the automobile came most of us have gained some fleet acquaintance with the main highways northward. Thanks to trolley and steam train, we can come to know well the quieter beauties of the byways in this half-appreciated region. No one who must take his vacation without leaving Boston overnight need be grieved, so long as he has the days free for well-planned outings in Essex county.

Driving About Old Cape Ann

V

A VERY attractive drive which is perhaps the most popular with tourists, is the trip around Cape Ann. If one has not the convenience of a carriage or automobile the ride may be enjoyed on the trolley car, the track passing over the same road which would be taken by motor. Perhaps this ride is more extensively known because of the wide advertising given to it by the Bay State Street Railway Company, in its folders describing New England trolley trips. All along the route there is something of interest for the tourist in the typical New England scenes. Quaint houses with their old-fashioned gardens are found in a great many spots along the way, and the scene varies when one glances over hamlets from a height, the deep blue sea stretching beyond, or looks to beautiful hills rolling gracefully in the distance, where some old church spire stands like a white sentinel amid a cluster of lovely green elms and small roofs of varied triangles.

Take the drive around Cape Ann on a clear day and you will enjoy it more. The questions often arise, "In which direction would you go?" "When is it best to go around the Cape, morning or afternoon?" In answering these questions, whether towards Rockport or toward Annisquam, from Center street station (the starting point), I would say to go toward Annisquam, as you will have the sun at the side of you or behind you, the most of the way. It is also better to go in the middle or late afternoon, when the light is not so strong, and purple and lavender shadows play about the hills and rocks.

As we pass up Washington street some objects of interest are the old Ellery house with its long slanting roof nearly touching the ground, one of the oldest houses in Gloucester, built previous to 1710, and the Babson house to the right, the latter picturesque with its white-pillared colonial entrance around which stand the prim and lovely hollyhocks. This house erected 1740 still has the forms of the slave pens, mute reminders of the days when even Gloucester owned negro slaves. A little distance beyond these two old houses, where the car turnout is located, is a spot called "The Green." A beautiful view is had at this point of the stretch of meadowland and salt water marshes to the northward. On a clear day, there are little streams winding like blue ribbons in and out of the green sedges. From the "turnout" till after we pass the Addison Gilbert Hospital, we see off to our right great hills dotted with thousands of granite stones and small juniper trees, no houses in sight—this is "Dog Town," the famous deserted Gloucester village. Here in Revolutionary days, while their husbands were at the battle front, the housewives went to live, carrying with them their dogs for protection. The families were thus less exposed to the fire of the enemy. Now all that remains of this curious hamlet are the cellars and doorstones with a few old wells. Dog Town may be reached by getting off the trolley at the "old mills" and going up Leonard street past the school house. There are no regular roads in this strange place and unless a person is somewhat familiar with the footpaths in Dog Town, or is accompanied by a guide, one is liable to get lost. The thousands of boulders found on Dog Town are relics from the prehistoric glacial period and are of value to geologists, professors and students from various colleges visiting the place annually.

As we leave Riverdale, we pass through an arch of beautiful willows which has become famous as one of Gloucester's attractions. To the left, hidden by other willow trees, is situated the oldest house in Gloucester, Riggs house, built in 1660. Before and after passing the arch of willows, we view lovely Annisquam with its blue river and small tributaries winding in and out of the tall sea grass, and white sands. In the background of the scene are the beautiful sand dunes of Wingaersheek Beach and Winnihadin, glistening white in the sun, while the wooded hills of West Gloucester stand out in striking contrast. We can see many fine summer estates on the Annisquam shore, the yacht clubhouse and Wonasquam Lodge, the latter on a height in the center of the colony.

Passing out of Annisquam, on beyond the old Universalist church and several quaint houses with their flower gardens, we come to Bay View with its deep picturesque vale. Here is the granite industry of Cape Ann, owned by the Rockport Granite Company. Under the long shed we hear the buzzing of machinery and the clicking of hammer and drill, while hundreds of workmen in their white duck suits appear like busy bees in a hive. Outside of the shed are huge piles of small granite blocks ready for street paving and at the granite pier beyond lie a sail sloop and steam freighter, ready to carry off the weighty cargo. Some of the large government buildings have been built of Cape Ann granite, from the Bay View Quarries. Among them are the Boston Post-office and the Baltimore Postoffice, the stairways of the Navy Department building at Washington, the basement of the Postoffice at Deadwood, South Dakota, many public buildings of Philadelphia, including the interior of the Philadelphia City Hall, which is polished granite, and the Suffolk County Court House, Pemberton square, Boston. The sub-base of the monument of Gen. Winfield Scott, erected at Washington, one of the largest monuments in the United States, is estimated to weigh 140 tons, and is probably the largest piece of stone taken from the Bay View quarry and transported in perfect condition to its destination.

Lanesville is the next place we reach. Here the granite industry is also located and the deep quarries will be found interesting to visit—if one cares to go by foot some distance from the beaten road. Continuing we pass granite piers that form a sort of breakwater for shelter for small craft and fishing boats, while great heaps of granite paving blocks show us the handiwork of the paving cutters of Cape Ann.

Folly Cove is a charming spot in Lanesville. At one time there were many old fish houses there. Years ago, fish were plenty in the bay and the fish were salted in these little houses. The point of land making out into the bay is attractive with its base of colored rocks. There is grass and shrubbery, but no trees, which is generally characteristic of the bold shore line of the Cape. Charles Grafley, the noted Philadelphia sculptor, has a charming studio cottage at Folly Cove, where he does much of his fine work during the summer and early autumn.

After passing the stone piles at Lanesville, we enter Pigeon Cove, a suburb of Rockport. Previous to the Revolutionary War, only a few settlers were scattered around Pigeon Cove and in 1762, thirteen boats fished from it. In 1840, a portion of Cape Ann was set off from the town of Gloucester and called the Town of Rockport. Pigeon Cove was known as the North Village of Rockport. All the stone quarries are located in this section. Pigeon Cove is a favorite summer resort. It has beautiful woods and a splendid ocean view from the highlands. The first summer hostelry we come to is the "Glen Acre," which is the oldest resort in the place. Here the poets, Ralph Waldo Emerson, James Russell Lowell and William Cullen Bryant, came to enjoy the scenery and find inspiration. Another personage at "Glen Acre" was

THE above reproduction of a crayon drawing by a young artist, A Sheldon Pennoyer, pictures the crowd at the Gloucester Day Fete, at Stage Fort Park, Gloucester, on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Pennoyer is one of the group of artists spending the summer on Cape Ann. With Mrs. Pennoyer he is spending the summer at Brookbank Inn, Freshwater Cove. He comes from California; this is his first season on the North Shore, which he thinks offers some grand opportunities for the artist's brush and pencil. He has studied architecture at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris, and also at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. Some of his works were shown at the Panama-Pacific Exposition last year.

President Pierce of the United States.

Nearly across from the "Glen Acre" is the old "Witch House," so named because two brothers had the house built during the Salem Witchcraft days, bringing their mother here to escape persecution as a witch.

The new Hotel Edward, erected a few years ago, is a first-class resort entertaining prominent people. The Edward is also popular for afternoon tea, luncheon and dinner parties and every day brings motor guests to this splendidly appointed house. Mr. Wilson of Pittsburg, Pa., is the proprietor.

The Pigeon Cove colony has two summer shops of interest, "The Sign of the Lantern Shop" on Green avenue, near The Edward and "Ye Old Tavern Shop." Both are gift shops, but at the Tavern, teas and luncheons are served. The latter place located near the postoffice was a tavern in the time when the old highway to Salem was open. The house is over 150 years old, and still has many features of its early days.

As we go along into Rockport we cross the bridge of the Rockport Granite Company and looking down, we can see into the very bowels of the earth, where thousands upon thousands of tons of granite have been removed from the quarries. From the height, men appear like toys, as do the steam engines and tool buildings, down in the depths.

Looking out over the hilly streets, we get a fine view of the old town of Rockport, while Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge with its noted breakwater but partially completed, lies out majestically beyond. Below us are the great stone quarry piers with their small forests of derricks, steamers loading the cut blocks of granite and paving blocks for shipment to Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other cities along the seacoast.

Farther out to sea, we get a view of Thatcher's Island lighthouses, Straitsmouth light nearer the shore and Land's End, the famous summer colony, nearer still to the town.

In passing through Rockport, we see many pleasingly quaint houses. The first Congregational church on the Main street, is a typical New England church with its tall white spire and gilded dome. It has a clock with a bell which peals forth the hour in dignified tone. The old church was fired on by the British in 1814. There is a fine yard in the front with an avenue of elm trees. Following the car track we make a circle around the town coming to the point where we left the Pigeon Cove road. We continue on to the left, and along the entire way into Gloucester the scenery through the country and wooded sections is very attractive indeed. At the last car turnout, before reaching Gloucester, we get a fine view of the ocean, Brier Neck, Good Harbor Beach and Bass Rocks. Near the turnout is the "Cape Ann Fishermen's Home." The home was given for an abiding place for aged fishermen, past labor, by John Hays Hammond and is supported by volunteer contributions.

At the junction of East Main street and Eastern avenue, we transfer to the East Gloucester or Long Beach lines, or we may continue to Center street, Gloucester, the starting place on our interesting trip by trolley around Cape Ann.

The Children's Island Sanitarium

NORTH SHORE people are cordially invited to visit the choir service at the Children's Island Sanitarium. Boats leave Tucker's wharf, Marblehead, at 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoons for the service. Visitors will find this service both pathetic and interesting. Those coming in their own boats are always welcome. This is one of the North Shore's most deserving charities, and is located right at our door, in Salem harbor. Miss Rosamond Bradley is one of the volunteer workers on the island this month. Friday afternoon, Sept. 1, a bridge tournament benefiting the Sanitarium will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Pride's Crossing. The committee in charge of the tournament is composed of Miss Bradley, Mrs. George Denny, Miss Fitz, Mrs. Marshall Fabyan and Miss Mary Franks. Mrs. Vickery will run the affair. Tea will be served at 4.30 to which all are welcome. Those not taking part in the tournament are cordially invited to come in to the tea. A sale of the children's handiwork will be held. In addition there will be bridge tables, and light-weight folding tables covered with linen on sale. The bridge tables are suitable for summer houses and for the nursery. The other tables are desirable for the ease with which they may be carried in automobiles. The bridge committee is anxious that all of the tables may be sold and hopes there will be a generous response during the coming week. Patronesses for the tournament are Mmes. Louis Bacon, Thomas P. Beal, F. B. Crowninshield, Robert D. Evans, W. Scott Fitz, Charles G. Mixter, Thomas Motley, Jr., Dudley L. Pickman, James Howe Proctor, John L. Saltonstall, Harrison Tweed and Edwin S. Webster.

Extra tables will be arranged for anyone who has not been able to engage one previous to the day and hour, Sept. 1, at 3 o'clock.

CLEOPATRA is one of the little home pets of the North Shore that the younger readers may be interested in. She has come in the spring and returned in the fall for seven summers with Mrs. Franklin Haven of Beverly Farms and Boston.

Cleo, as she is called for short, is a French bat-eared bulldog, is registered, but has never been exhibited. The black satiny coat of the little "toy" and its intelligent little face are some of the distinguishing features.

Cleo is gentle with her friends, but makes a good little watchdog also. A keen sense of protection is shown, for if she sees a garden utensil picked up to be replaced, she immediately barks to assert her felt ownership. She delights to go driving, and when she cannot she cries about it like a disappointed child. Cleo has an excellent memory. This was strengthened by a punishment for attacking the parrot, the only other pet that lives in the Haven home. Since then the parrot talks and rules, but Cleo ignores it.

Cleo is good friends with the horses and the oxen on the place. Strange to say, oxen, but there are really oxen on the Haven estate. They had them years ago, and as oxen wear out with a few years' use, new ones are purchased frequently to take their place. Farther and farther away from Boston is the habitation of oxen and with each succeeding purchase it often happens that a driver is not available at once for the work—oxen driving being an art. The grounds are wild and woodsy and are inhabited by many birds and squirrels, and even a hedgehog finds it a safe place in which to live.

When Cleo arrives in the spring she takes up her life just where she left it in the fall. She is never discontented. When she returns to Boston her playground is on the Common. On this historic ground Cleo attacks any dog, even those four times her size, who usually give her a cool stare of contempt.

Formerly other dogs lived upon the Haven estate, and in those days dog bites were not considered so dangerous as now, when some children are denied their company on that account.

Dogs have as many characteristics as people, and the pets are being constantly studied by the little folk of the North Shore, for whom this sketch was written.

She—But papa says you're living beyond your means.
He—Absolutely untrue—I have no means.

THE FUND FOR CHILDREN CRIPPLED through infantile paralysis will be considerably added to by North Shore sympathizers if all plans work out for the most brilliant ball of the season to be given Friday, Sept. 1, at the Ocean-side Hotel, Magnolia.

The ball is given under the auspices of the Woman's American Supply League, which has headquarters in New York, and of which Mrs. John Hays Hammond is president. The Mass. committee, of which Mrs. Samuel McCall is honorary chairman, will assist. Added to this will be the local committee composed of Mrs. John W. Blodgett, executive chairman, and Mrs. Robert D. Evans, Mrs. William Hooper, Mrs. Maynard Ladd, Miss Belle Hunt, Miss Abbie Hunt, Miss Helen Clay Frick, Miss Elizabeth Hammond and Mrs. John Hays Hammond. Tickets at $3 will be on sale at the principal hotels on the Shore and in Boston and by the committee members. Boxes will be sold at $50 each. The governor and his staff will be present. A professional dancer of prominence will give exhibitions between the dances. Those enjoying the dinner-dance that night at the Essex County club will be repaid if they motor on later in the evening for some of the special features at the Oceanside.

This league is looking out for the present day soldiers, and in helping the fund for infantile paralysis, is looking out for the soldiers of the future. Other officers are Mrs. J. R. McKee, Miss Elizabeth P. Stewart, Mrs. William K. Harcourt and Mrs. Claude Pinney. Prominently connected with it are Meses. Chas. E. Hughes, Champ Clark, Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Louis L. Seaman, Lindley M. Garrison, Thomas J. Preston, G. W. Wickersham, Ogden Goelet, Chas. Hathaway, Wm. C. Story, Wm. R. Hearst, Chas. D. Hilles, Lewis B. Woodruff, Harry Payne Whitney, James Speyer and Henry W. Taft.

The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen and Tremaire, who are staying in Marblehead a short time, were tea-guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond on Tuesday. They are spending this week-end at the Hammond's and tomorrow afternoon an al fresco reception is planned in their honor at "Lookout Hill," the beautiful home of the Hammonds. On Sunday they will be luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Denègre at "Villa Crest," West Manchester. Other guests at Mrs. Hammond's are Mrs. Robert S. Chew of Washington and Jamestown, L. I., and Mrs. Chas. Hoyle and Miss Mary Hoyle of Washington, the latter two the sister and niece of Mrs. Hammond.

Sally and Betty Miller, the four-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Baldwin Miller of Beverly Cove, are about the youngest riders on the Shore. These bright and winsome little girls have a small black pony, Miss Puzzle by name, that carries the two little girls safely around the drives in their beautiful place. Next season they hope to have a pony apiece. Which is Betty and which is Sally is hard to tell, for these fair little mites look exactly alike, and scarcely any one but the family can tell them apart. The little ones were born upon the Shore, and are delighted with the prospects of spending a late season where they can have such fine times.

"Morrill," One of Mrs. C. A. Munn's German Police Dogs—a Winner at Essex County Club Dog Show.

ALL roads led to the Essex County club, Manchester, Thursday afternoon for the amateur dog show, when over 150 of the finest dogs on the Shore were shown. A band concert was on, but the music was overshadowed by the concert of the dogs.

High notes, low notes, yelps, yells and cries drowned all other sounds. As each class was called the dogs were brought in by their owners and put through their paces upon a small, improvised stage under the tent. Doggy did not always want to stay "put" and often rebelled against the kind intentions of George S. Thomas, the all-round judge. In many of the classes the little stage and the surrounding ground was needed for the hopeful prize winners.

Most of the dogs were tied to stakes set up near the clubhouse, but the toy dogs were carried around in the arms or led by their devoted owners. Many of the pets were excited, not being used to so much company, and grew as tired as their owners before the long show was over.

Mrs. Boylston A. Beal of Manchester was in charge of the arrangements.

The German shepherd dogs was one of the interesting groups. Among some of the exhibitors were the F. P. Fraziers, Miss Elaine Denègre and the C. A. Munns. The dogs shown by the Munns have been prominent all summer on Singing Beach. Digging and throwing sand in all directions has been the chief delight of one. Fritz was the winner in this class and was shown by Mrs. C. A. Munn. When the blue ribbon was handed to him Mrs. Munn enthusiastically embraced him, and well he earned his prize, for Fritz is one of the handsomest dogs around. He has been police trained and has all of the excellent points of the breed.

The whippets had a good representation in one family. Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., took first prize for her little Montana, one of the prettiest little dogs in the show. Mrs. Gordon Prince received a prize for her whippet, one of the prize winners in its family. Mrs. Paul Moore showed a handsome Dalmation, which came in for a cup.

Mrs. Preston Gibson carried a little white powder puff of a dog under her arm, which she exhibited in the miscellaneous section. Her little son, James, was with her and enjoyed the show as much as any of the grown-ups. Little Agnese and Stefano, the children of the Italian Ambassador, were among the little folk who followed every move made by the dogs when they were showing for cups out on the lawn beyond the tent. Little Elizabeth Sawyer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sawyer of Beverly Cove, exhibited her own pet and received a red ribbon, of which she was very proud. Many other little girls had pets. One white doggy was safely carried most of the afternoon by little Miss Sally Cabot. This was also entered.

The most striking groups were, perhaps, the Pomeranians and the Pekingese. These little toys always come in for much admiration, and the large number shown made these groups look like a mass of moving brown and black. The toy dog always is admired for its beauty and playfulness, but the big dogs shown, it was noticed, gained the most applause. And fine specimens they were!

LOST

PEARL SCARF PIN—Between Magnolia and the Essex County club, Manchester, on Thursday, August 24. Liberal reward if returned to Oceanside hotel, Magnolia.

The German shepherd dogs, or German police dogs, were an interesting group, tethered among the other dogs. Wolfish and fierce looking, they seemed like a bit of the wild among the others. Their ancestors, on one side, two or more generations ago, were from the wolves. These dogs, striking and characteristic in many ways, came in for much admiration.

It was considered one of the most successful dog shows ever held on the Shore, and is planned to be a yearly feature. Everyone was surprised that so many responded and that so many excellent dogs could be brought together.

At the Thursday evening hop at the Oceanside, Magnolia, Miss "Billy" Sichirich was very charming in a dainty dancing frock of turquoise blue taffeta embroidered in silver. The skirt was of the pannier order, the puffs held in place by pink rosebuds; touches of rosebuds appeared on the bodice with silver ribbons.

Miss Georgie Solari was very attractive on Thursday evening in a pretty frock of turquoise blue taffeta, skirt very bouffant with under-flounce of blue net and pink rosebuds on the quaint bodice.

Miss Frances Brainard wore a very lovely frock on Thursday evening of black Brussels net, very fluffy and dainty, most becoming to her fair hair and coloring.

(R. W. EMERSON)

I do not travel just to find
 Friends like those I leave behind;
 Cheeful and hospitable host;
 Clear sky or ingots at too much cost.

If there were magnet that would draw,
 By direct, unerring law,
 Me to houses or to lands
 Suited to my soul's demands,
 Some one fit to be my ally,
 Strong and rich intrinsically,
 That magnet I would buy straightway
 And put myself on the road today.

THE DINNER-DANCE at the Essex County club last Friday night was the most brilliant society event of the summer. About 200 were present for the dinner and many others came in for the dance. The next dinner-dance is scheduled for Friday of next week—Sept. 1.

◆ ◆ ◆

A luncheon party of forty-eight covers was given last Sunday at the Essex County club by Malcolm Graeme Haughton. The guests for the most part were members of the Myopia Hunt club set. A putting contest on the green near the clubhouse was the feature of the afternoon.

Gilbert White of Paris, an artist of international renown, is on the North Shore with Mrs. White for a visit at the summer home of Mrs. Henry Stephens, Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Gertrude Boyer of Detroit is also a house-guest of Mrs. Stephens. Among others in Mrs. Stephens' party at the Essex County club dinner-dance last Friday night were Perry Heath of Grand Rapids and Donald Payson of Portland, Me.

EVERYBODY had a perfectly wonderful time at the children's party, held at the Oceanside, Magnolia, on Wednesday afternoon and the only regret that the little ones had was that the hours were not long enough. The little girls were very sweet and pretty in their dainty frocks and their perky hair-bows of the shades of pink and blue. The boys were very conventional and very good partners, too. The ball-room was a bower of floral beauty. Banked high was the fireplace with ferns, oak leaves and clusters of goldenrod and hydrangea. Woodbine was twined gracefully from the chandeliers. Hanging baskets filled with goldenrod decorated the entrances to the ball-room. Tables at intervals about the room held vases of the goldenrod, completing the yellow symphony. Miss Evangeline Beane, teacher of dancing at the hotel, was hostess, assisted by Miss Isabella Wadsworth, who was very charming dressed as a little girl with white frock, and black curls released. Miss Alice Richard also assisted. The children danced and played games to their hearts' content and with joy unconfined. Pretty favors of vari-colored balloons were given. At the close of the party dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Eliot Bacon of Westbury, L. I., is enjoying a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Bryce J. Allan at "Allanbank," Beverly Cove. Mrs. Bacon was Miss Hope Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman, and Mrs. Allan is her aunt. The Normans, who usually summer at Bee Rock, are at Newport this summer, while Mrs. Marshall Field has their cottage at Cushing's Point.

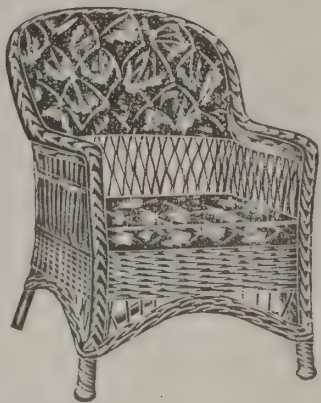

The Bluebird Tea room at Pride's Crossing will be open every day until September 10 and on Saturdays and Sundays the balance of September and October. Mexican chili con-carne. Hot tamales made to order. Box lunches. adv.

Two Cardinals' Viewpoints

Editorial Reprinted from Boston Evening Transcript

AS the American Federation of Catholic Societies opened its convention Sunday night in New York there transpired a spectacle deeply impressive of the size, the enthusiasm, and the unity of its membership. The arrangements for the meeting revealed very clearly the introductory purpose which it was hoped the meeting would serve—that it should place our Catholic citizens firmly on record as loyal Americans. To this worthy result the speeches of the evening contributed, and the response of the applauding multitude gave final approval to the best words of the speakers. The three American cardinals of the church all delivered addresses, although the Boston morning papers found little room for any except that of Cardinal O'Connell. This circumstance is somewhat unfortunate, as it deprives Bostonians of the opportunity to read what Cardinal Gibbons, first of the American cardinals, had to say, and to feel the great strength of his confidence in America, and in the loyalty which Catholics give to the country.

Cardinal Gibbons spoke quietly and directly in words which defied the possibility of double construction:

You live in a republic where there is liberty without license, and authority without despotism, and where the civil rulers hold over you the aegis of its protection without interfering with the God-given rights of conscience. In view of the signal blessings you enjoy, it is your duty to take an active, personal, vital interest in the welfare of your country. The inspired word of God enjoins this loyalty to country, and reverence for its rulers. The religion you profess demands this fealty. I venture to say that every member of your society is a loyal citizen. Every citizen a patriot; every patriot a soldier; every soldier a hero; and every hero would be a martyr, to die if need be, for his country.

The noble dignity of the Cardinal's speech was both free from that insistence which doth protest too much, in his affirmation of Catholic patriotism as a fact above suspicion, and finely suggestive of a country fully worthy of that patriotism, in his affirmation of the liberty which America guards and preserves.

The speech of Cardinal Gibbons was the more interesting for the contrast it presented to Cardinal O'Connell's address. Characteristic of the Boston prelate's remarks were such passages as this:

We have not committed to this country the safeguarding of our lives, our fortune, our property with any other understanding than that in return for our loyalty you guarantee us protection in what to us is the most essential of all human rights—religious liberty. We ask no favor. Your protection of our liberty is no favor—it is part of this dual contract between our country and ourselves. If you discriminate against us you are not keeping your contract; we are not getting true liberty.

If because a citizen is a Catholic a thousand plausible pretexts are set out to discard him and discredit him in your cabinets and your courts, you are not keeping your contract; this is not liberty. If you stand by inactive while under your very eyes, yes, through your very mails, which we pay for, we are insulted, scurrilously maligned and openly vilified, in filthy journals and nasty, indecent literature, unfit to be printed or read, spread broadcast that dupes and bigots may be poisoned against us, so that we may be robbed even of our public rights—then you are not keeping your contract—this is not liberty. You are only wounding the hand, the strongest hand held out to help you; you are spurning the aid of those who again and again you have found in your hour of direst need the most willing to die for you.

All the quiet assurance of Cardinal Gibbons is gone from these lines, and in their place has come loud denunciation of the very infringements of liberty which Cardinal Gibbons has denied did exist in this country. For the hortatory "you," which Cardinal Gibbons employed to address his Catholic audience as part of the united whole of America, Cardinal O'Connell has substituted a "you" which speaks only to those whom he conceives to be the enemies of the church. "We" and "us" are reserved for the members of his audience. They draw a sharp line of cleavage between black and white; they talk of national loyalty, but they envisage it essentially as a thing of two divided meanings, one for "us," and one for "you." There were good points in Cardinal O'Connell's address. Even in his charges of restricted religious liberty he was, hitting at an evil of which there are, unhappily, occasional instances in America. But Cardinal Gibbons nobly and lovingly looked to America as he knew America wishes to be, as her ideals and all her chief tendencies and conduct truly make her, and finding that America worthy, he preached a single loyalty not founded on threats or on fear, but on confidence and affection. His speech will have the wider appeal.

OUR SPECIAL SALE

Of Exclusive Models in ready to wear
Gowns, Waists and Suits

This sale of Imported Stock is at Greatly Reduced Prices. We are offering smart summer models as low as Half-Price as we must prepare for our Fall Styles, soon to arrive.

AN informal war talk and poster exhibition will be given at the house of Mrs. George F. Willett, Coolidge's Point, Manchester, next Monday evening, August 28, at 8.30, for the benefit of the American Ambulance in France, and the Belgian refugees in London. Luke Doyle will tell of his thrilling experiences driving an ambulance in Alsace, and show some very interesting pictures, and Miss Grace B. Monks will have an exhibition and sale of Mrs. Fiske Warren's War Posters. Mrs. Warren has lately added new posters to her very interesting collection which will be shown Monday for the first time. The American Ambulance has won such gratitude and respect from the French people that it has become a point of honor with Americans to carry on this splendid work, started at the beginning of the war in Neuilly-sur-Seine. The proceeds from the sale of Mrs. Fiske Warren's posters go to buy wool, which is sent to Mrs. Warren's sister, Mrs. Erskine Childers, in London. Mrs. Childers has greatly helped to solve the problem of the Belgian refugees in London by her splendid knitting industry in Chelsea, where 1300 Belgian women and 80 crippled men are given employment. Tickets at $2 each may be had from Miss Monks, Manchester Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Bradley have returned from Bar Harbor to their home in Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster of Smith's Point, Manchester, returned early in the week from a week's cruise to North Haven, Me., where they made a short visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan of Beverly Cove have gone to Canada to meet their daughter, Miss Nina Ryan, who has been spending the summer there. Miss Ryan will return with her parents.

Miss Louisa P. Loring of Pride's Crossing has returned from a week spent at Bar Harbor.

Mrs. W. Scott Fitz and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edward J. Holmes, of "The Narrows," Manchester, spent last week-end on a motor trip to Provincetown. The first week of September will, as usual, be the time of their departure to Jackson, N. H. Mr. Holmes is at the Plattsburg military camp.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Boynton of Smith's Point, Manchester, have the latter's aunt, Mrs. Charles Nevin of Pittsburg with them. Mrs. Boynton's brother, John Chew, has just left for his farm in Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Foos and family of Springfield, Ohio, are on the North Shore for a visit with Mrs. W. R. Nelson at her attractive summer home in Magnolia. Mr. Foos is president of the Springfield (O.) National Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cutler (Leslie Bradley) and children of Charles River arrived Monday at the Pride's Crossing home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Bradley.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Motley Pickman are spending the summer at Dark Harbor, Me. Mr. Pickman is now on the "Naval Plattsburg." His brother Dudley L. Pickman, Jr., has recently returned from the Plattsburg camp to Beverly Cove. One of the season's cruises made by the Dudley Pickman, Srs., has been to Dark Harbor where they were guests of their son and daughter-in-law.

Mrs. J. L. Grandin of Beverly Cove entertained friends from North Dakota over the week-end. They were Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Wilson, the Misses Wilson and son.

A CHARITY BRIDGE PARTY will be given at the North Shore Swimming Pool, Magnolia, on Monday afternoon, August 28th, at 2.45 o'clock for the benefit of the permanent Blind War Relief Fund for Soldiers and Sailors of England, France and Belgium which promises to eclipse any of the charity functions given thus far this season on the North Shore. Mrs. Charles Adams Potter of Philadelphia, who is a season guest at the Oceanside Hotel is chairman, and she is assisted by a general committee composed of Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Mrs. Clarence F. MacMurray, with James M. Green of Washington as treasurer. Applications for tables should be made to Mrs. Potter or Mrs. MacMurray at the Oceanside Hotel, price $5 each. A number of very generous donations have been made to augment the fund. Beautiful trophies have been given by the Magnolia shops and Grill. Mrs. William H. Coolidge has very generously offered the use of her beach bungalow. Included among the patronesses are Mrs. Robert Dawson Evans, Miss Abby Hunt, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter, Mrs. L. M. Sargent, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Mrs. Randolph Frothingham, Mrs. Randolph Tucker, Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch, Mrs. John C. Howe, Mrs. Walter Yates, Mrs. E. SATURDAY evening was the biggest night of the season at the North Shore Grill, at Magnolia, a very gay and brilliant gathering of the North Shore folk being in evidence at this pretty clubhouse. It was a notable assembly of beautifully gowned ladies and their escorts, who came to dine and enjoy the dance. It was the opening, too, of the pretty tea garden adjoining the grill to the southeast, for evening affairs, and proved a great attraction. Japanese lanterns, electric-lighted, were strung from the clubhouse to the garden and outlined the enclosure in pretty vari-colored light fashion. Tables were arranged about the raised platform in the centre, where dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Grill orchestra, augmented by several pieces, which was stationed upon the veranda. The silvery light of the waning moon cast a delightful glow over the garden, making the picture very beautiful. Saturday evening has become an established "proper thing" at the Grill, which is proven by the increasingly large patronage each Saturday night.

Among the several young ladies who acted as ushers at the recitals given by Miss Gladys Lott at the Hawthorne Inn Casino, East Gloucester, on Monday evening last, and at the home of Mrs. George Whittemore Woodbury at East Gloucester on Tuesday evening, were Miss Marion and Miss Marjorie Dakin, the daughters of Dr. Mary D. WHETHER one is musing on the purchase of a fur garment or not, a visit to Bonwit-Teller's fine shop at Magnolia, where an ostentatious display of furs is being shown, is a rare delight. For 'tis here, in a rich and exquisite blending of the season's most fashionable pelts, are found wraps, coats, stoles and muffs in perfection and completeness. 'Twas here today that I feasted my eyes upon flare coats and wraps of genuine ermine, Hudson Bay sable, Russian sable, broadtail, Eastern mink, silver fox, the very beautiful and modish kolinsky, and the, too, most fashionably approved, moleskin. Also, baby caracul coats and wraps with trimmings of same, likewise kolinsky, genuine ermine and chinchilla. One of the most beautiful garments which I admired was a voluminous and copious wrap or coat of genuine ermine, showing the ultra and strictly new bishop collar. It was wonderfully matched and of faultless workmanship, the skins arranged border-like, enhancing its beauty. Ermine tails fringed the edges of the flowing sleeves. The lining was of brocaded satin of white and gold, a perfectly stunning garment with the use of either coat or wrap for either afternoon or evening.—PRISCILLA.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer of Beverly Cove have been on a short trip to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Beal of Beverly Cove have returned from their annual trip to other resorts. This year they were at Bretton Woods in the White mountains.

Mrs. J. Hildebrand, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. George H. Swift of Beverly Cove, has returned to her home in Chicago.

John L. Saltonstall and Caleb Loring have gone on the naval instruction cruise.

Col. William D. Sohler of Burgess Point, Beverly Cove, chairman of the Mass. Highway Commission, has returned from Washington, where he attended a conference last week relating to the work.

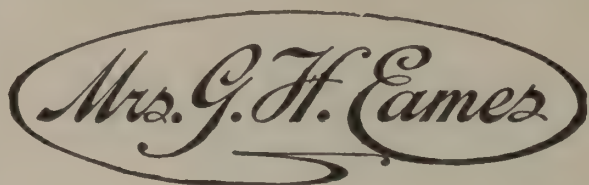

“Pen” is the handsome brown and black airedale terrier that is the constant playmate of the two little girls and little brother at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Sears of Beverly Cove. He is an unusually friendly and attractive specimen of dogdom, and made an interesting study the other day, when, after giving a cordial greeting, he stretched himself out at full length on the hall floor and watched proceedings.

Miss Norma R. Waterbury, daughter of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of “Ledgewood,” Montserrat, is entertaining Miss Martha Pratt of Bennington.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Whitehouse have returned from White Sulphur Springs and the Adirondacks and have gone to Portland to join Mrs. Whitehouse's brother, Allison V. Armour, for a short cruise on the “Utowana.” The party will return to Manchester the last of next week.

Another box of comfort bags, reading matter, etc., was shipped Wednesday from the Red Cross receiving depot in G. A. R. hall, Manchester, to the Mexican border for distribution among militiamen. Last week an immense box, containing over 50 of the bags and quantities of other supplies, was shipped. The treasurer of the Manchester committee, Mrs. J. Warren Merrill, has received generous contributions for the work from Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Miss Elaine Denègre, Mrs. George D. Howe and Mrs. Boylston A. Beal.

TENNIS WEEK at the Montserrat club has been one of the great successes of the season. . On Wednesday nearly five hundred members and guests were out to the concert by the Salem Cadet band in the afternoon. Tea was served on the lawn and piazza of the little clubhouse. This is an annual tea with the club and usually occurs at the time of the tournaments. The ladies' singles for the championship of the club, and open to Montserrat members only, included the Misses Katherine Abbott, Eleanor Cabot, Eleanor Abbott, Ella Snelling, Eleonora Sears, Ellen Curtis, Margaret Thomas, Elaine Denègre. Last year the championship was won by Miss Alice Thorndike. In the mixed doubles, partners drawn by lot, and open to members of the Montserrat, Myopia, Nahant and Essex County clubs and guests, the players of the week are: Mrs. Auchincloss—W. H. Brown, Miss Ellen Curtis—S. D. Warren, Mrs. H. Tweed—R. H. Means, Mrs. R. Haydock—Q. A. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. J. Tuckerman—D. L. Pickman, Jr., Miss H. Curtis—George Weld, Miss Butler—J. A. L. Mr. Luke Doyle, who gives a talk from his experiences while doing ambulance duty in France on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George F. Willett at Coolidge Point, Manchester, for the benefit of the Belgium Refugees in London and American Ambulance in France, is a very delightful person to meet and has a host of friends in the North Shore contingent, and is known to his personal friends as "Baby Irish" because of his winning personality and pleasing countenance. Mr. Doyle spent six months of his busy life in actual service in the ambulance work at France for which he is to receive a medal of marked distinction from the French government.

President Godfrey L. Cabot of the Aero club of New England has announced that the hydro-aeroplane, which was recently completed by Burgess Company, Marblehead, and which will be presented to the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia through public donations, will be named "Prince," honoring Norman Prince of East Wenham, who has become internationally famous by his work as a member of the French Flying corps on the scene of battle.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL MAGNOLIA

THE TUESDAY EVENING DANCE at the Oceanside, Magnolia, very gay and brilliant, was the popular rendezvous of the hotel guests and the fashionable cottage colony, which was present in great numbers.

Noted among the dancers was pretty Miss Lanier Comly, who was very lovely in a pearl gray dancing frock of chiffon and satin with touches of pink and blue ribbons at the girdle, very becoming to Miss Comly's coloring and beautiful red-gold hair.

Miss Adelaide Brainard was very attractive in a royal blue chiffon dancing frock over the same toned taffeta with rose corsage as the only other touch of color.

Miss Alice Richard wore an exquisite dancing frock of shell pink chiffon of delightful fluffiness. A blue satin girdle confined the frock at the waistline.

Mrs. E. M. Binney wore a beautiful gown of rich white lace and net.

Mrs. Maurice Joseph's frock was of white net, exquisitely embroidered with crystals and silver, with garlands of pink and blue blossoms and rhinestone trimmings, very becoming to her dainty personality and rich dark tresses.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Edith M. Binney, a season guest at the Oceanside, entertained a number of her friends at a bridge party at the North Shore Swimming pool, which was quite the most brilliant of the season. The reception room at the pool was given to the players, where five tables were devoted to the game. Beautiful rhinestone buckles were given for prizes to the winners of the trophies. After the card game afternoon tea was served.

Among the Friday arrivals at the Oceanside were Miss E. M. Boyd and Mrs. E. S. Cottrell of Danville, Penn., who will remain for a few days' sojourn.

Mrs. William H. Curtin, accompanied by Mrs. William C. Bullitt, and maid, both of Philadelphia, motored to Magnolia on Friday and are registered at the Oceanside for the remainder of the season.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL, MAGNOLIA, will be the rendezvous for the North Shore folk tomorrow night—Saturday, August 26—for on that night will come the Annual Costume Ball, always the occasion for the brilliant gathering of the hotel and cottage colony on the North Shore during the season. The ball will be in the main dining room and annex, with a capacity of fully a 1000 people. Costumes will be optional. To these events the hotel management always extends a most cordial invitation to cottagers on the Shore, as well as friends of guests at the other hotels. Tickets may be obtained at the office.

Thomas M. Day, 3rd, of Plainfield, N. J., has recently arrived at the Oceanside for a week's stay.

Recently arrived at the Oceanside are Mrs. Octavia Hill, Mrs. George A. P. Oliver with two children and maid, and Mrs. Hill's sister, Mrs. Florence N. Lowe, all of New York City, who are domiciled in apartments at Centre cottage for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. H. G. Blumner and Mrs. Wetherall of Baltimore are registered at the Oceanside for a week's sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kendall and family of Pittsburg composed a motor party which lunched at the Oceanside on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Bauer, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bauer of Springfield, Ohio, and Miss Yost of Cincinnati motored to Magnolia on Friday and spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Francis A. Richardson of Washington, D. C., is at Perkins cottage until the close of the summer season.

Kenneth L. Howard of Suffren, N. Y., arrived on Saturday for a week's visit at the Oceanside.

THE OCEANSIDE has always been distinctive as a hotel where young people have just the best times and the season of 1916 is a criterion of this very charming quality. There are more pretty girls at the Oceanside than ever before, and plenty of young men, too, even though the number has been lessened some by the military call. Saturday evening was very gay at the hotel and many were the dancers who tripped the light fantastic. Everybody had a wonderfully good time!

One of the prettiest gowns noted at the hop was that worn by attractive Mrs. A. D. Cook, which was a beautiful creation of white net, the skirt of which was puffed and held in place by silver ribbons. The bodice was almost wholly of crystal beads with shoulder bands of rhinestones.

Mrs. D. B. Hussey of St. Louis was very stunning in a gown of blue chiffon over pink satin, the skirt appliqued with blue sequins, the bodice of blue sequins with an American beauty rose corsage.

Miss Harlow wore a becoming gown of black net and tulle with trimmings of jet.

Another pretty frock was that worn by pretty Elvina Richard, of clouds of shell pink and delicate blue chiffon. Blue shoes and blue satin girdle completed this costume.

Miss Mary Orme was very lovely in a dancing frock of flesh colored chiffon with three-tier skirt edged with pink taffeta bands, and bodice of pink and blue embroidery.

Miss Helen Middleton wore a wonderful creation indescribable. White chiffon formed the upper part of the pannier skirt, drapings of lavender chiffon, the lower with outlines of silver ribbons, and pink roses and lace. The bodice was of lace and silver ribbons.

Miss Isabella Wadsworth was very lovely in an amber-hued taffeta with flutings of the material of the pannier order.

Miss Janet Bryan was very girlish in a lavender taffeta dancing frock, fluted and very bouffant.

Miss Ellen Kenney was very pretty in a white embroidered net dancing frock with bandings of pale blue satin on skirt, and pale blue satin bolero with outlines of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. A. J. Hull wore an exquisite gown of turquoise blue taffeta with silver embroideries and facings of silver on tunic, pink rosebuds and silver ribbon touches completed this creation.

Mrs. Charles Adams Potter wore an exquisite gown of white chiffon richly trimmed with bands of iridescent on the voluminous skirt, and paillettes of the iridescent on the bodice.

Miss Gwendolyn Smith's frock was of black taffeta embroidered in silver over an underskirt of black chiffon over white chiffon.

A very lovely and striking gown was worn by Mrs. George Dobyne, which was of red liberty velvet over a petticoat of Spanish lace with iridescent touches on bodice.

Pretty Jean Middleton was very girlish in a frock of white tulle, very bouffant, with trimmings of rose garlands and silver ribbons.

Miss Isabelle Orme was very attractive in a frock of royal blue chiffon over shell pink satin with trimmings of silver ribbons and girdle of pink satin.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers wore an exquisite gown of turquoise blue taffeta with paillettes of crystals and touches of silver ribbons.

Miss Dorothy Stetson was very lovely in a dancing frock of delicate blue taffeta, very much puffed, and bodice of crystal beadings.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Walbridge of New York spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

WALTER C. MAHER of Norfolk, Va., accompanied by W. E. Farnell of Norfolk, are registered at the Oceanside for a week's stay. Mr. Maher is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Maher of Roanoke, Va., who are occupying the Chick house on Norman avenue for the season, and is renewing friendships, which he made last season while at the Oceanside.

Mrs. C. C. Nickerson and daughter, Miss Lillian, who are season guests at the hotel, are entertaining Mr. Bruno Xirato of New York, who is their guest for a few days.

Master J. W. Appleton of Brooklyn, N. Y., has come to Magnolia to join his mother, Mrs. A. A. Appleton, who has been spending several weeks at the Oceanside. The Appletons expect to leave shortly for their summer home at Bar Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Crocker, Jr., of Cincinnati and son, Curtis Crocker, motored through Magnolia on Sunday en route for Bar Harbor, and dined at the Oceanside hotel.

Mrs. C. Moerline, W. C. Moerline and Miss Elsie Metz, all of Cincinnati, are registered at the Oceanside for a short stay, returning to their home in the Middle West from a visit to Maine and New Brunswick in their motor.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Johnston of Baltimore, accompanied by Miss J. Murchison, also of Baltimore, are making a short sojourn at the Oceanside hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Brainard of Pittsburgh, are recently arrived guests at the Oceanside, whither they have come to visit Mrs. Ira Brainard and E. B. Brainard, mother and brother of the former. They will make a short stay at Magnolia.

Mrs. Charles O. Skeer of Bethlehem, Pa., with maid, is at the Oceanside for a stay of indefinite duration. Mrs. Skeer was a guest at the hotel last season and has a host of friends who are glad to welcome her return.

Miss C. F. Baxter and Miss M. K. Dilmas, both of Brooklyn, motored to Magnolia on Monday in their Packard car and are registered at the Oceanside for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jones of Flint, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Heman of Cleveland are among the recent comers to the Oceanside and are registered for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Platt of New Britain, Conn., are among the recent comers to the Oceanside for a few days' visit.

Mrs. D. M. Gordon Roch of New York is registered at the hotel for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Allen, Mrs. R. A. Cole, L. D. Walker, all of Ashland, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ramsdell of Newark, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Sherman and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Sherman of Centredale, R. I., composed a motor party which came to Magnolia on Friday and spent the week-end at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith of Providence are registered at the Oceanside for a few weeks' visit.

Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Sandel of Pittsburg motored to Magnolia on Saturday and spent the week-end at the Oceanside hotel, where they have a number of friends.

The Cathedral Pines Tea House, Goose Cove, Annisquam, has had many interesting visitors during the past week. Sunday some 50 people stopped during the afternoon. Mrs. Ida Holloway of Cincinnati gave a tea for the noted artist Frank Duveneck and Miss Duveneck. The party included many interesting people from the artist's colony at East Gloucester. Other visitors during the week were Mr. and Mrs. E. Ponvert of Cuba, Mr. and Mrs. Greene of Kansas City, Mrs. C. R. Holmes, who motored up with a large party from the Oceanside, Magnolia, and many others. Friday, C. C. Campbell of New York gave a luncheon of eight and many small supper parties took place during the week. Miss O'Reilly of Dublin, Ireland, and her friend, Miss McHugh, are guests at the Tea House for several weeks.

PIGEON COVE.—The ideal summer weather so long awaited has at last visited this section, and all the pleasant activities of the vacation season are proceeding as they should, while motor parties from every state in the union en tour pass in and out of town.

At Hotel Edward with the arrival last week from Pittsburg of Mrs. Louis Wilson, wife of the proprietor, the last touch was received to give this delightful hostelry the atmosphere of complete hospitality and home-like charm for the remainder of the season. And already there is evidence of Mrs. Wilson's personal interest in the pleasure and comfort of the Edward's guests, for under her supervision the grill room has been refurnished and redecorated, the rich tones of the purple grape being incorporated in the window hangings, showing over the delicate globes of the side wall illumination, and beneath the nut brown wicker lamp shades on the little quartette tables. The grill is now in complete readiness for guests and no more attractive place can be found for an evening dinner or perhaps a late supper these lovely starlight nights than this peculiarly alluring spot. Mr. and Mrs. James C. Farrell of Albany, N. Y., who recently purchased "Felsenmeer," the lovely summer estate at Grape Vine Cove, East Gloucester, of Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, motored over early last week to Hotel Edward, where they entertained a party of friends at luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Mandelt of Boston came over the road recently with a party of friends and stopped for tea at The Edward.

Guests arriving last week for an extended stay at the Hotel Edward are: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Williams, Cleveland, O.; Mr. and Mrs. D. H. McConnell, Dorys, Edna and David H. Hadley; Charlotte D. Fulleck, Gardner; Josephine L. Sawin, Northhampton.

Arrivals last week at the Glen Acre were: Dr. and Mrs. Crane, Hope Crane, the Misses Phillips, Boston; Misses Sally and Mary Block, St. Louis; Misses Griffin, Hartford, Conn.; Edward L. and Edward R. Allen, Jamestown, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Clarke, Syracuse, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Colburn, New Haven; Mrs. Mary P. Wells Smith, Greenfield.

ROCKPORT.—The full board of experts with leaders of New England Maritime interests and the committee, which is urging the completion of Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge, visited the breakwater last Wednesday, as a prelude to the hearing given in Boston on Thursday. The visiting party to Rockport, included representatives of the various organizations which have united to secure, if possible, a reversal of the decision of the board of engineers that the work on the breakwater be abandoned, on the ground that the benefits would not be equivalent to the cost of completing the structure. The entire board of engineers was present including: Col. Frederic V. Abbot, Col. Henry Taylor, Col. Henry C. Newcomer, Lieut. Col. W. V. Judson, Lieut.-Col. Eveleth E. Winslow, Lieut.-Col. Clement A. F. Flagler, besides Assistant-Engineer T. F. Webber, Assistant-Engineer T. T. H. Harwood and Col. W. E. Craighill, the district engineer of Boston. There was a strong Cape Ann delegation present, including Hon. John Hays Hammond, who is one of the "booster" members of the Master Mariners' Association, members of the press, Senator Brown and Representatives Lyle and Tolman, selectmen of Rockport and town officials and representatives of the Rockport summer colony, James E. Cotter and George W. Harvey. After an hour spent on the breakwater, the party returned and the members were conveyed in automobiles to the Rockport Country clubhouse, where a fine lunch was served by the club chef under the direction of the House Committee.

Things have been rather quiet the past week at the Country clubhouse, only the regular dances being held. The week previous, a reception and supper to the club members was a pleasant and largely-attended event.

The William S. Packer bungalow which has been in the process of construction for several weeks, at Land's End is completed. Edward Bailey, who erected this Packer bungalow is now building a garage for Congressman Ernest W. Roberts at his summer estate, "Loblolly," Land's End.

IPSWICH has had an unusually interesting "ecclesiastical" season. The summer residents have many tender associations with the little Ascension Memorial Church, which has been the scene of so many weddings of the young folk. The early comers were of Dr. Robert P. Parker's congregation, before he and Mrs. Parker left the rectory, after a busy winter, for their vacation in Wyoming. Dr. and Mrs. Samuel McComb of Baltimore then came to the rectory, where they spent July, while Dr. McComb occupied the pulpit. One Sunday he was called away and Dr. William G. Thayer, master of St. Mark's school, took his place. With the coming of August Dr. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C., took charge of the church. He preached the first Sunday and was assisted by Dr. Thayer. Both have summer homes in Ipswich, which they are now occupying, after being "wanderers" for several years. On August 13 Bishop Julius W. Atwood of Arizona preached. Last Sunday Rev. William Lawrence Wood of Lenox preached. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Wood of New York and "Briar Hill," Ipswich. He finished his education in Oxford, England, a few years ago and is now rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Lenox. This was the first time he had ever occupied the Ipswich pulpit, and the occasion was unique in other ways,—aside from being the summer church of his boyhood, nearly all of the summer colony parishioners are his relatives. Among them are the Roland Cotton Smiths, the Joseph F. Woodses, the Bayard Tuckermans, Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman, the William G. Thayers, the Howard N. Doughtys, the Appletons, the Herbert Masons and others. The church was filled with the relatives and friends of the young man. His text was: "Nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net," from Luke's story of Christ teaching in Peter's ship, and of the miraculous draught of fishes, which broke their nets, after they had had a night of toil and no results. Their launching out into the deep, and letting down their nets at Christ's word was an interesting theme for discussion.

Rev. Mr. Wood will return to Lenox this week and Mrs. Wood will spend some time at Bar Harbor. Mrs. Wood was Miss Laura Cass Canfield before her marriage and is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Gray Griswold of New York. A baby daughter was born in the Wood family at Pittsfield last January.

Miss Katherine E. Turnbull, who has been visiting at "Briar Hill" with Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Wood, Jr., has returned to her home in New York.

Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C., will preach at the Ascension Memorial Church in Ipswich, Sunday.

Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman of "Applefield" will spend next week at Stockbridge. Her daughter, Mrs. Louis

Le B. Chapin (Julia Tuckerman), and her two little sons, are remaining late in the season at "Applefield."

Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman of "Sunswick" is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William M. Elkins of Elkins Park, Philadelphia, who is at Bar Harbor.

Dr. and Mrs. James Marsh Jackson and Miss Eleanor Jackson of Argilla road have returned from a three-weeks' motor trip to Maine. They spent one week in York Harbor, one in Bar Harbor, and a week in motoring to various places between. Dr. Jackson is leaving soon for another extended vacation trip to Watch Hill, R. I., where he will go on a tuna fishing cruise.

Mrs. H. M. Berry of Ipswich and Lynn gave a luncheon this week at the Wenham tea house. Covers were placed for fourteen, the guests being mostly from Lynn. Mrs. Charles Dyer of Ipswich was among the guests. The Berry family will remain in Ipswich on the Charles Bohlen estate until September 26. The Bohlens will probably return from Bar Harbor about that time.

Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins of Ye Rogers Manse gave a bridge party last week for Mrs. H. S. McVicker of New York, Miss Gertrude Hart of Chicago and Miami, Fla., and Mrs. H. N. Doughty of Ipswich.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo K. Chase entertained at dinner at Ye Rogers Manse in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Houston A. Thomas of Hamilton. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Magee, Miss M. H. Magee and Miss Hawley of Beverly Cove.

Ye Burnham House has had among its luncheons one given by Mrs. B. K. McMechen, who entertained Mrs. Charles D. Callery, C. M. Dodson and Albert Brodhead of Pittsburg and Magnolia. John Callery had a party of four; Mrs. E. H. Pentacost, six; Mrs. Herbert E. Gale, three.

Mrs. Ernest Pentacost gave a luncheon of twelve covers at her home in Topsfield last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sears (Susan E. S. Drake) of Boston, who are spending their first summer in Ipswich, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Thursday, Aug. 17.

Miss Katherine E. Turnbull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Turnbull of New York, and Chalmers Wood, Jr., of Ipswich and New York, will be married, Saturday, Sept. 30, at Benardsville, N. J.

HAMILTON has no more beautiful homes than at the famous "Four Corners" where the George S. Mandells and Charles F. Ayers have their extensive estates. From Juniper Ridge on which stands the artistic home of the Ayers a fine view is obtained of the surrounding country of Wenham and Hamilton, showing the country homes of many of the summer colony. The Ayers have added some terraces to their house recently, and these make a beautiful and exceedingly artistic picture of terraces and arbors not often seen. Four terraces of various sizes, each with flowers, seats, and cosy places for tea form this out-door arrangement of architectural design which is the striking feature of the place. An unusually attractive vegetable garden and unique water garden are seen here, where the bayberry bushes and Juniper trees abound, the last giving their name to the place. At the Mandell home hounds and horses seem typical of the place, rather than gardens and flowers, although there are enough of these.

Mrs. Augustus Peabody Gardner arrived this week at "Sagamore Farm," Hamilton, for the late season. Mr. Gardner will join her later.

Mrs. John A. Tuckerman and little daughter have returned from a month's visit at Dark Harbor, Me., and a short trip to Long Island.

Miss Julia A. Meyer was of the dinner guests last week at Newport, when Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont gave a dinner for 80 guests in their home.

Reason is the frost in the Garden of Dreams.—Life.

"GREEN COURT," the new home of the Henry Cleveland Perkinses in Hamilton is nearing completion. This was formerly "Windacre," the S. Dacre Bush place. The house has been remodelled until it is about three times its former size. Lynch Luquer, of Boston, was the architect, who planned the alterations. A new wing has been made in which is the large oak-panelled library, a room occupying the entire wing, and of a rich and dignified appearance. It will be late in the fall before this room is completed. The rest of the house is practically finished. The new wing joins the main part of the house at the beautiful new Colonial hallway, which is finished in white and has a most attractive winding stairway. The main entrance to the house is in this hallway. A circular porch fronts it, which has fluted columns and an ornamental balustrade. An unusual window treatment has been made above the porch.

The suites of bedrooms over the library and new service quarters are among other additions. White and gray have been chosen for the color scheme throughout other rooms in the main part of the house, where are located the dining room and sitting room, and the den in the end. The latter is a most comfortable and summery looking room in green.

The big, brown-shingled house with its gambrel roof, its brick paved porch and its massive chimney standing out in such a noticeable manner from the new Gothic library, is set in extensive grounds which have also been improved. The view is exceedingly fine from "Green Court" and takes in many of the estates in Hamilton, the Mandell and Ayer homes being adjacent, also the Reginald C. Robbins and Walter H. Seavey homes being close by. The Perkins family have been coming to the North Shore for several years, and have occupied other homes in Hamilton and spent one year in Ipswich in the Peabody house. Last year they were in the Robbins place, occupied this year by the Isaac Rand Thomas family.

WENHAM roads and paths are ever favorite haunts of the many young riders of the neighborhood. Frequently seen are little Miss Theodora Ayer and her sister, Anne Beekman Ayer. Others are Miss Eleanor Seavey and the Misses Hostetter, two attractive young sisters who have been coming from Pittsburg to the North Beverly region for several summers. They are also fond of driving and are often met in their cart or other conveyance. Mrs. Albert C. Burrage is among the young married women who enjoy the early morning rides.

BEACH BLUFF will find the waning of the August days showing little or no trace among her summer people, for everybody at this spot expresses his intention of staying at the shore until the middle of September at the least, which without doubt is pleasant news to the hotel people. At Beach Bluff the Bellevue has had the best season in a number of years, and bookings extend well into October for the summer colony, although the hotel will remain open throughout the winter for those who commute or spend the winter at the shore. Since the weather has become so settled and delightful it would seem that the summer folk have been very wise, indeed, to reach this most pleasant conclusion.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Mitchell, with their charming young daughter, Miss Asenath, of Brookline, who have been spending the summer at Beach Bluff, will depart the latter part of this week for a motor trip through the mountains, with a short sojourn at Mt. Washington at Bretton Woods.

Mrs. William Gerry Slade, who is spending the summer at Beach Bluff, entertained a number of ladies at luncheon on Tuesday at the Preston hotel. Covers were laid for fourteen.

Mrs. John Rowe and Alfred Bevis were the winners of the "lucky" dance at the Preston hotel on Tuesday evening.

MARBLEHEAD is also deep in the summer pleasures and with no sign of a "let-up" until the autumn days have come. The entering upon the last week of August will only mean a continuing of the pleasures of the days of sunshine. The many races in the harbor from both the Corinthian and Eastern Yacht clubs have made things livelier than ever.

The Rock-Mere at Marblehead was the scene on Monday afternoon of a pretty entertainment, which was well attended by the hotel guests as well as the summer cottagers, when Miss Gladys Lott gave a recital of "Songs and Sketches of Child Life," assisted by Miss Carolyn Rice at the piano, the proceeds of which were devoted to the Smith College Scholarship fund. The list of patronesses included Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., Mrs. Edwin S. Boyd, Mrs. Starling Burgess, Mrs. Charles P. Blinn, Jr., Mrs. George W. Miss Louise P. Ringe conducted a sale in aid of the Children's Sanitarium at Lowell Island recently at her home on Front street, Marblehead, and a goodly sum was realized for this most worthy cause. The young ladies who assisted were Miss Ruth Knight, Miss Dorothy Wright, Miss Ruth Boyle, Miss Margaret Smethurst, Miss Elizabeth Lindsey, Miss Emily Stone, Miss Dorothy Alger, Miss Loretta Steel and Miss Edith Dixey.

The receipts from the Open Market Day, which was held at Crocker Park on August 11th for the benefit of the Visiting Nurse association, have been very munificent and it is expected after everything is settled that it will amount to nearly $1400. The expenditures were nearly $400, which will leave a substantial sum of approximately $1000.

Notable among the recent arrivals at the Rock-Mere hotel were Lord and Lady Aberdeen of Scotland for a several weeks' visit at the hotel. Lord and Lady Aberdeen are very philanthropic persons and have been giving a series of lectures on the care of children. Lord Aberdeen was Governor-General to Canada for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McQuesten of Marblehead Neck entertained a large party of friends aboard their palatial steam yacht, Juanita, last Saturday, August 19th. A trip to Gloucester and return along the beautiful North Shore was the program of the day. Luncheon was served on deck, en route. Among those on board were Mr. and Mrs. Fred McQuesten, Dr. Morrison and son, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford, Mrs. Nason, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Shuman, Mrs. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Potter and Masters Arthur and Francis Shuman.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur I. Hennessey of Pond street have been entertaining Miss Jean Barrett, a sister of Mrs. Hennessey, during the greater part of the summer.

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, SWAMPSCOTT.—The Fourth Formal Ball held last Saturday evening in the main ball room of the New Ocean House was one of the most successful social events of the season. With the main hotel and the Annex crowded to capacity, the number of guests present surpassed to a large degree all previous similar gatherings. The music as usual was under the direction of Frederick L. Mahn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. In addition to the guests of the New Ocean House, a number of the friends of the hotel in the cottage colony along the North Shore were present. Last Saturday night's affair brings to a close the Formal Balls of the summer season at the New Ocean House. However, the management has already begun preparations for the social entertainment of guests during the fall and winter season as well as the Costume Party which is to be held on the evening of September first.

The latter affair is expected to be the big social event of the season along the North Shore. With several hundred guests in the hotel and many of them already indicating their intention of taking part in the affair, the costume party should surpass in splendor and originality all past Masquerades in this section. At the request of a large number of guests, the evening of Friday, September first, has been selected in order that the dancing may continue until 2 o'clock the following morning. This would be impossible if the original idea of a Saturday evening party were carried out. As has been the custom of the management always, attractive gifts will be presented to the ladies and gentlemen wearing the most original costumes.

With the summer season still at its height the management has already begun plans for remodelling the main hotel and effecting several changes which have become necessary with the added number of guests. Perhaps the most important additions to the hotel to be made during the fall and winter will be the erection of a new dining room with a seating capacity of 500. Along with this improvement will be the erection of a new fire-proof kitchen, up-to-date in every respect.

The two garages now owned and operated by the New Ocean House will be torn down after the close of the summer season and a new fire-proof structure erected on Humphrey st. The proposed garage will be located at the extreme end of the New Ocean House property, but easily reached from the hotel. Every precaution will be taken to reduce garage noise to a minimum.

In the main hotel itself alterations will be made whereby hot and cold water connections will be installed in every room. The ball room will be extended in size as well as the west-end verandas. The foyer will be completely refurnished and redecorated.

With these manifold improvements and the luxury offered by the Annex, the New Ocean House in another season will be the de luxe hotel of New England. Already its prestige has been established and is drawing guests from all parts of the country. Under such favorable conditions it is expected that the Annex as a club

Dobie, George Hyslop, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Jones, New York; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Parmely, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Bryce, Montreal.

CLIFTON'S social affairs are nearly always centered about its pretty casino, which fact is forcibly brought out by the announcement of the prize whist with cake and candy sale, which will be held at the casino on Friday evening, August 25th, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the Casino fund. Mrs. A. E. Merriam is chairman of the affair, with a large number of ladies who will act as assistants. Extensive preparations are in the making and a very successful affair is anticipated.

The Tuesday afternoon whist party given by the ladies of Clifton Heights in the Clifton Heights casino was the best attended of the series given this season. Mrs. Gardner O. North was the hostess. The winners of the trophies were Mrs. C. E. West, Mrs. S. R. Ellis and Mrs. R. L. Baker.

SWAMPSCOTT will close the second last week in the August month with no visible tendency to the lessening of the gaiety of the summer season of 1916. Everybody is busy and will be very much occupied at this pretty resort for several weeks to come, mayhap well into the September days. And everyone is glad, for what is lovelier at the seashore than the early autumn weather. True, the days are shorter, but then what of that when what there is of daylight is so brilliant and beautiful!

Miss Florence Beck of New York city, who is spending the summer at Swampscott with her parents, has just returned from Newport, whither she went to witness the tennis tournament at the Casino, to become one of Tracy Lewis' party of Beacon Falls, Conn., on the yacht, Scantie, which was anchored at Morris Cove, New Haven, for several days.

Much sympathy is being extended to the W. H. Claffins of "The Monastery" at Little's Point, Swampscott, in the death of Mrs. Thomas Mack, Mr. Claffin's mother, who made her home with them, and whose death occurred on Friday last, after a protracted illness. Mrs. Mack had been a summer resident of Swampscott for a number of years, making her winter home at 269 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Until her illness, which began about three years ago, Mrs. Mack was an active worker in philanthropies. She was a director of the New England Hospital for Women and Children, vice-president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union and a senior member of the New England Women's club, as well as being connected with many other organizations.

Bishop Burke of St. Joseph, Mo., accompanied by his niece, Miss Nellie Burke of the same city, are notable guests at the New Ocean House at Swampscott. This is their first visit to the North Shore, in fact, their first to the New England states, and they are charmed with its beauties and attractions. Bishop Burke is a very interesting and kindly gentleman with delightful wholeheartedness. The bishop is a thorough Dantesque scholar and very recently donated a library of 200 of Dante's works to the Washington University at Washington, D. C. They will remain at Swampscott indefinitely.

Ward of Boston. A large number of ladies were present. The next talk will be held at the home of Mrs. W. F. Watters at Galloupe's Point on Tuesday afternoon, August 29th.

PHILLIPS BEACH interests are many and diversified, but none are more important than the beautifying of the lawns of the pretty homes at this portion of the North Shore. Never a space is lost where flowers can be grown or a bit of shrubbery, and this, and this alone, makes the colony one of the loveliest to be seen in many a long jaunt.

Mrs. C. E. Longley and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Longley, Jr., of Atlantic avenue were among the guests at a pretty luncheon party given at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, last Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Haxton of New York, who are spending the summer at the Oceanside, Magnolia.

The recital at the Neighborhood club on Friday evening last, given by Miss Gladys Lott, assisted by Miss Carolyn Rice at the piano, was a very delightful performance and was well attended by Phillips Beach folk. A goodly sum was realized for the benefit of the Smith College Scholarship fund, to which the money will be devoted.

The Surgical Dressings meeting, held at the Neighborhood club on Friday morning, was well attended by the ladies of the vicinity, who are very active in this work and who are making a creditable showing in the amount of supplies sent.

A motor party made up of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Cage of Atlantic avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Price of Phillips avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Proctor of Little's Point, has gone to Manchester, Vt., for a short stay.

Mrs. John E. Chatman of Ocean avenue left the first part of the week for Kennebunkport, Maine, for a few weeks' visit with relatives, and joining her young son, who has been at Kennebunkport the greater part of the summer.

The bowling team of the Neighborhood club was entertained on Tuesday evening at the clubhouse by Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Woodruff of Phillips Beach. The guests bowled several strings, and then enjoyed a very tempting buffet lunch, served by Steward Robinson of the club.

The Wednesday evening dinner-dance at the Tedesco club was as usual a very festive affair, and was marked by a concert through the dinner and afterward for the dancing by the Salem Cadet band. The clubhouse was prettily decorated with clusters of cut flowers and greenery in delightful profusion. Each table was decorated with a huge bouquet of flowers. Among the hosts at the dinner were C. M. Boyd, J. Slater, W. F. Spalding, M. J. Curran, F. S. Bigelow, J. C. Gray, C. E. Loud, G. W. Keates, C. Parker, P. B. Palmer, J. P. Parker, W. K. Conerson, J. F. Kelly, Fred McQuesten, B. F. Viles, I. I. Melanson, G. F. Schrafft, W. H. Felt and J. E. Whiting.

Noted among the players in the tennis tournament which is going on at the Tedesco club are Miss Elizabeth Sargent, Mrs. G. H. Billings, Mrs. W. H. Carl, Hortense Sandmeyer, Miss Mary Glover, Mrs. McNeil, Mrs. Godfrey and Gretchen Sandmeyer.

In the Tuesday golf tournament of Handicap vs. Bogey, Mrs. Alexander McGregor was the winner with a score of 1 up, Mrs. F. W. Kimball second with a score of 2 down.

The semi-finals in golf for the Governor's Cup at the Tedesco club, which were played off the first part of the week, were won by Capt. Auld, who beat C. C.

Mr. Carpenter has been at the camp making an extended visit. Mrs. Paul is a sister of Mr. Carpenter.

DEVEREUX residents have been very much interested in the tennis tournament, which was played off at the Goldthwait courts last week. The courts are very fine, and in splendid condition, which makes the game more popular this year than ever. Parker and Goodwin crossed racquets with Boyce and King, and it was a very evenly matched doubles. Boyce and King came out the victors with a score of 2—6, 6—2, 6—4. The match was witnessed by the largest number of spectators this season.

MARBLEHEAD NECK was a very busy place during the past week, with yacht races, dinner parties, luncheons and teas, and will continue in its cycle of pleasurable events for several weeks to come. Next week will find the Neck the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Rachel Marie Hofman Owen will become the bride of Harold Williams Wheeler, Harvard '16, at the St. Michael's Episcopal Church at Marblehead on Tuesday, August 29th.

Wednesday evening "Sanger Fest" club of Boston, which is composed of a number of Harvard men, with Dr. J. B. Hawes as the leader, dined at the Eastern Yacht club, a very merry and enjoyable affair. This is a yearly event which assumes the aspect of a re-union.

Mrs. George E. Percy, wife of Dr. Percy, who is spending the summer at Marblehead Neck, has just returned to the Neck after a motor trip through Maine, with a short visit at Bath on the New Meadows river.

Monday evening's weekly dinner-dance at the Corinthian Yacht club proved a most delightful affair with a number of diners and dancers. The clubhouse was, as usual, beautifully decorated with a myriad of electric lights and the interior with quantities of cut flowers and greenery in gay profusion. Among the hosts at dinner were Messrs. Wilkinson, Goodwin, Humphrey, Wilcock, Whitney, Dr. Johnston, Bates, Hall, Walker, Billings, Pattee, Houghton, Knowles, Forbes, Cleghorn, Glover, Galem, Willis, Jealous and Willcutt.

King Upton's beautiful and palatial house-boat steamed gracefully out of the Marblehead harbor on Wednesday afternoon with a large party of friends aboard for a cruise along the Maine coast.

Mrs. George S. Hill of Pleasant street, Marblehead, entertained a number of her friends at afternoon tea on Wednesday. The pretty verandas were decorated with cut flowers and greenery, which afforded a delightful scene for the gathering of ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Coombs of Peach Point, Marblehead, are entertaining Mrs. Rose Burrill of Skowhegan, Maine, for the remainder of the summer.

One of the prettiest dinner parties of the season was given at the Corinthian Yacht club on Monday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Cleghorn entertained. Covers were laid for eight at a table charmingly decorated with cut flowers.

Recent among the arrivals at the Oceanside hotel at the Neck were Col. and Mrs. W. W. Gray, Miss Agnes Gray, Mrs. Alexander W. Smith of Atlanta, Ga.; Miss H. F. Kendrick, Cincinnati, Ohio; Miss Jennie Wood, Burlington, Vt.; Miss Dorothy E. Hodgkins, Miss M. A. Woodward, Melrose Highlands; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hazen, Boston; Miss Josephine Mason, Washington, Miss I. W. Rentmole, Boston; G. Gilman Early, Washington; Emma P. Horth, Edith E. Rand, New York city; Rev. H. E. Wright, White Plains, N. Y.; Thurston Merrill, G. A. Ditman, Cincinnati; Miss Hattie Ells, Terryville, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. King, Troy, N. Y.; Miss E. B. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Cann, Jamaica Plain; Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. McHugh, Miss Isabel E. Clark, Mattapan; Miss Ruth E. Bacon, Worcester; Winthrop A. Clark, Stamford, Conn.

The Bal Masque at the Oceanside hotel at the Neck was a marked success and a very enjoyable affair. It was attended by the guests at the hotel as well as a great many cottagers at the Neck. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes, and it was no easy task to select the winner, for each and all were good and well worth a prize.

The high price of quinine is not causing half as much alarm as the high price of gasoline.

CAPE ANN.—The fairest days are yet to come for we are nearing the threshold of Autumn and soon the glory of hill and field will cause us to rejoice. Only the sojourner who keeps in the midst of the turning foliage, the purple aster and bright golden rod and turns his cheek to the alluring, invigorating breezes, can appreciate what Cape Ann really is in the autumn. The time is coming when the hotels will keep open longer than September. There are a few of the smaller houses that do keep open. October is generally a beautiful month, with some days and evenings that are chill, to be sure, but there is a great deal of charm in it all, when one can sit near an open, crackling fire. Sufficient heat in the houses is the important problem, but surely this can be overcome. It is pleasing to note that Hotel Edward in Pigeon Cove has announced it will keep open till the first of October. This hostelry is thoroughly up-to-date, because it has proper heating and guests can be kept comfortable way along into the winter. The summer season on Cape Ann has altogether been very successful. The hotels have been crowded all the month and September bookings are very good. Evidently one reason for the rush of people to New England resorts is because of the inability of the American people to tour abroad, while the excessive heat of the summer has driven people from the big cities who might have attempted to stay at home.

Last Wednesday dawned bright and fair for the annual Gloucester Day observance. Thousands of people thronged attractive Stage Fort Park during the afternoon and evening, pleasure attractions and industrial exhibitions having been successfully arranged by the Gloucester Day committee. The illuminations at night were a delightful feature. The exhibitions included those of the State Fish and Game Commission, Essex County Agricultural School, Parcel Post, and the Massachusetts State Department of Health (Child Welfare exhibit). Many distinguished guests visited the park during the day. Among those present were: Lieutenant-Governor Calvin T. Coolidge, Count Di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador; John Hays Hammond, Horace H. Atherton, Jr., Register of Probate; County Commissioners Moody Kimball and John M. Grosvenor; Edward B. George, Clerk of Courts; Louis S. Cox, District Attorney of Essex County; Mayor Clarence N. Fogg of Newburyport; Henry W. Little and William Balch, city clerk and city auditor, respectively, of Newburyport; Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of EAST GLOUCESTER.—Every available space has been taken by the summer tourist in this section, for the past week or more and until Labor Day East Gloucester will have more people in its hotels and cottages than at any time this season. 2500 people at least, can be reckoned in the hotels not speaking of the cottages situated along the shores accommodating roomers and the private residences all occupied this season. Things are lively socially. Besides the regular dances in the Hawthorne Inn casino, the tableau performance of Omar Khayyam was given before an immense audience last Friday evening. A pleasing orchestral concert was given on Sunday evening by Sewall's orchestra in the casino and on Monday evening, Miss Gladys Lott, the clever artist of Boston, gave a delightful program of child stories, under the auspices of the Smith College club of Gloucester, the proceeds to be used towards the fund for sending a Gloucester girl to college the coming year. Miss Lott also gave a pleasing program on Tuesday afternoon in the picturesque garden of Mrs. George W. Woodbury, Eastern Point road, in the heart of the summer colony. There was a large attendance and every one was greatly pleased with the entertainment. A book party and dance at the Harbor View casino on Wednesday evening was a happy event for the hotel guests and their friends. The tea houses are sought daily at the casino and golf club. This Friday evening another big event in the Hawthorne Inn casino will be a musicale, with prominent singers appearing, the proceeds of the affair to be used towards purchasing Wind Mill Hill Park on Western avenue, on the

Do You Know How To Arrange Flowers?

FULPER POTTERY MAKES IT EASY

A woman who can arrange flowers artistically is as much an artist as her friend who paints a picture.

In making flowers express their own loveliness, she expresses besides, her own individuality.

Such women, lovers of flowers, are always looking for the sort of vases and bowls that will help them produce new and charming effects.

And such vases and bowls are to be found in Fulper Pottery—bud vases, flower bowls, flower holders, bulb dishes, etc.

Fulper flower holders make artistic arrangement simple and easy, and make possible more charming effects than ever before.

Sometime you will say, "If I only had one more flower bowl!" Then why not come in today and see these beautiful pieces of Fulper Pottery. Come today!

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Mechlin of Washington are visiting their daughter, Miss Lelia Mechlin, who is at the Harbor View for the season. Miss Mechlin is the secretary of the American Federation of Arts and also editor of the American Magazine of Art.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Calvin Stewart are of the Southern contingent stopping at the Harbor View hotel. Dr. Stewart is a prominent Presbyterian clergyman of Richmond, Va.

Mrs. L. H. Jenkins and family of Richmond, Va., are at the Rockaway hotel for the season. The Jenkins family has been to East Gloucester for many seasons. Mr. Jenkins, who is a prominent publisher of text books for the public schools of the South, was unable to come North this summer, as is his usual custom.

John Bowler, of Worcester, owner of the beautiful "High Cliff Lodge" at Grape Vine Cove, was united in marriage, last Saturday, to Dr. Grace Gertrude Savage of Boston. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist Episcopal church at Charlton, by the Rev. J. A. Day, brother-in-law of Dr. Savage. Mr. and Mrs. Bowler left immediately after the ceremony for an automobile honeymoon trip that is to include the Canadian Rockies, Vancouver, Pacific coast and the Grand Canon, returning to Worcester early in October. This is Mr. Bowler's third marriage. His second wife, who was Miss Mabel Ida Symons of Cardiff, Wales, daughter of a British naval officer, was drowned last summer, while bathing at Good Harbor Beach, Bass Rocks. Dr. Savage is a graduate of Boston University and served two years on the staffs of Boston hospitals. She has since practiced in Boston, with her home and offices in the Charlesgate. Mr. Bowler gave a dinner party to the wedding guests at his home, 4 Richards street, Worcester, on Friday night. The groom is a member of the well known firm of Bowler Brothers of Worcester.

Recent arrivals at the Hawthorne Inn include: Frank Burnham, L. D. Chandler, Mabel Chandler, Nashua, N. H.; Louis de Cazanore, Jr., Mrs. Louis de Cazanore, Wilmington, Del.; Leighton Calkins, Plainfield, N. J.; Stanley Clark, Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Carpenter, New Brunswick, N. J.; Mrs. William A. Stalen, Helena, Mont.; Mrs. William Alexander, King Alexander, Chambersburg; Mrs. Edward Allen, Darlington, Md.; Mrs. George Ross, Molly Ross, Gertrude Ross, Drylestone, Pa.; Eliza S. Rogers, New Haven, Ct.; C. F. Selfridge, Lima, O.; Mr. and Mrs. George D. Selden, Miss N. V. Spader, Erie, Pa.

The tableau production of "Omar Khayyam" at the Hawthorne Inn Casino on the night of August 18, was a pronounced success both artistically and financially, and the big Casino was taxed to the utmost to seat the large representative audience from the North Shore summer contingent; indeed many, unable to get seats, were obliged to leave without seeing one of the most attractive and important social events of the season.

The tableaux were the finest seen here for many a day, in fact it was remarked by some that they were the best in their experience. The Oriental effects of both form and color were exceptionally pleasing against a background of dull gold, while the vines, fruits and flowers wrought of delicate tinted paper were both exquisite and amazingly natural.

The production was made up of eight separate tableaux, and preceeding each Mr. Arthur Row, of the Herbert Tree Company, attired as Omar read lines appropriate to each from the Rubáiyát of the ancient Persian tent maker, astronomer and poet.

The opening tableau, "The Sun," in which Miss Margaret Montgomery clad in dazzling silver raiment appeared, was most apt in representing the opening lines of the great poem.

The following tableaux were likewise truly lovely in conception and in the artistry with which they were staged.

The Persian dance by Miss Melba Procter following the closing tableau of Omar was unusually appreciated by reason of the greater interpretation given it by Mr. George Stevens, who accompanied the dance with a song. The dance and singer were accompanied by Miss Leila Procter.

Probably the most artistic tableau of the modern group, succeeding the Oriental, was that of the "Grecian Frieze," in which appeared Misses Ellen Olsen, Liliac MacLane and Virginia Smith. This tableau provoked three curtain calls.

The staging of this highly artistic production was under the direction of Louis Kronberg of the Grundmann Studios of Boston. The costumes were designed by Mrs. Theodore Bernstein and Miss E. L. Paddock of New York.

Those who took part in the various tableaux were as follows: Misses Margaret Montgomery, Nietse W. Holder, Josephine C. Wall, Marguerite Mitchell, Charlotte Dennison, Mabel Vickery, Marion J. Cantine, Lydia Todd, Grace Filkins, Nina M. Stockton, Arrington Butt, Adele Blanc, Elizabeth Schmidt, Caroline Stone, Ellen Olsen, Liliac MacLane, Virginia Smith, Harriette Brazier, Ethel Paddock; Mesdames W. An arrangement of music by Arthur Foote and Liza Lehmann was played throughout the entire program by Mrs. John Brand of Worcester, with the exception of Miss Elsie Dufour's tableau, which was played by Miss Olive H. Renton.

The committee was as follows: Louis Kronberg, chairman; Misses Jean Oliver, Adeline Piper, Anna Scanton-Schmidt, Nina M. Stockton, secretary; Mabel Vickery, assistant stage manager; Benjamin Brewster.

BASS ROCKS.—A great social event of the season at Bass Rocks was the annual ball held on Friday night of last week at the Hotel Thorwald. There were about 600 people present and many pronounced the affair one of the most brilliant balls ever held on the North Shore. The big dining room and the reception room were thrown into one for the event, giving a wonderful floor space of nearly the entire length of the hotel. The decorative scheme was gold and green, golden glow and golden gladioli being used with the lovely green briar, the latter being twined gracefully about on the walls and the chandeliers. The American flag was also in evidence. Sewall's orchestra of ten pieces, seven of the players coming from out of town, furnished the music for the occasion. Ladies were strikingly gowned for this annual event and not only was the ball-room a lovely scene of life and color, but the lawn of the hotel, between the main house and the mansion, gave an exquisite finishing touch, with the colored lights and the moonlight covering the daintily arranged tables where refreshments were served. A runner was laid from the dining-room steps to the lawn, and throughout the evening guests were served with ice cream, fruits, cake and cooling drinks. The management of the Thorwald makes it a point every season to have the annual ball a great success and a real pleasure to the guests and their friends from the Bass Rocks cottages and from along the Shore. This year the ball was a notable affair, a distinct pleasure in every detail.

Last Friday afternoon Mrs. Joseph O. Procter, Jr., and Mrs. Max Talbot, both of Boston, Bass Rocks cottagers, gave a bridge of 13 tables, followed by tea at the Bass Rocks Golf clubhouse.

The tea given at the Golf clubhouse last Saturday afternoon was attended by 200 people, the affair being the regular social tea of the club members.

The Bass Rocks Golf clubhouse was the scene of a brilliant gathering last Friday evening, when an evening of mirth and melody was given by Wilford Russel of London, England. The function was held in behalf of the Permanent Blind War Relief fund of the Allies. Mr. Russel gave a splendid program of musical numbers and readings and at the close of every selection he was greeted with enthusiastic applause. The list of patronesses for this event included: Mrs. Butler Ames, Mrs. Oakes Ames, Mrs. A. Felton Bent, Mrs. W. B. Campbell, Mrs. John Clay, Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Mrs. Guy Cunningham, Mrs. E. B. tableaux illustrating the famous poems of James Whitcomb Riley, together with the reading of poems, pleased a large and appreciative audience. Mrs. Ovid Butler Jameson of Indianapolis and Mrs. Harry Primrose of Baltimore arranged this delightful entertainment, the proceeds of which were given to the Gloucester Fishermen's institute. Col. J. H. Manning of Albany, N. Y., editor of note and collector of letters of the great American statesmen, paid a fine tribute to Mr. Riley and read, "He Is Just Away." "Good-bye, Jim" was read by Ralph Small, the dramatist, and illustrated by Graham Sargent of Philadelphia. Notably fine in the tableaux were Miss Virginia Longstreth, a St. Louis beauty, who was "Illeo Legardi," and the artist painting her picture, Howard McDuffy of Boston; Miss Mary Jane Thomson, a Texas belle, as "The Old Fashioned Rose;" the beautiful Mrs. George Thomas Murphy as "The Princess of the Sunset;" Mrs. Frederick Campbell of St. Louis, noted for her loveliness and greatly admired in the St. Louis suffrage pageant, as the "Princess of the Snowdrift and Silver Clouds;" Miss Julia McKenney of Albany, radiant as the "Star of the Night," from "The Last Idyl of the King;" "Yulalie," the first poem written by Mr. Riley, was cleverly acted by Mrs. Edward D. Parsons. "Seventeen" was the last book read and talked of by Mr. Riley, and because of the great friendship between the poet and the author, three scenes from Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" and two from "Penrod" were presented, being a prominent part of the evening's program. William Sylvester Baxter appeared with Miss Helen Wilkinson as "Miss Pratt" and "Penrod" was played by Booth Tarkington Jameson, the author's nephew, who is said to be the original "Penrod." The number of rose-crowned children in "The Book of Joyous Children" made a charming picture. Mrs. Jameson, sister of Booth ANNISQUAM.—The Annisquam colony is having a banner season. The hotels are all filled with guests who will remain till Labor Day at least while a large percentage will stay into September. Every cottage is taken and Labor Day will not make any noticeable change with the cottage contingent. The tea houses in the Annisquam colony have proven popular this summer, especially the "Cathedral Pines," located in one of the beauty spots of this section of the North Shore. Among recent visitors to the Cathedral Pines were: Mrs. George E. Tener and the Misses Tener of Pittsburg and Eastern Point; Miss Gertrude Bender of Milwaukee, Herman Wessel and J. A. Kunz, western artists of note. Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Sibley of New York and a great many others who are so attracted to the teahouse and surroundings. Frank Gardner Hale of Boston, the craftsman, is holding an exhibition of unusual jewelry at the teahouse this week.

Affairs of social interest have been held during the past week at Village hall, Annisquam. Last Thursday and Friday evenings, the performance "The Colonel's Maid," was repeated, the clever cast giving equally as good performance as on its former appearance. The proceeds were for the Village hall association. On Sunday evening last, Dr. Alfred G. Mayer of the Carnegie Foundation gave an illustrated lecture in Village hall on the subject, "Among the Savages of the Pacific Islands." The lecture was very pleasing and instructive. A collection was taken and the money will be used to buy material for the work which is being done here for the French Wounded. On Monday afternoon, from 2 until 7.30 o'clock, Mrs. William M. Jelly of the Annisquam cottage colony held an exhibition of baskets at the Village hall. Baskets were exhibited from Mrs. Jelly's private collection while others were from Jamaica and South Carolina and others were made by the mountain whites of Kentucky. At 5.30 o'clock, Mrs. Jelly gave a paper on "Basketry." The proceeds of the affair were given to the fund for the maternity ward at the Addison Gilbert Hospital. On Tuesday evening, a concert was held in Village hall, the proceeds to be added to the fair fund

Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Schumann of Philadelphia, Pa., are the guests of James Prince, at Norwood Heights, Annisquam.

BAY VIEW.—Prominent cottagers at Bay View are Gen. Adelbert Ames and family, who are occupying one of the twin stone villas which have been the Ames' summer home for nearly 50 years.

The Col. French house adjoining the Gen. Ames property, for the past two or three years the estate of Cardinal O'Connell, and recently acquired by the Ames family, is occupied by Hon. Butler Ames and family of Lowell.

The Spencer Borden, Jr., of Fall River are in the cottage on the Ames estate, as has been their custom for many seasons.

Additional Cape Ann news printed this week on page 35.

Forbes Specialty Silk Shop, over 171 Main st., Gloucester, is exhibiting advanced fall samples of silks in taffetas, satin-de-chine, duchess satin and in fancy stripes and plaids. The fall silks are found in all the most wanted shades for street and evening wear such as are shown at this time in New York. The Forbes shop has the distinction of being Gloucester's first silk shop.

EUROPEAN PLAN

ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

EDITORIAL

FROM EVERY POINT along the coast comes news of the plans of cottagers and hotel guests to remain later this season than usual. Many of the hotels which usually close after Labor Day have announced their intention of remaining open two weeks or a month longer to accommodate the extraordinary number of guests that want to remain at the seashore during September. Of course cottagers, who are not dependent upon the conveniences of hotels for the duration of their stay, have not given a thought to leaving the shore. Never before has there been such a widespread inclination on the part of vacationists to take advantage of the best summer month of all at the shore. One reason assigned for this is the unusual period of continued hot weather in the big cities. The intense suffering from the heat has been avoided by those fortunate persons who have spent their summer on the North Shore. Another cause which is keeping people at the shore this season later than usual is the prevalence of infantile paralysis and other diseases in a number of the larger cities. Perhaps no safer and healthful spot could be found at this time than the North Shore and realization of this fact has influenced many to extend their stay as long as possible. But greatest of all reasons for the increased number of vacationists who will remain for the end of the season is the fame of the New England Indian summer. Wonderful days, the like of which even June cannot rival, are in store for those who remain during late September and early October. Then perhaps the crowds will have largely gone, but then will be days of perfect weather and solid enjoyment.

At least three of the largest hotels on the North Shore have decided to comply with the insistent demands of their patrons to keep open throughout September—the New Ocean House at Swampscott, the Hawthorne Inn at East Gloucester, and largest of all, the Oceanside at Magnolia. The Oceanside management decided definitely yesterday to keep open until the first of October, instead of the middle of September, if there is sufficient demand for accommodations.

IN VIEW OF THE PREVALENCE of infantile paralysis in New York and New Jersey unusually stringent preventative measures are being taken to stop the spread of the disease. People leaving the North Shore during the coming weeks are advised to secure a health certificate for their children from the local health officer in the town where they have summered. There is no expense attached to securing the certificate, and it will insure an uninterrupted trip through New York and New Jersey. The authorities in the vicinity of New York city are demanding health certificates from parents of children under sixteen.

CONGRESSMAN GARDNER has won his contest, which was presented to a special committee. This is a victory for free speech. License is not liberty and speech is being protected honorably when a man refuses to permit false statements to pass unchallenged. Senator Calloway has learned a valuable lesson.

GEORGE F. WASHBURN has announced that the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange favors the national action on the "daylight" question and in its support says: "Any increased use of daylight hours is good business policy; it would be a wonderful advantage to employers and would make for greater efficiency; employees would benefit greatly in improved health incident upon more rational hours of out of door life and amusements; it will mean savings of millions of dollars annually to manufacturers, merchants, business men and householders in reduced lighting and heating expenses; the number of accidents will be greatly reduced because business hours will be largely daylight hours. There will be greater economy, greater efficiency and greater comfort. It is the rational thing." It will take along while for the machinery of the Government to move, but eventually the daylight plan will be put in operation to the advantage of everyone.

GOVERNOR MCCALL has decided to call an extra session of the Legislature to administer justice to the guardsmen who are in service on the Mexican border. It proposed to pass legislation providing for the dependent families of the men in service, appropriate funds for the men who are discharged and who may come home, and to pass a law providing a method for the registered voters in service to vote for President and for Congressmen in the fall. An extra session of the Legislature is not always desirable and is usually avoided by the executive, but every reason exists for the expense incurred in calling this session. The guardsmen are doing loyal service under particularly trying conditions and the least that Massachusetts can do is to make the provisions for which the session is to be called. The Governor has the precedent of the civil war, when the men in the field voted for Lincoln.

ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING items in the summer's philanthropies is the work of a club of children at Cataumet, on Buzzards Bay. The children organized the Cataumet Berry club and have been picking and selling berries. The club has earned one hundred and fifty dollars and has forwarded it to the Boston Floating Hospital. What a cheerful item of news this is compared with the news from abroad that the young boys, still of school age, are being drilled in the rudiments of military drill and the use of a rifle! The ways of peace are preferable.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEMS which will have to be met after the present war is over are already giving the powers that be in Washington much concern. A bill is now being considered that will apply some drastic restrictions. It is evident that the time has come for the Government to take the matter in hand and thresh it out before the war in Europe is ended and the problem is thrust upon us. No one would desire to deprive the men of Europe the opportunity to obtain asylum in the new land, but there is no real reason why the ideals and interests of the new land should be jeopardized by the maimed and wounded of the old world.

THERE IS NO REAL REASON why all of the parties concerned in this threatened railroad strike should not present their case for arbitration. One thought two years ago that the was was not possible and naturally one would consider a railroad strike of great magnitude impossible, but evidently the four brotherhoods have been rigidly organized and there is every reason to fear the future; but it does appear un-American and unjust for such an important industry to be subjected to such a cessation of employment paralysing all industry. There ought to be some way whereby the men may continue their employment pending a settlement of the differences by arbitration.

THE CONTRARY STATEMENTS that come from the various capitals in Europe concerning the prospects of peace indicate only one thing and that is that all of the powers would be willing to have peace at any time at their own terms, but that is just what they are fighting for, and peace at that price means victory for some one and defeat for some one else. It is quite apparent that none of the powers has been effectually defeated and none has won a permanent victory.

WHATEVER MAY BE SAID concerning President Wilson's term of service he has been most unfortunate in the number of serious situations which have been presented to him. And now comes the prospects of a railroad strike. Whichever way he moves he is certain to alienate many votes. Good fortune elected him President and ill fortune may cause him to lose his re-election.

THERE IS NO QUESTIONING the fact that the infantile paralysis epidemic has much in it to cause alarm and to stimulate mothers and fathers to give their children proper care and warn health boards to take precautions, but one cannot but feel that people in New England have been unduly alarmed by newspaper agitation.

THE AMERICAN HUMANE SOCIETY has been doing a valuable relief work in the large cities during the summer for the relief of the horses at work. Watering places and spraying stations have been established and maintained. These animals that have borne the heat and burden of the day for the needs of humanity have been remembered. How good a thing it is that someone has it in his heart to do this "philanthropic" work.

THE REMARKABLE RECEPTION which Hughes has been having in the West is significant. The Progressive leaders have rallied to his support and in the West at least there is no schism. With all of the failings of his administration can Wilson overcome the great popular movement for Hughes?

ACCIDENTS ARE APT to occur under the most favorable conditions, but Townships and property owners should co-operate in making dangerous curves as safe as possible. Skilful trimming of the shrubbery or even the resurveying of curves is necessary in some cases.

THE FUTURE DOES not seem to promise any relief in high prices. Reports say that both coal and flour are destined to go higher and if the railroad strike is declared America will enjoy a period of high prices that has been unprecedented.

THERE IS A TOUCH OF PATHOS in the death of the nonagenarian who had declined to ride in an automobile and then weakened and accepted an invitation only to be carried to his death by a plunge over a sixty-foot embankment.

THE ARTILLERY MEN from Essex County, now in service on the border, have been in service for nine weeks and have received for their patriotism and loyalty the munificent sum of six dollars. Republics are indeed grateful!

Another Side of the Mosquito Crusade

Editor North Shore Breeze:

There is now a crusade being organized against the mosquito. To exterminate this nuisance will necessitate a very large expense, about $30,000, but it is supposed that by scientific treatment the North Shore at least can be rid of its presence.

For those who have low lands and stagnant water on their estates it may seem worth while to deluge them with crude oil, but it might be well to hesitate in face of the probable fact that this treatment will also kill our birds, or cause them to fly to other districts—just at the moment when the Audubon society has succeeded in some measure in saving to us their valuable and delightful lives.

Editor North Shore Breeze:

Several of your readers have commented on the very large and unsightly sign which the Standard Oil company has erected between Manchester and Gloucester, on one of the most beautiful sections of this most beautiful drive. Don't you think that some reader of this paper has sufficient influence with the Standard Oil company to have this sign removed?

If there were other signs along the road—as along the railroad—it would not be such a serious matter. As it is, however, this is practically the first billboard to be erected on this attractive and wonderful shore road.

They certainly will not build in places where the undergrowth is blackened with oil, and their winter coverts menaced with ruin. The spraying with lead poison has been bad enough, but what will the effect be of drenching with oil?

In the wood roads where there is even now some perfume of the pine trees left to us for health and pleasure, are we to have the very nasty smell of oil? We shall indeed fare badly in our summer homes with no birds to sing to us, and rid us of our troublesome insects, and no sweet wholesomeness left us in our field and forests.

"A DWELLER ON THE NORTH SHORE."

If it does not pay the Standard Oil company, they should have no objections to removing it. If it does pay the Standard Oil company, it will pay others, and other big billboards will be erected likewise.

Under these circumstances it seems an important and serious matter, as the beauties of this section are its chief asset. I feel that some reader of your paper has influence enough to remove the sign. May I enlist the support of the columns of your valuable paper?

Very truly yours,

August 23, 1916.

Harry A. Nevin of Somerville and Henry J. Lally of Mattapan had a narrow escape from serious injury just before noon yesterday, when Nevin's big touring car plunged down the embankment from Summer street and overturned, pinning the men underneath. The car was evidently going at a fair speed, when it skidded and went over the side. The accident took place just west of the R. H. Dana estate. Nevin and Lally are salesmen for the Underwood Typewriter Company and were on their way to Gloucester when the accident happened. Nevin was unhurt, but Lally was badly shaken and bruised and had a bad cut on his forehead. A passing automobile took the men to Magnolia, where Dr. Boos attended Lally. The top of the auto was smashed, the windshield was shattered and both headlights were broken, but otherwise the machine was undamaged. When the men got from under it the car was bottom side up and facing in the opposite direction to which it was traveling.

GUARDSMEN CONTENTED

MANCHESTER MEN ON THE MEXICAN BORDER RECEIVE SUPPLIES FROM HOME.

The second box sent out by the Manchester ladies of Essex Chapter, American Red Cross, reached Co. A, Second Mass. Infantry, on Saturday, August 5, and was much enjoyed. This information is conveyed in a letter from Corporal J. Irving Baker, who came in for a share of the good things sent by the Manchester friends. He wishes to extend the thanks of his company to all for their kindness in remembering them so generously. The first box sent to Co. H, 8th Infantry, had not been received up to the 18th, although one from the National Red Cross came for the whole regiment, each member receiving a tooth brush, powder, soap, towels, tobacco, etc.

Writing from Columbus, N. M., Corporal J. Irving Baker says that on August 11 their company, in heavy marching order, in the hottest part of the day, marched eight miles out to the range, where they spent the night, having target practice all day Saturday, and returning through the brush, to be placed on outpost duty. While the first platoon shot in the morning, he and a few of the second platoon climbed one of the mountains, the view from the top of which amply repaid them for the effort. On the way back they came across what seemed to be a natural cave about 150 feet deep and extending quite a distance back into the mountain. Here there were chambers, which proved it to have been left by prospectors years ago. It was said that some of Villa's men hid there for a short time after the raid at Columbus. There was quite a number of rattlesnakes killed out there. The one he got was coiled, just ready to strike his chum and tent mate. The fellows dry the skins and make belts or hatbands. He and his friends are well and have passed the Federal physical examinations. The tests were very thorough, including heart, lungs, feet, throat, nose, teeth, eyes, ears, etc., each man being under scrutiny about 20 minutes.

Speaking of their 15 days duty as support to Battery E of the 5th U. S. Field Artillery on the mesa west of El Paso, Musician Harry Baker, Co. H, says: "We are camped on a plateau about halfway up the mountain in the classy section of the city, fine residences, good roads and lawns, which are quite scarce. This camp is much better than Cotton, being cooler, not so dusty and we are by ourselves and under our own officers. The fellows are fixing the camp in great style, small gardens in front of the tents containing large, spreading cactus, with small, pretty pink thistles placed between other varieties of cactus. These gardens are surrounded by rows of white stones, making the company street very attractive. The "slum gun" or "soup cannon" came to us up here. It is a field kitchen, appearing much like a field piece, only the muzzle is the chimney, sticking straight up. Upon this the cooks prepare the good food which is keeping us strong and well. On the return from the mesa we all rode on "O. D." trucks, with the "slum gun" on behind and the two cooks on the seat. It was tied rather loosely and you should have seen the S's; it made one about every two feet, but the two fellows stuck. About half-way down, the rear part became disconnected; away she went! No casualties."

On August 18 he writes: "Everybody is wading around this morning. Talk about rain! Last night we had the prize storm, and it was lucky there was not as much wind with it as there was last week, when we had a hurricane and cloudburst that lasted about 15 minutes. You should have seen the wreck it left. Tents down in every direction and mud up to your ankles—adobe mud, that sticks like glue. The only thing that saved our tent from blowing in was that six or eight stood and held it while I held down the back so it would not balloon off. The hood we found among the wreckage in Co. I street. This beats anything we ever had back East.

"Co. H went on guard last night in the pouring rain. It started during evening parade and before we reached our tents we were soaked. Had mess in the rain and mounted guard in the rain. The foot of our street is a regular lake, so Sergt. Barnes painted a sign that the 'Regular excursion boat leaves tent No. 9 for a sight-seeing tour of Camp Cotton—for further information see the marine in command of deck No. 9.'

"Chandler, the other musician of Co. H, has received his discharge, as his term of enlistment has expired. My, but he did hate to leave the fellows. They gave him a grand old send-off, riding him out of camp on their shoulders, with our old drum at the head of the line. I went down town with him to help with his suit case. He surely will have a fine trip, going first to New Orleans, then to New York by boat, and home after a few days' stay there. Have I sent you our battle song? Here it is:

*"We're on the trail of Villa;
We're Yankees through and through;
We'll show the sons of Mexico
What the U. S. A. can do.
We're sons of Massachusetts—
Victory or die.
So give a grand old cheer, boys,
When the Eighth goes marching by.
Rah! Rah! Rah!"*

MICHAEL FRANCIS RYAN

Michael Francis Ryan, the 8-year-old son of Michael F. and Rose (O'Hara) Ryan, who are spending the summer in Manchester, died at the Beverly Hospital Monday, whither he was taken after a sudden illness. He went in bathing Sunday and ate some green apples on the same day. His consequent illness necessitated his removal to the hospital, where he died Monday. The loss is greatly felt by the bereaved parents, who have been enjoying their summer by the seashore until this great misfortune overtook them.

MOTOR BOAT MUFFLING ASSOCIATION ACTIVE.

That the District Police are thoroughly in earnest in their endeavor to put a stop to the nuisance caused by noisy motor boats is shown by the fact that the cases of eleven boat owners were brought before Judge Barnes in the East Boston Court on August 11th for violations of the motor boat muffling law in Boston Harbor.

The judge seemed disposed to impose fines in all these cases, but finally continued them for sentence until August 25th in order to allow the defendants time to properly equip their boats with mufflers to the satisfaction of the District Police, the understanding being that this must be done before August 25th so as to secure filing of their cases by the court.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

COLONEL'S

School Clothes for the Younger Girl

AND now hath the season returned when the nights grow colder and longer—and schools open! The younger generation must be fitted for the evil day and the following suggestions are not too early to be timely.

First the frocks! a serge dress is the smart and the desirable thing for the piece de resistance, as it were, of the fall wardrobe. One of blue had yoke and sleeves in one piece and the body of the frock was smartly plaited and smocked. A linen collar in apricot matched the shade of the smocking.

Another gay little school dress (for school frocks are doing all in their power to alleviate the boredom of days at school!) is of rough blue serge stitched with canary worsted. Shirrings, finished with yellow arrow heads, take care of the fullness at neck and waist and a wide, wide belt is quite chic. The crowning glory of this little gown is the canary colored collar and cuffs of linen crash.

Need we say a word in favor of the low heel and moderately broad toe for the school-girl's shoes? This type of shoe is the only one permissible for the girl in her early teens, even for party slippers. The suitable boot for every day wear has a seven-eighths inch heel, of gun metal with perforated vamp and wing tip and upper of fawn colored buckskin. This shoe is also attractive in tan leather. A low heeled oxford of the sport type may be worn almost all the year if heavy wool sport stockings are worn during cold weather. Such an oxford in tan and with rubber sole is a distinct addition to the girl's wardrobe, and will do nicely for walking and athletics.

Just a word about stockings! Heavy wool stockings are comfortable for sports wear and a number of pairs in white and colors are a wise provision for the school-girl's wardrobe. Ribbed stockings of cotton are good looking and durable. Heavy weight silk stockings may be provided for occasional wear.

Outer wraps for school wear are of great importance for, even during the first days of school, a coat for the few cool days must be selected. One of the most attractive coats for early autumn is of velours, full length and with a cape reaching the waist line in front and in back. This waist line, by the way, is belted with patent leather which gives a smart trimming to the coat. Velours covered buttons are the only other trimming. For later wear there is another velours coat trimmed from the collar to the hem and around the collar and the hem with fur. The coat is buttoned high at the throat and at the hem, being well brought over to keep out the winds of winter.

Next week Judy will give an itemized account of a boarding school wardrobe with prices for every thing.

"Can You Make a Berry Pie?"

JUDY can, "as quick as a cat can wink an eye;" and the Colonel's Lady, having successfully reached the heart of so great a man, may know that in order to hold it, attention to the wants of the inner man is necessary. Pie, he is sure to like and the wise matron becomes, therefore, a student of the tricks of making the time honored concoction. The sweet and juicy berry pie is one of the nicest of its kind, and easy to make after the secrets of a crisp crust and properly cooked berries are mastered.

In any pie making, first attention must be given to the paste. Ice cold water and plenty of shortening are quite necessary; and pastry that is thoroughly chilled on ice for a few hours is the best.

Blueberry Pie—Use a rather deep pie plate for this and line with good pastry. Use enough berries to nearly fill the plate and about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar for a sweet, very juicy pie. Add some butter and place the top crust, cut a little larger than the plate, over pie, turn in edge under lower crust, and press down closely with a fork. A little milk or beaten egg brushed lightly over the crust will help in browning. Bake in quick oven.

Raspberry Pie is made in the same way. Omit the butter and use a shallow plate instead of a deep one. Cut only tiny holes in the upper crust.

Cranberry Pie is a favorite in many a household and the season when these tempting red berries appear will soon be upon us, so let us, therefore be prepared to cook them in the most appetizing way. Bring the cranberries to the boiling point in an agate pan, take them from the fire and sweeten; return to the fire and boil for five English Gooseberry Tart is delicious. The following ingredients make a tart large enough to serve at least six persons: 1 quart gooseberries, 1 cup sugar, slight grating nutmeg. Wash the berries and place in an oval baking dish, add the sugar and the nutmeg. Take $1\frac{1}{2}$ cupfuls flour, 1-3 cup butter, 1 teaspoon baking powder, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt and about 1-3 cup cold water. Roll out the paste a little larger than the top of the baking dish to allow for turning in a little. Cut a small slit in the center of the paste. Lift carefully from the board to the dish, and turn edges in and press against sides of dish. Bake in moderate oven for an hour and set away to cool. When ready to serve, sprinkle the top of the tart with sugar. This is delicious without sauce, although the English people usually serve it with cream or soft custard. Currant tarts are made in the same manner.

by a well known Boston newspaperman.

With a large acquaintance in musical circles, he has interested a number who have volunteered their services in presenting a number of concerts along the North Shore in aid of the needy children. School time is coming and many of these little tots are ill equipped as regards clothing. While the Aid Association has so many families now on the automatic pay roll, the amount allotted each family is necessarily small, and must needs stop altogether unless additional funds are forthcoming. To meet this need these recitals are being given, and while the cause is worthy, the additional pleasure of witnessing a really excellent concert should appeal to those interested.

The volunteering artists include the noted harp virtuoso, Signor Giovanni Curti, a brilliant young coloratura soprano and singer of child songs, a wonderful little child dancer, a well known reader and impersonator and others.

The concerts will commence at 8.15 and terminate at 9.30 and the numbers will be as follows: The reading

MILITIAMEN ON BORDER DRENCHED
BY HEAVY SHOWERS AT EL PASO.

David Chadwick, a Manchester boy who enlisted in Co. H, 8th Mass. Infantry, for service in Mexico, writes of improved conditions at Camp Cotton. His letter dated last Saturday was written from the Moose home in El Paso. It follows:

"Editor North Shore Breeze:

"I guess that we are having the rainy season down here now. Last Wednesday and Thursday it rained day and night. We had from three to twelve inches of water in our company street. It hasn't dried here yet. We had to dig trenches to get it out of our company street. When we walk the mud sticks to our shoes and makes them weigh about twice their natural weight. We have got our tents fixed up fine now. We have wooden framework with screens on the sides and screen doors and electric lights. It is more like home now. It will be fine if we don't have any more rain. We have had some very good regimental shows here. We had two this week and they were worth seeing. They also played at a theatre in El Paso so you see they were good. I would like to be in Manchester this afternoon to see the ball game and then go home to get some of mother's good beans and brown bread. Our company is on guard tonight so I am going from the Lodge rooms to camp

I met Russell Codman from Manchester down here. He is with the machine gun company from Salem. I remain,

"Yours truly,

"DAVID CHADWICK.

TAX RATES SHOW INCREASES IN MOST OF RICHER TOWNS.

The tax rate in many places in the state has shown a reduction, but some of the richer towns have made an increase, notably Milton and Brookline on account of the redistribution of the corporation tax.

There are some exceptions, though, and the towns of Salisbury and Mashpee show large increases. In the former the rate has advanced $8.90 and the latter $8.40.

The average tax rate among the 137 cities and towns which have made their announcements is about $18.20. Medway has the highest rate and Orleans still maintains the lowest, although the tax rate of the latter is $1.50 higher than that of last year. Medway's rate for 1916 will be an even $25. Brookline, with a rate of $14.80, Milton with a rate of $14.20, and Wareham, with a rate of $20, have announced the highest rates in their history.

Boston, the largest city in the State, has the lowest rate of any of the large cities, although Springfield has a similar rate of $17.80. Beverly's rate of $15.60 is the lowest of the city rates announced to date. A majority of the cities have announced rates of more than $20. One of the greatest decreases which has been shown to date by any of the communities which have made returns is that of Holliston, whose rate has fallen from $23.50 last year to $15.50 this year. Middleton's rate has been reduced from $20 to $13.50.

Among the lowest rates of the State are those of Westwood with $9.60, Hamilton with $10, West Tisbury with $6, Topsfield with $6.60, Orleans with $4.50 and Falmouth with $10.20. Manchester's rate this year is $11.20, an increase of $1.20 over last year.

ALMOST BLANKED

MANCHESTER DEFEATED LEAD LINED IRON PIPE CO. BY 8 TO 1 SCORE.

If you felt that way you might have termed the game in Manchester last Saturday afternoon a "lead lined iron pipe cinch" so far as the local end of the game was concerned. Manchester's opponents, the Lead Lined Iron Pipe Co. of Wakefield, went down to defeat 8 to 1. Except for a bad heave to second by Perkins in the eighth inning the visitors might have been blanked. Manchester pounded the ball for 12 hits, three of them for extra bases, and knocked Arthur out of the box in the second inning. If there had been anyone to succeed Karlson he would have been yanked from the mound as well. Grover struck out eight of the visitors and held them to five hits. Herron as usual furnished the sensations of the game by pulling down five flies and figuring in a couple of fast fielding plays.

Gandrean lead off for the Wakefield nine with a drive to Cody and was out by yards. Harbor lined one down too fast for Cody to field and was safe at first. Caselden struck out and Harber took too big a lead and was caught at second, Grover to Devlin to Herron, the same play which has caught many a would be pilferer of the second sack this season.

Gourley was hit by Arthur and forced out at second on O'Leary's tap to Keefe. Cody went to first nursing his shoulder where Arthur hit him with the ball. Then the errors came thick and fast. Devlin was safe at first when MacDonald dropped Harrigan's throw and O'Leary came in with the first run when Flaherty dropped the ball at the plate. Herron's smash to Harber was too hard for the latter to handle and Cody slid home.

The first of the second was snappy; MacDonald drove one across second that looked good for a base, but Herron speared the ball; Harrigan lined a nice hit to Collins and got to second on a passed ball by Perkins. He died there while Flaherty popped out to Gourley and Barry fanned.

Perkins struck out in the second inning and Gourley singled to left field. O'Leary put "reverse English" on his bunt along the third base line and Harber, Flaherty and Arthur held a "quiet social hour" while the ball wended its serpentine course toward third. When the ball stopped rolling and was pronounced fair O'Leary was sitting on first base. Gourley was caught stealing to third. Cody's single to right landed O'Leary at third and both scored on Devlin's three bagger. Herron walked and stole second. Keefe let Conley's hit go through and two more runs came in. Collins walked and Grover was out Keefe to MacDonald. It was after Devlin's lusty drive to the brook that Arthur was replaced by Karlson. Until the seventh inning there was no scoring on either side; then Collins drew a pass and Grover got the second three bagger of the day. Collins scored and Grover came in on Perkins single.

The only Wakefield run was made in the eighth inning. Keefe singled to right and would have been out at second, but Perkins' throw struck the ground at Herron's feet. Karlson struck out and Gandrean knocked the ball over the brook. Collins jumped the water and fielded the ball in time to stop the runner at second, Keefe scoring. Harber fled to Conley and Caselden popped to Herron.

WILBUR THEATRE, BOSTON.

"Very Good Eddie," musical play by Philip Bartholomae, Guy Bolton, Jerome Kern and Schuyler Green, founded on the farce, "Over Night," has made a tremendous hit at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, where it enters on its 3rd week next Monday evening, Aug. 28.

"Very Good Eddie," is characterized by the same simplicity and refinement that made "Nobody Home" so welcome an attraction at this theatre a year ago. It comes here, as did its predecessor, from a long run at the Princess Theatre in New York, a little playhouse presided over by Miss Elizabeth Marbury and Ray Comstock, producing managers who have reaped rich rewards by adherence to their convictions that extravagant splendor and boisterous nonsense are not the prime requisites of successful musical comedy.

The cast is made up of thoroughly competent players, most of whom sing quite well enough. Ernest Truex, who was the diminutive Mr. Kettle of the original farce, plays the same role again, and dainty Alice Dovey impersonates the tiny Mrs. Darling.

WHISPERINGS of THE BREEZES

A Newspaper
As well as the Scriptures may be misquoted to some purpose.

x—x—x

It has been suggested that an extension be built all around the band stand in Central sq., Manchester, providing about six feet additional floor space in each direction. The stand is too small to comfortably accommodate a band of nearly 25 men and their instruments. Often special instruments are used for solo numbers and the quarters are then altogether too cramped for the performers to do their best work. Perhaps a new band stand would be preferable to enlarging the old one.

x—x—x

Limited only by feeble bounds of a hard-working imagination, two or three newspapers of nearby towns have added their bit to a yarn concocted by the Boston Post last Monday in regard to an alleged controversy over the use of Singing Beach, Manchester, by non-residents of the town. Even some Manchester people have been so exercised by the story that they have forgotten a few facts, quite well known to themselves, and have swallowed whole or in huge portions the story of the attempted restriction of the use of the beach.

Two weeks ago the BREEZE commented upon the popularity of Singing Beach, which is increasing from year to year. Attention was called to the fact that the capacity of the present bath houses is taxed beyond the limit every pleasant day in summer. The suggestion was made that it was time added accommodations were provided. No reference whatever was made to the use of the bath houses by non-residents, and the writer had not given that phase of the question a thought. The 32 dressing rooms can easily be taxed to capacity without a single non-resident setting foot on the beach. And when it is remembered that several hundred persons congregate on the beach on a Sunday and that the majority of them are Manchester folk, it seems foolish that that issue should have been raised at all. However, Jeffrey S. Reed of the Park Board, who has always advocated charging a small fee to non-residents who use the public bath houses, wrote a letter to the BREEZE last week calling attention to the fact that the question of the legality of the free use of the public bath houses by non-resident had never been settled. Mr. Reed suggested that it might be a good thing to determine the right of the Town of Manchester to build bath houses for the use of "all Essex county," before making any additions to the present buildings.

The Boston Post, like other Boston papers, makes a practice of enriching its columns with clippings from the columns of the BREEZE. When a youthful reporter was handed the clipping from the BREEZE and Mr. Reed's letter he scented a "big controversy," as he called it. Accompanied by a photographer, he visited Singing Beach last Sunday and secured the picture of a group of young ladies, whom he chose to call Salem shop girls. After a visit to police headquarters, where he learned that not an arrest had been made at the beach in eight years, and that to all appearances his trip had been fruitless, he decided to do a little stirring up of affairs of his own accord. Eventually he drifted into the BREEZE office and there was informed that everyone in Manchester was apparently in accord on the question of the use of the beach by non-residents. He was told that the matter had often come up in Town meetings, but that no action had ever been taken to instruct the Park Board in regard to making a charge, the inference being that everyone was agreeable to having visitors to Manchester use the privileges of the beach, including the bath houses, providing they did not abuse them.

However, he took the liberty of quoting the editor of the BREEZE as being in favor of restricting the use of the beach to residents and summer residents of the North Shore. The BREEZE has never advocated any restrictions of the use of Singing Beach and probably never will, unless changed conditions justify it. Several papers and a number of uninformed individuals have pictured the BREEZE as advocating a class distinction in connection with the use of the beach by non-residents. Common sense and a knowledge of the facts should be enough to convince anyone that such has not been the case.

THE MANCHESTER - MARBLEHEAD BASEBALL SERIES.

After lengthy diplomatic negotiations the arrangements for the Manchester-Marblehead series have been completed. The opening game will be played in Marblehead on Saturday afternoon, September 9, and the second game will be staged at the Beverly High School athletic field on the following Saturday, September 16. Managers Kelley and Grady of the 'Head team have agreed with Manager Charles Fritz of the Manchester nine to use the regular line-up of the teams now playing, with the choice of two additional players each. Neither team will draw on any of the professional leagues for players, but will endeavor to bolster up its line with the best semi-pro talent obtainable. Davies, Marblehead's star twirler, will be opposed by Grover, Manchester's crack southpaw, in the opening game. The second game on the Beverly diamond is expected to be the big drawing card. Should a third game be necessary Manager Fritz has the option of naming the place. It is expected that a large delegation will attend the opening game of the series in Marblehead, and all fandom will turn out for the Beverly game.

PREPAREDNESS PARADE

ANNUAL DEMONSTRATION OF WORK OF BEACH CHILDREN UNDER
MISS DALLETT.

On next Wednesday, August 30, the children of the Manchester Beach playground, under the supervision of Miss Jean Dallett, physical director, will hold their second annual parade and exhibition. The parade will form at Brook street, near Summer, at 1.15 o'clock and will start at 2 o'clock. The route will be Summer street to Washington, through Union street to Central square. There the parade will encircle the enclosed space, outside of the ropes. After the decorated floats, doll and baby carriages have been judged the program of athletics, games and folk dancing will be held. During the afternoon the industrial work done by the children will be on exhibition at tables near the street. There has been much time spent on industrial work during the rest hours and on hot days and as a result the children have a remarkable showing of knit sweaters, scarfs, woven doll hammocks, embroidery, shell pictures, seaweed jewelry, kites and bird houses. The program for the afternoon will be as follows:

Flag salute; judging of doll carriages and floats; singing games (a, "How Do You Do, My Partner;" b, "Hey, Diddle, Diddle;" c, "My Son, John"); obstacle races for boys and girls; ribbon dance; ace of diamonds (8 girls); flag drill (12 girls); awarding of ribbons for industrial work; dainty dance (3 girls); back to back race (8 boys); dance, "Soldiers' Delight;" folk dances (shoemakers' dance, Danish dance of greeting, kinder polka); dashes (boys over 9 years, girls over 10 years, boys under 9 years, girls under 10 years, tiny tots); relay race (four boys over 12 years against four girls over 12 years); singing of "Star Spangled Banner."

Bessie and Laura Abbott are visiting friends in Boston.

Ernest Howe left Monday for Scranton, Penna. Mr. Howe is employed by the Stone & Webster Co.

Rev. J. H. C. Cooper, rector, St. John's Church (Episcopal), Gloucester, will conduct the service at the Union chapel next Sunday morning.

The usual services will be held at the Village church next Sunday at 10.45 a. m., and 8.15 p. m., with preaching by the pastor.

The Men's club is still a bee-hive of activities. The rooms are well occupied. Bowling and pool are as popular as ever. A dance will be held Saturday night and moving pictures next Monday night with a good show. Possibly this may be the last of the season. Subscriptions to the mortgage of $12,000 now amount to $5000, which indicate the interest that people take in this splendid institution which is so much needed in a place like this, and doubtless when others know of its need and value they will be willing to "lend a hand."

The minstrel show, "A Night with the Girls," given at the Women's club last Thursday and Friday evenings was largely patronized and greatly enjoyed. The following took part in the show: Opening chorus, Helen Honan, Etta Honan, Mary Wood, Mary Beggs, Mildred Hamilton, Mae Sargent, Gertrude Hession, Anna Leary, Gertrude Quigley, Bessie Rooney, Gertrude Sweeney, Eva Messier, Mabel Flarerty, Bertha Buckley, Marguerite Dolan, Mary Robinson; waiters—Mae Ryan, Angela Honan, Lena Hession, Florence Healy; soloists—Grace McCaffery, Margaret Pickles; interlocutor—Mae McCaffery; solo dance—Florence Healy; musical director—Katherine Hession, and stage director—Mae McCaffery. The show was so greatly enjoyed and such a success that it is hoped by many that it will be repeated in the near future at the Oceanside Annex, which has been offered to the matron of the club by Mr. Warren, who is always ready to lend a hand to every good cause and who has done more than one good turn to clubs in this village.

Those who attended the services at the Village church last Sunday morning were given a great musical treat by the "Westminster Male Quartet," which consists of Maldo Curby, first tenor; Harold Sweetser, second tenor; Verr Bennett, baritone; Walter Fletcher, bass. The quartet rendered the following selections: "Rejoice the Heart of the Servant," Southard; "My Master and My Friend," Brackett; "Sunset," Van de Water; "My Heavenly Home," Proctor. It may be of interest to some to know that Prof. Brackett, the popular summer organist at the Village church, is the author of the song, "My Master and My Friend." So greatly did all the members of the quartet please the people that they will doubtless be heard next winter in the "People's Forum," if not before.

Jennie Brown is on the sick list and under the doctor's care.

Monday was an ideal day and the children of the Village church Sunday School had an ideal time at Salem Willows, rowing, riding on the flying horses, listening to the Salem Cadet band and of course eating the things that children like, the occasion being the annual picnic. About fifty went and upon their return home they voted it "the best time ever." This outing was made possible through the thoughtfulness and generosity of one of God's very best women, who has room in her great heart for all children.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SALEM.

Not only from the public, but from personal friends as well, is Dr. Edward A. Golden, the manager of the photo play, "Where Are My Children?" receiving letters of protest against the exhibition of that picture. Dr. Golden, who is a graduate of Tufts, says:

"Those people are hiding under a cloak of false modesty. The protests I am receiving from those who from some undiscoverable reason seem to think that these pictures should not be shown to a promiscuous public, are most aggravating. I am prepared to go on the debating platform anywhere with anyone and discuss the profession ethics of this picture.

We will be glad to give an extra performance for mothers and their daughters alone, if the demand is sufficient." Where Are My Children," plays at the Empire Theatre, Salem, the entire week of August 28. Seats are now on sale. Phone, Salem 2200.

Majestic Theatre, Boston. It may be fully as impressive to announce right off that next Monday begins the ninth week or 3rd month of this remarkable film in that city, and eight weeks of a motion picture, shown in midsummer is "going some." And the best of it is there is no end of the engagement in sight. With the house filled twenty-four times each week, there is no doubting the extraordinary interest in the picture, and a casual stroll and a glance at the patrons as they enter the theatre will prove that this interest is confined to no particular class of people. Which is another proof that its heart interest is general in its scope.

Salem's Fashion Shop

An Advance Shipment of Autumn Apparel Is Ready

Each day's express brings a fresh shipment from fashion centers. The woman who wants to be first to wear the new fashions as well as those who make it a rule to leave for cooler climes during the latter part of August or September will quite naturally be very much interested in this early display. Let us remind you, just for a moment, that it matters not how fashionable a garment is or how desirable, it carries the same moderate-price ticket you will find attached to all garments in this store all during the season.

Special Attention is Directed to the Showing of Suits at $22.50 to $35.00

The new fashions are exemplified in the models priced at above figures to a very marked extent. Here are suits fashioned of gabardine, poplins, broadcloths and men's-wear serge. Colors are black, navy, green and brown. The coats are longer than those of preceding seasons. Skirts are quite full though they do not look nearly as full as they are. As a matter of fact, they fall in graceful lines from the waist. The coats are trimmed with velvet, as a rule; others are trimmed in braid and buttons. There's much satisfaction and added service in buying early.

GOODWIN IN OUT-DOOR PERFORMANCE.

Without doubt the most notable dramatic undertaking of the year will be the mammoth open air performances of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" by Mr. Nat C. Goodwin, the most popular American actor, and his all-star company at Braves' Field, Boston, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, August 29, 30 and 31. Elaborate preparations have been made for these performances with a view to making them a fitting climax to the many Shakespearean tercentenary celebrations which have taken place throughout the country. No more ideal place could be selected than Braves' Field which has come to be known as the "Home of Big Things" because of the perfect manner in which it is laid out and its almost perfect acoustic properties. In order that all may see perfectly and hear the speaking voice with ease, only one section of the immense grand stand will be used and the mammoth stage will be placed directly in front of this section less than twenty feet away. This section is entirely protected from rain, and as the stage will be likewise protected the performances will positively take place regardless of the weather.

SHUBERT THEATRE, BOSTON.

With the original cast and a special orchestra, Arthur Hammerstein's sensational musical success, "Katinka," with T. Roy Barnes, which has just closed a year's run in New York, will begin a limited engagement at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening Aug. 28th. The same elaborate stage settings, which surpassed in gorgeousness and artistic blending, anything displayed in the metropolis of American theatricals last winter, will be displayed here, and the rich gowns of the female principals and chorus promise a revelation to the most acute followers of prevailing styles in feminine costume. "Katinka" tells the story of a Russian girl who is forced into marriage with an elderly statesman, much to her dis-

“Salem” --“Daniel Low’s”

The terms “Salem” and “Daniel Low’s” are synonymous to thousands of our mail order customers and friends the world over, many of whom are yearly visitors at the North Shore. While there, one of their “little journeys” is to historic Salem including, of course, a visit to Daniel Low’s.

Perhaps you, too, are acquainted with us thru our magazine advertising and our catalogs. Before you leave the North Shore we urge you to permit us the pleasure of meeting you personally at our Store.

We feel sure that you will find the Store fully as interesting as the pages of our catalog; in fact more so, for even the finest pictures and most comprehensive descriptions oftentimes do not measure up to the satisfaction of actual inspection.

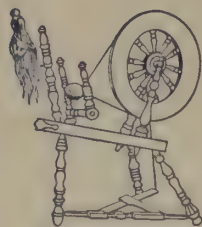

Your visit will put you under no obligation whatever to purchase while, for our part, we shall feel repaid in knowing that you will return to your home with a “mind picture” of Daniel Low’s that will, we hope, tend to create cordial business relations between us or further cement those relations already established.
